At a special meeting of the Lambda Kappa Delta Fraternity, called by President Gerald Piserchia on Tuesday afternoon of last week, a raffle of a ticket to the Senior Ball was conducted.

The ticket was part payment to the fraternity from the Senior Class for the use of the false ceiling which decorated the field house at the Senior Ball. It was won by Andrew N. Conte, a Junior in the School of Science.

New business was concerned with the organization of a baseball team to represent the fraternity. It is also planned to obtain permission to use the field in back of the Villanova Stadium for practice sessions. An effort has been made to schedule a game with Phi Kappa Pi, an old rival of the Pre-Medicos in all sports events and the Connecticut Club.

The speaker for the next meeting has not as yet been announced but his name will be announced in the near future.

Team Undefeated

Final reckoning of the club's basketball activities showed that the organization enjoyed an undefeated season.

In continuing with the athletic feature of the Connecticut Club an indoor soft-ball team was formed at the meeting. This team will challenge teams of the various halls and organizations on the campus.

As We See It . . . Christian Marriage

By HARRY PARKIN

NO SOCIAL INSTITUTION has been so roundly abused for its inadequacy in meeting the problems of today as has monogamous marriage. Yet, it is of more than passing note that those who most loudly decry its weakness, invariably fail to see its success in defying their assaults as an indication of its fundamental sanctity and soundness. Reformers, who for the most part are of a particularly pernicious kind because they understand so little of what they are trying to reform, have added to the general confusion on the subject by proposing all kinds of outlandish substitutes for it. The suggested remedies, which range anywhere from trial marriages down to something akin to barnyard reproduction, have, however, a kind of distinction among themselves, which consists in their unnatural and anti-social character. They are not, however, without the appeal to certain shallow thinking people, for they are generally replete with those palliating sophisms that frequently disguise some of the greatest evil written, they have a plausibility about them that is usually mistaken for verity.

Lack of Knowledge

The most dilatory investigation reveals, not that the Christian concept of marriage is inadequate or the terms of its contract wanting in any detail necessary to satisfy every requirement of man's physical and psychical nature, but rather there is a woeful lack of knowledge among married people concerning the duties and obligations they assumed upon entering the state. Marriage is not a failure, but rather people frequently are because of the quixotic notion that prevails among the unmarried that one need only to enter the martial state to have himself and his partner made instantly perfect in the moral order. Youth is too prone to think the words of the marriage ceremony a sort of mystic spell that exempts those it falls upon from all further subjection to earthly cares and travail. When this fails to be the case, as it usually does, they immediately conclude that the cause lies in any one of a dozen different places other than the one in which it actually odes, namely, themselves; and they speedily come to the conclusion that they have been imposed upon, that marriage demands more of people than their are capable of giving, that their case is different from any other, and that they should be permitted to marry someone more compatible with their nature.

Not the Contract

The problems of marriage are of such nature that few people are entirely free from them. The sickening sight of the modern divorce courts testifies to the large number who think these problems too vast for them to cope with. Yet, in contradistinction to this the greater majority of people find married life a most satisfying state to live in. It is obvious therefore that where all people undergo essentially the same ceremony, take the same vows, and have the same high resolve to be happy, that the fault, when some find wedded life unbearable, must lie deeper than the nature of the contract itself. If a class of students be given a course in mathematics, and then examined upon their knowledge of it, no one concludes the course at fault if certain of these students are unable to solve the problems given them. Nor would anyone think it other than mere schoolboy quibbling if those who failed attempted to lay the blame for their failure upon the course. Yet society is daily countenancing just such quibbling, when it permits marriage failures to ascribe their own irresponsibility or ignorance to the nature of the contract. But more than mere quibbling is involved, for society in actually taking their complaint seriously is permitting the very foundation upon which it is built to be declared unsafe.

An individual of even rudimentary intelligence would hardly affix his name to a business contract without first understanding its terms, the conditions under which they were to be filled, and his capacity for fulfilling them. Despite this reluctance we daily find persons engaging in contracts that are infinitely more binding and obliging than those of commerce without the slightest knowledge of or interest in what they are agreeing to do. They vow, and most solemnly to do—they don't know what. In contrast with this there is something beautiful and edifying in the manner in which the Catholic Church has instilled into the minds and hearts of Her members a deep and abiding knowledge of the sanctity and purpose of matrimony—her revelation to man of how he fulfills himself in fulfilling the will of his Creator—her constant maintenance of the dignity and sacredness of the marriage bonds through which the Creator manifests His eternal interest in the human race ion, Dorsey combines sizzling syncopations with mellow melodies to achieve his phenomenal success. Due to his magnetic personality and renditions of popular and classical music, Tommy proves to be a mecca for all dance-lovers from coast-to-coast wherever he makes a personal appearance. With his initial appearance at the French Casino in New York City, Dorsey was literally catapulted to the apex of dancedland stardom.

Dorscy is one of the few orchestra leaders appearing over both major broadcasting networks. His harmonies over the Columbia air-lanes six nights weekly emanate from the Palm Room of the exclusive Hotel Commodore in New York City, where he is currently featured. The Kool and Raleigh Cigarettes program presents the "Sultan of Swing" to radio listeners every Monday evening over the blue network of the National Broadcasting Company.

Is Collegiate Idol

America's ace trombonist and idol of the night clubs, Dorsey is extremely popular to the dance music lovers of all the leading colleges in the country. In addition to his accomplishments over the ether waves and his successful one-night engagements, he has established an envious following through the medium of numerous recordings. Dorsey's recording of "The Music Goes 'Round and Round" has been the biggest Victor seller in the last seven years.

Dorsey made his first appearance on Broadway at the famous French Casino, where he attracted widespread attention through his unique and clever arrangements. He followed this with a successful tour of the East and South, where he played record-breaking one-night engagements in the leading pavilions and ballrooms. After a triumphal return to New York City, Dorsey opened a Summer engagement at Dallas entertaining the Texas Centennial crowds. Playing his way North to the Gay White Way, he started his commercial series which has added to his already paradoxical attainments.

Sub-Committees Named

In an exclusive interview with the writer, Daniel J. O'Connor, Prom chairman, released various sub-committees in conjunction with the General Dance Committee. The Committee on Publicity will be under the able guidance of William Slaughter, and he will be aided by Louis Biester, Wilmer Booth, Edward Murphy and Joseph Allessandroni.

The decorations Committee has Edward Troncellitti as chairman, with William Dinges, Raoul Melian, Irving Folkman, James Coussart, Gilbert Bagot, Joseph Toland, Andrew Stopper and Salvatore Angelozzi. Charles O'Connor will direct the Program Committee with assistance being rendered by Joseph Bietenmiller and William Bowker. Edward Shevlin and Gilbert Bagot comprise the Refreshment Committee with the former assuming the role of chairman.

With the signing of Tommy Dorsey and the unprecendented spirit and enthusiasm of the Juniors, the Class of '38 promises to present the greatest Junior Prom in the history of the college.

"Luckies have been my favorite cigarette for about 5 years. They're a light smoke that sensitive throats welcome. Of the many trends that sweep through Hollywood, one of the longest lasting has been the preference for Luckies. Editor's Note: This week the column is being conducted by William J. Bowker.

All the lads are talking about the past week-end's social event, and pushing sports into the background. However, we must not lose sight of the fact that a Spring sport opens up this week. A traditional foe is first on the golfing card in the person of the Temple links team members. The divot-diggers have a chance to continue the athletic winning streak over Owl competitors by increasing the list of two victories scored by the Wildcat natators over the Mitten Hall mermen. Victory over the golfers would stretch it to three straight and put the Blue and White one up on the Cherry and White as far as varsity competition is concerned.

—V—

A glance at the baseball schedule for this week shows that with half a break, Villanova will get its fill of the diamond sport, with Penn, Ursinus and Penn A. C. to face the Wildcats. A line on the Athletic Clubbers can be obtained when it is noticed that they halted Temple's winning streak by scoring five runs in the eighth to take the Owls 9-4. Powerful hitting accounted for the victory, the Pennacs garnering 14 bingles. Temple didn't do so badly either, connecting for a homer, a triple and three doubles in eleven hits. Both of these teams are on the Wildcat schedule, and the boys had better watch their step.

—V—

Robert W. Henderson, a member of the New York Public Library staff, came out with the statement that baseball was not started by Abner Doubleday, as is popularly believed, but that is was present in England as early as 1744. Various proofs are given to support the statement. It just goes to show that there is no justice. "America's National Game" founded in England before this country even existed as such.

—V—

Some interesting statistics on the Villanova-Columbia game just came in and here they are. The clubs were fairly evenly matched, as the score indicates. First downs saw the Lions ringing up three more than our boys who totaled eight. However, the yards gained from rushing department shows that 195 years were gained by the visitors to the host's 134. Thirteen forward passes were tried by the Lions and seven of them were successful, amassing 177 yards. The Villanovans gained 54 years on five passes out of nine attempted. Wildcat defence men intercepted two of the Lions' passes, one more that the home lads. Each team completed all laterals tried, the visitors making four to their opponents one. Fifty-five yards were gained by Wildcat laterals, while the lone New Yorker pass netted seven yards. Our lads had a little more butter on their fingers than the Gothamites, making four to their foe's one fumble. When it is learned that the Wildcats were confined more or less to straight football, while the opposition had a variety of plays, the showing made by the Main Liners was very credible. Next week the lads make another trip up to the Big Town to face the Columbia boys again, and they promise to come back with the large end of the score, even though Spring games are of little importance as far as the records go.

—V—

Villanova's Spring sports schedule has been released and on it we see a short but stiff card for the Frosh track team. Dual meets with Penn Frosh, Northeast Catholic, and Temple yearlings comprise the set matches, with possibilities of two more dual meets, and a triangular tussle with West Catholic and Northeast Catholic late in May.

—V—

Action galore is the sports fan's menu this week as regards Villanova's athletic teams. The golfers have two matches, the ball club three games, and the Frosh trackmen are taking part in two of the above-mentioned meets. If the Wildcat enthusiast can be three or four places simultaneously, he will be able to take in all these athletic endeavors.

FOOTBALLERS TIED BY COLUMBIA CLUB IN PRACTICE TILT

Three Hour Scrimmage in New York Ends in 18-18 Count

Last Saturday Villanova's grid hopefuls of the 1937 season traveled up to Morningside Heights in New York to engage the Columbia Lions in a Spring practice tilt.

Taking advantage of the prevailing football weather both outfits went to work with plenty of spirit, and when they had concluded three hours of play each had scored three times.

The scrimmage was conducted as a regular game except that kick-offs and extra points were eliminated. After touchdowns were scored, the team scored against would put the ball on their own 25-yard line.

Offense Hampered

Villanova's offense was hampered no little because it, as yet, did not have included in its repertoire of plays, the spinners and reverses which played such an important part in last year's successes. Considering this vital fact, it must be said that the boys showed to advantage on the offense, even if their defense seemed to lack something.

During the whole battle both Coach Lou Little of Columbia and Coach "Clipper" Smith of Villanova substituted frequently on both squads. If it did nothing else, this workout rubbed off a few of the rough spots of some of the freshman material, which on the whole looked very good.

The Wildcats received the ball first on their 25-yard line, and

LIGHTWEIGHT TEAM HOLDS EARLY DRILL

150-Pound Footballers Begin Spring Practice; Fundamentals Stressed

An attempt to compensate for the lack of time given to the rudiments of football in the Fall, will be made in Spring practice which started yesterday by the Villanova Lightweights.

Coach Dick Emmerling suggested these Spring football drills because he was well aware of the fact, last Fall, that the one-fifties didn't know much about blocking and tackling. The poor showing made by the team can be attributed to this cause.

However, the reason that the lightweights didn't show up so well in this department of the game is due to the fact that most of the time in the Fall must be allotted to the learning and perfecing of plays. As a result, no time is left to stress blocking and tackling fundamentals more strongly than that which has been done in the past.

Skull Practice Stressed

Along with these afternoon drills there will be occasional lectures during lunch time, this time will be spent going over and discussing the various plays and the different types of defenses that will be used next Fall.

It is thought that by these practices a decided improvement should be noticed in the play of the lightweights next Fall and as a subsequent result a boost in

BUSY WEEK FACES TOSSERS AS THREE TEAMS ARE MET

Baseballers to Engage Penn, Penn A. C., and Ursinus Nines

CLOSE BATTLES EXPECTED

Doc Jacobs' nine will see plenty of action during the coming week, after having their last two games rained out. The Wildcats will face three opponents within six days, starting tomorrow afternoon with their annual baseball rival, the University of Pennsylvania.

Penn so far this season is undefeated, having beaten Drexel, Princeton and their arch rival, Cornell. The Quakers will probably be favored to win, sporting a victory over the Princeton team, who defeated the Wildcats 7-2 in the season's opener. However, the 'Cats have won two of the last three games from Penn, so the game should be very interesting.

Friday, the 16th, Villanova will face the Penn Athletic Club nine, which last week defeated Temple ina 9-8 thriller. Hoersh, Penn A. C. pitcher, struck out 14 men during his time on the mound. This will be the initial home game for the Wildcats The following Monday the Jacobsmen will travel up to Collegeville to meet the Ursinus Bears.

The Villanova nine have yet to taste victory this year in collegiate ranks, but should be well started on their regular string by the end of the week. With fourteen more games to be played the Wildcats can only afford to drop two or three more to keep up with their records of the past few years. With the veteran material and the strength of the new candidates this should not be too hard.

MURAL GOLF DATE SET

Villanova's annual intra-mural golf tournament will be held Wednesday April 21 at the Main Line Open Golf Course. All are urged to compete in this tourney. Due to the courteous action of the golf club green fees will be waived.

SKIPPACK TENNIS CLUB

Another item on the sports release is the carding of Skippack Tennis Club at home for a practice tilt April 18. Where the said tennis club is no one seems to know, and any information concerning it will be gratefully received.

OWLS AND HAWKS OPEN LINKSMEN'S 1937 CAMPAIGN

Temple and St. Joe's to Test Golfers' Skill Over Week-end

POSITION PLAY-OFF SOON

As the season's opening match with Temple University approaches, the Villanova golf team is tapering off a strenuous practice campaign with a tournament to determine the starting lineup for Friday's match with the Owls at Temple's stamping grounds.

Inclement weather postponed the selection of members, until this late date, but the wealth of material available, both from the left-overs of last year's squad, and the newcomers, should assure Wildcat links fans that a representative team will take the field in the opening match.

Four Veterans Return

Veterans returning to the wars are Jimmy Dwyer, John McManus, Lou Dubino and Ed Tirrell. These men have the inside track for positions, but no one is certain of a starting post, especially with such new men as Frankie Menapace, Walt Burlington, Ray Murphy, "Duke" Duzminski, and Lloyd Rice pushing them for places. Manager Jack Geraghty's trouble will lie more in picking out the best of a group of good men rather than finding a good team.

Of the aspirants for positions, Dwyer seems to be the outstanding competitor. His game is in the seventies, and he matches a long driving range with accuracy on the putting green. Good judgment on shots rounds out his game, and much is expected from him in the extensive schedule facing the par chasers. McManus and Dubino are not far behind the Trenton flash, and with little more experience,

MURAL TRACK MEET

As was the case last year, the annual intra-mural track meet will be held on successive days this season. The field events will take place April 27 and the running events will be held the following day. Last season much interest was shown in this tourney and all those wishing to enter should see their hall representative as soon as possible.

Second, Fourth Innings Spell Defeat for Doc Jacobs' Combine

DEL UMO, CROWLEY SHINE FOR VILLANOVA IN OFFENSE

Hitting of These Two Only Bright Spot of Main Liner's Play

Philadelphia's Phillies trounced the Wildcats yesterday at Norristown in a charity contest before about 5000 fans. When the barrage of hits was over, the National Leaguers had scored 15 runs to the Villanovans, two.

Heavy hitting and air tight pitching featured the victors' attack, while the Blue and White representatives were held hitless by Claude Passeau until the fourth inning when Bobby Bond doubled. This was the only hit made off the delivery of the Philly ace. Seven hits in all were made by the Jacobsmen, and double that number by the winners.

Two Double Plays

Defensively, the Wildcats were much better than on the offense, and showed some smart ball, the infield accounting for two double plays, Len Merullo, Schoppmeyer and Bond completing one in the first inning, and Lenny making an unassisted double out in the fifth.

Two big innings, the second and the fourth, saw the National

KITTEN BASEBALL SCHEDULE RELEASED

Ursinus, Penn State, and Peirce School Comprise Schedule

Release of the 1937 Freshman baseball schedule shows a short, but difficult campaign for the Kitten tossers. Four contests confront Coach "Bunny" Galazin's charges, with Pierce School and Ursinus Frosh furnishing the opposition for the first two games, both of which will be played at home. After this tussle, the yearlings travel to Penn State, and then conclude their season with a return engagement at Ursinus.

No Starting Line-up

As yet no one is certain of a starting position, and hot fights are expected for each post for the initial game May 3. Among the candidates are the two Jersey pitching stars, Andy Sisco and Al Murray. At first base, Mickey Vernon will probably see plenty of action, although Bob Pash, basketballer, and utility infielder, is able to step in should Mickey be injured.

Among the other tyros are "Duke" Duzminski and "Buzz" Howlett, who starred for Northeast Catholic in his high school days. From these men, as well as the others reporting for practice, Galazin should produce an outstanding team, and Freshman ball fans can hope for an undefeated season.

The schedule:

May:

10—Ursinus, home.
15—Penn State, away.
19—Ursinus, away.

Slug-fest and Pitchers' Duel Mark Ball Games

Rice and Goumy Star in Afternoon Tilt, Allowing Two Hits Each; Thirty Strikeouts Tallied

COLD SNAP DAMPENS FANS' ARDOR

By HARRY BURNS

Last Sunday's Intramural baseball games displayed two distinct forms of baseball techinque. The first game between the Fedigan Gigolos and the Alumni Schoolboys was a rollicking hit-fest with the Gigolos coming in on the long end of the 15-3 score. The afternoon game was in reality a pitchers' duel with 30 strike outs and only four hits in the entire game.

Playing under a severe handicap due to the bitter cold wind and occasional flurries of snow, none of the participating teams showed the peak of skill. The performance of the pitchers in the afternoon game was by far the outstanding event of the day. Lloyd Rice, of the Mendelians and Ted Goumy from Austin Hall put on a show that has never been equalled in the annals of intramural baseball.

Allowing but two hits each in the entire game Rice succeeded in striking out17 men while Goumy fanned 13, making a total of 30 strike-outs, in the whole game. Rice will be remembered as having made such outstanding success while playing in the first half of the Mural basketball season and as a Kitten court man. Goumy also starred in the Mural basketball for Austin hall and played several seasons of baseball with the native Hopeville Indies in Waterbury, Conn.

Tony Aleo, another Connecticut boy and a Mendel man, made the first hit by a pretty bunt midway between the catcher and pitcher and stole home on a wild throw from the first baseman to third. Clem Lavin, the next batsman for Mendel, lined out a base hit between first and second base and succeded in reaching second through another wild throw, this time by the second baseman. From second he stole third and from there he romped home, making the second and last run of the day.

"Cappy" Cappellaro and Ray Murphy made the only hits for Austin. Murphy was retired at second while trying to steal third, while Cappellaro was caught on second. The whole game, although listless through scarcity of hits and runs set a remarkable precedent in the way of strike-outs and showed amazingly the skill that each pitcher possessed.

"Gigolos" Win Easily

The Fedigan-Alumni game was a walkaway for the Gigolos. They started early in the fourth inning and began to bat the leather-bound sphere all over the lot. "Snowshoes" Rifici was the initial scorer. He sank a double deep in center field and came home on an error. From that point on the Gigolos gave vent to their emotions and hit everything that Pitcher O'Brien put over. "Rabbit" Emburgia, playing his first game of the year, performed like a big-leaguer and displayed his prowess not only in shagging flies but in landing them out there also. "Costy" Costello who served for five innings as pitcher, completed the big batteries, as he and Emburgia both crossed the plate three times.

Wild Pitches Disastrous

The plight of the Alumnians was due partly to the incompetence of the fieldere and partly to the execution of several wild throws that resulted in a number of runs for the promptly smashed up the field for four downs in a row. As the Lion's low, hard-charging forward wall gradually accustomed itself to Villanova's "straight stuff," it became more difficult to pentrate. Meanwhile the Light Blue and White showed a very tricky offense of their own which at times was difficult to stop.

Lions Tally First

Soon after Father Knickerbocker's boys halted Villanova's first offensive drive, they scored by dint of some smooth running by Sid Luckman, their stellar halfback. Luckman scored after driving about eight years off tackle.

This same Luckman figured in the second Columbia score when he tossed a long, well-directed pass to Johnny Siegal on the Wildcat's five yard marker. From there Siegal carried it over.

Not to be denied, the Main Liners shook Art "The Jeep" Raimo loose on a 75-yard touchdown jaunt immediately following Siegal's score. Raimo sprinted through his own left tackle, reversed his field, picked up a covey of blockers, and romped to pay dirt on a play that held everyone spellbound by its suddeness.

Wildcat Fumble Costly

Columbia again increased its advantage to two touchdowns, when they recovered a Villanova fumble deep in Main Line territory. Jerry Seidel scored on a short buck over the center.

With the scrimmage in its waning moments, the Wildcats put on a burst of offensive power that netted them two touchdowns in short order. This offense was the most impressive exhibited during the course of the afternoon.

The first of the two touchdowns came when Paul "Knobby" Verbitsky, promising freshman halfback, climaxed a long drive down the field by scoring on a sharp thrust through the line from the line yard stripe.

Immediately after this the Wildcats swept 75 yards down the field with Harvey Buek ending the march by scoring on a flat pass from Verbitsky. This drive was featured by the running of Buek, last year's sensational sophomore.

Both Lou Little and "Clipper" Smith expressed satisfaction at the conclusion of the workout and arranged for their squads to meet again next Saturday. This contest will also be held at Baker Field, because the Columbia lads are prohibited from making the trip down here due to an extensive schedule of Saturday classes.

The hurts suffered by Jack Earle and Jordan Olivar, both outstanding members of last year's squad cast a pallor over the Villanova campus. As a result of their injuries both boys are expected to be absent from the remainder of the Spring drills.

In the Limelight

By PAT VASSALLUZZO

After a lapse of several weeks wherein your columnist enjoyed a much appreciated, even though not well-earned vacation, the sports department of the VILLANOVAN is again happy to offer, for your information and we hope, enjoyment, another installment of "In the Limelight."

The recipient of the spotlight this week is Harry Joseph McNally, senior student in the School of Arts, and varsity guard on the Wildcat's basketball squad for two years.

Should we, in our attempts to honor this gentleman, scholar, and athlete, fail to do him justice, we hope he will take into consideration the events occurring during the past week-end, and accept our humblest apologies.

Harry Joseph was born in the Bronx, New York City, on February 27, 1914. Just recently the McNally's moved to New Rochelle, N. Y. Could the fact that there is a girls' college in New Rochelle have had anything to do with it, Harry?

Mr. and Mrs. McNally sent Harry to elementary school at St. Nicholas Tolentine in the Bronx, where he received his rudimentary education. He spent eight years there, participating in basketball.

After leaving St. Nicholas, Harry went to Fordham Prep for four years, where he completed a standard high school course. McNally went in for sports in a big way here, playing football, basketball, and baseball. He received seven letters from Fordham Prep, being awarded one for baseball; three in football, playing halfback; and four in his favorite pastime, basketball, where he played guard.

Harry made quite a name for himself in sports at prep school, and upon graduation, enrolled at Manhattan College, where he entered in September of 1932.

McNally spent two years at Manhattan, participating in basketball and baseball in his freshman year, and in basketball in his sophomore year. At the end of his second year there Harry decided to come to Villanova and in September of the following year matriculated at the Main Line institution.

During his first year at Villanova Harry was ineligible to compete in varsity competition; but the following year he went out for both basketball and baseball and made both squads, playing guard in the former and backstopping in the latter. He received his varsity "V" in both sports.

In this his senior year, Harry dropped baseball and put all his time on basketball. He was the regular guard and finished the current season high scorer second only to Montgomery.

SPORTLIGHTS

Two freshman backfields at present have caught the eye of Coach Smith. One is quarterbacked by Harry Mazzei of North Bergen, N. J. He is small but shifty and apparently knows more than a little about field generalship. Flanking him are Art Murphy, of Albany, N. Y., at right half and John Gogolinski, from Mocanaqua, Pa. At fullback is Paul Verbitsky, from Stapleton, N. Y. Paul is one of the best looking prospects on the freshman squad. Originally a halfback, he has been converted into a fullback.

The second freshman backfield that is shaping well has Johnny Howlett, former captain of North Catholic High, Philadelphia, at quarter; Wytold Urbellis, Freehold, N. J., at right half; William Romanowski, Avoca, Pa., at left, and Tommy McMahon, former Lower Merion High star at full. There is a possibility that McMahon may be swung into a tackle berth. Outside of last year's starting tackles nothing promising is seen in the line of reserves.

Local Boys Do Well

Tony Periere from Northeast High is a candidate for a guard position and so far has shown up exceptionally well. He was an All-Public High guard for two years and All-Scholastic one year.

Edward Killian, the 230 pounder who hitch-hiked from Hartford, Conn., to work out with the team, is on his way home after one week of work-out. Killian is a product of Frog Hollow High and showed well enough in practice. He hopes to enter Villanova as a freshman next Fall following his graduation from high school.

these two will press Dwyer for top honors.

New Members Promising

Not much is known about the new members of the squad, but Burlington, Murphy and Duzminski have shown possibilities. Burlington's height and breadth of shoulder should do much to make him a long driver. He shoots in the eighties, as do Murphy and Duzminski, and from these three able auxiliaries to the starters will be found, providing that they do not replace any of the veteran pellet pounders.

Eight matches constitute the links schedule. Following the opener with Temple, the Wildcats play host to Gotham's Fordham University outfit on Saturday at the Main Line Open club. St. Joseph's, Rider, Franklin and Marshall, and return meets with the last three teams complete the card, the final contest taking place May 12, at home. All matches except the one with Fordham are four-man team matches. The Fordham meeting will see six men on each squad.

Locals Beaten, 15-2, By Major Leaguers

Leaguers amass twelve of their runs. The short right field fence was a good target for the winners and they made the most of it.

Del Oumo, Crawley Get Two

For the Wildcats, Charlie Del Umo and "Cowboy" Crowley starred offensively, each getting two hits, the former two in three times at bat, and the latter "two for two." Bond, Stovlak and Shefo accounted for the other of the ers' seven bingles.

After threatening in the seventh, the Wildcats tallied two in the eighth. With three men on in the seventh and two out, Len Merullo hit a hard line drive which Del Young, rookie second baseman, juggled. He finally caught it, however, and the first threat was ended.

Wildcats Tally

To start the eighth, Charlie Del Umo doubled to center. Joe Desmond then went down swinging. Walt Sheftic got on first by virtue of an error, Del Umo scoring. Bond flied out to Norris at first. Stovlak then doubled for the longest hit of the day, sending Sheftic across with the final tally for the Blue and White. Vigilante flied out to end the flurry of runs.

In the second inning, when the winners broke out in their first scoring spree, Arnovich went out, McLaughlin to Bond. Wilson went out on a grounder and then the fun started when Whitney walked. He then pilfered second, and scored when Young doubled off the center field fence, despite Wannemacher's fine try for the ball. Passeau tripled, and scored when Scharein doubled over the right field wall.

Pitchers' Battle Marks Mural Play

Fediganites. Jim Scott and Lew McGlincy each got a hit that brought them home in due course, while Joe Scully came home on a walk. Bob O'Brien, the Brooklyn bombshell, served as moundsman for the first innings of the game, but was relieved there by Catcher Florette and retired to the left field, putting Scully behind the mask and shifting Weir from the outfield to third base. These alterations, however, were insufficient to stem the attacks of the inspired Gigolos as they wended their merry path around the three bags to home plate.

The Fedigan team looks like an invincible combination especially with the pitcher-catcher combine of Costello and Murphy. The Fedigan nine functioned perfectly as a unit and this is partly due to the fact that the team is composed of nine-tenths of last year's Alumni team. This is their second year of play as a unit and great things are expected of them.

Next week's encounter between the Mendelians and the Fediganites is a contest that is awaited eagerly by both sides and the public is urged to come early as there are only a few rush seats left on the benches for this encounter.

Here and There

By THOMAS J. CARBINE

THE Varsity Show sponsored by Pontiac would do well to contact Villanova now that the Glee Club has proved its capabilities on a coast to coast network and the Varsity baseball nine has produced an exceptionally able quartet in the persons of Frank Escott, "Ruby" Sheftic, Ray Stovlak and Mike Garbark . . . Spark for a good time is supplied by this latter group on the various trips . . . On the recent Princeton journey Sheftic gave his impression of Nelson Eddy's rendition of "Rose Marie."

While in Princeton the boys took over everything but the Tigers. Even Doc Jacobs was attracted by the clothes displayed in the local shops . . . and a loud sport coat exhibited in one of the smart clothiers caused Doc to temporarily forget the hungry swatters who were awaiting his selection of a restaurant . . . "Link" Lenzi and "Esquire" Moynihan tried on every beer suit owned by the same establishment . . . and finally decided that their personalities didn't require such an addition to their wardrobe. "Hack" Donovan and Walt Burlington should be permanently added to all Wildcat teams . . . they not only amuse the spectators but also upset the opposing teams with their hilarious antics.

Local Boys Make Good

Joe McHugh and Johnny Krutulis were promoted in the Greeks. Joe will take over the doorman's duties while "Bandy" will serve in the capacity of host. Mike is also considering hiring Norm Klein and Dan Healy as bouncers.

Gridder Brad McManus is also quite an actor. He now has a leading part in the forthcoming Belle Masque production . . . We hear that "Mac" McDonnell's favorite ditty is "With a Hair-Hair Here and a Hair-Hair There." . . . The Sophomores are still awaiting the answer to their challenge of a few months ago . . . they are still waiting to contact the juniors in that much belated field day . . . How about some day during Junior Week? . . . It will be a pleasant memory for later years. DOT DASH DOT DASH . . . This confirms all reports concerning Tom Dewey's Sioux descendency . . . P. S.—He was bedecked in his warpaint the other eve . . .

Baseball

The big leagues have found so many promising ball players on the campus in the last couple of years that we now find former teammates playing against each other in the same farm league . . . The New York-Pennsylvania League has Artie Mahan on the Hazleton Club and Link Lenzi, Ben Geraghty, Ed Vaughn and Frank Skaff playing for Elmira.

Our showing against the Phillies has real significance for the Associated Press Sports Writers have voted Philadelphia's National League team the second most improved in the majors . . . The Yanks were voted to be the most improved team . . .

National Recognition

Villanova's representatives in all four major sports will have an excellent opportunity for national recognition next year with important opponents from all districts . . . The basketball squad will meet the best in Pittsburgh, New York and Philadelphia . . . in arranging these schedules the authorities might like to know that student opinion seems to favor the sports carnival mentioned in previous columns in this space. The competition could include basketball, boxing and swimming and a dance would complete the day's festivities. The rivalry with Temple as the opposition would insure the success of the undertaking . . . It might also be possible to make this a more gala affair by designating this, Reunion Day.

Who was the young Mississippi gentleman who so calmly took the Villanova athletic moguls over the well-known hurdles with his super Southern drawl? . . . Flashing a bright black M on his sweater and wide emile, the high-pressure magazine salesman flooded the sports' office with subscriptions to a wraith-like sports' periodical carrying the moniker of the "Sports' Eye" . . .

Flash of wit: A senior, so the story goes, bought his date a bonded corsage—Four Roses . . . "Bunny" Galazin met his boyhood pal, Russ Morgan, Friday night at the Ball . . . Russ took "Bunny" along to New York, where he filled an engagement Saturday, so they could talk about the old times they had in little Nanticoke. . .

OFFICIAL PROVES STUDENTS AIDED BY OUTSIDE WORK

Successful Politician Held Four Important Posts While in College

Washington, D. C.—Often we hear it said that college politicians and extra - curricular honor - seekers waste time in pursuing those outside goals. We hear that college politicians seldom follow through when they are graduated, despite their glowing achievements of college days.

Present today in Washington is a former college politician who has disproved the old, familiar calamity howl on this subject. He was president of his class at the University of Indiana; editor of the college newspaper, and the recipient of additional extra-curricular honors. He made Phi Beta Kappa, but he definitely went after outside honors and succeeded in obtaining them.

In after years, this ex-college politician became dean of the University of Indiana Law School; National Commander of the American Legion; and, in January he completed a four-year-term as Governor of Indiana. Now he is in Washington making ready for his departure for the Philippines where he will be High Commissioner at a salary of $18,000 a year, plus a handsome palace which is furnished for use as the High Commissioner's residence.

In 1940 the former class office and college editor may be a strong contender for the Democratic presidential nomination. But whether he reaches the Presidency or not, he will have had a highly successful political career.

Big Ten Coaches Vote to Abandon Center Jump in Conference Games

Chicago, Illinois—(ACP)—Prayers by Big Ten basketball coaches for seven-foot centers have ceased temporarily and perhaps permanently.

All because the Big Ten mentors voted, in a recent meeting during the sessions of the National Basketball Coaches' Association, to abandon the center-jump for the 1937-38 campaign.

It was explained that the new practice, adopted unanimously, would merely be on trial during the next season, and that its permanent adoption would depend on the coaches' reaction to it after a year's testing.

Under the new ruling, the jump at center will be used only at the beginning of the game, at the start of the half, at the opening of overtime periods and after technical and double fouls.

At all other times, the ball will be placed in play behind the endline of the team scored upon, under the same procedure that follows after a successful free throw resulting from a personal foul. This free throw rule, incidentally, has been practiced in the Big Ten for the past two years.

The Big Ten is not the first conference to eliminate the center jump. Last Winter the Pacific Coast conference, decided officially to discard it, largely as the result of pioneering by the southern division of the conference, Stanford, California, Southern California and U. C. L. A. during the 1935-36 season.

That the step is in line with the Big Ten's efforts to speed up the game, was expressed by Harold G. Olsen, basketball coach at Ohio State University:

"Those who have had a chance to study basketball as played under the no-center jump rule feel that it provides a far better game from the spectator's viewpoint.

"It certainly makes for more action. I had a chance to observe it under actual game conditions when Ohio State played four games on the coast early last season and these contests convinced me that the elimination of the center jump makes for a better game. Our players were unanimous in their approval of it," explained Olsen.

"While I would not go so far as to say that height will no longer be a prime requisite of a center under the new rule, I do believe that the jump's elimination will take some importance off height and place more premium on speed and cleverness," he concluded.

STUDENTS OBTAIN JOBS

Cheerful note for students: During December and January more than 9,000 jobs for young people were obtained in private business and industry through the Junior Employment Service which is maintained by the National Youth Administration. About 64 percent of the total number were between 18 and 21 years of age; 22 percent were under 18, and 14 percent were between the ages of 21 and 25. Seven percent of the young people who found jobs were from relief families; the remaining 93 percent being non-relief applicants who took advantage of this service to find employment.

There are 48 offices of the Junior Employment Service in various cities throughout the country. Young people in need of jobs, or soon to need them, may register with this outfit and receive aid in finding employment.

MIND JUGGLERS

"Most students at Stanford don't use their minds at all. They just jiggle them a little each day and then turn to more important things." Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, of Stanford University, exposes mental "jiggling." That should be juggling.

U. of P. Newspaper Lashes Satirical Yale Movement

Publication Decries "Rattle-Brain Scheme"; Also Attacks Princeton Attitude

Philadelphia, Pa. — (ACP) — The satirical "Roosevelt for King" movement started at Yale University, took an editorial lashing from the University of Pennsylvania's daily paper.

"A rattle-brain scheme to attract publicity" and "in complete disregard for all that constitutes good taste," the Daily Pennsylvanian called it.

The editorial charged Yale and Princeton students with sponsoring a proposal "to make the American college man ridiculous in the eyes of the general public."

The thought of an editorial in the Daily Princetonian about the movement was characterized as "sophomoric," by the Daily Pennsylvanian, and, in tone, "disrespectful of a family which by its very position should command the courtesy of every American."

"We find the Daily Princetonian, rabid supporter of the President in the last election, shifts its allegiance like any adventurer burning to see his name in print," the statement continued.

"Heaven help the American college man if he cannot learn to divert his energies into constructive channels."

FLOODED SCHOOLS AIDED

Uncle Sam has done rather well by students in the flood area. Allocation of $106,460 has been made to youthful flood sufferers and $71,160 of this amount is ear-marked for student aid. These funds are to enable high school and college students to continue their studies. The flood disaster so seriously impaired their families' resources, in many instances, that without outside help they would have had to quit school. More than $38,000 will go to college students and $32,910 to students attending high school.

DR. GEORG ROMMERT DEMONSTRATES USE OF MICROPROJECTOR

Internationally Known Scientist Shows Action of Living Micro-organisms

Dr. Georg Rommert, internationally-known member of the Biologisches Laboratorium at Munich, Germany, demonstrated wonders of an unseen world to a combined seminar of Science, Arts and Engineer students, last Tuesday morning in the Mendel Hall amphitheater.

Uses Microprojector

By means of a special microprojector which Dr. Rommert invented himself, he was able to cast the images of living micro-organisms, actually under a microscope at that time, on to a screen. This apparatus works by a special arrangement of mirrors and prisms, with light furnished by an arc lamp, while he manipulates the microscope.

In this fashion, Dr. Rommert showed the images of paramecium in culture, of nose-like animalculae, of trumpet-shaped organisms, hydra, vorticellae, and small crustacea.

Showed Feeding

Of interest to the spectators was the exhibition of feeding by these various organisms. Dr. Rommert demonstrated how the nose animalculae killed and ingested paramecia, how the hydra killed and ingested various crustacea, and how light affected each of these animals.

OFFICIAL PROVES STUDENTS AIDED BY OUTSIDE WORK

Washington, D. C.—Often we hear it said that college politicians and extra - curricular honor - seekers waste time in pursuing those outside goals. We hear that college politicians seldom follow through when they are graduated, despite their glowing achievements of college days.

Present today in Washington is a former college politician who has disproved the old, familiar calumity howl on this subject. He was president of his class at the University of Indiana; editor of the college newspaper, and the recipient of additional extra-curricular honors. He made Phi Beta Kappa, but he definitely went after outside honors and succeeded in obtaining them.

In after years, this ex-college politician became dean of the University of Indiana Law School; National Commander of the American Legion; and, in January he completed a four-year-term as Governor of Indiana. Now he is in Washington making ready for his departure for the Philippines where he will be High Commissioner at a salary of $18,000 a year, plus a handsome palace which is furnished for use as the High Commissioner's residence.

In 1940 the former class office and college editor may be a strong contender for the Democratic presidential nomination. But whether he reaches the Presidency or not, he will have had a highly successful political career.

Big Ten Coaches Vote to Abandon Center Jump in Conference Games

Chicago, Illinois—(ACP)—Prayers by Big Ten basketball coaches for seven-foot centers have ceased temporarily and perhaps permanently.

All because the Big Ten mentors voted, in a recent meeting during the sessions of the National Basketball Coaches' Association, to abandon the center-jump for the 1937-38 campaign.

It was explained that the new practice, adopted unanimously, would merely be on trial during the next season, and that its permanent adoption would depend on the coaches' reaction to it after a year's testing.

Under the new ruling, the jump at center will be used only at the beginning of the game, at the start of the half, at the opening of overtime periods and after technical and double fouls.

At all other times, the ball will be placed in play behind the endline of the team scored upon, under the same procedure that follows after a successful free throw resulting from a personal foul. This free throw rule, incidentally, has been practiced in the Big Ten for the past two years.

The Big Ten is not the first conference to eliminate the center jump. Last Winter the Pacific Coast conference, decided officially to discard it, largely as the result of pioneering by the southern division of the conference, Stanford, California, Southern California and U. C. L. A. during the 1935-36 season.

That the step is in line with the Big Ten's efforts to speed up the game, was expressed by Harold G. Olsen, basketball coach at Ohio State University:

"Those who have had a chance to study basketball as played under the no-center jump rule feel that it provides a far better game from the spectator's viewpoint.

"It certainly makes for more action. I had a chance to observe it under actual game conditions when Ohio State played four games on the coast early last season and these contests convinced me that the elimination of the center jump makes for a better game. Our players were unanimous in their approval of it," explained Olsen.

"While I would not go so far as to say that height will no longer be a prime requisite of a center under the new rule, I do believe that the jump's elimination will take some importance off height and place more premium on speed and cleverness," he concluded.

STUDENTS OBTAIN JOBS

Cheerful note for students: During December and January more than 9,000 jobs for young people were obtained in private business and industry through the Junior Employment Service which is maintained by the National Youth Administration. About 64 percent of the total number were between 18 and 21 years of age; 22 percent were under 18, and 14 percent were between the ages of 21 and 25. Seven percent of the young people who found jobs were from relief families; the remaining 93 percent being non-relief applicants who took advantage of this service to find employment.

There are 48 offices of the Junior Employment Service in various cities throughout the country. Young people in need of jobs, or soon to need them, may register with this outfit and receive aid in finding employment.

"Most students at Stanford don't use their minds at all. They just jiggle them a little each day and then turn to more important things." Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur of Stanford University, exposes mental "jiggling." That should be juggling.

U. of P. Newspaper Lashes Satirical Yale Movement

Publication Decries "Rattle-Brain Scheme"; Also Attacks Princeton Attitude

Philadelphia, Pa.—(ACP)—The satirical "Roosevelt for King" movement started at Yale University, took an editorial lashing from the University of Pennsylvania's daily paper.

"A rattle-brain scheme to attract publicity" and "in complete disregard for all that constitutes good taste," the Daily Pennsylvanian called it.

The editorial charged Yale and Princeton students with sponsoring a proposal "to make the American college man ridiculous in the eyes of the general public."

The thought of an editorial in the Daily Princetonian about the movement was characterized as "sophomoric," by the Daily Pennsylvanian, and, in tone, "disrespectful of a family which by its very position should command the courtesy of every American."

"We find the Daily Princetonian, rabid supporter of the President in the last election, shifts its allegiance like any adventurer burning to see his name in print," the statement continued.

"Heaven help the American college man if he cannot learn to divert his energies into constructive channels."

FLOODED SCHOOLS AIDED

Uncle Sam has done rather well by students in the flood area. Allocation of $106,460 has been made to youthful flood sufferers and $71,160 of this amount is ear-marked for student aid. These funds are to enable high school and college students to continue their studies. The flood disaster so seriously impaired their families' resources, in many instances, that without outside help they would have had to quit school. More than $38,000 will go to college students and $32,910 to students attending high school.

LOVE CHRIST, NOT SELF

WHILST we deplore the advance of Communism, Fascism, materialism, and the other organized evils afflicting modern society, we too often forget that many Catholics, by the life they lead, are not doing anything to save the Church of Christ and the social system from decay and destruction.

Pope Pius XI, in his recent Encyclical, Divini Redemptoris, charges that: "We cannot deny that there is still much to be done in the way of spiritual renovation. Even in Catholic countries there are still too many who are Catholics hardly more than in name. . . . The Catholic who does not live really and sincerely according to his Faith . . . will not long be master of himself in these days when the winds of strife and persecution blow so fiercely, but will be swept away defenceless in this new deluge which threatens the world. And thus, while he is preparing his own ruin, he is exposing to ridicule the very name of Christian."

Too often, Catholics, by the lives that they live, are a stench in the nostrils of the world. If a materialistic world despises them, what can Christ say of them?

The answer to the weak-Catholic, to the pseudo-Catholic who is not "interested" in the vital profession of the Faith he is supposed to follow, is given us by the Pope in the same Encyclical. "We wish to insist more particularly on two teachings of Our Lord which have a special bearing on the present condition of the human race: detachment from earthly goods and the precept of charity." What can be said of Catholics when all admit that few Catholics are obviously different from the pagans about them because of the life they lead? Sadly, we must say that they are materialists.—

No wonder that the Pope advises us: "To be sure of eternal life . . . and to be able to help the poor effectively, it is imperative to return to a more moderate way of life, to renounce the joys, often sinful, which the world today holds out in such abundance; to forget self for love of the neighbor."

Catholic college men, because of their education, are perhaps more likely to be held to this command than any other class of persons. Woe to the man who selfishly "leads his own life" and foolishly disregards the utterances of the Pope.

Peter has spoken. He has spoken many times. Peter has told us of the great social revolution soon to devastate our land . . . and it is coming unless we bend every effort to renew within ourselves the true Christian Spirit.

If the blood of holy priests and nuns is someday running in the streets of America, it will be because the Catholic layman, especially the Catholic college man, has neglected shamefully the call of Peter to love Christ and to love Christ's Brothers: humanity.

THE ANTI-LYNCH BILL

THE passage of the Gavagan Anti-Lynch Bill by the House is a belated recognition by the Federal Government that many of the lynchings that have been taking place in various parts of the country have been accomplished either with the tacit approval of the local authorities or through their total indifference.

It is an inevitable outcome of the intimate community life that typifies many rural sections of the country, that law enforcement officers are more steeped in local customs and manners of thought than they are the laws on the statute books. They consider things in essentially the same light as do their neighbors. So that when any group of their fellow townsmen decide to take the law into their own hands, the officers, though they realize that such things do not conform to the "strict order" that should obtain in the administration of justice, are disinclined to take violent measures to thwart the will of those who are their friends and daily associates. Thus these deplorable conditions were permitted to continue without any serious effort being made to stop them except for an occasional editorial tirade.

The enforcement possibilities of the Gavagan Bill lie in the provision that makes the police directly responsible for the persons of their prisoners by imposing heavy fines and prison terms on any officers who permit prisoners to be taken from their custody and killed. Formerly official delinquency of this kind was left to the prosecution of the State wherein it happened. But they, in many instances, confined their activities to a public disavowal of such practices, and then forgot the matter until its repetition was the occasion for further disavowals.

By making police negligence in this matter one of Federal responsibility, the possibility of peace officers escaping punishment for the improper protection of prisoners will be so minimized that there can be little doubt that this execrable practice will be brought to a close, and with it a decidedly unsavoury phase of our social development.

THINK TWICE

Among the many acts of legislation up before the State Legislature in Harrisburg is one which would repeal the giving of death penalties to criminals guilty of major crimes. Former advocates of the abolition of the death act have been notorious for their activities among radical theorists, criminals and the like. It is for the best of the community that this act be left as it is on the statutes of the State.

ODDS and ENDS

By Joe Toland

TIME LIKE a thief in the night brings all things to an end. So it must be with a mere column in the VILLANOVAN. For 24 weeks we have been hammering out these things and now the time has come for us to turn this job over to someone else.

During this time we have tried not to hurt anyone's feelings. Whether or not we have succeeded we do not know, but if we have we are sorry and ask pardon of those we have offended.

Things That Will Haunt Us

That suit of Tom Kennedy's. . . . Maloney's glare. . . . The office on a Friday afternoon. . . . Those we have offended in our ramblings. . . . "Railroad" Bowker's old hat. . . . Geraghty's singing and his weekly tiffe with Paden.

"Bo" Egan gets the prize for the most efficient notice of the year. Appearing on Austin's bulletin board last week was the following: "The person who has taken Bob Egan's History of English Literature had better return the same or suffer the consequences. His identity is well established. This sugg tion may be taken either as a hint or a threat."

We suppose he got his book back.

Things We Can't Forget

The freshman who offered incense to his girl's picture.

The junior who changed his name to Simone.

The staff member's preparing a speech to give at a press conference at Rosemont and then not being able to attend.

A word of tribute is due our retiring staff. Editor Ben Maloney left nothing to be desired. His patience under adversity, and he had plenty of it, was admirable. Sports Editor Nort Faden has done a fine job in his department and is to be congratulated. For that matter, every senior member of the staff has done very well and their absence will be sorely felt. Lots of luck.

FINAL QUIPS—We see that Fedigan's "All American" has recently been reorganized with Paul Mellan re-elected as captain. . . . They have more than 36 members. . . . Who said Austin was the bad boy hall? . . . Dobby, the mad Russian, usually a good source of information, has refused to give us the "dope" on certain things he says will be of interest to the entire student body. . . . Maybe the next columnist will get it for you. . . .

Well, we have finally reached the end of our rope. So long, everybody! Here's lookin' at you.

Remember?

Go to father he said
When I asked her to wed.
She knew, that I knew
That her father was dead.
She knew that I knew what a life he had led
She knew that I knew what she meant when she said to go to father.

College Chatter

By Frank Bonetti

IT IS with sorrow and deep regret that your columnist pens, this, his last column. I will attempt herein to show my readers the true calibre of my colleagues? I hope you won't mind if I diverge from my usual tripe and nonsense to pay respects to a sweell bunch of fellows. Here goes:

Things I Won't Forget So Easily

My verbal contests with our editor.

Many trying moments in attempting to keep those pests from the exchange basket.

Those yegge who are always criticizing (though they meant well, I hope).

Spider Kelly's thundering HELLO emanating from his ponderous frame.

Fr. McKee's promise to give me a key to the office door. (P. S.—I still haven't gotten the key.)

Those staff cigaret moochers. (I hope the next editor is wealthy.)

The follows who always refer to me as the joke editor.

Caricatures of Things I Hope I Never see

Our sports editor without his staff stooges.

Our editor-in-chief without his daily letter from Washington.

Bill Bowker without his sour wise cracks.

Jim Tofani without his loud gabbing.

Bob Howe, the office inhabitant.

Well, so much for slander. (Remember, fellows, you're still swell guys.) (Aside) This may be in fun to them—but this is my only opportunity to get back at these yegge.

Things That Will Make Me Smile When I Remember

That sign found one morning on Maloney's desk which read "The Warden."

When Pat Vassalluzzo sat on the chair that wasn't there.

The day our editor gave "Powerhouse Kelly" a bawling out.

That Villanovan "Liars Club" which really didn't have an honest guy in it.

There have been some things in my column which some of you may have enjoyed reading. Since this is my finale I think I'll let you suffer some more with some of the gribs I enjoyed writing.

My Thanks:

To Ben Maloney for being patient when waiting for my column which was supposed to be in on Fridays but often turned up on Mondays.

To Sam Nigrelli—for being a very able assistant. If it wasn't for him you guys would n't have had any College Chatter to read.

To Fr. McKee for his kind and beneficial aid.

To my readers who have borne with me through fair weather and storm.

You've all been swell; so it is with sincere appreciation that I say good-by and thank you. I hope that you will be just as kind to my successor, Joe Alessandroni, who is a swell writer and a great guy.

As We See It . . . At Random

By HARRY PARKIN

SOME belated remarks upon the Hollywood production, "Romeo and Juliet," with due consideration being given to the pre-conceived notions concerning the interpretation of the characters with which we approached it.

Basil Rathbone's portrayal of the quarrelsome violent natured Tybalt approached closest to our conception of how any of the characters should be interpreted.

Edna May Oliver's delineation of the garrulous nurse would have been more open to appreciation if her sequences had not been so sorely cut.

John Barrymore as Mercutio was John Barrymore, a character which he has been unable to step out of for sometime. His facial contortions while he spoke his lines so taxed his lips that the words poured from them in an indistinct jumble.

Leslie Howard as Romeo had so successfully disciplined himself in the languid, melancholy airs of the out-of-favor lover that it was necessary for him to assume in the early part of the story, that he was unable to exchange it for the passionate, head-long fervour that was supposed to characterize love for Juliet. As the listless lover of Rosalind he was excellent, but as the fiery, self-endangering lover of Juliet he was still the drooping lover of Rosalind, feigning a passion he seemed to have little liking for.

Norma Shearer has played the role of the decorous lady so long that she has entirely forgotten how to perform the part of ingenuous, virtuous girlhood. When she spoke her lines out of character we forgot that Juliet was a young girl, but when she attempted to act the character we were given the impression of a mature woman acting childish.

We hold almost to the point of a mania, that besides all the other ideas that might underlie literature, the one most important is that it be deliberately ethical. This idea should obtain not only in a way that brings about the triumph of the virtuous and the consternation of the villanous, but as the fundamental purpose that prompts the writing of the piece. Life is confusing enough for those who lack definite convictions upon the righteousness of certain moral principles, without having it further embittered by a shoddy literature that tends to upset the standards upon which people relie as a basis for conduct.

There are few people who do not have ambition of some kind or another. The only difference between being its tendency to lead them toward their natural objective or away from it. In the latter instance we find it centering upon externals such as fame, or wealth and in the former upon those things that tend to improve the character of the individual himself, such as truth, and honor.

Until we consider human conversation objectively we usually fail to appreciate the wisdom contained in the words of Cato to the effect that speech is the gift of everyone but the thought of few. The heedlessness with which people rush to the expression of opinions that have no foundation in fact and very little in fancy moves us to the opinion that if people were to meditate, but for a moment, upon what they were going to say before giving it utterance, they would have to spend much less time in trying to justify it. The thoughtless word like the wasted moment flies into an irreparable eternity, from which a world of energy or regrets can never recover.

It will ever be accounted an anomalous quirk in human nature that those who realize the necessity of conducting themselves in a manner that accords with the dictates of virtue and authority should fail, at times, to do so. We all realize that regulations, in either the natural or moral order, cannot be violated without incurring the necessary penalty. Nevertheless those who are most mindful of this are frequently as lax as those who never give it a thought.

The award for the Gimbel's Young Men's Snop Name Contest was made recently by Mr. Edward Sweeney, buyer of men's clothing. The winning name is "University Shop," submitted by three winners, Sidney Wilson, a student at La-Salle College, and Arthur Jansen and Meyer Gertman, students at University of Pennsylvania.

All high school and college men were eligible. The winning name was selected by the contest editors, Mr. Milton Harr, of the Philadelphia Record; Mr. Franklin R. Cawl, of the Philadelphia Inquirer, and Mr. Edward E. Croll, of the Evening Public Ledger.

"University Shop is Gimbels latest addition to the Men's Store.

OLDEST FRESHMAN QUITS

The 63-year-old freshman, Jules Lebegue, who enrolled at the University of Illinois in February, has left school to help his son on the farm. "Getting rid of the rust and putting on a little polish," is still his policy, for he is studying by correspondence.

BETA GAMMA MEETS SOUTHERN DEBATERS

Will Meet Loyola, Maryland and Catholic Universities This Week-end

Representatives from the Beta Gamma Debating Society will undertake an excursion to Maryland and Washington, D. C., on Friday, April 23, and Saturday, April 24. This announcement was made by Anthony Differ, president of the society and arranger of the scheduled debates.

The question for debates, which number three in all, is the Pi Kappa Delta question, namely: Resolved: That the Congress shall have the power to fix maximum hours and minimum wages in industry. The latter question has been one of great consideration in recent times; the members of the debating organization are well versed on the topic and should give a favorable account of themselves in the future debates on alien territory.

Debating societies from the following institutions will be encountered during the scheduled period.

These institutions are: Loyola College, Baltimore, Md.; University of Maryland, College Park, Md., and Catholic University, in Washington, D. C. In all these debates, forensic representatives from Villanova will defend the negative aspect of the Phi Kappa Delta question.

DIAL-LOG

THERE SEEMED to be an atmosphere of grief and regret in the Villanovan office while I was writing this column and it just dawned on me that this was the last issue for the present staff.

Maloney, our esteemed editor, seemed lacking in his usual wit, Nort Paden didn't greet me with the same enthusiasm . . . all in all, the senior members were in the dumps. Naturally this brought my senses back to me (that Senior Ball did things to me!) and I realized that this would be the last time I would punch a column out on my worn-out portable. I'll diverge from the usual and pass a few comments.

Since my sophomore year, this column has been my assignment. She didn't occupy much space but I thought a lot of it. Gradually it assumed the proportions of a standard feature in the Villanovan and enjoyed a great deal of its success under the editorship of my dear friend . . . and boss . . . Ben Maloney. He haunted me in my room, called me on the phone, and incessantly demanded that "18 inches of nothing" for his paper. I did cause him a great deal of trouble in my consistent tardiness; yet for Ben I would write a full page. It just seemed that I could never get around to the writing of this column. So to Ben, I sincerely bid him farewell and trust that our close friendship here at Villanova will continue on into later life. Ben and I have something in common . . . we both got letters pretty regularly from Trinity College!

To the remaining members . . . Nort Paden . . . I'll miss his familiar greeting . . . Jack Geraghty supplied me with Chesterfields, even though I do smoke Camels . . . "Railroad" Bowker came through occasionally when the column was short . . . however, I won't miss some of his "jokes" . . . to all my fellow workers I say good-by.

Well, lets get back to work on this column and give some radio data. Joe Penner is always most concerned about the mechanical details of rehearsal technique, and feels quite at ease once he has personally checked on all of them. Nevertheless, he smokes as many as six or seven cigars . . . by special arrangement with the fire department . . . during his studio rehearsal.

Radio polls are still on the loose. The one held by the Gramercy Boys' Club of New York's East Side, a former neighborhood boy, Eddie Cantor, was voted their air favorite. Jack Benny came next, and Joe Penner third, among the boys' preferences. Favorite male singer of the boys was Nelson Eddy; most popular girl warbler, Kate Smith, with Deanna Durbin and Jeanette MacDonald as their runners-up. Their most popular orchestra leaders were Guy Lombardo, Benny Goodman (king of Swing), and Paul Whiteman. . . Joe Reichman and his orchestra, now heard over NBC from the Fairmount Hotel in San Francisco, will set a precedent at the conclusion of their West Coast engagements that will probably be followed by all bands. Reichman and his boys will be the first orchestra to live in trailers while on tour!

Last minute stuff. . . . Transfer of the Grace Moore Saturday night CBS program to Hollywood has been deferred until May 1. Vincent Lopez and his orchestra won't finish their Hotel Astor stay until that time. . . . Morton Bowe, six-shows-a-week tenor, has severed his connections with the Cavaliers Quartet. Too many other shows have forced Bowe to leave the top tenor role to Floyd Sherman. . . . Phil Baker has brought Mrs. Baker and his four-weeks-old heir back from Palm Beach, Fla. The comic has been commuting to Florida after each of his Sunday broadcasts.

Many of us listen to "Skinny" Ennis, featured ballad singer and rhythm soloist with Hal Kemp's orchestra, and know very little about him. Well, here's a few interesting notes about Skinny. First of all his real name is Edgard C. Ennis, Jr., and he was born in Salisbury, N. C., a few miles from the home of Hal Kemp in Charleston. When 12, he was banging away at a piano but soon turned his attention towards the trumpet and drums. He roomed with Hal at the U. of North Carolina. There he played the drums and trumpet with Kemp's first college six-piece band. Strange as it may seem, he never did any singing, but one day Hal discovered Skinny (a nick name he got and never lost) had a voice and persuaded him to do the warbling for his band. He has an amazing memory for lyrics, having stored up in his mind approximately 400 songs. So there you are. Skinny has been a close pal to Hal for years and they both "climbed the ladder together."

And so here is the end of two years of writing. I've had a lot of fun banging this space filler and regret that it's all over. But all good things must come to an end some day. However, in Bruno Taivacchia, I have a good and capable successor whom I'm sure will continue to give radio news and all the queer antics that go on behind the scenes. I won't say good-by to my readers. . . . I'll just say so-long till we meet again.

THOMAS F. WALDRON ADDRESSES MEMBERS OF ALUMNI SOCIETY

Prominent New Jersey Catholic Speaker for Mother's Day Celebration

PLAN SPECIAL PROGRAM

On Sunday, May 9, the Villanova Club of Trenton will pay honor to Mother's Day on which day the members of the club will receive Holy Communion in a body at the 8 o'clock Mass at Saint Joseph's Church, N. Olden Ave. in Trenton.

Breakfast Follows

It has been announced by R. Gerald McGrory, Secretary of the Club, that following the Mass, which will be celebrated by Father Sutliff, pastor of St. Joseph's, a breakfast will be served at 9:30 o'clock at the Stacy Trent Hotel.

Mr. McGrory also stated by means of a personal letter sent to all members, that the admission to the breakfast would be open to members, their mothers, fathers, wives and friends. While only the members will receive Holy Communion in a body, nevertheless it is hoped that the guests of the club would attend the mass.

Present at the breakfast will be Mr. Thomas F. Waldron whom the club was fortunate in obtaining as a guest speaker for the occasion. Mr. Waldron is one of Trenton's outstanding Catholic laymen. "The purpose of this function," said Mr. McGrory, "is to pay honor to our mothers wherever they may be; whether in Trenton, whether at some distant point or perchance at home in the great beyond enjoying a well earned reward. It is a fitting tribute, that of the reception of Holy Communion in their honor," he said.

Special Program Planned

Also promised was a special program which the Secretary feels will be repeated annually due to its popularity and one which the relatives and friends of the members will enjoy. The mothers present and absent will be honored in a special manner.

The charge for the breakfast will be 75 cents per plate. Reservations must be made not later than Saturday, May 1. It was also requested that when making reservations that the members please remit the small fees which are necessary to cover the expenses. All members of the Villanova Club of Trenton are urgently requested to get in touch with R. Gerald McGrory, Secretary of the Club at 535 Rutherford Ave., Trenton, N. J.

DRAMATIC SOCIETY AWAITS PRODUCTION

Belle Masque Eager for Opening Curtain of "Journey's End"

Friday and Saturday nights, May 1 and 2, respectively, the Villanova Gymnasium will again be the scene of a outstanding triumph. The Belle Masque Club has been laboring industriously for the past weeks to make their first and dramatic production, "Journey's End," the greatest dramatic success ever attained in the history of this aged institution.

If the unsuppressed enthusiasm on the part of the students is to be taken as a criterion to judge the proportions of the attendance, the success of this production will exceed all expectations. Every class in the school will be represented by a goodly number of its members. Also every class is becoming a patron which is a distinction because of the limited number of patrons allowed. Business manager Peter J. McManus advises students who have not made reservations to do so at once if they expect to obtain seats.

Working incessantly, the stage crew collected the props, built and completed all the scenery, in preparation for the opening night. Long curtains of a heavy material serve a double purpose. Their primary purpose is to satisfy conditions necessary to good acoustics. Their second purpose, enclosing the seating space, was to segregate it from the remainder of the gymnasium.

Selection of the characters was made through direct competition. Professor Frayne, the director, reported the competition so close that it was necessary to give some weight to experience. There are a number of experienced actors included in the cast. Their experience was obtained through participation in numerous other amateur productions.

OBITUARY

On behalf of the student body the VILLANOVAN takes this opportunity to express its condolences to George White upon the death of his uncle who died last Wednesday.

M'KENNA CHOSEN AS NEW PRESIDENT OF BAY STATE GROUP

Popular Footballer Elected to Hold Office Next Year; Others Gain Posts

With a perfect attendance at its meeting last Thursday evening at 7 o'clock in Mendel Hall, the Massachussetts Club held an election of officers for the coming year. The new officers are John McKenna, president; Leonard Merullo, vice president; Robert Daniello, secretary, and James Shea, treasurer.

This meeting, which brought the social year to a close, proved to be most interesting and was presided over by "Doc" Daniello, who entertained the members with his inimitable wit. The new president, John McKenna, received the congratulations of all the members and in turn promised that next year would be a very successful year for the club, since a number of social affairs are planned .

Because of the fact that the members of the club are widely distributed over the State of Massachusetts, it has been practically impossible to hold any social affairs over the holidays.

This year's officers who were succeeded are Edward Donovan, John Burke, Frank Sweeney and John McKenna.

L. K. D. FRATERNITY TO ELECT OFFICERS

Nominations Will Be Made at Next Meeting of Future Medicos

With not many more meetings to be held and the year rapidly drawing to a close, the discussion of nominations for officers for next year occupied the greater part of the time at the Lambda Kappa Delta fraternity meeting last Thursday. Members were asked to have their nominations ready for the meeting to be held this Thursday. Voting will take place the following week.

Following this discussion Gerald Piserchia, president, spoke of the deplorable condition of the financial status of the fraternity. It was decided that unless all members were completely paid up with their dues they would lose their right to vote for officers, and that unless they were paid up by the end of the year they would be asked to resign from the fraternity.

No Dinner Dance

Unless this financial condition is cleared up in the next few weeks no dinner dance will be presented this year. At present the fraternity cannot afford to burden itself with any difficult money matters, Piserchia stated. The only method by which the members may have a dinner-dance this year is by taxing the members. For the present this was thought to be an unwise step.

However, it was decided to obtain a speaker for the next regular Thursday evening meeting and prepare for a trip and inspection of one of the medical places of interest in the city as soon as proper authorization is received.

BALTIMORE SCHOOL OPERATES AS HOST TO A. I. E. E. GROUPS

Johns Hopkins University Entertains Electrical Engineering Units

VILLANOVA REPRESENTED

Johns Hopkins University played hosts to the Thirteenth Annual Student Branch Convention of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers yesterday in Baltimore. The convention occasioned the gathering of the representatives of thirteen colleges and universities, including Delaware, Drexel, Haverford, Johns Hopkins, Lafayette, Lehigh, Pennsylvania, Princeton, Catholic Univ., George Washington Univ., Maryland Univ. and Villanova.

The convention was officially called to order in the welcoming address delivered by Dr. J. B. Whitehead, Dean of the School of Engineering, John Hopkins University.

Papers Delivered

School papers were delivered by T. Chase of Drexel on "A Laboratory Polyphase Rectifier"; T. R. Brown of Lehigh on "Electrical Time Standards," and D. L. Herr and R. H. Graham of Pennsylvania on "An Algebraic Equation Solver." These addresses were followed by a description of the proposed afternoon inspection trip to the Locke Insulator Corporation by Mr. H. A. Frey, of the above-mentioned company.

Luncheon was served in Levering Hall and was followed by an address by Dr. Isaiah Bowman, president of Johns Hopkins University, on "Flood Control."

Inspection Tour

The entire gathering made the inspection tour to the Locke Insulator Corporation. The inspection tour was divided into two parts consisting of (1) a demonstration of high voltage insulator testing, and (2) the manufacture of porcelain insulators by the wet process.

In the evening the convention held a joint dinner with the Baltimore Section of the A. I. E. E. in honor of President A. M. MacCutcheon. The dinner was followed by an address by President MacCutcheon entitled, "The Selection and Training of Electrical Engineers."

The convention was adjourned at 9:00 o'clock.

THE time has come to say so-long. This, the last issue of the VILLANOVAN that the present editorial board will produce, is one of the toughest to get out. With a lump in my throat and a tear in my eye I waive my rights to the chair that I held (down) so long and from these dimming eyes and faltering hands this part of the paper is turned over to a younger man. My successor is William J. Bowker, referred to by his intimates as "Railroad" or "Choo Choo."

Bill is a swell chap and I am sure that he will do right by you and this end of the rag. I, at this time, want to thank him most heartily for the fine work he has done all this year. Whenever there was any extra work to be done he was always within shoutin' distance and never complained when the going got tough, as it usually did.

Although there are times when a sports editor's life is no bed of roses I wouldn't change it for any other job.

BALL CLUB WINS TWO FRAYS

BRENNAN RECEIVES TROPHY FOR MOST VALUABLE PLAYER

Offensive and Defensive Play of 'Cat Court Captain Merits Award

MEMBERS OF BASKETBALL TEAM GET VARSITY "V'S"

Announcement Marks Conclusion of Successful Season for Basketeers

Recognition of his outstanding ability as a basketball player was received by Don Brennan, senior basketeer, when he recently was awarded the trophy for the most valuable player on the squad. His stellar defensive and offensive play, with his sportsmanship, gained him the coveted award.

Handsome Prize

The prize, donated by a generous benefactor late last fall, is a cup of sun gold mounted on a heavy, brown bakelite base. The cup is surmounted by a heavily gold plated figure of a basketball player in the act of passing the ball. The trophy is 21 inches high and possession of the cup is permanent.

Announcement of Brennan's winning the trophy came with the release of names of the men receiving varsity letters for the 1936-37 court season. Players winning varsity "V's" are Brennan, Harry McNally, the only other senior on the squad; Lou Dubino, sophomore center; Johnny Krutulis, guard; Art Vigilante, guard; and Jim Montgomery, stellar forward. These men also are members of the sophomore class.

Brennan, in compiling his record for the award, tallied an even hundred points by virtue of 43 field goals and 14 free throws. This total made him third highest scorer on the team, Montgomery and Du-

NINE FACES OWLS IN DIAMOND TILT

Baseballers to Meet Temple Today in First of Two Games

With Temple seemingly holding the driver's seat this season, as far as major sports are concerned, Villanova batters are out to break the jinx when the two arch-rivals clash today at the Villanova field. The Wildcat baseballers are also anxious to make it three in a row over the Owl batsmen, winning both of last season's contests by large scores.

Most athletic contests between these two institutions are hotly contested, and baseball is far from the exception. This year's game looms as being a real nip-and-tuck affair with excitement aplenty. On the basis of seasonal records, the Owls hold a slight advantage. Their most notable victory was at the expense of a highly-touted Dartmouth nine.

'Cats Picking Up

On the other hand, the minions of "Doc" Jacobs got off on the wrong foot by dropping the first two games. However, by putting the skids under Penn and Providence, they redeemed themselves and showed great promise.

Both teams have exhibited strong

NETMEN ENGAGE URSINUS BEARS

Open Tennis Season Wednesday on Main Line Courts

Villanova's racqueteers are facing the prospect of another brilliant season after having lost only one veteran. Wednesday of this week they open their campaign with the Ursinus Bears on the Main Line courts.

Captain Bill Thorn will probably play the Number One position against the Bears. Other veterans who will be available for the match are Joe McCabe, and Jim Conuart, who will probably take care of the singles, along with Thorn.

Last year's doubles combination of Jim Dwyer and Ernie Zaloom has been broken up by the graduation of the latter, so a new partner will have to be found for this group of newcomers. Among the latter are Lloyd Rice, freshman basketeer, and Maurice McDonnell, a transfer from Catholic University. Last campaign saw the Wildcats drop only three of ten matches.

LINKSMEN FACE RIDER

Also Play Host to St. Joseph's This Week

After a busy week in which they participated in two matches the Villanova par-chasers again face two opponents. Rider and St. Joseph's will be met on the home course, the Radnor Club, formerly known as the Main Line Open. The matches will take place tomorrow and Friday.

Despite the fact that they lost the first and tied the second of their matches, the Wildcats are confident that they will enter the win column during the coming seven days. Lou Dubino, who played so well in the Temple and Fordham meets, is expected to come through again, as are Tommie Robinson and Ed Tirrell. Jim Dwyer, who had a 71 in the Fordham affair, should continue his torrid pace, and thus the Wildcats should be certain of getting a few points. Joe Pagano, whose valiant effort to get into the victory column ended up in defeat, is determined to make up for it against Rider and the Hawks.

Penn and Providence Fall As Wildcats Hit Heavily

Escott Blanks Quakers, 8-0, With Four Singles; McLaughlin and Desmond Hold Rhode Island Club in Check

DEL UMO, COLLINS BLAST HOMERS

By JOHN L. SIMONS

Spurred on by the brilliant pitching of Frank Escott and the flashy all-around play of Charley Del Umo, soph thirdsacker, Villanova gained two easy victories during the past week. On Wednesday the 'Cats traveled into Franklin Field and handed Penn an 8-0 lacing to gain their first win of the year. Two days later they triumphed over the Providence Friars 9-4 on the home diamond.

Escott, a lefthander, pitching again after a successful year as an outfielder, had too much on the ball for his Red and Blue rivals. He allowed them but four hits, all singles, and kept them well scattered. Meanwhile a combination of timely hitting by the Villanovans and a series of damaging errors on Penn's part enabled the 'Cats to smother the Quakers.

Garbark Scores in 4th

Doc Jacob's charges went out in front in the fourth frame when Lou Wannemacher drove in Mike Garbark from second with the initial tally. Another run in the following inning made the count 2-0. Then came the seventh, when the Cats proceeded to sew up the ball game.

They fell on George Jeffers, veteran star of the Penn staff, with a barrage of base blows that netted four more runs and put the game on ice. Single tallies in the eighth and ninth made the final score 8-0.

This was the first victory of the new season for Villanova, and the team showed that it had at last found its true stride. In addition to the superlative twirling of Escott, the work of Del Umo and Garbark stood out. Charley played a

GRIDDERS DEFEAT COLUMBIA LIONS IN PRACTICE TILT

Four Hours of Play Finds Main Liners Ahead 14-6

WYSOCKI DEFENSIVE STAR

After four hours of constant scrimmaging, Clipper Smith's gridders handed the Columbia Lions a 14-6 drubbing last Saturday in their second contest in two weeks with the boys from Morningside Heights.

Saturday's contest was much different from the game played last week, because the Main Liners left little doubt as to their superiority. With spinners and reverses galore, the Wildcats battered and smashed their way for two touchdowns and would probably have scored several more if there hadn't been several costly fumbles and mental lapses.

Wysocki Stars

After Johnny Wysocki, who played an All-American brand of ball all afternoon, blocked Sid Luckman's attempt to kick, Villanova marched 45 yards with Art Raimo scoring on a hurdle over the line from the one-yard line.

Previous to this the Wildcats had scored two points on a safety, when Tony Peirera and Johnny

RUNNING MARKS DRILLS

Basketeers Get Plenty of Exercise In Spring Practice

Under the direction of Coach Al Severance, the Wildcat basketeers are drilling intensely in the Alumni Gym during the daily Spring practice sessions.

Due to the change in rules eliminating the center jump except at the beginng of each half, the boys are getting a lot of running in their workouts. This procedure is to enable them to keep up with the continuous action that is expected from the disposing of the tap-off.

Players taking part in the daily sessions are Jim Montgomery, Johnny Krutulis, Bill Sinnott, "Tiny" Largerenberg, Rudy Faulkner, Lou Dubino and Joe Lazorchek. Other members of last year's freshman and varsity court squads have not reported due to their participation in baseball.

TRACKMEN AWAIT RELAYS THIS WEEK

Will Compete in Freshman and Varsity Events At Penn

"Jumbo" Jim Elliott's track squad is slated to compete in the annual Penn Relays which will be held this week-end at Franklin Field. The Wildcat runners are listed to participate in the varsity and freshman mile relays and in the individual events. In the latter Tom Cook and Harvey Buek will uphold the colors of the Main Line institution.

Cook in Two Events

Buek will take part in the high hurdles, an event in which he starred at Lower Merion before coming to Villanova. Cook, one of the three seniors on Elliott's squad, will tackle the broad jump, and the hop, step and jump.

The varsity relay team representing the Blue and White will consist of Buek, Cook, Jack Earle and Lou Biester, the Yeadon phenom. Running in the freshman relay will be Pete Petril, Johnny McLoughry, Barney Bellew, and Bill Guiteras. All these yearlings hail from Philadelphia, so the Villanovans should have many rooters to spur them on.

MURAL STANDINGS

Fedigan	2	1	.667
Austin	2	1	.667
Mendel	2	1	.667
Alumni	0	3	.000

Mendel Hall was blanked by Fedigan to the tune of 10-0 through the spectacular pitching of Ben Pawlowski, while Ted Goumy's pitching for Austin overcame Alumni 16-1, last Sunday afternoon at the Mendel sports field.

In the first game of the day Ted Goumy, of Austin, repeated his last week's success by limiting Alumni to two hits, Connolly and Fitzmaurice were the only fortunate men. Connolly getting a one-bagger and Fitzmaurice getting a double which was as far as they advanced. Joe Fiorette pitched for the Alumnians and let the Austinians get away with 12 hits and 16 runs. The McKeemen simply ran amuck against the powerless Alumni nine.

Regulars Score

The regular nine accounted for ten of the 16 runs, while substitutions rolled up another six runs. Cappellaro and Vondra starred with three runs apiece. "Slugger" Cappellaro who made such a good reputation for himself last year in intra-mural baseball looks like a repeater this year in attaining a batting average of 1.000 so far this season. Ted Goumy, pitching like one of the well-known Dean boys, lined them over the plate so fast they smoked and even then retired from the game without being the least bit winded. Goumy appears to be the white hope of Austin and Austin is expected to do great things this season.

Ben Pawlowski, pitching for the Fedigan Gigolos, literally walked all over the Mendel men. Last week's star team, weakened through the loss of Lloyd Rice, their spectacular pitcher, fell an easy foe to the inspired Fediganites. Pawlowski, who was disabled by an injured arm up till now, blossomed out in all his glory and put on an exhibition which received the plaudits of the assemblage. Bob Wilson on third base for the Mendelians got both the hits off Pitcher Pawlowski, Fred Rappelyea got the only run on a walk. The Fedigan team came out en masse and provided frequent substitutions. Carl Pantaleo got two hits, while Ray Shiek, Pawlowski and Ward Scanlon garnered one apiece. Everybody including two substitutes came in with a run. "Cowboy" Crawley as Umpire performed in an exemplary manner.

With both Goumy and Pawlowski showing such pitching form the intramural baseball fans will have something to look forward to when these two get together, as they most certainly should. Next Sunday Austin and Fedigan are due to tangle, and there will be plenty of fireworks. The three-way tie now in the race will be broken into a two-way knot next Sunday if Mendel beats Alumni, which should occur, as the Alumnians have yet to score a victory. Should this come to pass, Mendel and Austin, or Fedigan and Mendel will share the lead with four games played.

At present, Goumy is easily the outstanding player in the intramural circuit, having pitched two stellar games in as many weeks. It will be remembered that in the Austin-Mendel game of two Sundays ago he fanned 13, even though losing to Lloyd Rice, who sent four more down via the strikeout route. Pawlowski, in turning in his performance, showed that he is to be considered as a factor in mural ball. With him and Costello to take turns in the box, the Fediganites should repeat their victorious march of last year and cop the pennant. The Gigolos were unde-hitting power. Villanova's has been more or less latent while that of Temple has been sporadic and inconsistent. The Owls must be conceded the edge in pitching, although the Main Line hurlers have been coming nicely and should be in top form for this important game.

Coach Jacobs is certain that with the added confidence gained from the Penn and Providence victories, and the continuance of the recent form the team has displayed in practice sessions, his charges will come through.

A victory over Temple is more desirable in view of the fact that it will add to the Wildcat prestige no little to hold victories over two major opponents in the Philadelphia area.

fine game at the "hot" corner and contributed a timely base hit during the seventh inning uprising. Mike made himself very useful during the course of the afternoon by carrying three runs across the plate.

'Cats Sink Friars

Friday's fray with Providence was won without too much trouble by the fast flying Wildcats. They greeted the visitors from New England in very unhospitable fashion by scoring seven big runs in the very first inning. With this effort under their belts the boys took it easy behind the capable chucking of Bill McLaughlin, ace portsider.

Bobby Bond led off with a long double, and Ray Stoviak sent him home with a ringing single. Another double, this one by Lou Wannemacher, a single by Del Umo, coupled with a pair of walks gave the Cats their seven runs.

Villanova increased the lead to 8-0 in the third frame. Bond's second successive two-bagger, a base on balls and an infield out combined to give this tally.

Visitors Rally

The Friars finally broke into the run column in the fourth. With two down in that frame, Fred Collins, a pinchhitter, stepped into one of McLaughlin's fast ones and put the ball over the center field fence for a home run. A single tally in the fifth put Providence just six runs in the rear. Came the sixth inning and the visitor's most serious threat. Three base hits loaded the sacks with Providence men. At this crucial point, the pitcher lost his touch and couldn't find the plate. He forced in one counter with a base on balls and wild pitched a second one in. But when the next man banged out another hit, Jacobs rushed Joe Desmond in to the mound. Joe stepped right in and squelched the rally before any further damage could be done.

The last three innings were all Villanova. Desmond's chucking was masterful, six of the Friars going down by way of the strikeout route during his three inning term. Charley Del Umo ended the scoring for the day when with the bases empty he planted the ball cleanly over the fence in deep left center.

Del Umo Shines

The drive by Providence's Collins and Del Umo's homer in the sixth were the two longest balls ever hit on the Villanova diamond. Collins entered the game under rather odd circumstances. Moze, Friar shortstop, with the count at 3 and 1 argued a little too vehemently with the umpire and was sent to the showers. Collins went in to bat for him. A lefthanded batsman, he fouled off the first pitch but laid the wood on the next and drove it over the fence straight out in center field. Del Umo's drive over the left field fence was only a few feet shorter. Bobby Bond and Lou Wannemacher, who each had two doubles and a single, were also instrumental in the victory over Providence. Del Umo was the fielding star in both games, accepting eight chances without a slip.

WILDCAT GOLFERS LOSE TO TEMPLE

Villanova's golf team started the season off on the wrong foot when they went down before Temple by the score of 4-2 on the latter's home course at Overbrook.

The 'Cat golfers were at a disadvantage, not knowing the course. Jimmie Dwyer and Ed Tirrell, playing number one and two for Villanova, dropped two and a half points. Dwyer, after playing a see-saw match for sixteen holes, won the seventeenth to even his match up He halved the eighteenth with Ed Workman to split his match. Ed Tirrel's opponent, George Alexander, had low medal for the day with a 76.

Dubino Shines

Tommie Robinson, a newcomer to the team, played three position; Lou Dubino, of basketball fame playing four. Both Robinson's and Dubino's matches were very close. Dubino pulled a Frank Merriwell finish by holing out with a chip shot from off the green to win a point and a half. When all the cards were turned in, the Owls were out in front, 4-2.

Saturday, however, was another story. Jimmie Dwyer came in on the back nine two under par to net a 71, beating Captain Vic Del Guercio, of Fordham 5 and 4. Ed Tirrell went down 5 and 4, but came through on the best ball match, enabling the 'Cats to pick up another point.

Robinson Wins

Robinson and Dubino again teamed together and took two and a half points from Hetzer and Tully. Robinson turned in a 78 to win his match 5 and 4. After being four down, Leo Tully, of the Rams, pulled out from behind Lou Dubino and had Lou one down coming to the eighteenth. Again Dubino came through on the last hole with a par to halve his match.

Joe Pagano, playing in the number five position made a fine bid for his match. After being three down and five to go, Joe won two holes in a row, but missed a putt on the seventeenth that cost him the match with Fordham's Jack Corcora, 2 and 1.

Gene Barr, playing his first match of the season, came back in splendid style, after going a bit sour on the first nine. Joe Mikita had Barr five down in the first eight holes, but Gene put on the pressure and came back to only two down. He half-missed his drive on the sixteenth and Mikita won the hole with a par to take the match 3 and 2. Corcoran and Mikita won the best ball 5 and 4, the final score of the total match being a 4 1-2 -4 1-2 tie.

Here and There

By WILLIAM J. BOWKER

HERE IS the last of this series by yours truly, and it is with feelings of regret tinged with relief that we leave this post. However, it will be in capable hands, for none other than Tommy Carbine will continue carrying the banner. Here's wishing you luck, Thomas. The first columns are easy to make up, but they get harder as time goes by.

New York hockey fans took a bit of hammering. The Rangers battled for the Stanley Cup and due to the fact that Ringling Bros.' elephants and trapeze artists were in possession of Madison Square Garden, the final games of the series were played in Detroit Red Wings' home ice. This is the second or third time that the metropolitan hockey enthusiasts have had to undergo this situation.

Eight Hits for Giants

Speaking of New York athletes, we find that the Giants finally managed to get a hit off Bob Feller, the Cleveland Indians rookie sensation. After eighteen hitless innings, they combed him for eight, not a large number ordinarily, but quite a group for the New Yorkers to get in one game against the eighteen year old. They didn't win, despite the barrage of hits.

In last week's column, reference was made to a certain sports magazine called the "Sports' Eye." At that time it was the opinion of all concerned in the VILLANOVAN office that this periodical was mythical, and that the moguls who subscribed had been duped in a most horrifying manner. However, we are glad to inform the readers of this column that such a paper actually does exist, and in suspecting the young Mississippian of ulterior motives, we judged him rashly. Visible evidence of the existence of the "Sports' Eye" was gained last week. All concerned are now awaiting delivery on the subscriptions.

Our lads certainly put Princeton's ball club on its toes by losing to them. Since then they took six straight games. Among their victims was Fordham, later to be faced by our Wildcats. Although comparative scores mean little or nothing in sports anymore, somebody will be able to conclude or deduce some marvelous conclusions from the scores of the Princeton - Fordham, Princeton-Villanova, and Fordham-Villanova games.

Cold Weather Pitching

The performances turned in by Ted Goumy and Lloyd Rice in fanning 13 and 17 opponents, respectively, was a feat worthy of some note, considering the wintry conditions prevalent at the time of their endeavor. Thirty strikeouts in a mid-Summer tussle is no mean feat, and such a deed becomes more noteworthy when one remembers the chilly day on which these lands sent 30 of their opponents down on strikes.

Babe Ruth opened his series for an oil company last Wednesday, and immediately proceeded to put his neck out by predicting the standing of the American League teams at the end of the pennant race next Fall. The Yankees will win, according to the Bambino, with the Cleveland Indians, the Detroit Tigers, and Washington Senators following in that order. Friday night he picked the National League results, but we didn't hear them, so we have no comment to make about them. As to his American League choices, we are inclined to disagree with him in his picking the Indians to take second. Who will clinch the runner-up honors, time alone will tell, but it won't be Cleveland, much as we'd like to see them do it.

Item from the police school: One of the instructors cracked the wrist of one of the pupils last Thursday. After sending him to the infirmary, the officer then demonstrated, not so thoroughly, on another victim. Time marches on.

Dick Emmerling's lightweights are hard at work in Spring drills out on Mendel Field. This is the first time, to our knowledge, that the one-fifties have had Spring practice. Results should be seen in victories next year in the lightweight league.

Flash!

Ben Pawlowski and John D'Ippolito were all ready to get up at six-thirty Friday morning for a short bit of track work around the country side. Did anyone see them in the performance of this noble endeavor?

And so with this bit of gossip, we close the books on our chapter of "Here and There," started two years ago by Edward L. "Abe" Collins. Take it Away, Tommy!

Comments on the Baseball Games

Although we weren't pleased by the results of the Princeton and Phillies games, we can't kick when we consider that to many of the boys these games were a new experience. The sophomore members of the squad were tightened up to a high pitch and couldn't play naturally, and easily. The hitting was off entirely. We could have carried ironing boards up there and still not see the apple. The scores were not indicative of the difference between Villanova and their opponents. Old Lady Luck, who they tell me still wins games, stayed far away from us in both of those encounters. Hans Lobert, Phillie coach, admitted that the Broad Streeters got all the breaks up at Norristown. Except for their big innings, the Phils did little; we were steadying nicely toward the end of the game.

Penn and Providence

The Penn and Providence games are more like us. Overwrought nerves loosened up and the hitters hit. Since the sophomore infield of Bond, Crawley, Merullo and Del-Umo showed good ball in these tilts, they're the starters; there's no use in breaking up a winning combination. I was glad to see that Ray Stoviak is connecting. He should furnish some needed outfield punch. Now if Bill McLaughlin can settle his control and Mike Garbark starts to hit we'll move. Joe Desmond did a nice relief job in the Providence affair after McLaughlin lost the range and wild-pitched home a run. With some experience, the sophomore ought to become a valuable starter. He has a nice, effortless motion and a world of stuff. "Quack" Escott looks to be one of the best flingers on the team. Although he was an outfielder last year he's had mound experience in amateur ball and is very promising. As things are now, he'll be out on the hill against Temple today.

For the last four years we've heard a lot about Penn's "Destiny Backfield." Well, I think that you'll be hearing a lot about our new 1939 infield. They work together like veterans, and have everything but confidence, which will come, and soon, I hope.

Pitchers Again

To get back to our pitching staff, we'll have to work on McLaughlin's habit of getting in the hole. He's been getting behind the batters with 2 and 0 or 3 and 1 counts and then has to offer them up the middle, with the result that he's being hit by men who shouldn't even touch him. Unfortunately, we have nobody on the staff to compare with Ed Vaughn of the '36 outfit. Vaughn could throw that pill through a keyhole, although he didn't have too much natural stuff. Now we have hurlers with all the tricks; but the control is too often lacking.

So, as I see it, we have little to worry about. Garbark is sure to increase his average and McLaughlin should gain his long sought poise on the hill. Don't sell us short; I believe that we'll show a typical Villanova team again this year. The rest of the games are ours.

Gridders Defeat Columbia By 14-6

Mellus broke through the Columbia line to ground Sid Luckman in his own end zone.

The Main Liners made the score 14-0 after about three hours of play had been terminated. This time Joe Fitzgerald garnered the score on a quarterback sneak from the two yard line.

Villanova showed much improvement over last week's performance and Coaches Smith and McNally were both extremely pleased with the results of the contest.

that came their way more than once.

I believe that this just about winds me up, so au 'voir until another day. As you can easily see I reverted to type today by disregarding the too formal editorial "We" in favor of the more friendly and personal "I." This was done because what I had to say really emanated from this manly bosom and was not superficial. Until this thing goes to press I have about two more hours of authority so GET ON THE BALL SLAVES AND WE'LL GET THIS THING OVER WITH.

ALUMNUS LEAVES COACHING POST

A former Villanova football luminary made the headlines recently. Daniel Harkins, Class of '31, recently resigned as assistant coach of football and basketball at St. Bonaventure College. He gave as his reason a desire to enter private business.

His term of office as aide to the head football coach began in the Fall after his graduation in June of 1931. He played on one of Stuhldreher's best teams. He did not confine himself to football, however, as he also starred on the hardwood court under "Doc" Jacobs, and again under Jacobs on the diamond. His all-around ability as an athlete won for him many friends at the Main Line institution, and his deeds will ever remain green in the memories of those who knew him.

Judging by his record at Bonnie's, his success is the business world is assured.

This marks the beginning of a new era in sports at Villanova. It is felt that individual recognition of excellency in sports will take on a more material form of approval in the future.

Mendel Hall was blanked by Fedigan to the tune of 10-0 through the spectacular pitching of Ben Pawlowski, while Ted Goumy's pitching for Austin overcame Alumni 16-1, last Sunday afternoon at the Mendel sports field.

In the first game of the day Ted Goumy, of Austin, repeated his last week's success by limiting Alumni to two hits, Connolly and Fitzmaurice were the only fortunate men. Connolly getting a one-bagger and Fitzmaurice getting a double which was as far as they advanced. Joe Florette pitched for the Alumnians and let the Austinians get away with 12 hits and 16 runs. The McKeemen simply ran amuck against the powerless Alumni nine.

Regulars Score

The regular nine accounted for ten of the 16 runs, while substitutions rolled up another six runs. Cappellaro and Vondra starred with three runs apiece. "Slugger" Cappellaro who made such a good reputation for himself last year in intra-mural baseball looks like a repeater this year in attaining a batting average of 1.000 so far this season. Ted Goumy, pitching like one of the well-known Dean boys, lined them over the plate so fast they smoked and even then refried from the game without being the least bit winded. Goumy appears to be the white hope of Austin and Austin is expected to do great things this season.

Ben Pawlowski, pitching for the Fedigan Gigolos, literally walked all over the Mendel men. Last week's star team, weakened through the loss of Lloyd Rice, their spectacular pitcher, fell an easy foe to the inspired Fediganites. Pawlowski, who was disabled by an injured arm up till now, blossomed out in all his glory and put on an exhibition which received the plaudits of the assemblage. Bob Wilson on third base for the Mendelians got both the hits off Pitcher Pawlowski, Fred Rappelyea got the only run on a walk. The Fedigan team came out en masse and provided frequent substitutions. Carl Pantaleo got two hits, while Ray Shiek, Pawlowski and Ward Scanlon garnered one piece. Everybody including two substitutes came in with a run. "Cowboy" Crawley as Umpire performed in an exemplary manner.

With both Goumy and Pawlowski showing such pitching form the intramural baseball fans will have something to look forward to when these two get together, as they most certainly should, next Sunday Austin and Fedigan are due to tangle, and there will be plenty of fireworks. The three-way tie now in the race will be broken into a two-way knot next Sunday if Mendel beats Alumni, which should occur, as the Alumnians have yet to score a victory. Should this come to pass, Mendel and Austin, or Fedigan and Mendel will share the lead with four games played.

At present, Goumy is easily the outstanding player in the intramural circuit, having pitched two stellar games in as many weeks. It will be remembered that in the Austin-Mendel game of two Sundays ago he fanned 13, even though losing to Lloyd Rice, who sent four more down via the strikeout route. Pawlowski, in turning in his performance, showed that he is to be considered as a factor in mural ball. With him and Costello to take turns in the box, the Fediganites should repeat their victorious march of last year and cop the pennant. The Gigolos were unde-hitting power. Villanova's has been more or less latent while that of Temple has been sporadic and inconsistent. The Owls must be conceded the edge in pitching, although the Main Line hurlers have been coming nicely and should be in top form for this important game.

Coach Jacobs is certain that with the added confidence gained from the Penn and Providence victories, and the continuance of the recent form the team has displayed in practice sessions, his charges will come through.

A victory over Temple is more desirable in view of the fact that it will add to the Wildcat prestige no little to hold victories over two major opponents in the Philadelphia area.

tine game at the "hot" corner and contributed a timely base hit during the seventh inning uprising. Mike made himself very useful during the course of the afternoon by carrying three runs across the plate.

'Cats Sink Friars

Friday's fray with Providence was won without too much trouble by the fast flying Wildcats. They greeted the visitors from New England in very unhospitable fashion by scoring seven big runs in the very first inning. With this effort under their belts the boys took it easy behind the capable chucking of Bill McLaughlin, ace portsider.

Bobby Bond led off with a long double, and Ray Stoviak sent him home with a ringing single. Another double, this one by Lou Wannemacher, a single by Del Umo, coupled with a pair of walks gave the Cats their seven runs.

Villanova increased the lead to 8-0 in the third frame. Bond's second successive two-bagger, a base on balls and an infield out combined to give this tally.

Visitors Rally

The Friars finally broke into the run column in the fourth. With two down in that frame, Fred Collins, a pinchhitter, stepped into one of McLaughlin's fast ones and put the ball over the center field fence for a home run. A single tally in the fifth put Providence just six runs in the rear. Came the sixth inning and the visitor's most serious threat. Three base hits loaded the sacks with Providence men. At this crucial point, the pitcher lost his touch and couldn't find the plate. He forced in one counter with a base on balls and wild pitched a second one in. But when the next man banged out another hit, Jacobs rushed Joe Desmond in to the mound. Joe stepped right in and squelched the rally before any further damage could be done.

The last three innings were all Villanova, Desmond's chucking was masterful, six of the Friars going down by way of the strikeout route during his three inning term. Charley Del Umo ended the scoring for the day when with the bases empty he planted the ball cleanly over the fence in deep left center.

Del Umo Shines

The drive by Providence's Collins and Del Umo's homer in the sixth were the two longest balls ever hit on the Villanova diamond. Collins entered the game under rather odd circumstances. Moze, Friar shortstop, with the count at 3 and 1 argued a little too vehemently with the umpire and was sent to the showers. Collins went in to bat for him. A lefthanded batsman, he fouled off the first pitch but laid the wood on the next and drove it over the fence straight out in center field. Del Umo's drive over the left field fence was only a few feet shorter. Bobby Bond and Lou Wannemacher, who each had two doubles and a single, were also instrumental in the victory over Providence. Del Umo was the fielding star in both games, accepting eight chances without a slip.

WILDCAT GOLFERS LOSE TO TEMPLE

Villanova's golf team started the season off on the wrong foot when they went down before Temple by the score of 4-2 on the latter's home course at Overbrook.

The 'Cat golfers were at a disadvantage, not knowing the course. Jimmie Dwyer and Ed Tirrell, playing number one and two for Villanova, dropped two and a half points. Dwyer, after playing a see-saw match for sixteen holes, won the seventeenth to even his match up. He halved the eighteenth with Ed Workman to split his match. Ed Tirrel's opponent, George Alexander, had low medal for the day with a 76.

Dubino Shines

Tommie Robinson, a newcomer to the team, played three position; Lou Dubino, of basketball fame playing four. Both Robinson's and Dubino's matches were very close. Dubino pulled a Frank Merriwell finish by holing out with a chip shot from off the green to win a point and a half. When all the cards were turned in, the Owls were out in front, 4-2.

Saturday, however, was another story. Jimmie Dwyer came in on the back nine two under par to net a 71, beating Captain Vic Del Guercio, of Fordham 5 and 4. Ed Tirrell went down 5 and 4, but came through on the best ball match, enabling the 'Cats to pick up another point.

Robinson Wins

Robinson and Dubino again teamed together and took two and a half points from Hetzer and Tully. Robinson turned in a 78 to win his match 5 and 4. After being four down, Leo Tully, of the Rams, pulled out from behind Lou Dubino and had Lou one down coming to the eighteenth. Again Dubino came through on the last hole with a par to halve his match.

Joe Pagano, playing in the number five position made a fine bid for his match. After being three down and five to go, Joe won two holes in a row, but missed a putt on the seventeenth that cost him the match with Fordham's Jack Corcora, 2 and 1.

Gene Barr, playing his first match of the season, came back in splendid style, after going a bit sour on the first nine. Joe Mikita had Barr five down in the first eight holes, but Gene put on the pressure and came back to only two down. He half-missed his drive on the sixteenth and Mikita won the hole with a par to take the match 3 and 2. Corcoran and Mikita won the best ball 5 and 4, the final score of the total match being a 4 1-2 -4 1-2 tie.

Here and There

By WILLIAM J. BOWKER

HERE IS the last of this series by yours truly, and it is with feelings of regret tinged with relief that we leave this post. However, it will be in capable hands, for none other than Tommy Carbine will continue carrying the banner. Here's wishing you luck, Thomas. The first columns are easy to make up, but they get harder as time goes by.

New York hockey fans took a bit of hammering. The Rangers battled for the Stanley Cup and due to the fact that Ringling Bros.' elephants and trapeze artists were in possession of Madison Square Garden, the final games of the series were played in Detroit. Red Wings' home ice. This is the second of third time that the metropolitan hockey enthusiasts have had to undergo this situation.

Eight Hits for Giants

Speaking of New York athletes, we find that the Giants finally managed to get a hit off Bob Feller, the Cleveland Indians rookie sensation. After eighteen hitless innings, they combed him for eight, not a large number ordinarily, but quite a group for the New Yorkers to get in one game against the eighteen year old. They didn't win, despite the barrage of hits.

In last week's column, reference was made to a certain sports magazine called the "Sports' Eye." At that time it was the opinion of all concerned in the VILLANOVAN office that this periodical was mythical, and that the moguls who subscribed had been duped in a most horrifying manner. However, we are glad to inform the readers of this column that such a paper actually does exist, and in suspecting the young Mississippian of ulterior motives, we judged him rashly. Visible evidence of the existence of the "Sports' Eye" was gained last week. All concerned are now awaiting delivery on the subscriptions.

Our lads certainly put Princeton's ball club on its toes by losing to them. Since then they took six straight games. Among their victims was Fordham, later to be faced by our Wildcats. Although comparative scores mean little or nothing in sports anymore, somebody will be able to conclude or deduce some marvelous conclusions from the scores of the Princeton - Fordham, Princeton-Villanova, and Fordham-Villanova games.

Cold Weather Pitching

The performances turned in by Ted Goumy and Lloyd Rice in fanning 13 and 17 opponents, respectively, was a feat worthy of some note, considering the wintry conditions prevalent at the time of their endeavor. Thirty strikeouts in a mid-Summer tussle is no mean feat, and such a deed becomes more noteworthy when one remembers the chilly day on which these lands sent 30 of their opponents down on strikes.

Babe Ruth opened his series for an oil company last Wednesday, and immediately proceeded to put his neck out by predicting the standing of the American League teams at the end of the pennant race next Fall. The Yankees will win, according to the Bambino, with the Cleveland Indians, the Detroit Tigers, and Washington Senators following in that order. Friday night he picked the National League results, but we didn't hear them, so we have no comment to make about them. As to his American League choices, we are inclined to disagree with him in his picking the Indians to take second. Who will clinch the runner-up honors, time alone will tell, but it won't be Cleveland, much as we'd like to see them do it.

Item from the police school: One of the instructors cracked the wrist of one of the pupils last Thursday. After sending him to the infirmary, the officer then demonstrated, not so thoroughly, on another victim. Time marches on.

Dick Emmerling's lightweights are hard at work in Spring drills out on Mendel Field. This is the first time, to our knowledge, that the one-fifties have had Spring practice. Results should be seen in victories next year in the lightweight league.

Flash!

Ben Pawlowski and John D'Ippolito were all ready to get up at six-thirty Friday morning for a short bit of track work around the country side. Did anyone see them in the performance of this noble endeavor?

And so with this bit of gossip, we close the books on our chapter of "Here and There," started two years ago by Edward L. "Abe" Collins. Take it Away, Tommy!

Comments on the Baseball Games

Although we weren't pleased by the results of the Princeton and Phillies games, we can't kick when we consider that to many of the boys these games were a new experience. The sophomore members of the squad were tightened up to a high pitch and couldn't play naturally, and easily. The hitting was off entirely. We could have carried ironing boards up there and still not see the apple. The scores were not indicative of the difference between Villanova and their opponents. Old Lady Luck, who they tell me still wins games, stayed far away from us in both of those encounters. Hans Lobert, Phillie coach, admitted that the Broad Streeters got all the breaks up at Norristown. Except for their big innings, the Phils did little; we were steadying nicely toward the end of the game.

Penn and Providence

The Penn and Providence games are more like us. Overwrought nerves loosened up and the hitters hit. Since the sophomore infield of Bond, Crawley, Merullo and Del Umo showed good ball in these tilts, they're the starters; there's no use in breaking up a winning combination. I was glad to see that Ray Stoviak is connecting. He should furnish some needed outfield punch. Now if Bill McLaughlin can settle his control and Mike Garbark starts to hit we'll move. Joe Desmond did a nice relief job in the Providence affair after Mc-Laughlin lost the range and wild-pitched home a run. With some experience, the sophomore ought to become a valuable starter. He has a nice, effortless motion and a world of stuff. "Quack" Escott looks to be one of the best dingers on the team. Although he was an outfielder last year he's had mound experience in amateur ball and is very promising. As things are now, he'll be out on the hill against Temple today.

For the last four years we've heard a lot about Penn's "Destiny Backfield." Well, I think that you'll be hearing a lot about our new 1939 infield. They work together like veterans, and have everything but confidence, which will come, and soon, I hope.

Pitchers Again

To get back to our pitching staff, we'll have to work on McLaughlin's habit of getting in the hole. He's been getting behind the batters with 2 and 0 or 3 and 1 counts and then has to offer them up the middle, with the result that he's being hit by men who shouldn't even touch him. Unfortunately, we have nobody on the staff to compare with Ed Vaughn of the '36 outfit. Vaughn could throw that pill through a keyhole, although he didn't have too much natural stuff. Now we have hurlers with all the tricks; but the control is too often lacking.

So, as I see it, we have little to worry about. Garbark is sure to increase his average and McLaughlin should gain his long sought poise on the hill. Don't sell us short; I believe that we'll show a typical Villanova team again this year. The rest of the games are ours.

Mellus broke through the Columbia line to ground Sid Luckman in his own end zone.

The Main Liners made the score 14-0 after about three hours of play had been terminated. This time Joe Fitzgerald garnered the score on a quarterback sneak from the two yard line.

This ended the scoring from a Villanova aspect, but Columbia's Lou Little was intent upon a score, and when the dusk was fast becoming night his patience was rewarded by an unknown Light Blue and White player who raced thirty yards to a touchdown after snagging a pass in the flat.

Villanova showed much improvement over last week's performance and Coaches Smith and McNally were both extremely pleased with the results of the contest.

that came their way more than once.

I believe that this just about winds me up, so au 'voir until another day. As you can easily see I reverted to type today by disregarding the too formal editorial "We" in favor of the more friendly and personal "I." This was done because what I had to say really emanated from this manly bosom and was not superficial. Until this thing goes to press I have about two more hours of authority so GET ON THE BALL SLAVES AND WE'LL GET THIS THING OVER WITH.

ALUMNUS LEAVES COACHING POST

A former Villanova football luminary made the headlines recently. Daniel Harkins, Class of '31, recently resigned as assistant coach of football and basketball at St. Bonaventure College. He gave as his reason a desire to enter private business.

His term of office as aide to the head football coach began in the Fall after his graduation in June of 1931. He played on one of Stuhldreher's best teams. He did not confine himself to football, however, as he also starred on the hardwood court under "Doc" Jacobs, and again under Jacobs on the diamond. His all-around ability as an athlete won for him many friends at the Main Line institution, and his deeds will ever remain green in the memories of those who knew him.

Judging by his record at Bonnie's, his success is the business world is assured.

feated last campaign, and although they dropped their first encounter this season, with the material available, they should take the bunting, although Austin with Ted Goumy, and Mendel with Lloyd Rice will undoubtedly furnish much opposition to the Gigolos. Alumni can be counted out due to the bad start they have made by dropping their first three contests.

When the curtain is drawn upon the hardball season, and the bat and ball is put away for another year, the authorities, should they decided to choose an All - League team, will find most difficulty in selecting a pitcher, for it is in this department of the game that the stars have shone most brilliantly.

PURCHASING POWER KEY TO LONGEVITY CLAIMS PROFESSOR

Knowledge of Nutritional Facts Great Asset for Retaining Health

New York, N. Y.—(ACP)—If the large numbers of people had higher purchasing power, they could increase their life span by at least seven years.

They would be able to take full advantage of new knowledge in the field of nutrition, he said—advantage that could aid them in warding off disease as well as senility.

"Undoubtedly the great majority of all people will be benefited, the general level of the public health will be raised, and the averages of our vital statistics improved at many points by the simple taking of a larger proportion of the needed nutritional calories in the form of the protective foods.

"Naturally, we also hope that a larger proportion of people will soon have ampler purchasing power. We realize that right relations between purchasing power and the general level of prices is essential to the ability of any community to get the full benefit of any new knowledge of nutrition," he explained.

Princeton Folly Finally Abandoned; Veterans of Future Wars Disband

Princeton, N. J.—(ACP) — The Veterans of Future Wars movement, started a year ago by Princeton University students to satirize the Harrison Bonus Bill, is officially ended.

Word of the dissolution of this organization, which last April claimed 60,000 members under 36 years of age and 524 chartered posts, comes from a bulletin issued by Robert G. Barnes, '37, and Thomas Riggs, Jr., '37, joint commanders.

The purpose of the bulletin is to answer the question, "What are the Veterans of Future Wars doing today?" recently raised.

Activities in the sphere of politics were suspended during last Fall's Presidential campaign, explained the Princeton seniors.

"Since that time it has been found financially impossible to resume activities on a scale that the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars deserve, and since there is no point in doing a half-hearted job, we are stopping the organization altogether.

"We suffered in that we never got our bonus from the last congress and we have not the funds to pour into lobbying that our rival veteran groups possess.

"Now from the looks of bills before Congress, the Veterans of Foreign Wars will soon have everything but the cobblestones down Pennsylvania Ave., and there will be nothing left with which Congress can pay our bonus demands.

"The main accomplishment of the organization," continued the bulletin, "is shown in the size of membership and the national response it received.

"This can be taken as a fair criterion of the fact that we did awaken the people of the country to (1) the absurdity of the war and youth's reaction to it, and (2) the equal absurdity of the treasury exploitation in which various veteran organizations have been allowed to indulge.

"We are not, nor ever have been, opposed to any veterans group as such. We favored all pensions for widows and orphans of World War soldiers actually killed in combat; we favored all possible bonuses to those men who were seriously injured in the war or as a direct result of the war. We violently opposed the granting of disabled-veteran compensation to men who stepped in front of automobiles in 1926 and their like."

President's Wife Gets Kick Out of Visit to College

Enjoys Being Forced to Shake Hands With Entire Audience

Washington, D. C.—(ACP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt got a big "kick" out of her visit to a "certain college," for she referred to it recently humorously in a talk to the 150 Congressional wives who came to Washington with her in 1932.

"I went to a certain college," she said, "to speak twice—in the afternoon and evening. The college president was anxious that I shake hands with the audience after both programs.

"I explained that I didn't make a practice of it. But the president said, 'If you have to cancel anything, I'd rather you shook hands and didn't give the lecture.'"

FLORIDA IS SUNNIEST

Cambridge, Mass.—(ACP)—When St. Petersburg, Florida, was named the sunniest spot in America by Harvard University meteorologists, California cities were put in the shade—at least relatively.

Data of the scientists ended the long controversy between Florida and California by showing that St. Petersburg averages fewer than five sunless days a year.

The sunniest spot in the west is the California-Arizona border, which has more than 300 clear days a year.

N. Y. A. LOOKS SMALL WHEN COMPARED TO NEW FEDERAL PLAN

Only "Drop In Bucket" If Government Educational Scheme Passes Congress

Washington—The millions that Uncle Sam has been spending on the NYA student aid program will be only a drop in the bucket if subsidy plans of the National Education Association are successful. This organization is seeking passage of the Harrison-Black-Fletcher bill which would put the government in the education business to the extent of $300,000,000 a year.

Three hundred million dollars is almost enough money to build six battleships!

This money would pay the cost of a first class war for about two weeks!

The first year of its passage, the Harrison-Black-Fletcher bill would appropriate $100,000,000 to be turned over to the states for education. There would be no strings attached and no Federal dictation as to how the money should be spent. The second year $150,000,000 would be appropriated; the third year $200,000,000; and increase this rate to the fifth year when $300,000,000 would be split up among the states for education. From the fifth year on, the amount would remain at $300,000,000.

Freshman Class Elects William Leon President

First-Year Men Select Eugene Ertle to Act as Vice-President; Bernard Bellew Wins Treasurer's Post

SCIENCE MEN GAIN THREE POSITIONS

In the elections held recently by the freshman class, William R. Leon, student in the Science School, was overwhelmingly chosen to fill the office of president. Leon will direct the activities of the Class of 1940 for the ensuing scholastic year of 1937-1938.

In the accompanying selection of other class officers, Eugene V. Ertle, School of Arts and Philosophy, was elected vice president. Bernard A. Bellew, of the School of Science, will fill the capacity of treasurer for the coming sophomore class. Robert E. Wilson, School of Commerce and Finance, was chosen class secretary.

Hanlon Breaks Tie

Peter E. Hanlon, also a student in the School of Science, was selected in a special election to represent the Class of 1940 in the Student Council. In the main election, the two nominees for the position of Student Council representative drew the same number of votes, and a candidate for the office could not be determined. This situation demanded the action of the Student Council, who have supervised over all class elections at Villanova. A special election was conducted on Friday, and Hanlon emerged the victor.

The class officers will assume their duties for next year immediately upon their return to school next Fall. However, plans are already being laid down in preparation for their activities as a sophomore class. Their first function will be the appointing of the traditional Orientation Committee, which group will welcome the incoming students in September.

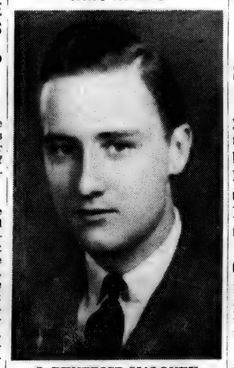
All-American Award Won By Editor J. B. Maloney

Villanovan Wins Coveted Prize For Third Consecutive Year; Sports Department and Editorials Are Especially Praised

MODERATOR MAKES ANNOUNCEMENT

WINS AWARD



J. BENEDICT MALONEY

Only 47 of 355 College Papers Get First Honors

STAFF IS CAPABLE

For the third successive year the VILLANOVAN was awarded All-American rating by the Associated Collegiate Press, according to an announcement yesterday by Rev. Edward B. McKee, O. S. A., moderator.

Fr. McKee was notified of this distinction by Fred L. Kildow, director of the Collegiate Press, and the certificate of high honor, which was conferred on the local publication, will be forwarded in the immediate future.

Maloney Was Leader

Instrumental in the unusual success of the VILLANOVAN was J. Benedict Maloney, former editor, whose able guidance and leadership proved invaluable in the attainment of the prominent position. Working with a comparatively inexperienced staff, Maloney gradually acquired a group which proved to be one of the most capable in the history of the college. This was directly attributable to the guiding hand of Maloney, who worked carefully with each member until the latter acquired real writing ability.

All-American is the highest rating granted in the yearly critical service conducted by the Associated Collegiate Press. A study of the ratings published in the issue of the Collegiate Press Review shows that only 47 of the 355 college newspapers submitted for criticism this year were awarded All-American ratings including daily publications.

The VILLANOVAN had this honor first conferred upon it under the reign of Edmond Reilly, who served as editor during the year 1934-35. John DiJoseph, as publication head, continued the brilliant success of his predecessor, and Maloney received for the newspaper the highest score since its entrance into All-American standards.

One of the features of club activity during the year was the inauguration of a quartet. The members of the quartet are John Chapple, Frank Cullina, Richard Foote and Joseph Tanzola.

Tommy Dorsey Rose From Chicken Farmer to Lead Famous Orchestra

By JAMES P. TOFANI

From chicken farmer to recognition as the "Sultan of Swing." That is the strange metamorphosis of Tommy Dorsey, who brings his famous orchestra to the Villanova campus for the traditional Junior Prom.

Like a great many noted orchestra conductors, Dorsey hails from the coal regions of Pennsylvania. His father, an accomplished instrumentalist, gave Tommy an intensive musical training that took him through every instrument of the brass section before the trombone was selected as Tommy's specialty.

Gave Up Job

His earliest aspiration was to become the world's greatest chicken farmer, but Tommy soon gave that up in disgust. Compelled to earn his own living, he obtained a job driving a delivery truck at $16 a week, and Tommy soon discovered that trombone playing, even in small towns, was a great deal more remunerative.

Convinced that the trombone was "his" instrument, Dorsey immediately attracted widespread attention with his virtuosity. Both father and son played one-nighters together, travelling through the coal regions of the Keystone State. Evincing an interest in popular dance music, Tommy joined Jean Goldkette's band in Detroit in 1924. He later played successfully with Roger Wolfe Kahn, Vincent Lopez and Paul Whiteman among others. Eventually Dorsey formed his own band and appeared with notable success in a Broadway musical, "Everybody's Welcome."

Played at Casino

Re-organizing, Dorsey created a new orchestra which made its initial debut on Broadway at the famous French Casino, one of the better night clubs along the White Way. With this engagement at this famous rendezvous of celebrities, Dorsey was liberally catapulted to the apex of danceland stardom and became justly recognized as "the" swing band of the nation. He captivated the hearts of all dancers who wended their way to this night spot and established a reputation that was to be invaluable as later events proved.

Interesting and Diversified Program Planned by Junior Class

To the mothers of all its students Villanova has extended an invitation to be present at the college on Monday afternoon, May 3. This day has been set aside as Mothers' Day and an extensive program has been planned under the auspices of the class of 1938.

In planning this mothers' day the main idea has been to acquaint the students' relatives with the college and to show them what is being done at the college.

Father Albers Speaks

At 1:30 o'clock the mothers are to be received in the auditorium of the Commerce and Finance building. There they will be received and addressed by the Rev. Bernard M. Albers, O. S. A., vice president of the college. Following this Edward Lucente, sophomore science student, will sing a few solos assisted by the Glee Club. The Villanovans, college dance orchestra, will then favor the mothers with a few selections.

When this program in the Commerce and Finance auditorium is

WHY NOT?

UNIVERSITY of Pennsylvania's great Relay Carnival is finished for another year and thousands of athletes have returned to their alma maters happy to have won or at least satisfield with having tried. Most of the major colleges of the East were represented in this great classic, but where was Villanova?

It is true that our colors were represented in one or two events, but the Blue and White were not entered in the relay races themselves.

We, here at Villanova, boast of our prowess on the gridiron and the diamond. We are proud of our basketball and swimming teams. But track——? What have we to say? Villanova is on the top of the list when it comes to any of the aforementioned sports and it seems rather odd that she is not better represented on the cinder path. Outsiders as well as students have noticed it and have sought an answer. Why should other schools carry off all the honors in this worthy sport? Why should we who are so proud of our teams and their accomplishments stand by and allow others to laugh and label us as a small college with not enough material to compete?

Villanova should be strongly represented in the next Penn Relays and all other carnivals of the same kind. We hope that in the very near future our desire in this regards will be realized.

SIT-DOWNERS MOVE ON

WITH the justification of the Wagner Industrial Disputes Act, it would seem that the Supreme Court has made possible the end of the sit-down strike technique. During the past few months, labor, through the sit-down strike, threatened to paralyze Industrial America. Now, happily, the way has been made clear for the reasonable, peaceable solution of industrial disputes.

Decried as has been the sit-down strike, we cannot but take note that it played a large part, perhaps, in changing the attitude of the United States Supreme Court toward organized labor.

In previous decisions opinionated by the Court, a hair-line distinction was drawn between intrastate and interstate commerce. Articles of commerce which one day were intrastate commerce, hence, beyond the power of Congress, became overnight, by the process of writing a bill of lading, interstate commerce. Under such conditions, the desire of the Congress of the United States to regulate child labor, were rendered nugatory by the legalistic acrobatics of the Supreme Court.

Today, we face a new era in the relations between capital and labor. The decision in the Wagner Act might well prove to be one of the great decisions of modern times. Labor has hailed it as a victory, yet it should be noted that the sword given labor is a two-sided one. If the Congress has the right to settle industrial disputes through its instruments and agencies, Congress now also has the right to forbid strikes and lockouts "because they interfere with the free flow of interstate commerce."

The Wagner Act is a direct answer, also, to the appeals of Leo XIII and Pius XI for direct government intervention in labor disputes. Passing is the theory that government should not meddle with business. That theory has been part and parcel of the American System, and we are now realizing the unrealistic and futile possibilities of such a system.

It is too early to make any predictions, or to draw any conclusions, but if the Supreme Court continues to stand behind the Congress of the United States on these vital issues, the time is not far away when the bloody, immoral strikes of communistic labor leaders are to be a thing of the past.

DOGS BUT NOT BABIES

ANYONE who gives the slightest attention to the workings of modern society cannot help but be dismayed at the extent to which its follies and affectations have conspired to distort its sense of human values. This lamentable lack of balance is excellently evinced in the ideas that prevail among rental agents in certain areas of Philadelphia, as to what constitutes a public nuisance. These agents have a distinct reluctance to rent apartments to expectant mothers or those with babies under the idea that children are a kind of affliction that renders those possessing unfit for certain kinds of society. The fact that restrictions of this kind are unnatural, anti-social, and unpatriotic does not seem to affect the practice to any sizeable extent.

It is usually found, that when a person ignores a moral requirement, he is not content to remain impassive to it, but must carry it to the opposite extreme of actual immorality. So it is in this instance. The repugnance that these agents feel for anything indicative of helpless humanity, is contrasted with a superabundant toleration, toward the canine or feline pets which their tenants may own. They realize, of course, that there is an ingrained tendency in human nature to lavish affection upon those things that depend for existence upon its bounty; and that the nature denied such expression feels itself frustrated. But why they should encourage this inclination to exert itself upon animals rather than human beings cannot be reasonably understood.

People who rent such apartments rarely realize the slight that is put upon them when they are compelled to agree to such regulations. Though it is not actually stated it is inferred beyond question, that they are incapable of raising children as other than young hoodlums, devoid of all the respect and deference that children should pay to their elders.

College Chatter

By Joe Aldessandroni

AFTER the brilliant bits of laugh-making lines and interesting college news given us all season by Frank Bonetti, this column has inherited a new writer. Thanks, Frank, for many helpful suggestons—and good luck.

—V—

This column receives exchange from every important college paper in the country and any news of current collegiate interest will be given, while constructive suggestions are in order at any time.

—V—

Enough of this flag-waving farewell, hello information—college news—life—happenings roll on—

—V—

Clothing and fashions change with the seasons, but to notice seasonal differences on a college campus, we must measure the depth of the layers of dirt—on year round shoes that were once white.

—V—

Students at St. Anselem College (N. H.) gave a Rogue's Ball, sponsored by the volunteer fire department of that college—for every pound that the dainty states weighed, over 100, men escorts were taxed a penny—pity the poor boys who like them plump.

—V—

Back in 1934 a student at Indiana University started a chess match with a friend, who stayed at home in Birmingham, Ala. With the exception of a years' interim, it has progressed through postcards to this date . . . The professional wrestlers discovered that long distance method years ago . . . their faces act as postcards for the next move.

—V—

A new way to kill time . . . Students at Northern Illinois State Teachers College draw a circle representing a clock and hands . . . at five minute intervals they ink out the sections around the dial . . . at the end of the hour all are filled. (More genius wasted.)

If all the time wasted by college students on "tiny horses" and arguing with professors over marks were used for study, no one would be ejected from school.

Seniors at Harvard have found an organization called "The Harvard Society for the Prevention of Broken Hearts" . . . their senior class has experienced a deluge of broken love affairs . . . They intend to stage a stay at home strike against girls who habitually break hearts. ('Tis true, hard-hearted women are doomed to despair.)

Under Dr. Howard Kenkamp of the University of Minnesota farm, students are now able to watch the actual growth of baby chicks while in the shell . . . Shells of hen's eggs are cut and a small glass pane is glued over the hole with petroleum jelly.

ODDS and ENDS

By Tom O'Mahoney

AS A SOPHOMORE takes over his first pillar.

We were more than surprised to learn that Jack Chapple, he of the vocal prowess, has entered serious training. It seems that "Jess" was detected pedaling furiously about on a bike the other day. We really have an aversion to gossip. BUT they do say that it helps him to get to a neighboring women's campus with the greatest of ease. And with very interesting cargoes, too.

Speaking of bicycling, "Firefly" MacDonnel is working on an invetion which he says will revolutionize the cycle industry. It appears that the brain child will enable man to combine the benefits of riding to the hounds and pushing a scooter. In its first test flight, the machine very nearly revolutionized "Mac.' All of Bryn Mawr gaped as the heroic figure, astride the "scoot-horse" careened down Lancaster Pike, frightening the natives, resigned though they may be to the presence of collegians in their midst.

Community Notes:

Only four weeks to final examinations. Prepare now. "Buzz" Hart, tutorial service, Fedigan Hall.

Austinites will kindly remove moustaches this week.

Bill Christopher will trade a comb and brush (good condition) for a presentable hat. IF it comes down to the ears, of course.

Joe McCabe once more demonstrated his right to the name of "Monk" when he amazed two unsuspecting companions down in Bryn Mawr the other evening by vaulting into : particularly inviting (to Joe) tree. It is to be feared that "Pop" Shealey's incessant chatter about the Boston ball clubs has undermined "Franchot's" reason.

Prediction: Tommy Dorsey will be the biggest hit Villanova has ever seen. Water Supply Note: Austin's telephone booth (you know the waterlogged one) is of late the most dangerous place on the campus. The trouble all started shortly before the Easter holidays when a bat flew into the hall. After inflicting several casualties, the bat was strenuously assaulted by the inmates, who used water, newspapers and lungs to repulse the foe. Now it seems that the boys can't distinguish between those who must use the 'phone and the bat. NOT that we blame them. Fashion Note: Ed Kelly is being very cozy about that new suit. He promises to wear it in June, and are we waiting? Literature at Villanova: Ed Tirrell, who is Rosemonting it now, has perpetrated two alleged sonnets (note to American Book Co.—he also does nursery rhymes). Simile: As varied as electioneering promises. We admit that it's not very good, but at least it is timely around here. Discovery: T. Dorsey and Russ Morgan both play trombones! (courtesy of Joe Toland). To Labor Relations Board: Moe Dimon is heading a local sweatshop. Oh, Mr. Lewis!

Campus Celebs . . . By BRUNO

THE OBSERVER

A NEW COLUMN is always an interesting thing to speculate upon. And when the writer of that new column can remain behind the scenes, delightfully obscured from the vulgar gaze of the crowd, it becomes not delightful but a bit dangerous.

Don't worry. We'll not take advantage of our position. We want to make this corner where we can get together and have a private "bull session" every week. We want to talk over old times, to discuss current events, to dig up the sod here and there, and, oh well, to have a good time.

We cannot make this column a success unless you help us. If anything strikes your fancy, if you hear any particularly good jokes, or you discover some very interesting fact, just leave with Editor Joe Toland, our dear (?) friend, a note addressed to the Observer. We'll do the rest!

—V—

What could be a better way to start off the new year than by taking a poke at the editorial staff of the Villanovan?

Get this one fellows: The editoral staff, so we are told, was requested to vote as to whether chicken or steak should be served at their annual dinner, held last week. Now we wouldn't bet on this, but we understood that they voted for the steak. No one seemed to know how to eat chicken when dressed in soup and fish. My, oh my!

—V—

Speaking of the recent Villanovan dinner reminds us that a certain rather saldy individual was seen to drink two and one-half quarts of ginger ale during the course of the evening. This same party also drank half a bottle of seltzer water. How times change! He went to Kennett Square last year.

—V—

It was sure nice of the boys to present ex-Editor Ben Maloney with a traveling bag as a present from the staff of the VILLANOVAN. All Ben needs, as one of the boys said, is a round-trip, all-year ticket to Trinity College, Washington, D. C. What about it, fellows?

—V—

This fellow John L. Lewis seems to be rasing quite a rumpus hither and you. Maybe it is a coincidence, but John seems to resemble a small Corsican corporal—Napoleon Bonaparte. Dreams are dangerous things. There are some folks who dream so much about themselves and of the power they'd like to grab, that before we know it, they are trying to practice what they dream about. This bozo Lewis will bear watching. Mark my words.

—V—

So "Powerhouse" Kelley is to be with us no longer. There is something romantic about "Powerhouse." He seemed to represent an age that has passed. Those big, powerful shoulders; that brisk, determined walk; that stern, rigid chin held so militaristically: Does it not recall to your mind the college man of days gone by—the college man of the days when men were men—or something? And now "Powerhouse" is to leave us for good. But perhaps it is for the best. "Powerhouse" has disrupted domestic relations for so long in Austin Hall that perhaps it is time he gave his many room-mates a break. Perhaps he ought to team up with Peggy Hopkins Joyce. We'll bet she'd take "Powerhouse" for a merry old ride.

As We See It . . . . . Farewell

By HARRY PARKIN

LEAVETAKINGS are always a painful duty to be undergone. Especially when the association has been as intimate and enduring as that which has existed between me and this column. Our relation has been more than that of a writer and the space he has to fill with words. To me this space was one in which to take pride. To adorn it with ennobling thoughts and lofty sentiments so that people would seek it out for the pleasure they derived from it. How often I have failed in this tack it and I know. For the times it has been constrained to tire people with its burden of weighty subjects, wrapped in dull and pompous phrases,w hen it would have preferred to titillate them with sparkling creations of wit and fancy, I most humbly tender it my apologies.

During the past three years I have offered this column and it has accepted without demure (having no choice in the matter) articles of every kind and character. Some were of passing comment, and others such pure drivel that they hardly merited enough attention the reader occasionally gave them. But now, regardless of their quality, the tireless hand of time working with unnoticed finality has bundled them all together, the good with the bad, and dropped them into the oblivion from which I plucked them so short a time ago.

As age, when its limbs grow palsied and decrepit from the effort, must pass the torch of life to youth to carry on in its stead, so too must we yield our places to those who follow. Fortunately, our passage is marked with associations which are of so pleasant a nature, both in the living and the later contemplation, that they tend to soften our regrets at their severance with memories that make us before passing into journalistic obscurity, would like to recall my impressions of the characters and minds of the gentlemen with whom I formerly associated.

First in time, character, and esteem is Father McKee, our Moderator, who handles a difficult task so unusually well that few are aware of its complications. The constant exercise of his good sense, amiability, and sincerity of purpose has done more to prevent the juvenile tendency of editorial extravagance, and to encourage maturity of thought before the expression of an opinion, than is fully realized. Restraining impetuosity yet fostering initiative, he has done much to bring the VILLANOVAN to its present standard of excellence. To Ben Maloney who has accomplished an exceptionally difficult task in an exceptionally efficient manner, that of winning the All-American Award, congratulations. To Joe Toland, the incoming editor, all the success that journalistic industry, temperance, and faithfulness can bring you.

The practice, which custom and inclination has established among the retiring editors of complimenting each other upon the agreeableness of their past association, I intend to ignore in this instance; and mention in their stead certain members of the Senior class from whose company I have derived a great deal of pleasure and material for my articles. Dave Zion, an epitome of wit, generosity and intelligence . . . Mario Troncelliti, who does his best to obscure some of the most gentlemanly qualities I have ever encountered . . . Pat Linguiti, whose occasional observations are well worthy of memory . . . Manrico Troncelliti, punster par excellence. . . Pat Vassaluzzo, the soul of congeniality and equanimity of temper . . . Larry Stead, already acting like a benedict . . . Pat Guarnini, the most harassed man on the campus yet one of the most genial . . . Jim Meli, capacity unfilled. To those others, that space rather than any lack of regard, limits to mere mention, John Bruno, Nick Treta, Jim McEvilly, Hack Donovan, Ed. Virusky, Louie Santamaria.

To Father Dougherty, whose constant thought is for the members of the School of Science from the day they register until he sees them into Medical School, that they will embody to the fullest the moral principles and knowledge necessary to make them honorable members of their profession, and to the members of his faculty my sincere appreciation for your efforts on my behalf.

To the lovely ladies of the secretarial staff, whose charming disposition and pretty witticism's make one's visits to the faculty offices of such memorable moment.

Purposely, I have reserved for final mention (it being a psychological peculiarity that one remembers longer what he reads at the beginning and end of an article) a student whose native intelligence, fund of knowledge, and literary skill, I highly esteem; that is Dick Deverall. To him and his highly commendable efforts to spread the ideals of Catholic philosophy I wish the greatest success.

In conclusion it is my fervent wish for every member of the faculty and the student body that God will go with each of you through all the days of your life. Farewell.

HITS and BITS

By John Dimon

WELL, here is my first edition of the new pillar assigned me by my genial and worthy boss, Joe Toland, late of "Odds and Ends." As is my rightful obligation I will endeavor to furnish you with all the topics of interest that occur on or off this grand and glorious campus of ours.

Competition in my narrow field is going to be very tough. Tom O'Mahoney, on the opposite page, is my adversary in the race for scoops. We were members of the sports' staff under Nort Paden, and we were about even in the news, until the Philly papers got the scoop Tom was supposed to get from the A. A. moguls.

Rudy Vallee: You have a rival in the person of Tommy O'Brien in receiving the affections of others—tomatoes, etc. During the Pie Shoppe amateur program last Thursday, Obie gave his rendition of "Mother Machree," and even the pots and pans that flew his way did not halt his efforts.

Sequels: Larry Stanwich, Ginsberg to you, is the Wildcat representative of Eddie Cantor's "Saymore-Saymore." Eddie Doudican is the local Milt Berle . . . He has the features, anyway. Orchids to Joe McHugh for excavating the history of short pants in the Fashoda affair.

Shorts: The ex ed-in-chief is quite some scrapper according to the latest reports . . . The electioneering forces in the coming sophomore elections have the campus all a-flutter. You can't walk to class without a candidate promoting his various promises. The platform of one certain party offers you anything from the prom headship down to ticket sellers job at the function for a vote . . . Anyway, the boys are learning young. The Burlington Progressive Club is holding sway with their motto, "The greatest good for the greatest number."

Jack Chapple's poison ivy has caused him no end of grief. He not only is incapable of keeping dates because of his afflicted parts, but his keeper, Ray Murphy, refuses to feed him any longer.

Wall flowers in the Junior Class have no reason for being absent at the annual embroglio next month. Bill Slaughter, the dynamic press agent, co: ducts a dancing school in his room every eve. Jack Dunnigan teaches the Jersey Kangaroo Hop, while Dick Neagle instructs the Connecticut Kissproof formof dancing. All the other prerequisites for a good time can be picked up at the same address.

Concluding his stay at the Casino, Dorsey took his troupe on a tour of the Eastern and Southern states, where he played record-breaking one-night engagements in the foremost ballrooms. In the Fall he again returned to New York to open the newly decorated Blue Room of the Lincoln Hotel, where he remained until the following Spring.

Toured Country

Embarking on another tour, he visited the hot spots along the Atlantic seaboard and continued southward to Texas and was booked for the summer at the Baker Hotel, where he entertained the Texas Centennial crowds. Starting north, he returned to Broadway and is now featured in the prominent Hotel Commodore.

How does Tommy spend his off days? "What few days I get off I try to spend at home," is his quick response. And what a home! An 18-room, Colonial style, brick house, located in New Jersey, and surrounded by 22 acres of teeming farm land and wooded slopes, replete with silo, barns, horses, and milking cows. No wonder Tommy chooses to turn his back on the heigh-de-ho of Broadway. Yes, Tommy is happily married and is the proud father of two children—Patricia Marie, ten, and Thomas F., 3d, five.

DIAL-LOG

By BRUNO J. TALVACCHIA

WITH regret we view the ending of Pio Goggi's contributions to the VILLANOVAN. We enjoyed your quips, polls and scandal, Pio. Whatever you do, don't forget that you left someone struggling, straining—in fact, although I'm ashamed of it, actually toiling — to collect "everything about nothing" in the form of a column. A little bit of help will be appreciated.

Now is the time "to lend thine ears to a bit of a greeting, youse guys and youse gals" (?) No, Ben Bernie's style doesn't fit here. "Heigh ho, everybody!" Rudy's technique requires the use of my nostrils. That's' out. I've got a cold. Norman Brokenshire's "How do you do, ladies and gentlemen, how DO you do" is a trifle too formal. Ahhh . . . here's the one that hits the ball on the head. Beautiful Marlyn Stuart's two lines that is making a big hit on Ken Murray's show. "Mama! Oh MAH . . . MA, that little man's here again! Mmmmmm . . . Awww . . . Yea . . . a . . . a . . . a. . . ."

The latter part of this year will bring Arturo Toscanini, internationally known conductor, to America for a series of ten programs over NBC. It seems that the National Broadcasting Company has been approached by several sponsors who wish to take over the program. But NBC will have no break in the show for commercialization. Such an interruption would be a slight to the celebrated artist.

The Junior Prom's Tommy Dorsey is slated to appear at the Steel Pier, Atlantic City's boast, on the Decoration Day week-end. The Pier's booking agents have also succeeded in signing Guy Lombardo and his Royal Canadians on the same week-end. This has to be taken one step at a time; otherwise the results may be fatal. There gentlemen have also completed arrangements with Benny Goodman who will make it a three-star affair. Yer, gentlemen, Guy Lombardo, Benny Goodman, and Tommy Dorsey will play at the same place, at the same time on May 29 and 30.

The price for entertainment has exceeded the $10,000 mark, for it includes a well - known stage and screen star who will be featured on the vaudeville program.

Digressing for a moment to comment on the VILLANOVAN dinner - dance last week. . . . Congratulations to Father McKee for arranging a swell affair; to Ben Maloney for his humorous after-dinner speech; to the VILLANOVAN'S BAND for their truly - sweet renditions; to Dick Deverall for ordering two splits of ginger-ale (and no date!); to Len Flinkman for a knock-down that I never received. What's her name, Len? The build-up given Ed Kelley struck like 50,000 volts from a "power-house" . . . very clever, Father McKee.

Paraphrasing a popular filmusical song, Frances Langford, currently heard on the "Hollywood Hotel" program on Friday evenings, proves she is "lovely to look at" and equally "delightful to know." Don't take my word for it; just see John Burke, the Norristown "romeo - looking - for - a-juliet" lad.

MUSIC CLUB HEARS STRAINS OF BACH AND TSCHAIKOWSKY

Recordings by Stokowsky Played at Group Meeting; Moderator Explains Lyrics

Scores of Villanova students, as well as members of the faculty, heard last week, in the Day-Hop's Room, another concert in the series being presented under the leadership of Rev. John Vrana, O.S.A.

Stokowski Featured

Bach's Toccata and Fugue in D Minor was the opening number of the evening. Played by Mr. Stokowski and his Philadelphia Orchestra, the charming emphatic brilliance of the first section of the work was a good example of the brilliant composition so characteristic of Bach, a Lutheran choirmaster. The second section, the fugue, was intriguing for its rushing scales, its infinite variation of themes, and the quickly changing figures expressed by the music. A madly exuberant cadenza brings the toccata and fugue to a climax, yielding a most thrilling experience to all of the listeners.

Before playing the next records, Father Vrana continued his discussion of the elements of music, dwelling this week on the tone quality of the human voice and the part it plays in music.

Symphony Played

Tschaikowsky's Symphony No. 6 in B Minor next followed, this being the famous Symphonie Pathetique. A shadowy background runs through every one of the four movements; tragedy, deep and impending, almost crushes the people listening to this monumental musical conception. The first three movements of the symphony portray life, with its joys, its tragedies, its petty trivialities, its struggles. The fourth and concluding movement seems to be one of physical exhaustion. Life has little joys to offer man, who in his maturity forsakes the things of this world for the eternal values of the world to come. The fourth movement ends in a grief-laden throbbing note. It is the tempo of eternity.

Needless to say, the Bach and the Tschaikowsky compositions deeply moved the auditors. The music, coupled with Father Vrana's explanations, furnished all with a deep appreciation of and love for these two composers.

Society of Mechanical Engineers will exhibit model and industrial air conditioning.

Biological Exhibits Included

Exhibits in the Biological Sciences will include microscopic studies of plants, animals, and microorganisms. Displays in General Biology, Anatomy, Bacteriology, and Embryology will be of striking interest to all who desire to grasp the wonderful research and study involved in these sciences.

The outstanding feature of the technology exhibits will be the demonstration on "Music on a Light Beam," in which a music program is transmitted along a beam of visgle light, and is then converted back to sound. In this demonstration sound is seen and light is heard.

Safety Stressed

There will also be student exhibits on oxy-acetylene welding, industrial molding, casting, and pattern making. The student branch of the A.S.C.E. will exhibit "Safety Intersection," and will conduct tests upon cement and concrete, in order to prove their strength and durability.

In the General Chemistry laboratories there will be unusual commercial analysis exhibits. A new and curious "Hall of Odors" will also be included in the chemical demonstrations.

Despite the loss of the seniors, Father Brown announced that he expects next year's club to meet the standards of the present aggregation; especially since the majority of the members are Freshmen and Juniors. Father Brown also added that the Glee Club would be organized earlier next year and that he hopes to have a business manager to make contact for the schedule.

Five Concerts Given

The concert on Mother's Day will make the fifth and concluding presentation of the season. In addition to those already mentioned, the Glee Club also presented two programs over Station WCAU and at the parish hall of Our Lady of Mt. Carmel, in Philadelphia, on March 17.

SPORTORIAL

BY

BILL BOWKER

IT IS with fear and trembling that yours truly assumes the duties that go with the possession of this column. Hard enough would be the job if our predecessor was only an ordinary sports editor, but following the capable Nort Paden as sports editor, one finds the undertaking almost overwhelming. Nort was (and still is) a fine fellow, a good boss, and a very good sports editor. It we can only do as well as he, we shall consider the duty well done.

—V—

Our thanks to Nort, and to Ben Maloney also, for giving us kindly advice at such times as it was necessary, which was very often. It is our fond hope that these two will stick around the office for the next few weeks just to set us on the right track. Good luck to them and to all the other boys on the staff, too.

—V—

As will be found elsewhere in this paper, a new idea has been inaugurated at Villanova. It concerns the basketball games, and should be of benefit to students and outsiders alike. The athletic authorities have announced the issuance of season passes to the home basketball contests, such tickets costing the small sum of one dollar. Coach Al Severance assures us that there will be from 12 to 14 games next season, so the purchaser of the ticket cannot lose. Outsiders are the principal ones to benefit by this policy, but the students will derive their benefit from the increased enthusiasm which will result from the larger crowds. Some of the student body have spoken about the apparent lack of spirit at the court contests. This should be remedied this year with the inauguration of this season pass policy, something totally new at Villanova.

—V—

During the recent Temple-Villanova diamond fray, proceedings were livened up considerably by the possibilities of a tussle between a Villanova participant and a Temple player. After seeing all the different athletic meetings between the two schools, we are convinced that even a chess match between the Owl and the Wildcat would liven up the usually somnolent game.

—V—

Returning to that season pass policy to be inaugurated for next season's home court games, you readers will find a small coupon with a place for your name, address and number of passes desired. Tell your friends about it or clip it out yourself and send it to them.

—V—

Villanova's racqueteers, captained by Bill Thorn, have had a hard time geetin' started on their strenuous campaign. The old weatherman has made it impossible for the netmen to practice on the courts, and now that the courts have been prepared for the matches, cold weather, rain and other impediments have arisen to balk the tennis enthusiasts from indulging in their favorite sport. With the loss of only one veteran facing them, and a wealth of newcomers at hand, it is to be regretted that the tenniseers have received such a dirty deal from the weather.

—V—

Next Saturday "Jumbo Jim" Elliott's tracksters travel to Temple to face Eulace Peacock and the other members of the Owl track squad. Peacock warmed up for this meet by doing great things in the Penn Relays. The man is a wonder, and one can't help admiring him, especially after his comeback after suffering a leg injury that caused many to think his sprinting days were through.

—V—

Two entries were all that Villanova had in the Penn Relays, and while they did not come home with any gold medals, Wildcat rooters can be assured that the boys accredited themselves well.

Baseballers Add To Streak

GOLFERS TRIUMPH OVER RIDER SQUAD FOR INITIAL WIN

Robinson Vanquishes Foe By 9-8 As Wildcats Score 5-1 Victory

LOSERS HALVE ONE MATCH AND BEST BALL FOR TALLY

Par-chasers Await Franklin and Marshall Meeting Tomorrow

Villanova's golf team broke into the winning column last Friday by downing Rider College on the Main Line course by the score of 5-1.

Jimmie Dwyer continued his undefeated record by taking Carl Bradberry, Rider's number one man, 2 and 1. Joe Pagano, making his debut in the number two position, had his man two down coming to the 17th, but dropped the last two holes and wound up all even. Dwyer had a par three on the 18th to win the hole and halve the best ball match.

Score Three Points

The second foursome was a different story. Tommie Robinson won his second match in three starts by trouncing Art Cochrone, 9 and 8. Tommie won the first eight holes, halved the ninth and won the tenth to end the match. Lou Dubino, playing the number four position, beat his opponent, Bob Harries, four and three. Dubino and Robinson combined to win the best ball, 6 and 5, for a clean sweep of three points.

After breaking the jinx so far this year the golfers are looking forward to defeating the strong aggregation from Franklin and Marshall tomorrow on the latter's course in Lancaster. Following the Diplomats, the divot-diggers will take on Temple on the Main Line course. This will be an interesting match. The 'Cats went down before the Owls in their opening match and will be looking for revenge.

TRACKMEN BEATEN IN PENN CARNIVAL

Captain Tom Cook and Frosh Relay Lose in Two Day Fiesta

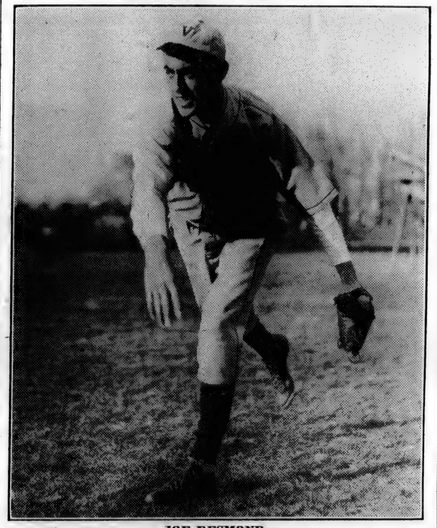
Amid such a galaxy of track luminaries as were seen at Franklin Field on Saturday, April 24, Villanova harriers failed to shine very brightly. Its two entries, one in the Freshman mile relay, and the other in the running broad jump, were far outclassed and failed to place.

Frosh Compete

The Freshman quartet of Pischoni, Petril, Bellew and Guiteras, got off to a fast start but were not quite equal to the flying feet of the lads from Pittsburgh who were clocked in 3:24.0. Their time clipped one and one-tenth seconds off that of Georgetown U., winner in 1936.

In the broad jump, the Blue and White was represented by Tom Cook. Cook failed to place, but so did approximately 30 others as the competition was of the top-notch calibre. Temple's ace, the dusky Eulace Peacock, jumped to victory with a 24 feet, 1 inch effort.

Sophomore Twirler



JOE DESMOND
Soph hurler, who held the Ursinus Bears in check last Tuesday while his mates were slugging three pitchers for 24 hits and 18 runs. Joe hails from Chester, and is doing an excellent job of relief pitching in addition to his win last week.

Baseball Club to Play Three Games On Short Journey

Face Colgate, Cornell and Penn State on Successive Days

After defeating Ursinus and Temple, extending their win streak to four straight, Villanova's baseball team will go on a tour embracing stops at Cornell, Colgate and Penn State. Due to a freak arrangement of the diamond card, all but one of the remaining ball games will be played on foreign soil.

Thursday will see the tossers battling Colgate, one of the three teams to defeat them last year. In a closely played game, the Chenango residents took our lads over the bumps by a 10-4 count.

After facing Colgate at Hamilton, the Main Liners will travel to Ithaca to face the Cornell outfit, whom they defeated last year, 6-1, in a well-played fray. Penn State will play host to our travelers on the first of May. "Doc" Jacobs minions will have to be on their toes for the State College lads are firmly determined to avenge the 11-5 trouncing handed to them by the Villanovans on their last visit.

INTRA-MURAL GOLF DATE MOVED BACK TO MAY 12

Rainy Weather on Last Wednesday Causes Change In Plans

Due to the whimsies of Jupiter Pluvius, the annual intramural golf tourney was not held last Wednday. Arrangements have been made to hold it two weeks from tomorrow, on May 12, at the Main Line Open. This late date was chosen because of Junior Week, during which it will be impossible to hold any intramural sports.

In case any further change in plans is necessary, notice will be given in this paper. All entrants are requested to hand in their names to the Hall managers or rectors. All contestants must furnish their own clubs and balls, but there will be no greens fees.

Softball Campaign Opens This Week With Six Battles

Contests Will Be Held Evenings After Chapel Services

With the advent of daylight saving time, intramural softball made its debut on the Villanova campus last night on the Mendel Intramural sports field.

Softball, which has always received the whole-hearted acclaim and support of the student body, is due to repeat it former popularity this year. Future games will be played tonight and Thursday of this week and Monday, Tuesday and Thursday of next week. The games will start immediately after Chapel and one game will be played on the western side of the field while the other one will be played on the eastern side.

Any applicants for places on Hall teams are welcome and are requested to place their names with the Hall managers.

BASKETEERS TO ENGAGE FORDHAM FIVE IN 1938

Will Meet Rams In Arena Doubleheader on February 4

It was announced today by the Board of Athletic Control that the annual Temple basketball game will be played at the Arena next January 28. The 'Cat-Owl encounter will be supported by the LaSalle-St. Joseph's meeting in an all-star doubleheader.

The Rev. Charles P. Melchior, O. S. A., speaking for the Board, also revealed that Fordham University will be met in another Arena doubleheader on February 4 as Penn State plays Temple in an Eastern Conference game. These two twin bills should prove very interesting to Philadelphia basketball fans, presenting as they do the three outstanding Quaker City quintets.

VILLANOVA TEAM DEFEATS TEMPLE IN ANNUAL FRAY

Owls Commit 7 Errors in Wild Game as 'Cats Win 9-7

Doc Jacobs called on the heavy artillery to down the Temple and Ursinus teams during the past week. Sheer batting power carried the Cats to a smashing 18-8 triumph over the Ursinus Bears at Collegeville on Monday. The next day Villanova entertained the Temple Owls and handed the traditional rivals at 9-7 licking in a wild and wooly ball game. This encounter, too, was featured by the slugging of the homesters.

Hitting Marks Frays

In running the victory streak to four the boys put on display an offense second to none in college baseball. A total of 37 hits, producing 27 runs, poured from the Wildcats' bats. Eight doubles, a triple, and three home runs showed that the Cats were swinging for distance.

Tuesday's game was a thrill-packed affair in spite of the sloppiness occasioned by the frequent mistakes afield by both teams. Villanova started the fireworks when the boys tore right into the visiting Owls and banged across four big runs in the first inning.

A rapid fire succession of base blows laid low George Patee, Temple fireballer. Walt Sheftic led off with a terrific smash to third base that was much too hot for Kovacivch to handle. Bobby Bond kept things going with a smart rap down the right field foul line, sending Sheftic to third. Bob proceeded to steal second while the next batsman fanned. In this clutch Mike Garbark came through with

Mendel, Fedigan Win to Tie For Mural Lead

SWEENEY AND RICE CONTROL OPPONENTS IN BASEBALL GAMES

Skytoppers Beat Alumni As Gigolos Trounce Austin Nine

FREE-HITTING AND LOOSE PLAYING MARK CONTEST

Panteleo Slugging Star for West Enders in 17-4 Victory

In the past week-end Intramural baseball games played on Mendel Field, the Mendel and Fedigan teams slugged out wins over Alumni and Austin, respectively. Both affairs saw baschits in droves and baseball ability in the minority. Mendel's Penthousers drubbed the Alumnites 21-3, and the Fedigan Gigolos ran their winning streak to three straight by handing Austin's outfit a 17-4 lacing.

Mendel and Alumni renewed their freshmen rivalry in the morning game, and when the smoke of battle had cleared away Alumni was on the short end of a 21-3 count.

Mendel Hits Hard

The heavy siege guns of the Penthousers shelled two Greenie pitchers to a fare-thee-well, collecting 16 safe blows during the morning's proceedings. In a contest that was never close, Mendel took an imposing lead at the start, and held their intense rivals in check until the last two innings of the ball game, when the Alumnis pushed across their three markers.

Charlie Cavanaugh hurled masterfully until the final frame, when "Wee" Vic Sandor took the hillock for the Mendel club and was touched for two runs. Joe McDade and "Slinger" Dunn absorbed the punishment from the Penthouse batsmen, who hit them with everything but the water bucket.

This victory celebrated the return to the campus of Lloyd "Confucius" Rice, who was easily the batting star of the fray. The big Southerner larruped out four hits in four times at the plate including a prodigious four-ply wallop in the sixth inning. Freddy Rappleyea, the "Energetic Engineer," also starred at the bat grabbing himself a triple and two singles in four trips to the platter to round out a good morning's performance.

Dobski, Aleo, Cavanaugh, and Crossmire also played well both with the mace and afield. The last named made a sensational fielding play on Cacicedo's drive that was easily the fielding gem of the day. For the losers Angelozzi, Haggerty, and Cacidedo functioned best, the former two being the only batters to land hits in the new Mendel outfield of "Doc" Hughes, "Cushions" Malcolm, and "Red" Hallinan. It is true that Malcolm didn't move "off a dime" all day, but that was because he covered all of right field.

Gigolos Rout Austin

In the afternoon's contest the Fedigan boys kept pace with their Mendel neighbors by trouncing the Austin nine 17-4. This win enabled the Gigolos to remain in a first place tie with the high-flying Mendelites. This contest, too, was something of a barrage of baseblits and a comedy of errors with runs flowing across the plate like water.

Panteleo and Sweeney, who, incidentally, twirled a fine ball game, where the batting stars of the game with four hits apiece. None of the Austin batsmen could gather more than one bingle off the chucking of Sweeney, who scattered six hits over the seven inning route.

While their opponents could eke out only a sextet of safe blows, the Gigolos pounded the ball merrily and totalled 19 base knocks, which is good batting in any league. Goumy and Kerrigan were forced to bear the brunt of the Fedigan attack, and they were constantly kept ducking by the sharp drives that whizzed through the box.

Manager Basil Dobrowolski, who has been handling the managerial reins of the Gigolos for the past two weeks, again demonstratrated his leadership ability by piloting his team to another easy victory. He gave conclusive evidences that his team would be on top when the season's play terminated.

Captain-Elect

recently elected captain of the Villanova Swimming Team. His specialty is the breaststroke. This is his third year on the squad.

GRECO SELECTED TO LEAD MERMEN

Science Junior Has Been on Varsity Swim Team Three Years

Toby Greco was duly rewarded by his tank teammates when the honor to captain the Villanova swimming team in 1938 was bestowed upon him.

After representing the South Philadelphia High School for three years and captaining them in his senior year, Toby decided to matriculate at Villanova College and enrolled in the Science School.

In his freshman year, Toby swam in the free-style events but in his two succeeding years he was converted into a breast-stroke swimmer, and has made commendable progress. In the breast-stroke events, Toby has been defeated only three times; once in his sophomore year and twice this season.

Among one of his outstanding feats was to set a pool record in the medley relay with Bill Leahey and Bob Barrett. In addition to his swimming duties Toby assisted in the coaching activities this season.

He also swims for the senior team of the Penn Athletic Club during the Winter months and as usual has given a fine account of himself in the meets in which he has participated.

In the Summer months Toby can be found patrolling the shore of Margate City where he has been employed as a life guard for the last three years.

a ringing single to center, scoring the first two runs. Successive hits by Wannemacher and Crawley drove in two more.

Owls Knot Count

Meanwhile the Owls plugged away at Frank Escott and finally got to him in the fourth inning to count two runs. Two more in the first half of the fifth tied the score at 4 all. The Broad Streeters knotted the count on a single, triple and outfield fly. Patee, the Owl hurler, who led the Temple team at bat with three hits, started off the rally with a sound single. McKenna followed with a long triple and counted himself a minute later after Docherty's fly to deep left field.

But the Cats in their half of the inning forged ahead with another brace of tallies to lead 6-4. Three mores runs in the eight sewed up the ball game.

A little diversion in the way of an argument between Escott, Villanova twirler, and Howie "Birdlegs" Black, Owl second sacker, occurred in the sixth frame. Escott took exception at Black's too enthusiastic "jockeying" and threw a high hard one inside. The next pitch also looked suspiciously like a "bean" ball, and Howie was forced to duck. But while ducking away from the ball, he swung the bat which connected and drove the ball over the left field fence for a round tripper.

'Cats Hit Ursinus

The Ursinus fray had the Wildcat batters at their peak. In the abbreviated contest (it was shortened to seven innings) the Villanovans pounded the offerings of two hapless Bear hurlers for 24 solid base hits, including seven doubles, one triple and three home runs.

Ray Stoviak, with two homers and two singles, and Lou Wannemacher, with a "roundhouse," single, double and triple, led the hit parade. Mike Garbarik was another four hit batsman.

Joe Desmond, the sophomore righthander from Chester, was on the mound for the Cats. With the exception of the final inning, when he was touched for five of the eight runs, Joe twirled very effective ball.

Since our one practice column netted us one fan letter, which is still 'way ahead of our predecessor's returns after a whole year at this pillar, we find that we are to be entrusted with the duty of filling this space for the next year . . . We won't commit ourselves by stating our policy . . . but contributors are assured that their names will not be revealed.

Fr. McKee's special hobby, intramurals, will take the form of the annual track meet today and tomorrow . . . The after effects of the Penn Relays should have the whole student body track-minded . . . We shouldn't be surprised if a few of those gentlemen who are rather body-conscious will don the short pants with the idea of acquiring a touch of suntan.

Inasmuch as the varsity baseballers will be unable to attend the Junior Prom on account of a game at Lehigh on the following day they might be consoled to some extent by changing the game to the home field . . . The swatters would be sure to perform well for the benefit of the out-of-town guests that attend the Ball.

Lo! The Intramural Track Meet Rescues Students From Politicians

By JOHN E. DIMON

Heave ho, boys! Unshake those taut and ready muscles, for the annual Villanova track meet is here. Father Edward McKee, O.S.A., made the final arrangements for the tournament last week. The field events will be run off today, and the running races tomorrow.

The meet is open to all students of the college except those participating in varsity sports. Last year's affair brought out a galaxy of stars who later formed the nucleus of Coach "Jumbo" Elliot's varsity track squad.

Was a Success

Due to the successfulness of the affair last year, many changes have been made to accommodate not only the performers but also the huge cheering crowd that is anticipated to root for their hallmates whether they be bullies, meckings, bookies, redbloods, mollycoddles, or just plain boys of the school.

The six teams entered are well distributed, and each one is very optimistic as to the outcome. Fedigan will be well represented in the shot put. John Donahue, Belle Masquer, and "Chuck" Klein are the representatives. According to the latest reports, Klein has the edge since he has been very active promoting in the recent elections with his strong arm movements. Dan Healy will put for Alumni.

Incidentally, the four sophomore nominees for the presidency will form the relay team for the Gigolos. Joe Calandriello will be the alternate, since his adeptness in passing the buck would be too much for the participating entries.

The two Day-hop clubs are well represented. Burkey Cousart and Charlie Timmins, Georgian Court stars, should be in great running shape after breaking away in the pines on several occasions. If all reports are true, Jimmie Lyons, of the C & F bummers, is one of up on the Mendel Joe Alessandroni in the matter of most awards. Better get in the races Joe, or you will be left out in the cold.

The pole-vaulters will have plenty of competition from Joe McCabe who has been practicing during the off-season with his Tarzan antics off and on the Bryn Mawr trees . . . "Tiny" Malcolm will, undoubtedly, be Mendel's stronger contender, performing in all the jumping events as well as the dashes.

Joe Emburgia, Fedigan comet, gains his tremendous speed-chasing jack rabbits in Jersey . . . Officials will force Doc Daniello, Joe Parenti, and Persh Calabro to get up off their knees when they are performing . . . Dick Deverall, after licking 300 stamps thinks his office force's help will bring the coveted victory home wrapped, sealed and stamped. . .

MOTHERS' DAY

THE Drama of the Virgin Mother standing at the foot of Christ's Cross has been enacted and re-enacted countless millions of times before and after the time of the Virgin Mother's terrific ordeal when the "sword of sorrow" pierced most deeply her pure and lovely heart.

Down through the ages, it has been the Mothers of the world who have borne the brunt, the full force, of the caprices of children, of the infidelity and laziness of husbands, of the burden of child rearing, and the management and enrichment of the "home." Indeed, one of the first great manifestions of the victory of the Christian Spirit over the pagan Roman culture was the emergence of the woman as the co-equal of man, the pearl of great price, the exalted one of the human race. And today, sadly, the world is returning to the paganism of ancient Rome, for mothers no longer receive the respect and attention they should.

A mother, sufferer for Christ's sake, a partner with God in continuing the human race upon this earth, cannot be given too much attention and devotion. That is why so many of the boys of Villanova College are attending daily mass during this week. Starting last Saturday, a novena was inaugurated, a novena consisting of mass and Communion every morning, prayers at eventide. What a splendid tribute to the host of mothers standing behind the boys at Villanova!

One of the greatest acts a man can perform is to pray to God. Every Villanova man wants to do all that he can for his mother's sake. Continue this novena, turn out those who are not making it, and offer up this great sacrifice to our Heavenly Mother, Mary, and to our earthly mothers who have endured pains and sorrows in order that we might be where we are today.

A SENSIBLE ACTION

STUDENT protest, which caused President Gates, of the University of Pennsylvania, to alter his intention of sending a delegate to celebration of the 200th anniversary of Goettingen University, indicates that American attendance at this function would be a tacit endorsement of many German activities that are contrary to our nature and principles.

The mutual desire for the acquisition of truth and knowledge should enable all educators to meet on a plane of understanding and kinship in feeling that would transcend the bounds of political and social differences. Their sphere is pure truth and not its faulty application to the regulation of society. But, where a system of Government has so imposed its principles of operation upon the minds of educators that they are compelled to confine their philosophical pronouncements within its limits, they are unable to meet other educators upon the same plane of intellectual honesty and freedom. Those who would ignore this fact and lend their presence to the coming celebration, are not only expressing personal approval of a system of control that is inimical to the freedom of their profession, but also a direct curtailment of the means through which they advance in their own field.

Dictators thrive as much upon filling the world with propaganda of the benefits they have brought to their countrymen, as in the maintenance of those countrymen in a state of subjugation. The most subtle method through which these two purposes can be attained is through the schools. The educators can be compelled to inculcate into the minds of the students that they are living under the best of "all possible" systems of government. While scholastic celebrations, which by reason of the very nature of the institutions themselves are supposed to be free from political taint, can be made a medium for the international dissemination of propaganda.

Last year the celebration of the 550th anniversary of the University of Heidelberg was turned into a Nazi demonstration without any attention whatsoever being given to education. There is every reason to believe that the coming celebration will be of a similar kind. Under these conditions American educators can best show their disapproval of government usurpation of their functions by remaining away from Germany.

A REPRESENTATIVE PERFORMANCE

A HEARTY word of congratulation is due the moderator and cast of the recent Belle Masque production of the famous "Journey's End." Without a doubt the play was one of the best presented under the name of Villanova College, and critics have not been lax in expressing words of praise.

Not to be outdone by Villanova's athletic teams, the Belle Masque, in the face of heavy odds and unfair prejudice, put their all into a very difficult show and put it over in a most praiseworthy manner. Villanova is proud of her dramatic society's latest endeavor. The Belle Masque is truly a representative Villanova organization.

Not only did the recent performance show that our college really did have some excellent Thespians within its walls, but it proved definitely that the Belle Masque has undergone a rebirth and has proved to the world that good dramatics are not impossible on the Villanova campus, as some students had foolishly supposed. So again in the name of the faculty and student body the VILLANOVAN offers its sincerest congratulations to all those responsible for the successful performance of "Journey's End."

ODDS and ENDS

By Tom O'Mahoney

ONLY THE SECOND week and news is stale already. Guess we'll have to use some poetry. The following is an example of the work of Ed Tirrell, familiarly termed the Bard of Austin. Strangely enough, it is entitled "I'm Oh, So Tired!" (It seems he reads Ogden Nash).

Why don't my eyes obey my will?
Why do they betray
My lack of stay
With Morpheus?—who did not fill
Her sweet duty, because until
The hour before on that same day
My heart was light and I was gay
With life, and a girl to thrill.
(Second stanza)-(the worst in over)
But now in class with Prof's eyes tensed
To catch me at my first offense
Of closing eyes,
I restrain my sighs;
And then, my mind wanders back to think again—
And I say "Was it worth the price,
Was she just as nice,
As Morpheus would have been?"
Dedicated to the 1940 socialities by "Henry Wadsworth" Tirrell.

College Editor Jim Tofani wants to know— is Jack Tole, '39 C. & F., a Conshohocken gendarme, or is Miss Mary G. F. the reason he patrols that fair town's Fayette Street?

COMMUNITY NOTES:

Chapelle has farmed out "Sydney Smooth" Neagle for more seasoning.

The North Jersey Club will try again. All three of their first nominees were discarded as ineligible, you know, and they must have a president. Or must they?

ON THE CAMPUS:

Scribe: Joe Bongiovanni, frosh reporter, most dearly looks the part of earnest leg-man. The Drama: Top-hat, WIP's theatre-reviewer, praised Belle Masque production "Journey's End" as one of the best amateur performances of R. C. Sheriff's famed trench opera. VillanOVATIONS to Prof. Anthony Frayne and the able cast. Add Mysteries: Who is the Observer? Likeness: Joe McHugh and Buster Crabbe. Junior Spring: "Dutch" Stahmann wending his not-so-weary way to Rosemont in the afternoon. Description: "He smokes a pipe as though it were his career." Politics of the Week: Joe (Dark Horse) Caliendrello is scurrying about in search of votes and information. It is reported that he came upon a receptive individual the other day and poured forth a strong plug for his ticket. The listener yeased and nodded affably for fifteen minutes and Joe inwardly congratulated himself as a stump spieler. You can realize, then, our hero's consternation when the one-man audience revealed himself as the rival candidate for Junior Vice President!

WE GUESS YOU KNOW:

That Hack Donovan has taken to riding the Pennsy trains through Rosemont on Sunday evenings. Your tireless correspondent spotted the local Don Juan peering anxiously from the car windows in a most disturbing manner.

SOME things are worth the waiting for Junior Week, Mother's Day, and many more

Like a fun-filled fairyland, while loves' might Brings into one, grey - haired mothers bright-eyed sons
To vanquish stains of study, as recounting battles won.

Many who to themselves have failed, feel fully satisfied,
As before a mother, as judge and jury, they cannot be denied.

If the professors knew what we know they wouldn't know what to do with what we don't know.

From the Los Angeles Junior Collegian we have discovered a heretofore unknown power of anesthetics. If it is successful all sweet young members of the fairer sex may hope to have an idea and that strange feeling that goes with it. It seems that a co-ed was about to undergo an operation and she kept asking her doctor numerous and foolish questions.

"Will I have to take an anesthetic?" she asked.

" es," replied the doctor patiently.

"How long will it be after I come out of it before I know anything?" she asked.

"I don't know," was the weary reply. "That's asking a great deal of an anesthetic."

THE OBSERVER

OUR FRIEND BURLINGTON has organized some sort of new racket: he seems to be rounding up his sophomore friends into a club, the purpose of which is to promote the political fortunes of a certain Mr. Burlington.

The club, we understand, is making marvelous progress. A Ladies' Auxiliary, honorary members, and even a spiritual moderator adorn the "roll book" of the organization, a rather dirty book carried in Burlington's back pocket.

We are glad to announce that Messrs. Burlington, Burlington, Burlington, and Burlington have consented to allow their names to be used as charter members. Mr. Burlington is president of the organization. Mr. Burlington is Vice-President of the organization. And a certain Burlington is Secretary-Treasurer of the organization.

Say, who is this Burlington?

THINGS TO SEE: Austin's rector rolling the balls down in the Pie Shop with the mad Russian, Basil Dobrowolski. Deverall and Corkill out on the golf course doing their Spring plainting. "Moe" Dimon writing his column. Pete McManus working. Joe Toland getting the VILLANOVAN ready for press. A certain Austinite in a certain Philadelphia home with a certain irritated Father chasing the certain Austinite about the certain room with a most certain knife in the hand of the not uncertain Father.

Out in Detroit, a certain old gentleman, giving to telling the nation what he thinks about everything at any old time, has for some years been collecting material for a museum. Th' fellow is a clever old duck, and he seems to think that his museum will last after him as a monument to his greatness. But the museum he is building up is a most remarkable example of the stupidity and blindness of the American business man.

This old gentleman, of NRA fame, has been trying to recapture the spirit of "old America." In his museum, he has placed the log-cabin home of Honest Abraham Lincoln, the original laboratory of his dear friend, Thomas Edison, the old school house of the 70's complete down to its Guffey readers, and an old country store with all the fixin's.

This same geezer made it possible for America to have "lizzies" at low prices. He is the man who conceived the idea of modern mass productionism. He ruined the rural areas of our country by enabling the sleek city slickers to strew the countryside, in more than one sense, with rusting tin cans. He ruined the old culture of the America he so glories in . . . and now, the destroyer of old American culture, the sage of Detroit, now he wants to "preserve" it in a museum.

There's something funny about this. . .and something very tragic. Which side will history record?

For some time your correspondent and observer has been endeavoring to ascertain just why the boys in Austin Hall throw about so much water. Careful investigation reveals that these things do not take place in Fedigan Hall, neither do they occur in Mendel or Alumni Hall. . .at least not as frequently as in Austin Hall.

At last. Eureka! We have found the answer. This is very personal, and—hush—we don't want to let many in on the secret, but sooner or later the administration is going to hear about it, so we might as well spill the soup right now and have it over with.

It seems that for some reason the water pressure in Austin Hall is quite high, and unless it is relieved periodically, the pipes are in danger of bursting.

Can't you see the splendid school spirit manifested by Burlington when, spraying Moose Donovan with the hose, cried:

"Moose, this hurts me more than it does you, but we just have to do it."

Or envison a gang of fellows scurrying back and forth from the washroom to the window, quickly scooping up water and throwing it out of the windows. Studies, dates . . .everything sacrificed to the undying spirit that makes a resident of Austin Hall so distinctively a resident of Austin Hall. Late into the evening, feverishly and desperately, these saviors of the pipes of Austin Hall labor. Now and then a person happens to get in the way of the downcoming water, but undaunted, the water carriers of Austin march on. The Pipes must be saved!

Hats off to the loyalty, devotion, patriotism, and unselfishness of the men who have appointed themselves the Paul Reveres of Austin Hall. They are the minute-men of the college; they are the patriots defying the revolutionary tendencies of the water; they are the men who make Austin Hall the most charming hall in the campus, for they can truly boast: "Not a leak in the house."

Seriously, wonder what President Roosevelt and his diplomatic staff plan to do about the preservation of World peace. We hear rumors and rumors, but as quickly as one rumor starts the rounds, the White House issues a denial. Funny how these politicians and diplomats work. When they are working they deny that they are doing anything. And when the job is done they announce a "smashing diplomatic victory."

HITS and BITS

By John Dimon

SIGN in a 52nd St. eatery: "Prayer for today—God bless the man that minds his own business." According to the proprietor, the little notice has some effect on his customers. Villanova should try the idea, because essence of the thought is very much abused at our institution. Not only do some of the students peep in on private activities, but they also barge in on family and friendly conversations taking place in cars parked in the Mendel triangle. A word to the wise should be sufficient.

And now that the well-performed and well-attended play, "Journey's End," is a thing of the past, congratulations are in order to the cast and company, and to Bob Barrett for his magnificent acting on Wednesday evening under the strain of developing circumstances. Bob was stricken with acute indigestion before the curtain, but he refused to quit. The show must go on. . . . Joe McNamara has the imagination many students would like to have. . . . He gets goo-goo thinking about it. . . .

Dick Deverall: The next time that you go soliciting for those weird experiments of yours, please try the more - crowded Day-hop room or the better known Fedigan layouts, where you can be of some assistance besides doing your prescribed duty. . . . The quip of the week: Klein is inclined to decline . . heard at the Soph nominations.

Ray Gadsby must rate with the license authorities for receiving a very appropriate number for his ca— er-four-wheeler. He was granted plate VU 400. . .. How did you crash the inner ring? . . . Incidentally, talking about cars, here is the hit of the week: A certain young prospective driver in transporting the baseball team to Norristown strictly observed all the norms of good driving in trying to impress his passengers. . . . He blew his horn at every railroad crossing.

Sure signs that it won't be long: Hank McNally's clean white coat (The Ferons wore white jackets all Winter, but I don't know); Vince McHugh's newly polished white puppies that his stooge borrows every now and then, and Fred Night's newly - acquired season trimming.

Jerry Holland has been rather abstracted lately. Super - salesman and promoter Art Raimo must have fell down on his accredited products. . . . Joe—the muscle—Calandriello insists that he is the promoter. However, there seems to be some contradiction in his statement, but let's forget it, for the present. . . .. Pete De Poalo, the national race track driver and 1925 Indianoplis winner, certainly gave some of the cowboys something to think about when he presented excerpts from his thrill - studded career. Look out Alo (can't spell it) Fitzpatrick. . . . The Hilldale Road kid ought to meditate, too.

Rambling: Alumni — Georgie Shull being inspired by Bill Duffy's vagabonding and Red Kamen's poetry in order to answer the ever-waiting Rosemont lass. . . . Mendel's Doc Hughes practicing the Atlantic City drag for the prom.

RADIO and screen celebrities recently congregated at Jack (college president) Oakie's abode. Scarlett Varden and Rhett Oakie named for the occasion of their "Come With the Wind" party, burlesqued Margaret Mitchell's famous characters for the evening. Dick Powell attended as Ashley Wilkes accompanied by his wife, Joan Blondell, who was a Southern belle in a red-and-white checked dress with hoops and pantalettes, et al.

The fifth and sixth floors will be left undinished to permit expansion of studios and to provide for television equipment in the future.

Don't type; telegraph!

Ben Greenblatt, famed Philadelphia pianist, recently submitted an example of his "new musical typewriter" with the tune, "Kiss Me Again." He forgot to mention whether his typewriter is a piece of machinery, an instrument or a blonde seretary.

Hal Kemp, on the other hand, is an exponent of the dot-dash code. He sends dance rhythms over the air for the Chesterfield radio show with what he calls "telegraph brass." The brass section has achieved near-perfection in the art of triple - tongue, which enables them to put over their difficult arrangements. Kemp's unusual brass section a special rhythmic accent . . . tunefully tap-tapping the famous tempo in a manner that makes you shuffle your feet.

Kay Thompson, First Lady of Rhythm, appears on the Chesterfield show with Hal Kemp every Friday at 8:30, in company with her rhythm singers. Miss Thompson has had excellent musical training and originates her own vocal arrangements, always individual in style. She has developed a way of presenting popular songs with a mixed chorus that obtains the harmony and rhythm similar to that of the best dance orchestras.

The Campus Poets

THE STUDENTS' HOUR
(With apologies to Longfellow.)

Between the dark and daylight
When the night is beginning to lower
Comes a pause in the day's occupations
That is known as the students' hour.

'Tis then appears Tiny William, with the clatter of Little (?) feet,
To tell that the worms become Dizzy
At a slight application of heat;
And Marty, the baby savant, comes
Trucking up with news

That a valvular catch in the Larnyx is the reason why Kitty "mews"
"Oh, grandpa," cries lovable Larry,
"Jack Frost has surprised us again, by condensing in crystal formation
The vapor which clings to the pane."

Then Rene and Witold, Junior, Pace pantingly down thru the hall
To be the first with the hot information
That bees shed their coats in the Fall.

No longer they clamor for stories!
As they cluster in fun round my knee;
But each little darling is blustery with a story that he may tell me.
"Gimme reasons why daisies are sexless?"
"And what makes the Prof so down?"
So it goes through the horrible gloaming
Of the well informed students' hour.

—Larry Knaphle, '39.

MUSIC TO MY EARS

Tommy Dorsey the trombone man
Is coming to Villanova
With his hot swing band.

All anticipate and all agree
On some of the numbers
Which will probably be—

I'm Getting Sentimental Over You—
Marie, and no!
I hope not, What! Eedy too?

Yet surely, when Edythe Wright
Sings Star Dust,
In the faded light

You may share a little dream
With your date
Say! Try this scheme—

On an occasion so extremely rare,
Just pretend she is Rogers
And you're Astaire.

—Ed Tirrell, '39.

THE BAR-ROOM FLOOR

Two college men were binging and banging their heads on the bar-room floor,

Laughing and singing with heads that were ringing they forgot the classroom door.

Hiding and sliding behind beer glasses crept the ghost that's known as Flunk,

The tingling touch of the liquors thrust had thrown him in a funk.

But with the rise of the sun, he knew he had won over the liquor in the bar-room store,

For the faces have flunked and now they are sunk, that banged on the bar-room floor.

PROMINENT COLLEGE PRESIDENTS OBJECT TO PROPOSED BILL

Ask Penna. Legislators to Consider Increase in State Scholarships

EXCESS TAXATION STOPPED

In a letter addressed to the members of the Education Committees in the Senate and House of Representatives of Pennsylvania, Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A. president of Villanova College, and president of the Association of College Presidents of Pennsylvania, voicing the opinion of this group, pointed out the danger of certain provisions in the bill before the Senate Education Committee pertaining to the establishment and maintenance of Junior Colleges, and the enlargement of the scope of the State Teachers Colleges.

In the first of the two provisions, Fr. Stanford explained, "the wording does not clearly state that the purpose of the proposed Junior Colleges is to establish terminal courses not already provided in the Liberal Art Colleges and Universities of the State." In the second of these provisions, Fr. Stanford declared, "it opens the door of expansion that will, in time, complete the evolution of normal schools into state-supported colleges and universities, if the history of similar movements in other states is a reliable index."

"Fountain of Color" for the occasion. This new mode of ballroom decorations, making its initial appearance at Villanova, will be prominently situated in the center of the dance floor. Various hues will be artfully projected upon the sparkling columns of water emitting from its depths.

The ceiling has been raised to allow for better acoustical arrangement in the gymnasium. The acoustic curtain used during the presentation of "Journey's End," will be suspended from both balconies, and will line both sides of the ballroom over the orchestra platform. Refreshments will be on sale during the dance. Palms and cherry blossoms will add the floral touch to the colorful decorations.

Special programs of unique make-up will be presented to the ladies at the opening of the dance. A "Grand March" of the Junior Class members and their partners, accompanied by singing of the Alma Mater, will add the sentimental touch to a jovial occasion.

The advance sale of tickets has been encouraging to Junior Class officials. Daniel J. O'Connor, Junior Prom chairman, expressed the opinion that the presentation will meet with success, and if student enthusiasm continues, the dance will be most outstanding.

Wilkes-Barre Club Suggests Officers For Ensuing Year

Elections Will Take Place on Tuesday, May 11, in Amphitheatre

The Wilkes-Barre Club will elect officers for the year 1937-38 on Tuesday evening, May 11, at 7 P. M. in the amphitheatre in Mendel Hall.

On April 20 nominations were made for president, vice president, secretary, and treasurer. The candidates have been approved by the chaplain.

Witold I. Krzywicki, if approved by the authorities, will be president next year, as he is the only nominee for that position. Krzywicki is a sophomore in the School of Science.

William J. Devers, freshman Scienceman is the only man running for treasurer. Nominees for vice president are Donald Hudson, Commerce and Finance, sophomore, and John Wysocki, sophomore in the School of Arts. Gilbert E. Noll, and Walter J. Filipek, both freshmen in the science department, were nominated for secretary. This will probably be the last meeting of the year.

A. S. M. E. ATTENDS ANNUAL CONVENTION AT JERSEY SCHOOL

Rutgers Host to Villanova Group; Makes Visits to Industrial Plants

Villanova's undergraduate chapter of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers on last Monday and Tuesday attended the Fifth Annual Eastern Student Conference at Rutgers University in New Brunswick, New Jersey. The local chapter was represented by Joseph Delaney, president, Marshall Ward, and Emil Mathias. Professor J. Stanley Morehouse accompanied the group.

The Conference brought together 17 eastern colleges and universities, including Polytechnic Institute, Cooper, Delaware, Drexel, Lafayette, Lehigh, Newark College of Engineering, City College of New York, New York U., N. Y. U. Evening Division, Pennsylvania, Princeton, Pratt, Rutgers, Stevens Tech, Swarthmore, and Villanova.

The official program began on Monday morning with registration and subsequent inspection trips to several industrial concerns in the locality, followed by luncheon at the Elks' Club in New Brunswick. The afternoon session was composed of the delivery of seven technical papers offered by students competing for prizes. On Tuesday afternoon the last of the technical papers was delivered.

First prize was won by Marshall C. Long of Princeton, whose paper was entitled, "The Directional Blade Propellor." Mr. Long was awarded $50 for his excellence in delivery and the thoroughness of his discussion. Willard Gardner, of Rutgers, was awarded second place prize of $25 dollars for his paper on "A Wind Tunnel Comparison of Marconi and Gaff Rigged Sails for Boats." Third prize of ten dollars was won by Arnolds B. Arons, of Stevens Tech, for his paper on "Factors Affecting Nitric Oxide Formation in Internal Combustion Engines." G. L. McFarland, of Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute, was the recipient of a slide rule for his delivery of a paper entitled "Tensile Impact Tests on Welds at Low Temperatures."

The judges were Mr. Walter Bishop, of the Wright Aeronautical Corporation; Dr. R. C. H. Heck, Chairman on Honors and Awards, and Mr. Herbert Wottrich, of Public Service Gas and Electric Company.

QUARTET TO SING ON BOWES' HOUR

Members of College Glee Club to Perform Over National Hook-Up

The Villanova College Glee Club quartet has been accepted to perform on the Major Bowes Amateur Hour over the Columbia Broadcasting System.

Members of the group are John Chapple, Richard Foote, Frank Culina, and Joseph Tanzola. These four have performed admirably in all concerts in which they have participated.

Singing over the air quite frequently in the past, they attracted the attention of talent-hunters, and as a result will have an opportunity to display their ability over a national hook-up.

SCIENCE SEMINAR PRESENTS FAMOUS AUTOMOBILE RACER

Peter De Paolo, International Speed King, Warns Careless Motorists

MET ITALIAN STATESMEN

Departing from the usual type of Seminar, which consists of a discussion of scientific material, Rev. Joseph M. Dougherty, O. S. A., introduced to the audience of engineers as well as pre-medica's, Peter De Paolo, of international racing fame.

Mr. De Paolo proved to be the most interesting speaker the Science Seminar has ever heard. Not only was his lecture instructive but it was exceptionally humorous.

Racing Safe

"I like to discuss automobile racing to audiences because little do they realize the part that racing cars play in the development of safety of modern stock cars," said Mr. De Paolo. "I do not recommend it or encourage it to the younger generation as a means of making a livlihood because it is exceptionally dangerous and at the present time it is on the wane."

Mr. De Paolo was taught the art of automobile racing by his famed uncle, Ralph De Paolo, who used to race years ago through the Fairmount Park drive in Philadelphia. In 1920 he went to Italy with his uncle acting in the capacity of mechanic. The purpose of their trip was to race in the famed Italian Grand Prix. Arriving in a small town they immediately converted an old butcher shop into a garage for their use. It was a short distance from the race track. "One day," said Mr. De Paolo, "a dignified gentleman in soldier's uniform stopped in front of our shop and told a young reporter that was accompanying him that there was a good story for his paper, that there were two Americans who possessed ambition and glamour. The dignified gentleman was none other than Gabrielle D'Annunzio the famous Italian poet, and the inquiring reporter was Benito Mussolini," added Mr. De Paolo.

Greatest Thrill

His greatest thrill was the Indianapolis Speedway Race of 1925. On that occasion he had the fastest car and had also captured the qualifying time and was thus entitled to a front position on the track. For good luck in this race he carried his son's babyshoes, one on each spring in the front of the car. In a previous race which he had won he had used only one of his son's shoes, but since this race that he was now competing in meant so much to him he thought that it would bring him more good luck if he used the pair.

"Fifty thousand dollars was the first prize, all was set, and Eddie Rickenbacker was conducting the pace lap. All was fine and we were about one-quarter around the track when my motor stalled. My heart stopped with it, but my mother always told me that a poor beginning was a good ending, so I called out Fred Hauser, my relief driver, to give me a push. I finally got started and caught up with them at the line and away we went at the wave of the checkered flag. Well, I went on to win the race and the $50,000 but the thrill was to look back each time I crossed the line to complete a lap to see nobody in back of me; I was out in front! That was my greatest thrill."

Mr. De Paolo at present is one of the greatest engineers on internal combustion engines and acts as technical advisor in that capacity to the Chrysler Motor Corp.

SPORTORIAL

BILL BOWKER

Last week the varsity baseball club continued on its winning ways by taking Colgate, Cornell and Penn State into camp by decisive scores. Of the three frays, the Penn State one was the most exciting due to the fact that the teams were tied at 5-all going into the tenth inning when the Jacobsmen pounded out six tallies to put the game on ice. Good work, boys.

—V—

Intramural baseball is showing a very high class brand of pitching this year. A couple of weeks ago, Lloyd Rice and Ted Goumy tangled in a pitching duel in which 30 men were strikeout victims. Last week saw a reversal of form when Frank Sweeney of Fedigan, and Goumy toed the rubber in a wild and wooly ball game in which base hits and errors were intermingled with runs. This week, however, saw Sweeney and Rice meet in a pitching duel in which the Gigolo fireballer sent no less than 23 Alumnians back to the bench with that third strike. A passed ball accounted for the lone run of the losers.

—V—

Elsewhere in this issue, on page 7, to be exact, will be found an article, or column, if you will titled "Opinions." The material contained therein concerns the ideas of sports lovers and coaches about the campus concerning the advisability of having a gala sports day consisting of baseball, basketball, and swimming, followed by dancing. Any comment on the part of the student body will be welcomed. Here is a chance for some of the chronic "improvers" to get in some spadework. Send in your opinion to the Sports Editor, and perhaps if enough favorable comment is received, the Villanova athletic authorities will see that something is done about such an affair. We're not promising anything definite, just asking for some good ideas for or against such a plan. Any worthwhile criticism of the subject will be appreciated and in all probability will be printed in the VILLANOVAN. Let's see how much interest you lads have in your school.

—V—

Congrats also to the golfers, who tied the strong Franklin and Marshall divot-diggers. We are told that the Diplomats defeated a couple of very powerful links squads by decisive scores. This speaks well of the Wildcat greens pounders. They are facing a difficult schedule, and are coming through it in a most commendable manner.

—V—

Our sympathies to the tennis squad, which has been idle due to the rainy weather prevalent in the past week. So much rain fell that it was impossible to get the courts in good shape for the scheduled matches. However, with the sunny weather of the last three or four days, the netmen should be able to take to the clay and get a belated start on their campaign of impressive foes.

—V—

Comparable to the feats of the pitchers in intramural baseball are the deeds of Tim Waad and Ed Hanley, both freshmen, in the track department of inter-hall sports. Waad scored 27 of his team's 32 points, and Hanley aided materially in driving Alumni to the winner's seat in that event. June is but a few short weeks off, and the intramurals will come to an end for another year with many names to add to the roster of high class performers, and these two lads will not be forgotten.

WILDCATS TAKE THREE FRAYS

Score 33 Runs in Stretching Victory String to Seven Straight; Heavy Hitting Marks Frays on 3-Day Trip

SCHELLE, McLAUGHLIN, ESCOTT HURL

By JOHN L. SIMONS

Three victories on the road trip through New York and Pennsylvania ran the Villanova baseball team's winning streak to seven. The 'Cats have not lost a game since dropping one to the Phillies early in April. Triumphs over Colgate, Cornell, and Penn State on successive days were recorded. The 'Cats started the tour by trouncing Colgate, 13-6, on Thursday afternoon. Then on Friday they kept on the right road by tripping the big Red of Cornell by a 9-3 count.

Saturday at State College the Jacobsmen were forced to an extra inning to win the ball game. But in the 10th frame the Villianova bat bearers went to town to rack up six big runs to take the ball game, 11-5. At the end of the regulation nine innings the teams were deadlocked at five runs apiece. Four basehits and hit batsman were combined with two untimely (for State) errors by the Nittany Lion defense to give the fray to Villanova.

FRESHMEN BEGIN DIAMOND SEASON

Line-up Nearly Settled for Strenuous Baseball Campaign

After facing Peirce School yesterday before a group of Mothers' Day spectators "Bunny" Galazin's freshmen are eager to accelerate their campaign into high gear.

"Bunny" expects to use Mickey Vernon on first. Vernon, who hails from Chester, Pa., is a tall lad who knows what a bat is used for and has the makings of a big leaguer. His stick work has earned him the third spot in the batting order. The second sack will be guarded by Jack Shea, a former third baseman, who has been changed by Galazin to fill in the gap at the keystone bag. He also is a good hitter.

Lazorchek Leads Off

Mike Lazorchek will take part of the lead-off position. He plays a very good game around shortstop and the opposing batters will find it very hard to knock it past this mite. Although he is the smallest member of the squad, he has the distinct honor of swinging the heaviest bat on the team.

On third is Johnny Pash who, because of his mighty work with the willow will bat in clean-up position. Hazeltown claims John and by the looks of him on the diamond he seems to have a bright future in baseball.

In the left pasture will be found another John. His last name is Tobin and woe to any batter who hits one near him, for it is down the well.

Flood Bats Fifth

Batting in fifth position is George Flood who roams in center field. George seems to have the stuff, but he is a little slow in starting. There

Evening Softball Set Back Another Week By Weather

Rain Causes Postponement of Games and Revision of Schedule

Rainy weather during the first part of the week caused a postponement of softball games. A splendid turnout was present last Friday but only a few of them could play because of the limited supply of equipment.

There is room on the field to carry on four game at the same time and if the sport keeps increasing in popularity this plan will be effected. Two teams from each of the halls could be playing at the same time thereby providing everyone with a chance to play and also to run off the games with more speed.

150's OUTLOOK BRIGHT

Many Frosh Out for Spring Drills; Kerrigan Leads Veterans

With the reporting of so many freshmen for the Spring practice drills, the outlook for the 150 lb. football team's 1937 schedule is becoming much brighter. The newcomers are showing a lot of enthusiasm and are sure to see plenty of action next Fall.

For once the team has not been hit hard by graduation, losing but one man. Captain Larry Stead is the lone member to graduate, and although his presence will be sorely missed, the "pepper" and fight of the frosh should make up for this loss.

Leading the veterans is Captain-elect Paul Kerrigan, a smashing, hard hitting fullback. Paul, in addition to being a stellar performer, is an experienced footballer of the fighting, "never-say-die" type and will be a good leader.

TRACKSTERS FACE ALBRIGHT RUNNERS THURS. OR FRIDAY

Cook, Buek, Maloney and Biester Counted on by Elliott

"Jumbo" Jim Elliott's cinder squad is set to face the Albright runners soon at the Reading track. After the not - too - phenominal showing in the Penn Relays, and the lack of tourney experience resulting from the postponing of the Temple meet, the boys will have to bear down on the action if they expect to come across with the bacon.

Cook Will Lead

Captain Tom Cook will lead his mates into the fray, taking part in the sprints and the broad jump, in which he participated at the relays a short time ago. "Cookie" has been training hard these past few weeks, and his ire at the failure of the Temple meet to materialize will be vented on the Reading runners.

In the quarter mile, Elliott will place his hopes on Lou Biester, the Yeadon flash and one-fifty halfback. Lou also has been training assiduously despite the coming attractions of Junior Week, and should gather many needed points for the Villanovans. As yet he has not seen any intercollegiate action, but his time in the practice spins presages ill for his opponents.

RAIN CANCELS TENNIS

Three Matches Postponed Due To Inclement Weather

Because old Jupe Pluvius has been in a very playful mood of late, and consequently made the tennis courts a sea of mud, Villanova netmen have been unable to get going. Already matches with Ursinus, Delaware and a practice tilt with the Skippack Tennis Club, have been rained out, necessitating their postponement indefinitely.

Captain Bill Thorn has a number of veterans on which to rely in the remaining eight engagements. Jim Cousart, Joe McCabe, Jim Dwyer, Frank Feron, together with Thorn, represented the Blue and White team of last year which lost only three of its ten matches.

Captain Thorn is anxious to have as strong a squad as possible when future opponents are met.

GRIDDERS CONCLUDE OFFICIAL TRAINING

Informal Sessions to Follow End of Regular Spring Drills

Last week an official statement, to the effect that the Spring football session at Villanova College would end, was issued from the Wildcat coaching department.

The boys officially wound up the training session with an interesting but gruelling three-hour scrimmage last Saturday. The skirmish took place on the Villanov campus and "Clipper" ran in his four teams intermittently to maneuver on both the offensive and defensive.

Pleases the Eye

Pleasing to the eyes of the spectators and above all, to the Villanova mentors, was the way the teams behaved on the offense. Apparently the 'Cats were touchdown hungry and all teams engaging in the scrimmage ripped through the line and skirted around the ends to cross the last white line for a number of times before the whistle ended the drills.

At times the offense tended to slow down, probably because of the intense heat or more likely because the boys on the defense got too tough. A revival in spirit would be brought about by a word or two from the coaches. Then, again the offense would flare up with a barrage of line thrusts or a few aerials to characterize a potent offensive attack.

Intense Interest Shown

An intense interest has been shown by last year's veterans, as well as the new-comers to the squad. The playing has been clean, hard, rough, and as a result, quite a few men have been injured.

Although the bumps have been

Alumni Hall Takes Mural Track

WAAD SHINES FOR MENDEL AS ALUMNI NOSES OUT AUSTIN

Skytopper Tallies 27 Points To Place Team in Third Position

DIMON WINS POLE VAULT FOR LAST PLACE FEDIGAN

Controversy Marks First Day's Action in Annual Mural Event

By JOSEPH McDADE

When the dust from the flying spikes finally subsided, a scant five and one-half points was Alumni Hall's thrilling margin of victory over its closest and practically only contender, Austin Hall, at the Villanova stadium last week. Fast and furious was the competition which marked the annual Track Intra-murals. With few exceptions, all events were hotly contested down to the finish.

Due to the length of the track carnival, two days were necessitated to run it off; Wednesday was devoted to field events, while Thursday saw the lads chasing merrily after one another.

The first day, the "muscle men" from Austin, under the belligerent guidance of Fr. McKee, started off with a bang and built up a commanding lead of 41 points. Mendel, in the person of Tim Waad, a veritable one man team, garnered 17 markers, while Alumni, the ultimate winners, had a mere 12.

Waad Scintillates

Waad, diminutive but dynamic, was easily the outstanding performer of the day, having two firsts, a second and a fourth. He jumped to a 19-foot, 1 inch victory in the broad jump, and heaved the javelin a total distance of 144 feet. His 40 feet, 5 inch throw gave him fourth place in the shot.

Fediganites were conspicuous by their absence. However, "Moe" Dimon tried to compensate for their lack of interest by entering in every event. He finally came through with a nice 10 feet, 6 inch victory in the pole vault. He was followed by A. Holl, Mendel day student, who scored half his team's points; Jack Conneen accounting for the remainder.

The results of the first three contestants in every event was always close, with inches at times, representing the margin of victory.

Controversy Marks Meet

A heated controversy occurred, toward the end of the meet, as a result of Alumni's desire to allow a late-comer to participate in all the events even though they had been run off. Fr. McKee, director of the meet, was at first, and rightly so, adamant in his refusals; however, lengthy argument and his great sportsmanship finally prevailed and the Alumnian in question went through his paces. He was good enough to give his hall nine points and take five from Austin by his first in the discus throw and a second in the shot put. This unscheduled event had much bearing on the final outcome.

In the track events, a determined Alumni crew, paced by Hanley and McDade, left all competition behind and won five of six events. The Austinites, reputedly tired from strenuous effort of the preceding day, were in the minority and lost a good bit of ground.

The most exciting events were the 100-yard dash and the 220. The former required two heats with Lou McGlincy, of Alumni, followed by O'Neil, of Austin, coming out in the number one and two positions respectively. The 220 dash proved to be a nip-and-tuck affair with Al Wood, Alumni, beating out Tim Waad, Mendel and Ed Hanlon, Alumni, by inches.

Slow Mile Run

The mile was a slow event that Jim Hanley, of Alumni, who coasted all the way won in 5:35. Al Lyman, C. & F. day hop, took second, and season, was on the mound and he was faced by Frank Smith, veteran State hurler. Both twirlers were in top form and kept the batters well in check. In the sixth inning with the Lions ahead 2-0, Villanova roused from its lethargy and came through with a cluster of four runs to assume the lead. The highlight of the rally was the timely clubbing of Ray Stoviak, the heavy hitting Villanova outfielder.

In the last half of the eighth Sol Miehoff, formerly of Philadelphia's Olney High School, led his mates to a brace of runs to knot the count at 4-all. Villanova scored again in the ninth, but in the last half of the same frame, Jim Schelle, the starting twirler, showed signs of weakening and yielded the run which once more tied the score. At this point "Doc" Jacobs rushed in his ace, Bill McLaughlin, to save the day. Bill quickly quelled the uprising and forced the game into extra innings.

In the tenth, Walt Sheftic and Bob Bond led off with singles. Stoviak was safe and the bases were filled when he beat out a bunt. Mike Garbark fanned, but when Smith, the State pitcher, threw past third attempting to catch Sheftic, Sheftic and Bond both scored. Lou Wannemacher drove in the third tally with a single. An error and a hit batter loaded the bases again. In this pinch Pitcher Bill McLaughlin came through with a solid baschit to clear the bases.

Come From Behind

In the Cornell fray the 'Cats were forced to come from behind to gain the triumph. As late as the fifth inning the Big Red was in command of the situation. Then the bludgeons of Wannemacher, Merullo and Bond began to smite with telling effect and Villanova ran away with the ball game, the final score being 9-3.

Frank "Quack" Escott hurled for the 'Cats. Though touched for 11 hits, Frank pitched commendable ball. He was particularly effective with men on the sacks, leaving 13 of them stranded. Lou Wannemacher, who came through in the pinches with a double and triple, and Len Merullo with four for four led the Villanova 14-hit attack.

'Cats Slug

Colgate owes its defeat to the fury of the Wildcat bats. The high scoring Main Liners descended on Chenango and before the Raiders knew just what was going on, they were buried under an avalanche of baseblits and wound up on the short end of a 13-6 count.

With the trip under their belts the Jacobsmen now sport one of the best records in the East. To date they have lost but one game to a collegiate opponent, that lone loss being suffered at the hands of an in-and-out Princeton club.

Once again the 'Cats showed that power wins ball games. In the three games just played they put together 33 runs on some 40 odd base hits. That is power.

HERE and THERE

By Tom Carbine

Another bit of varsity material for Doc Jacobs is Frank Sweeney, the Fedigan "Speed-Ball" artist, who turned in a great performance Sunday, a week ago, in one of the intra-mural hardball games. . . . Which brings to mind the picture of "Fancy" Schoppmeyer stopping a few hard ones at short-stop on Mendel Field, with the Frosh nine last week . . . looking good.

Toby Greco, Junior Science, has received the honor of leading the Wildcat swimmers next year. Toby has been on the team since his frshman year and he has consistently turned in a good performance in his specialty, the breast-stroke. . . . Among his accomplishments we find that he was Publicity Agent for pugilist "Longreach Van." . . . He also knows how to mix the juice that makes hair lay in place (Tom O'Brien please contact) . . . besides being noted for a dancing style of his own creation.

After witnessing such a successful comeback of the Belle Masque Society we feel that Villanova's extra-curricular cultural activities will soon receive recognition comparable to that received by Villanova's athletics. . . . This column wishes to applaud the work of the entire organization responsible for "Journey's End."

As sure as Daylight Saving Time comes every year we have that big crowd on Mendel Hall urging on their favorites in Father McKee's soft ball league. . . . This sport has proved to be a welcome diversion on cool spring evenings and even the Greek notices the falling off of business.

Traffic on the Lancaster Pike will be able to resume its customary speed now that football has been called off until September. . . . People from the far West couldn't help having an opportunity to compare the "Clipper's" work on both seaboards, for Lancaster Pike is a part of the Lincoln Highway that stretches from coast to coast. . . . This Spring practice session, which has been one of the hardest held in recent years, should leave the boys on edge for next season's national competition. . . . At the present time though they seem to be glad it's over on account of injuries . . . and the Junior Prom.

"Jumbo" Elliott, track coach, picked up a few men as a result of the intramural track meet that will bolster his squad for its meet with Albright tomorrow. . . . For four years Villanova has lost every one of their track engagements, but Elliott hopes to cut off this streak of bad luck in this meeting. . . . Among the promising material picked up by Jim in the intramural track meet was Tim Waad, "Junior" Adams, and Al Holl. . . . Waad won three of the field events on Wednesday, while Adams ran away with the high jump. . . . "Moe" Dimon started out with the intention of competing in all the field events, but he received such competition from his protege, Al Holl, in the pole vault that he had to devote all his attention to overcoming Al's stiff competition.

With a better diamond to practice on the Frosh baseballers might be able to take all comers, for they gave the varsity quite a scare last week. . . . Score—3-2. . . . Andy Sisco has been throwing them past the batters with remarkable consistency and he has lots of promise for next year. . . . Mickey Vernon at first base also looks good and all around man, Bob Pash, should also find a spot on the varsity next season.

Sweeney Sets Alumni Down With One Hit, Fanning 23

Gigolos Vanquish Freshmen by 3-1, Taking First Place; Austin Defeats Mendel, 8-3, in Morning Game, Tying Skytoppers

RIFICI, RICE, DOBSKI, GRAB TWO HITS

By HARRY MAZZEI

Fedigan Hall took undisputed possession of first place in last Sunday's intramural baseball games played on Mendel Field, when they defeated the Alumni batsmen, 3-1. This was the second contest of the day, the first being held in the morning when the Austin Hall representatives laced the Mendel clubbers, 8-3.

The afternoon's encounter was one of the best played ball games this campus has seen in many a moon. Frank Sweeney toed the rubber for the Gigolos and set his opponents down with only one hit, meanwhile setting down 23 Alumni would-be batters via the strikeout route.

His opponent, Franny Moynihan, the New England songbird, also turned in a commendable performance, as he gave up only three runs to the prolific scoring Gigolos. Moynihan gave up nine hits, but kept them well scattered.

Sweeney, a really fine fast ball slinger, had a shutout in the palm of his hand, but lost it in the last inning when Fioretto walked, stole second and third, and then tallied on a passed ball for the lone Alumni counter. Sweeney allowed only two batters to put their bludgeon on the horsehide, as he whiffed every other Alumni swinger that faced him in the course of the afternoon. This is no mean feat, and with Sweeney throwing them in all of the time Fedigan is almost assured of the intramural flag.

Allows One Hit

Rifici led the stickers of the contest, being the only contestant able to garner two safe blows, although Costello, Rhoades, and Panteleo delivered blows when they were most needed. The only Greenie to land on Sweeney for a safe blow was "Slinger" Dunn, peppy Alumni second sacker, whose bingle came midway in the contest and did nothing except blow Sweeney's bid to the Hall of Fame higher than a kite.

As a result of this win the Fediganites are enjoying a full game lead over the Austin and Mendel teams who are tied for the second slot. A win next Sunday over the Pent-Housers will clinch the gonfalon for the Gigolos, and they will shoot the works in order to gain this coveted victory.

Just prior to the start of the morning's contest between the now-tied Austin and Mendel teams, the Pent-Housers were handed a severe shock when "Cushions" Malcolm, their hurling choice for the fray, pulled up with a sore arm and was unable to participate. As a result the dependable "Connie" Rice twirled for the defeated Mendel and was unfortunately the recipient of poor support. Rice outpitched his rival, Frank Castles, who formerly threw them up for the varsity, as he allowed but five hits to his rival's six. However, Castles scattered the five hits and proved effective when the going was rough.

The Mendel team had the better of the going for a while, but after the fifth inning a few hits coupled with some very ragged Mendel outfield play sewed the old ball game up for the boys of Father McKee.

No Austinite succeeded in gathering more than one bingle off Rice's delivery, while both Dobsky and Rice, himself, hit Castles twice. Defensively Crossmire was again an outstanding performer. The Kane lad handled everything hit his way with flawless ease and succeeded in rapping out a base-knock.

This defeat put a discordant note in the pennant song which the Pent-Housers had been singing. They will have to defeat Fedigan next Sunday to gain even a first place tie, while if Austin wins the best they can do is make the affair a three-way tie.

Opinions

This question was put to several persons:

What is your candid opinion of a proposed indoor Villanova sports carnival? That is, a boxing meet would be held in the afternoon, followed by a swimming meet, followed by a basketball game. Dancing would conclude the sports fiesta.

—V—

Ray Gadsby, coach of boxing: "I think that this is a splendid idea; one of the finest since I have been here. The fulfillment of this program would draw heavy crowds to witness the worthwhile Villanova indoor athletic contests. The poorer-drawing sports would be built up by the more attractive ones. Villanova is well represented in the three sports mentioned above, and it is no more than right that they should receive the moral support of many rooters. Temple would be the ideal foe in all three encounters, since they are our natural adversaries."

—V—

Arthur Mathieu, swimming coach: This is a very good idea on the part of the VILLANOVAN. It would help the swimming team, in particular, to the rightful position they deserve among natators in this vicinity. Villanova is well represented by a crack group of tankmen, and it is a shame that they cannot receive any spectatorial support in their meets. However, in order to accommodate the anticipated crowds, the pool would have to be completely renovated. At present, the ventilation is very poor and is injurious not only to the swimmer, but also the looker-on. Bleachers would have be erected to seat the large crowds, but this can all be taken care of, if the plan goes through, as I hope it will."

Nort Paden, ex-sports editor of the Villanovan: "Since this is a novel idea in the Middle-Atlantic states, it would go over big not only with the students and the alumni, but also with Mr. Spectator in general. The service schools have tried the plan and it has met with considerable success. Villanova could keep abreast with the times by effectuating this idea; thus increasing the interest in both social and athletic activities.

Track Meet Won By Alumni Hall

Joe McDade, Alumni, finished a good 50 yards behind the pair. Mike Rodriquez, who ran under Austin colors, gave the leaders a run for their money until hit with a sick spell. Courageously, he finished a good fourth.

Individual honors for the day went to Hanley, Alumni, whose three first were good for 15 points. He was closely followed by McDade, a fellow hall-mate, who had a first, second and third for 12. Individual honors for the entire meet were unanimously accorded Tim Waad, who accounted for 27 of Mendel's 32 markers, with three firsts, and a duo of seconds and fourths.

Austin's aggregation of points is astonishing in view of the fact that they scored only 2 firsts out of 12 events. However, a multitude of places which soon add up were divided rather evenly between Adams, Burlington, Scesney, and McCabe. On the other hand, Alumni secured six firsts and generally monopolized the running events.

Lack of training, and a slow track did not make for fast times, but the fellows gave their all, and the spectators, few in number, had a show for their money.

The summaries:

Tracksters Face Albright Runners

Merion High hurdling star, will continue his efforts along that line, and he should bring in a first or two in the timber topping division of the track and field. Harvey, in his high school days, set some interscholastic records which are still standing, and this fact, together with the training he has been getting in Spring practice on the gridiron, should better the times he has been making in the practice sessions.

In the long distance, Coach Elliot plans to use Ben Maloney, senior runner. Although Maloney did not take part in the Penn Relays, he is in fine shape for tomorrow's action, due to the intense training of the past few days.

Among the other members of the team upon which Elliott must rely are Vince LaBrasco, Jim Lyons, the Ardmore flash, and John Dimon, who won the intramural pole vault with ten feet and six inches, will take care of that event. Possibly Tim Waad, the one-man track team from Mendel, will enter. Waad's performance in the intramural meet has led to the rumors that he will be pressed into service for the Albright meet.

SCHOOLBOYS RACE SATURDAY, MAY 9

700 Athletes from Over 60 Schools to Compete in Annual Tourney

On Saturday, May 9, Villanova will be the scene of the 10th annual Villanova Interscholastic Track Meet. The meet this year will be bigger and better than ever before in its history. Some seven hundred athletes, the cream of the Eastern schoolboy crop, representing over 60 schools, have been entered.

Fourteen special events and two relays make up the program. The relay races are both half-mile affairs, one for Parochial Schools and the other for Junior High Schools. Competition in the special events will be divided as usual into classes A, B and C.

The 700 boys will be shooting at several records made by trackmen now prominent in collegiate circles. Harvey Buek, Villanova soph, is the holder of the records for high and low hurdle events. In 1936 while competing for Lower Merion High Harvey took the 120 yard high hurdles in 16.5 seconds, and the 160 yard lows in 18 flat.

Eulace Peacock, dusky Temple ace, is the holder of the best marks in the century dash, 9.8 seconds, and the broad jump, 24 feet, 2 1-2 inches. At the time Peacock made this latter record it was a world interscholastic record.

is a three way fight for the right-field position with honors about even among Rice, Duffy and Novak. Another fight is in progress for the receiving job with Aramno having the edge over Fioretti, because of his batting punch. Coach Galazin will be able to call on Cusky, Cassidy and Gillin for utility roles in the infield, while he has Conners and Mones for reserve work in the outfield.

The pitching burdens will be handled by Cli Choquette and Andy Sisco. Both are southpaws and they should be welcome additions to "Doc" Jacobs' staff next season. Chiff is a cool, smart moundsman with a world of stuff. Andy throws a beautiful curve ball which should keep the batters guessing. Murray, another southpaw, has been troubled with a sore arm, but it is hoped that he will round into shape. Bob Wilson and Duffy complete the mound corps. Both will be used in relief.

tough and numerous the boys have displayed their ability to take and return them good-naturedly. The coaches have been constantly enlightened with the reaction of the fellows and are expecting to put a harmonious team on the gridiron this season.

In spite of the fact that an official statement has been declared to designate the end of Spring practice, the Villanova tutors have decided to extend the training season for another week or two.

JACOBS

Comments on the Baseball Games

AFTER returning from our annual northern trip, we find that there are a few outstanding things that occurred in the contests played on the jaunt. First, the ability of our club to come from behind to win, after being seemingly in the depths of defeat; second, the batting strength the boys showed in getting at least a dozen bingles in each game, and third, the great pitching of Jim Scheile, pitching his first college ball game against one of the outstanding teams of the East. To elaborate on Schelle's performance, he did everything which you could expect a young hurler pitching his first game against a team of Penn State's calibre. His control was good, and after the nervousness he had in the first few innings wore off, he looked like a great hurler out there. He was in a number of tough spots, although it wasn't his fault. In those tough spots, he just took another hitch in his belt, and bore down harder to extricate himself from the "hot spot."

Squad Did Well

The whole squad deserves a lot of credit for the way they performed on the trip. There were some outstanding features in each fray. In the Colgate tussle the timely hitting of Crawley and the relief pitching of McLaughlin, and the great play Charles Del Umo made, to take us out of a very tight spot.

In the Colgate contest, Lenny Merullo and Lou Wannemacher were the lads who wielded that hickory with no mean ability to give us the victory by a 9-3 count. Escott although hit rather freely, tightened up with men on the basepaths and had everything under control when it mattered most.

State Fray Exciting

The State game was by far the most exciting because we were in a number of tight spots throughout the duration of the fray. In these ticklish situations we showed that we had plenty of that thing called intestinal fortitude to emerge from the murky clouds of doubt. Picture this situation. The score is tied at 5-5 in the last half of the ninth inning. Penn State has a man on every base with only one out. Things looked black. State was only one run away from winning the game. Bill McLaughlin was inserted in the game at this point, and he increased our apprehension no small amount by running the count to 3 and 2. Just picture how we felt on the bench. With the next pitch coming up much would result. If it were a ball, it would force in the winning run. If it were too good, the batter would pole out a long fly or a sharp hit, and the ball game would be over. He steadied himself, took that windup, cut a fast ball through there, and fanned the batter. However, our worries were not yet over, for the Staters had a chance to win the contest. Bill came through, and forced the batter to pop up a short fly, thus giving us a chance to take the game in the tenth, which we did with no uncertain methods, tallying, as you know, six runs to put the game away.

Players Learning

The lads showed me that although they still make mental errors they are learning the game fast and before the season is much older they will show that they are a high class ball club. They are a game club, and after all, that means a great deal in any sport.

This week we travel some more, taking two short trips to Lehigh and to Fordham. If the lads repeat their performance of last year, that right field wall of the Bethlehem field will take a terrific hammering. Fordham always has a tough squad and a win over the Rams will do much to enhance our prestige in the sport of baseball. Last year we dropped a tough one, and this time the boys are out to avenge that defeat.

MASS CELEBRATION MARKS OPENING OF JUNIORS' BIG WEEK

Flag Raising and Tree Planting Inaugurate Traditional Class Ceremonies

Monday morning marked the inauguration of Junior Week activities with the celebration of the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass and the formal flag-raising ceremonies, participated in by the Junior Class and representatives of the college administration.

Rev. John J. Vrana, O.S.A., celebrated mass at 9:00 in the college chapel, fittingly opening the extensive program prepared by the Class of '38. Flag-raising ceremonies, incurred with all formality, marked the commencement of Open House. The flag was raised by John W. Stahmann, chairman of Junior Week. Addresses were rendered by Rev. Bernard M. Albers, O.S.A., vice president of the college, and John L. Simons, president of the Junior Class.

An ivy vine, symbolic of the clinging and ever-spreading friendships begun at Villanova, was planted by the Class of '38 in front of Austin Hall. The vine was planted by President Simons, and was received in the name of the administration, by Rev. Edward B. McKee, O.S.A., rector of Austin Hall. Father McKee expressed the gratitude of the college upon the presentation of this traditional plant.

A dogwood sapling was presented to Rev. Joseph C. Bartley, O.S.A., Dean of the School of Commerce and Finance, and was planted by President Simons in impressive ceremoles near that building. Father Bartley expressed that it was his desire that the Class of '38 shall grow as will the roots of this tree, and that the strains of loyalty and friendship shall penetrate deeply into the hearts of all its members.

These traditional ceremonies were witnessed by the members of the Junior Class, as well as by a host of students, faculty members, and guests.

UNIVERSITY ADOPTS ADMISSION PLAN

Intelligence Examination to Replace "Old" Entrance Tests at Columbia U.

New York, N. Y.—(ACP)—To improve the quality of freshmen classes, Columbia College of Columbia University is instituting a "new" entrance plan for use next September.

Although incoming students can make applications for admission under either the old method or the new, as stated in the new Columbia catalog, speculation has it that the latter plan may supersede the old.

While the old method leans heavily on entrance examinations as one of the chief criteria for college admission, the "new" relies more on the applicant's grade on the Thornton Intelligence examination as an index of his fitness.

Even though graduation from a secondary school of accredited standing has always been a prerequisite, the "new" plan takes added precaution to keep out incompetents by making sure that the secondary schools are accredited.

Any student entering under this method must come fron. a secondary school which is recognized by any one of a number of organizations which keep constant vigil over school standards.

The organizations whose word Columbia will accept on school ratings are the New England Certificate Bard, the Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools of the Southern States, the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools and the Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools.

If a student comes from a school outside the observation territory of these bodies, he may submit the names of leading colleges on whose accepted list his school's name appears. The acceptability of that school will then be determined "for the time being upon the basis thus furnished."

FLAG RAISING BEGINS ANNUAL JUNIOR WEEK

After the celebration of Holy Mass and the completion of breakfast, the Junior Class assembled in front of the Monastery yesterday morning to inaugurate their social week by raising the flag. John L. Simons, president of the class, is raising the flag after Rev. Bernard M. Albers completed a short talk.

Villanova. Mackowski also was nominated for a Student Council position in last year's elections, but was defeated by a slim margin.

Most conspicuous in this year's election was the complete co-operation of the class members in its conduction. The number of nominees allowed a limited choice of candidates, while numerous caucuses indicated smoothly functioning political machines.

MASQUE PRODUCTION PROVES SUCCESSFUL

Outstanding Critics Commend Presentation of "Journey's End"; Frayne Pleased

"Journey's End," wartime presentation of Belle Masque, experienced unprecedented success during its showing at Villanova last week, when it figured in the whole-college.

One of Philadelphia's radio commentators, a critic on amateur dramatic productions, expressed his satisfaction on the play as presented by the Belle Masque thespian group. He stated that the show presented very favorable impressions and that it has great possibilities. His opinion reveals the possibility that the presentation of "Journey's End" may be taken to the amateur theatrical houses of Philadelphia in the near future.

Anthony J. Frayne, producer and Belle Masque head, was very much pleased with the outcome of this first attempt on the part of the students to revive dramatic interest at Villanova College. He and his group of players are to be commended upon their fine presentation and performance. This play is regarded as one of the most difficult in the amateur field, and one of the finest.

WILL BE AWARDED DEGREES AT GRADUATION EXERCISES

Dr. William Mayo, his brother, Dr. Charles Mayo, and the Hon. Herbert R. O'Conor, who will receive the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws from Villanova College at the graduation exercises in June.

JOSEPH J. TAKACS ELECTED PRESIDENT OF JERSEY ALUMNI

Other Officers Chosen by Graduate Chapter; Plans Made for Dinner

At a meeting held on Tuesday evening, April 20, the Central New Jersey Alumni Club held its election of officers. The result of the election is: Joseph J. Takacs, president; William F. Clark, vice president; Julius J. Beeza, secretary; Vincent P. Brady, treasurer; J. T. Houseman, corresponding secretary; James Rannazzisi, sargeant at-arms.

Name More Suitable

Recently organized, the club chose the name Central New Jersey Club as the most suitable since it embraces a sizable number of the towns of central New Jersey. In spite of its recent origin, the club has planned quite an extensive program.

On the fifteenth of June they are holding a stag dinner which is expected to be the biggest of its kind ever attempted by a college alumni group. As an important and celebrated of the night, they hope to obtain Maurice J. "Clipper" Smith. The invitation has already been extended to "Clipper" but as yet he has made no comment. Paetrus Banmiller, registrar, and Anthony Sala, last year's football captain have also been extended invitations.

Invitations have been proferred to a number of the coaches of the high schools located in central New Jersey. Also a number of prospective Villanova students will be invited to attend the affair in an effort to promulgate the merits in this section of New Jersey.

REV. EDWARD V. STANFORD ATTENDS GROUP MEETING

Represents Villanova At Gathering of Executive Committee of Organization

Villanova College was represented at the recent meeting of the Executive Committee of the Association of American Colleges last Thursday, by the Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., president.

This session met in New York City to formulate plans in preparation for a program for the general convention of the Association of American Colleges, to be conducted in Chicago, June, 1938.

Villanova is one of the many Catholic Colleges that will be represented at this convention in June. An elaborate program is being prepared for the meeting, and many notables in the collegiate world will be in attendance.

Engineering Group Makes Inspection Of Bell Telephone

Operation of Exchanges Highlight of Tour to City Plant

On April 18, the Electrical Engineering Society were participating in an inspection tour conducted for their benefit, in the Bell Telephone Company at Ninth and Race Sts., Philadelphia. The Juniors and Seniors of the organization were present on the tour, where the machine-switching center of the company was inspected.

The topics discussed included many of the novel sidelights in the operation of exchanges. Also interest was aroused by the viewing of the A. B. Toll or Tandem Exchange while in operation. Incidentally, this is the only exchange of its type in the Philadelphia area. Further interest was added by a demonstration of the method of handling the Walnut, Market, and Lombard exchanges.

The regular meeting of the society was held on April 26, 1937. Three papers were submitted for discussion at this meeting. The titles were as follows:

"Synthesizing Speech," by William Durkin, '38; "Change of Pitch with Loudness," by John Parker, '38; "Reduction of Airplane Noise and Vibration," by William Burns, '38.

CRITICS PRAISE STAGE HANDLING

Experts Applaud Work of Electricians and Scene Managers of Play

Together with favorable criticisms on the stage production and acting of "Journey's End" comments have come from reliable sources concerning the work back stage.

One critic in particular, who prefers to have his name withheld said, concerning the scenery—"In this particular play the lighting is especially difficult to manage. All war plays, trying to produce a war - like atmosphere, lies directly in the hands of the stage hands and electricians who can either make or break them. The handlers of 'Journey's End' did an exceptionally good job, and are to be heartily congratulated."

Another was no less enthusiastic —"While the players on the stage receive the most credit for the success of a play, efficient backstage management is indispensable for success and is often forgotten in the excitement of the play itself."

STAFF MEETING

There will be a meeting of the VILLANOVAN staff this afternoon at 1 P. M. in Room 119, Mendel Hall. This will be the last meeting of the year and all are urged to be present.

BELLE AIR DINNER GIVEN TO MEMBERS OF YEARBOOK STAFF

Thomas F. Kennedy, Editor, Announces That Book Is Ready Today

Editor Thomas F. Kennedy, Jr., has recently announced that the 1937 Belle Air publication will be distributed to the student body today. It has also been disclosed that the Annual Dinner will be held this evening at the Whitehall Hotel in Haverford, Pa.

Available Today

The Belle Air will be available to the students today between the hours, 9 and 5, in the Bursar's Office. Mr. Kennedy also stated that the Belle Air must be obtained today between the designated hours, as the publication cannot be had at any other time.

The book will be entirely modern in design. An item of interest is the fact that the book will be larger in dimension than any other previous issue. It will contain approximately 250 pages of combined pictures, write-ups, photographs and campus scenes.

Another object of note is the cover to the Belle Air. It is copyrighted, to be used exclusively by this college. The cover is the most attractive ever yet to be produced by a Belle Air editor.

It is at this annual affair that the new editor-in-chief and business manager of the yearly book are announced by the moderator, Rev. Daniel Falvey, O.S.A. Inasmuch as these men have not as yet been selected, it will not appear in the VILLANOVAN until next week.

The publication will be distributed in the college book room and in the Belle Air office in Mendel Hall.

SPLENDID WORK

JUNIOR week for the class of nineteen thirty-eight is now as far gone as it will ever be. The greatest social event of the entire lives of the members of this class is now just a matter of happy memories in their minds, and most of them have settled back with a sigh and have resolved to get close to the grindstone for the remaining few weeks.

Looking back on the week we see three successful affairs and seven days of fine weather. The Junior Prom set many new precedents for other classes to try and follow and the heartiest of congratulations are due all those who worked so hard to make it such a marvelous success from both a social and financial standpoint.

The color and atmosphere of the Blazer Ball and the Junior Dinner Dance left nothing to be desired. From the standpoint of the majority of the class all the affairs were very well run and quite enjoyable. The spirit of most of the class was definitely shown by the excellent cooperation given the chairmen and their committees in all fields of class activity during the week. At no time was it necessary for chairmen to rouse their committees to action. Particularly noticeable was the willingness of non-committee members of the class to co-operate in the tedious and necessary work of gymnasium decorations. This certainly indicates that this class has very few dissenters and has the unusual ability to work as a unit for the good of the entire group. For those men who so willingly gave their time we offer special congratulations upon a fine display of class spirit.

No machine, however perfect, is without its slight imperfections; no body however clean is without its poisons. As it is with things of the mechanical and physiological world so it is with even the best of organizations and the Junior Class is no exception to this rule. Despite the fact that all the affairs went off without the slightest hitch some of the lesser members of the class had the unutterable gall to complain about some of them. It is interesting to note, however, that the very ones who thus showed their stupidity were the very ones who did little or nothing to help the successful completion of the events. So in spite of these spiritless individuals the class of 1938 is due for the heartiest congratulations on the most successful Junior Week in the history of the college.

MEXICO

BLOOD drenched Mexico is slowly being washed clean. The almost satanic hostility to the Catholic Church manifested by the leaders of the Mexican people, a hositility which has led to the drenching of Catholic altars in Mexico with priestly blood seems to have spent itself. Expiation and retribution now seem to be setting in. We can look forward to a more peaceful, a more Christian Mexico in the future.

The change has been taking place for at least a year. A recent letter of the Pope's to the Mexican people and the Mexican Hierarchy was circulated the length and breadth of Mexico. A year ago, due to the close censorship, this would have been impossible. But not only that: the President of Mexico has told the people of Mexico: "The people of Mexico are free to worship in Catholic Churches again."

The Marxist agitators tried to poison the Mexican mind with communistic propaganda, but they failed. As Leo XIII has said, a people cannot be wrested overnight from their cultural heritage.

Mexico now seems to be returning to the bosom of Holy Mother Church. With the resumption of divine worship, and the concurrent reconstruction of the Mexican social order, we can expect to see rise out of the blood-drenched soil of Mexico a powerful, mighty, Catholic nation, a sister of the United States, a daughter of the Catholic Church. May God bless and prosper the penitent Mexican nation.

HERR HITLER

THE entire world was shocked, only a few days ago, to learn of the unfortunate Hindenburg disaster. What would have been a happy landing was transmuted by the interaction of chemical atoms into a raging, furious burning ship of hydrogen gas and human beings.

While we are prone to extend to the German people our extreme sympathy, our prayers, and our condolences, we know that our sorrow is tempered by the knowledge of the sort of government "enjoyed" by the German people. News flashed back to Germany telling them of the Hindenburg disaster becomes, in the hands of the Nazi doctors, propaganda of the worst sort. It was hinted, in some German newspapers, that the Jews were behind the explosion. Others say that it is an attack on German culture on the part of the American people.

The blowing up of the Hindenburg marked the passing, tragically, of two great ideals. One was the ideal of creating an almost fool-proof lighter than air ship. The other ideal was what that ship symbolized: old Field-Marshal Paul von Hindenburg. The army officer of the old Prussian School, later to be the genial Reichspraesident of Germany, it was von Hindenburg who turned over to Herr Hitler the powers of the German Reich. Today, the Reich of von Hindenburg has passed. And the last great symbol of the greatest of the Reich presidents has passed: the von Hindenburg. How symbolic of the new government is it that a great disaster is exploited to stir up racial hatred, to create international discord, and to excite the baser sentiments of the human heart. But such is the madness of Herr Hitler.

By Tom O'Mahoney

THAT FIRE last Saturday night surely upset the normal routine of campus life. Amid the excitement, the VILLANOVAN's fire reporter noticed many odd things. Perhaps the best of these was the sight of MacDonnell dashing over to Rosemont, with two Austin Hall fire hoses trailing in his wake. He's still looking for the cad who told him that Connelly Hall on the women's campus was ablaze. Of course, the now famed accident in the woods was interesting, too. It seems that Moose Donovan, leading a long line of lurrying scholars through the forest, ran between two trees. At least, he thought he was running between two trees, but his wingspread betrayed him, and our unfortunate trailer was left high and dry, swinging gently to and fro in the slight breeze. Those who finally did reach the fire said that it was a worthwhile spectacle. Dynamite Ed Kelly described it to your correspondent as " a distasteful little conflagration." We'll take the next train to East Orange, thanks.

A man just dropped in to tell us that Sydney Smooth Neagle has done it again. Our informant revealed that Syd defined a cynic as one who knows the price of everything, and the value of nothing. We wouldn't know, Dick. We're strangers here.

ON THE CAMPUS

Just too bad: The attack of the Ardmore Chronicle . . . the "hitchhiking" of Villanova students presents a very serious hazard to motorists who are not practiced in the art of "dodging pedestrians." Try the local towns at dinner time. It's a test for frayed nerves. Sales Dept: Nort Paden frantically herding Open House visitors into the VILLANOVAN office. At home: "Pop" Shealey pursuing his debtors through Austin Hall. Abroad: "Ming Toy" Shealey wearing a Chinese coolie's hat in the Pie Shop. Pretty good accent, too. Bell Telephone Co. note: Jim Montgomery and Bob Egan are far in the lead in the little matter of receiving 'phone calls in Austin Hall, if we exclude Jack Chapple, who is automatically disqualified by the fact that he is a senior, and has more "contacts." Yesterday: Jimmy Dwyer dancing at the Prom with THE girl. Nice going, Maggie! Today: Ed Doudican worrying about what Moe Dimon will write about him next week. It's getting so bad over in Fedigan Hall now that the Roebling Winchell is locked in his room at night by the anxious Gigolos, who wish their exploits to go unpublicized.

Students at Swarthmore College fasted a few weeks ago for the sake of peace. A photographer, looking for typical examples of starving martyrs came upon four students . . . It seems they lunched so long that they were the last ones left in the room . . . but this quartet moved to a clean table and had their pictures taken. (Even pictures lie.)

He. "Yea, and it's close to where we're going to!"

At the University of Illinois . . . probing into the characteristics and lives of freshmen, it was found that 36 percent of the women smoked their first cigarette between the ages of ten and fifteen, and 20 percent of the men before they were 10. 27 percent of the class claimed that they slept on an average of ten hours a night.

—V—

Students at one of our well-known colleges raised a small riot, and fearing a large damage bill from the police, thought they might send in a bill of their own . . . This would include . . . doctors' bills for removing tear gas from eyes, cleaners' bills for removing it from clothes and $10.00 accountant's fee, and in turn the police would charge the students for one book on "How to Break up a Riot."

—V—

The "Log" gives us this:

Doc: "What you need is an electric bath."

Patient: "Nothing doing doctor, I had an uncle that drowned that way up at Sing Sing."

Mrs. F. D. Roosevelt in an interview given "The Aquinas" said it was perfectly all right for a college man to be digging a ditch . . . as long as he didn't stay in the ditch.

THE OBSERVER

MANY, MANY years ago the great P. T. Barnum, master showman, told the American people that they loved to be fooled. Recent happenings in Baltimore, Maryland, would indicate that the American people should best be known to the rest of mankind as the prize "suckers" of the world.

A certain woman, some months ago, was to marry the King of England. After creating a cabinet crisis in the British Government all over a petty love affair, this woman, because of her escapades, became the veritable idol of the masses. Wherever she went, crowds followed her. Books told her story, and the newspapers carried leading headlines telling of what she ate for breakfast, what she liked to eat, and so forth.

In Europe they put that woman in her place. In America, the land of "prize suckers," they have just taken over her house in Baltimore, have put in it wax figures of Mrs. Simpson, Edward, the King and Queen of England, and so forth. Every day the "suckers" come from all over America to gape at these inane statues.

Admission, incidentally, to this insane museum, is only fifty cents per head. What next, I ask you?

President Roosevelt seems to be having quite a time with the Congress of the United States. The "boys," threatening to throw over the traces, can wreck the best part of his second administration. It is going to be mighty interesting to watch development in Washington during the next few years.

Things to see: Corkill and Deverall out on a date—believe it or not, but they were actually seen in Bryn Mawr last Sunday evening, in the Greeks, dancing. Oh, my, what people!

Congratulations to Fathers Stanford and Albers, and to the Mothers' Day Committee for the splendid success of that day. Undoubtedly, it was agreed by all the others, at least those contacted by your correspondent, that it was "the best Mothers' Day ever." That is splendid.

We have just heard of a new form of the sit-down strike now in progress over in Fedigan Hall. It seems that a certain gentleman fancies to run his radio late in the evening. Another gentleman, a few doors down, likes to sleep at night. So last evening, as reports go, the gentleman who likes to sleep got even with the chap who likes to listen to music late at evening by sitting down in bed, feet tucked under him, proceeding to slam the door back and forth with great gusto. What an effective method. The hall was in a riot in five minutes, the radio-nut was threatened with extermination by the second-floor residents, and the sit-downer won his strike. Clever, these Chinese, eh?

It wouldn't be fair if we failed to mention the magnificient success of "Journey's End." Professor Anthony Frayne and his "boys" are to be roundly complimented for their excellent work. One thing must be said: the way Trotter stuffed himself, the way he scratched himself, and the way he drank were just a little bit too good. Brothers, that boy didn't learn that in a week. He didn't learn it in a month. He is an old hand at it.

A big hand to "Uncle" John Donahue, one of the best character actors in the entire production. He went through four performances of "Journey's End" and never missed a trick. We hear that most of the girls from Rosemont that came to "Journey's End" agreed that "Uncle" John's diction was perfect. Congratulations, John!

Down through the ages, in countless lands, almost in every country in the world, men, rulers, and even entire peoples have turned away from Almighty God to thwart His love, to escape, if possible, from His abiding Grace. One of the latest of the fools trying to defy God is Herr Hitler, titular god of the German people.

Poor Adolf! Caesar lived, died, and Christ remained. Diocletian unleashed the fury of the Imperial power against the followers of the meek Christ . . and Christ again emerged triumphant. Down through the ages we find the same tragic drama: Julian the Apostate, Philip Augustus, Henry VIII., Napoleon, Bismarck . . . and now that puny little housepainter from Austria, that tooth-brush-lipped pure Nordic, that mere man thinks that by "decreeing" the end of Christianity the deed is accomplished.

One would write to Adolf in this fashion: My Dear Adolf: God is eternal and immutable. He always was and always will be. Most unfortunately for kings and dictators, He cannot be legislated out of existence. In fact, God is a very curious Fellow in that He simply refuses to be ignored. If you had any sense, dear Adolf, you'd recognize this and stop trying to kill Christianity. For, if you persist, some of your devoted followers sooner or later are going to rediscover God, and it will be mightily unpleasant when you have to take up housepainting again. Another thought, Herr Hitler. Don't you think you've bitten off a big piece when you expect to kill an institution, the Church, in ten years when you know that for two thousand years better men than yourself have tried to kill it . . . but have only killed themselves. Adolf, I wonder if you aren't a bit potty. Be frank. Are you?

Here's a good one for you: Father McKee was out on the ball field last Sunday helping Wysocki to ump a game. The boys got a bit sore at Wysocki, and then at Father McKee. It almost ended up in a grand free-for-all. Nothing like intra-murals to bring out the old competitive spirit. Incidentally, a certain party was razzing Tom O'Brien for his poor batting. Tom pulled a fast one and bunted a fast ball right into the individual's face. Luckily, no one was hurt. The party in question got results in a fashion he never expected . . . or desired.

Villanova offers the youth of the nation
Past masters in the art of syncopation;
Yearly the Junior Prom receives our approbation.

Last year: wood winds crying;
A sad violin; mellow

This year: a trombone's blare.

A shrill clarinet; jazz
Swingology
High and loud
It is rhythm

All year: White's trumpet

Bert P.'s piano; hectic harmony
Truck on Down!
It's our college

DEATH IN THE SKY

Most beautiful of man's miracles, most majestic of its kind.
A dream of untold centuries, the epitomy of man's progress
At last the faith of martyred dead envisioned a shrine
As the mighty Zeppelin Hindenburg silenced the seas with success.

Quietly, peacefully the ship settled on its mooring mast
Life was the leading actor, death absent from the cast
Then, in a flash of light, men were transfixed, a horrifying sight,
A ripping roar, screaming souls;
fire had ended the flight.

Thus each day men must die that civilization may live.
That the cries of the dying, the prayers of the living may give
To the world of men, a ship that sailing over martyred graves may reply.
With faultless perfection to man's dream of conquering the sky.

HITS and BITS

By John Dimon

CONGRATULATIONS to Dan O'Connor, Bill Slaughter and the Junior Class, in general, for promoting the most successful dance ever last Wednesday eve. Despite all forms of competition and a bit of authoritative dissension, the dance went over much bigger than it was anticipated. Everything went right for the fifth-formers: Dorsey, the acoustics and the well-mannered crowd, and lest we forget, the most beautiful decorations. Nice going, Biddie.

Dancing started at nine sharp, but "Doc" Daniello came late as usual, arriving a few minutes before Tommy packed up. . . . Aggie certainly was burning up, little man. . . . Most of the dancers lost much weight, but "Brud" O'Connell took the all-losers' prize. . . . He lost his date. It might have been one of the Mackowski-men, "Oke. . . ."

The CHRISTIAN FRONT staff convinced their editor that he should attend the affair. It was his first appearance at a dance since the pre-depression days, and you should have seen the boy go to town with the "Charleston" and the "Reel." . . . You had better keep abreast with the times, Dick. . . . John D'Ippolito, across the hall from you, is a trucking expert.

Highlights: Charlie Bruno's chatting with Ede Wright, his old New Brunswick (N. J.) school chum. . . . The extra-big bouncers. The committee must have contacted Ray Fabiani. . . George White's (no relation to the original) Coatesville hop, jump and skip. . . . Joe—Henry VIII.—McHugh doing a Fred Astaire. . . .

Francis Bowen bought a new Schick on the well-known installment procedure. . . . He started a rental service at 15c per, but he gave up the idea after Charlie Cooke's iron-like bristles—he really has two—bounced out a couple of teeth. . . Sounds almost as bad as the Adams - Holland shoe shining firm that folded up after the last ensemble. . . . However, Ed Tirrell could make the job pay. . . . He has the features.

Things we missed: "Tiny" Lagerenberg's dancing with little Audrey. . . . Chad Barrett's Colonial Firehouse strut. . . . He's gone refine now with the Grand Ballroom drag . . . Nort Paden's gallovating with Becky Spear. . . . She's Temple's May Queen. . . . The usual election bug-a-bug.

At the annual Open House last week, the Frosh pulled a sweet racket when they took names and addresses from the local gals to be used as reference for the winner of the best exhibit in the Physics Lab. . . . Wonder who won? . . . Probably, one of John Kolmer's signees. . . . The Frosh, incidentally, all fought for the Ultra-Violet room. . . . It was the darkest. The features at the exhibition must have been interesting, for Ray Murphy jumped the Infirmary to make the pour, I mean tour. . . .

An ad in the 1917 VILLANOVAN: "Villanova boys eat Wanklin's candy and grow fat." . . . My, how times have changed. . . . Other excerpts from that issue could make some old gray hairs turn, but . . .

Added simile: A certain Junior doting on a medicinal tablet to his roommate, "I forgot to take one of these pills at the dance." His other half, "Don't worry you had the biggest one there." . . . Then there was the Junior who was following the Porto Rican daylight saving time. . . . He set his watch ahead to do a fade-out in a hurry, but it didn't work. . . . Still another third year man handed his date of pot of geraniums for a corsage as a prelim for the original.

At random: The favorite password on the campus amongst the defeated electioneers is "double-crosser." . . . Someone did plenty of it. Even the victorious party is kicking, because only one of their men didn't make the grade. . . . The proposed mid-winter sports' fiesta is really the thing, boys. Think of all the fun you can have with your dates. Send in your opinions now to the Sports Editor.

DIAL LOG

TOMMY DORSEY and Company has added another Prom to the by-gone list at Villanova. We enjoyed the "Dorsey Swing" as much as Edythe Wright's vocals, which is saying more than enough. The affair will be remembered as one of the best. Dorsey's recording "Marie" which is so popular in the pie-shop will help bring back to mind that night with the gay dancers encircling the fountain, syncopated musical strains in the air and the faint shuffle of toes skimming the waxed hardwood. We won't say a'long, Tom, but merely "auf Wiedersehen."

CBS ushered in the Spring "prom" season via the airlanes, the occasion being a recent hour and a half broadcast from three college affairs, each of a half-hour duration. It begun with the broadcast of Red Norvo's band with Mildred Bailey as soloist from the Detroit Institute of Technology prom at Detroit. Next came the rippling rhythm of Shep Fields' playing at the "Scabbard and Blade" dance, given by the students of New York University in the Grand Ballroom of the Pennsylvania Hotel, New York City. The finale was Benny Goodman and his outfit swinging tunes for the Massachusetts Institute of Technology's affair in the Hub City.

Junior Week Memos

"Eleganter than elegant" was Eddie Lucente's interpretation of Rose Marie on the Mother's Day entertainment program. Nelson Eddy had better look to his laurels when our jovial "Eduardo" starts bellowing. Ed Casey, the electrical engineer, would go far, methinks, in the radio game of announcing. His mike assignment at the feature open house show was done in professional style. Incidentally, how many of you boys saw Edythe Wright (no less) ask Prez Jake Simons for his autograph? Yes sir, Jake, the stuff is there!

Radiorchids to Buddy Bonds, popular Philadelphia organist, for dedicating the school song "Belle Air" on his "Dream Time" program to the Class of 1938 on the night of their Promenade. Buddy must be a Villanovan at heart; he was seen cavorting about the campus on Tuesday evening; apparently much interested in the open house attractions.

A Star in the Making

Jerry Cooper checked in at "Hollywood Hotel" last Friday night for his first big-time job in radio. Not that he is new to the coast-to-coast networks, but his present series will undoubtedly catapult him to stardom.

Up to five years ago Jerry (not related to Gary) did his singing in a clubhouse shower. He managed his brother's prize fight career when not playing first base for a professional baseball team in New Orleans. His income was bolstered by singing in local night clubs. While doing a supper club broadcast he earned himself an offer of a guest radio appearance. Thence to New York where he attracted the attention of the Columbia Artists Bureau. Jerry has never obtained a commercial program through an audition and yet has appeared on many CBS commercials, also finding time to make personal appearances in vaudeville and night clubs. "Hollywood Hotel" brought him his first trip to the West Coast.

The new baritone singing star has the making of a screen star, standing six feet high with a well tanned complexion and wavy, light brown hair. Perhaps another Bing? Time will tell.

Department of Statistics

The CBS radio census of 1937 shows 24,500,000 families in these United States have receiving sets. This amount exceeds the number of automobiles and is more than double the number of telephones in operation. In addition to radio-equipped homes, the number of automobile radios in use at the beginning of the year is shown at 4,500,000.

Personal interviews with some 160,000 set-owners in all parts of the country form the basis for the figures contained in the latest CBS survey. Interviews by a staff of trained statisticians under the direction of Dr. Daniel Starch, noted research expert, last from 20 to 30 minutes and, during the four quarter periods of 1936, covered every income group in 160 communities of 2500 population and over. In this category it was found that nine out of every ten families were radio owners.

No doubt a great many of you readers listen to the Grape-Nuts program every Monday evening with George Burns and Gracie Allen featured. However, it seems to this columnist that Ray Noble should be getting a bigger play than he is receiving at present. It seems a shame that such smooth music as his plays second fiddle to the crazy antics of Burns and Allen. This is not meant as a criticism of the radio comedians, as they are very entertaining, but Ray Noble should be billed as a star himself.

Dick Foran, who is the featured vocalist on the same program, is a grand singer, but he ought to croon songs according to his voice. He has been singing cowboy songs and the like during his appearance over the radio, and he passes unnoticed.

GUESTS OF COLLEGE MARVEL AT USEFUL STIMULI RECORDER

Over Two Thousand Open House Visitors Tested By Machine

TESTS DRIVING REACTION

Chief among the features of Open House last Monday and Tuesday was the Aetna Reactometer for testing the reactions of automobile drivers to ordinary road stimuli.

This machine, loaned to the A. S. M. E. for the occasion by the Aetna Casualty Company, tested the reactions of over two thousand guests of the college. The principal purpose of this machine is to discover the time it takes a driver to recognize and respond to an ordinary danger stimuli. For the two thousand persons tested, the average time was five-eighths of a second.

Interesting to Visitors

Because of its association with the daily lives of so many of the visitors to the college, the exhibit found great popularity with them.

In order to operate the machine a person must sit in the "driver's seat" of the appliance and wait for a green light on the signal board to turn red. When this happens the driver is supposed to move his foot from an accelerator and apply the brake. When he applies the brake, the red light goes out. The time taken for the driver to apply the brake is then registered.

A short lecture concerning the mechanical dangers of going too fast was given by an assistant.

Collegiate Career Will Soon Be But Happy Memories for Seniors

Approach of Graduation Forces Fourth Year Men to Recall Old Times; Class Has Been Very Active in Campus Affairs

By HARRY J. McGLADE

Soon a number of Villanova's students will bring to a close a chapter in their book of life—a chapter that even in the maddening rush of time will forever remain prominent in their thoughts. Insignificant details and trivial incidents will be forgotten but never will the joys and pleasures of college life pass from the minds of those who are soon to achieve the honor for which they have been striving.

Actions Will Remain

Never will the graduation of these students be considered in the light of—the old gives way to the new. The influence and the spirit possessed by them will always be present to serve as an inspiration to their future successors. Monuments more durable than those fashioned from stone or bronze remain to bear testimony of the glorious heights attained by a class that by their arduous work and invincible courage have truly earned the right to carry the name of Villanova.

Henry Wadsworth Longfellow once said,

"The heights of greatness reached and kept
Were not attained by sudden flight.
But they, while their companions slept,
Were toiling upward through the night."

That great poet was unconsciously putting to words the criteria followed by the members of the class of 1937.

Set Precedent

Emblazoned on the memory of the undergraduates are the many precedents set by this great and wonderful class. The original decoration of the College Gymnasium, the prize awarded the school paper by the Associated Collegiate Press (the third time this award has been given the VILLANOVAN), and numerous other innovations were instituted in the four short years of their collegiate existence.

At the expiration of three short days the Senior Class of Villanova will face one of the most important trials of its existence. This trial is final examinations. Truly they are final examinations, for they are the determination of scholastic failure or success. Undoubtedly it will take hold of the situation with the same willingness and aptitude it has displayed in the past, and terminate its career with a blaze of scholastic glory comparable with past successes.

Graduation a Reality

Graduation, the dream and hope of every student is about to become a reality to these men of sterling character. The final thrill of receiving a diploma, the last exercise in which they will participate, is drawing near. Life will hold many memorable experiences for them but never will these experiences be comparable with the thrill of becoming a Villanova Graduate.

Successful Prom Enjoyed By a Joyous Crowd on Wednesday Eve.

Dorsey's Music, Beautiful Decorations and Better Acoustics Add to Enjoyment of Affair; Other Dances Also Memorable

By ROBERT G. HOWE

Peals of laughter and the clatter of many feet marked the end of a successful Junior Prom as the happy throng surged out through the doors of the Villanova Gym last Wednesday evening. To the Junior Class goes the credit of having given a dance that may be over but will not be forgotten for years to come.

Scene Is Changed

Dancing to the melodious strains of Tommy Dorsey and his orchestra, the attending couples were transplanted from the scene of hard fought basketball wars to one of soft lights, water displays, and "soda pop." The gym, remembered with its plain blue and white ceiling, now resembled a huge dome of a blue overhead and buff walls. New sound curtains not only added color to the scene but blended blaring trumpets and mellow saxes into the melodious melodies that have been the rage from coast to coast.

In the center of the floor a small fountain of water reflected changing colors to the far corners of the ballroom. Behind the slightly parted curtains of the stage several figures in white coats were busy furnishing refreshments to the weary that were lounging in the sofas that lined the improvized lounge.

Music Was Superb

Glamorous Edythe Wright and the famous Dorsey "sentimental" trombone furnished dancing feet with every desirable rhythm and tune. While Dorsey was hitting high C's the Junior Class was hitting a new high in dance entertainment under the untiring efforts of Danny O'Connor and Edward Troncelliti with the aid of their committee members.

Friday evening's Blazer Ball, featuring the music of the "Villanovans," proved to be one of outstanding success. The music was highly acclaimed, decorations appropriate, and a flashy blue and white of the Junior Blazers added the final touch to a memorable evening.

Dinner Dance Successful

At the Hotel Philadelphian the Class of '38 culminated their social activities as a body with the formal Dinner-Dance on Saturday evening. The music for the dance was furnished by "Abe Hobson" and his band.

So closes an outstanding week of Junior activity, with all records broken in the way of success. The Promenade was tops for the week, and leaves the Juniors, and their guests, with fond memories and high hopes for an equally successful Senior Ball in 1938.

A. I. C. E. SOCIETY MAKES NOMINATIONS

Joseph O'Brien and Ward Scanlan are Suggested for President

Nominations for the offices in the Villanova branch of the American Institute of Civil Engineers, held last week, brought forth the selection of Joseph M. O'Brien, and M. Ward Scanlan for the presidency.

Other candidates in the nominations are designated as follows: for vice-president, Paul Kachinko and J. Paul Skelley. Candidates for the office of treasurer, James Carroll, popular cheer leader, and Bruno Talvacchia, well - known VILLAOVAN columnist, were chosen.

Nominees for secretary were John Dunnigan and Raymond Sheik, both of the Class of '39.

Cyril Daley was the only nominee to direct the Trip's Committee during the coming year.

SMOKER GIVEN BY MECHANICAL GROUP

Four Colleges Represented at Invitation Affair of Local Society

At the Villanovan Field House on April 23, the undergraduate chapter of the A. S. M. E. held an informal smoker, at which they presented Mr. Harry B. Towers, Superintendent of the Technical Training Division of the Socony-Vacuum Company. Mr. Towers was accompanied by Mr. Paul Allison.

The smoker, being the first in several years, marked the gathering of 40 representatives of local colleges, including Penn, Drexel, Swarthmore, and Villanova. The 40 in attendance included several professors of the local institutions.

The talk delivered by Mr. Towers was followed by entertainment supplied in the form of bowling, billiard and pool playing, following which was refreshment time.

ENGINEER HOLDS DINNER

It was announced by the Rev. John J. Vrana, faculty adviser of the VILLANOVA ENGINEER, that a dinner would be held this coming Saturday evening in honor of the Engineer staff. Father Vrana was unable to disclose the location of the dinner, but it was definitely decided that it would be held in the vicinity.

COMMITTEE MEETS

There will be a meeting of the 1940 Orientation Committee on Wednesday, May 12, at 1 o'clock in the Mendel Amphitheatre. The committee chairman will be appointed at that time, and measurements for the hats will be taken.

'HITCH HIKING' HIT BY LOCAL JOURNAL

Main Line Editor Weakly Rebukes Practice of College Students

The practice of "hitch-hiking" as employed by the students of Villanova College presents a traffic hazard on the Main Line in front of the college, according to a local newspaper.

An appeal is made to the citizens of the community to prevent and curtail this "annoying and dangerous practice." Upholding the fact that students at Haverford, Bryn Mawr and Rosemont Colleges do not do it, this Main Line publication states as proof, "at least we have never noticed them."

At Haverford College it must be considered that the residents, as well as the day students have the use of their automobiles while on the college grounds, and therefore have ample facilities for transportation. Villanova, realizing the disadvantages of having a car, when scholastic work would be impaired by its presence, has not permitted the resident students to have the use of an automobile during the scholastic year. The scarcity of transportation on the Main Line, and the time allotted between the schedules of the transportation, cause a trend toward an easier method for short-distance transportation.

It may be well to note the very small, if not incognizant, occurrence of accidents to "hitch-hikers" in the vicinity of Villanova College.

At present the chairman has not been appointed but will be appointed by the Orientation Committee at tomorrow's meeting. Immediately following the election of the chairman the committee will convene to determine next year's rules and regulations.

MERIT AWARDS SOON GIVEN TO STUDENTS

Approximately 200 Students Will Receive Certificates of Excellence

Approximately two hundred students who have displayed faithful service in one or more of the thirty-eight extra-curricular activities conducted at Villanova, will be the recipients of merit awards.

Date Not Definite

As yet, the date of distribution has not been ascertained, but it is certain to be during this week. The definite date will be announced at a later date. The conferring of the awards will take place in the Commerce and Finance auditorium at a general assembly of the entire student body.

Merit awards are special awards given to students for loyal participation in extra-curricular activities. This system of awards was instituted during the school year 1933-1934. At the time of its institution, it provided for semi-annual distribution. The system was altered the next year to provide for annual distribution.

Although the merit awards are given for extra-curricular work, it is not entirely independent of scholastic achievement. To receive an award, it is imperative that the student have a good scholastic standing.

Frosh Baseball Team Takes Three Games

SPORTORIAL
BY

BILL BOWKER

AFTER SEEING HOW the Wildcat baseball club came up from behind to beat Fordham's Rams by a 3-2 count, we remembered "Doc" Jacobs' comment of last week in which he said something to the effect that the boys had that thing called intestinal fortitude. They certainly proved it last Saturday. Two out and two runs behind meant nothing to the boys.

—V—

This week sees the big game of the diamond schedule. Holy Cross, in our estimation, probably the most outstanding collegiate ball club in the East if not the country, is to be met up in Massachusetts on a trip which also includes a visit to Providence, whom the baseballers defeated earlier in the season.

—V—

Softball, while not officially started in the intramural activities for this year as yet, has certainly taken the campus by storm. Long a form of activity in the midwest, until recently, it has not been seen or heard much of out here in the East. However, in the past year or two, the sport has made long strides in gaining a large following, and now we find it reaching the Villanova campus. Any free period finds a bunch of boys indulging in a few minutes of energetic endavors along these lines. It's a good game, and we are certainly glad to see it getting a toe hold on this campus.

—V—

A sad story comes to our ears as we hear that the Villanova tennis team has gone on strike. The strike went into effect last Saturday, when the Bucknell team came down to engage the Wildcat netmen. Poor condition of the courts was the cause of this unprecedented action. There is no doubt that the boys felt that they were justified in taking such a course of action; it seems a bit unsportsmanlike to strike. It is true that a team cannot give a good account of itself on poor courts, but on the other hand, their opponents are in the same boat, and the excuse seems feeble at best.

—V—

Another Junior Week has passed, and for the second year in a row the traditional Junior-Senior baseball game failed to materialize. While the playing of the contest is not absolutely essential to the success of the annual festivities, it does seem a shame that the two classes could not find enough members around to form a baseball team. While the quality of ball played in the contest is not the best, much amusement and entertainment is derived from the fray, especially by the spectators.

—V—

Villanova's golfers are continuing their winning ways at a consistent pace. A week ago the parchasers took Temple into camp by a 5-1 tally. So far the lads have lost but one match, and that was avenged in the above-mentioned Temple meeting. This week will see the divot diggers engage a few more of their strong rivals.

—V—

Track activities around the campus are in somewhat of an uproar. Last week, the runners were scheduled to travel to Reading, facing the Albright cinder men, but the home lads called it off due to the condition of the track. To date, the only activity seen by the tracksters has been the Penn Relays. The season is practically completed, and the boys have not competed against anybody. Fate does some queer things to sports.

—V—

"Bunny" Galazin's freshman ball club finally opened up its 1937 season, and did it with a bang, taking three foes into camp. The debut of the Kitten diamond club was long awaited by the lovers of the game, and they were not disappointed.

YEARLINGS DEFEAT PEIRCE, TEMPLE, TO OPEN CAMPAIGN

Choquette Lets North Catholic Down With One Hit, Fanning Fifteen

SISCO AND MURRAY TWIRL OTHER CONQUESTS EASILY

Owl Footballers Fall 15-3 and Businessmen Lose 11-0 In First Game

After opening up their season last Monday with an 11-0 triumph over the Peirce School of Philadelphia, the Frosh baseball continued their fine work and hung up two other wins. The Temple football squad disguised as a baseball team furnished the opposition on Wednesday, while Northeast Catholic High School of Philly suffered the ire of the Kittens last Friday.

Sisco Twirls

Andy Sisco twirled most of last Monday's game and did a fine job of it. He was relieved by Cliff Choquette later in the fray, but Cliff also succeeded in keeping the Businessmen in check.

On Wednesday, Lefty Murray turned back the Temple Football team 15-3. Murray was never in trouble throughout the encounter in which his mates lent him terrific batting support.

The Kittens met their sternest opposition last Friday, when they met the strong Northeast Catholic nine, but under the superb curveballing of "Wee" Cliff Choquette, the Frosh had little trouble in disposing of their opposition.

One Hit Given

Choquette gave up only one bingle and fanned 15 batters during the course of the afternoon. Only four men reached first base on the diminutive Kitten twirler, and no Falcon was able to arrive safely at the keystone sack.

VILLANOVA TENNIS CLUB LOSES THREE

Temple, Elon and Bucknell Trounce Racqueteers by Decisive Margins

Villanova's tennis team lost three straight matches last week, gaining only one point in the whole week's activities. Temple was met on Monday and the Owls shut our lads out with a 9-0 score. Elon College came next, and took us into camp, allowing the Main Liners but one match out of the nine played.

Bisons Win

Saturday afternoon saw the Bucknell Bisons come down from Lewisburg to find that the Wildcat racqueteers had gone on strike. A makeshift team was gathered, however, and although they fought valiantly, they fought in vain, and the Bison left with a six to nothing conquest, no doubles being played.

Jim Montgomery, stellar basketballer, took up the number one position and took a 6-0, 6-0 trouncing from Captain Dunham. Jack

Opinions

This question was put to several persons:

What is your candid opinion of a proposed indoor Villanova sports carnival? That is, a boxing meet would be held in the afternoon, followed by a swimming meet, followed by a basketball game. Dancing would conclude the sports fiesta.

Alexander G. Severance, basketball coach: "I am in favor of the idea and I sincerely endorse its practicality. The basketball schedule is made up, and there are several Saturday home games; thus new arrangements would not have to be made. The sports fiesta would add considerably to Villanova's ever-increasing prestige. It would serve as an ideal mid-Winter homecoming day, not only for the alumni, but also for the friends and families of students. It will lend a new social aspect to student activities that are very dead at the present moment. In addition, the spectator can get a glimpse of the calibre of the teams that represent the college in the one-day stand. Let's get behind the idea and put it across. Villanova needs something like this."

"Chuck" Voorhis, sports publicity director: "The idea of a mid-winter home - coming day featured by a series of athletic events is a step in the right direction toward creating a more active interest in Villanova on the part of the out-of-town alumni. If a week-end date is selected at the proper season of the year, and the schedules so arranged that the athletic end of the home-coming program will be of top notch calibre, there is no reason why the plan should not work. But it will need close co-operation between the athletic and social bodies of the college to be a success. The Philadelphia Alumni Club naturally will respond, a response which in itself, should assure a most interesting week-end."

John Burke, '37, sports' editor, The Belle Air: "Judging by the tremendous successes of the intramural programs and amateur night this year, the proposed Sports Festival should mark a forward step in the sports program of the college. An idea such as this one has been sorely needed for quite some time, and I am sure that this one will go over the top. The dance climaxing the day of competition should add an attractive social tint to the affair."

Edward Kelly, '37: "This idea is one of the best that has hit Villanova in years. It will enable the spectators to witness the prowess of the Wildcat teams that will be in action on that day. Moreover, the day set aside for the sports jamboree should be a fitting one to bring our families and dates to our fair institution."

John Dimon, '39: "This plan, if placed in effect, will place Villanova's name to the fore where it rightfully belongs. The college is well represented by good athletic teams that never receive their becoming recognition. The fiesta would serve as a fitting mid-Winter Home - coming Day. That extra social touch would be noticeable, since friends and families of students would be present for the novel gala day of sports."

NEXT YEAR'S GOLF

Although the college golf season has just started, the golf squad tentatively scheduled 18 matches, one of the most ambitious programs a 'Cat golf team has ever attempted.

BASEBALL SUPPLIES

Sixty dozen baseballs and five dozen bats have been purchased by the Villanova A. A. for its baseball team this season.

Escott Stars at Bat And In Box to Beat New Yorkers

Twirler Makes Three Hits in Four Times at Bat; Drives in Winning Tally in Ninth Inning After Two Are Out

INFIELDERS PERFORM BRILLIANTLY

By JOHN L. SIMONS

Frank "Merriwell" Escott's single, with two down in the ninth to drive in Shortstopper Len Merullo with the deciding tally gave the 'Cats a 3-2 triumph over Fordham. The game, played at New York last Saturday, was the eighth victory in a row for the Jacobsmen, whose record for the season is now eight wins in nine starts.

Escott pitched the game for Villanova and turned in a fine performance. He went the route, allowing the heavy hitting Ram outfit eight scattered hits. In addition "Quack" was the big gun of the Blue-and-White batting attack with three hits in four times at bat, including his game winning single.

Going into the ninth inning on the short end of a 2-0 score, "Doc" Jacobs' charges swung their bats into action and pounded over three markers to grab the ball game. Mike Garbark led off in that fateful frame with a ringing single. When the next two batters were retired in order, the spectators began to leave, figuring the Rams had the game sewed up.

But "Cowboy" Crawley slammed a long two bagger to score Garbark with the 'Cats' first tally of the fray. Len Merullo came through in this pinch with another single to drive in Crawley with the tying run. Len promptly proceeded to steal second and put the winning run in scoring position.

Drives in Winning Run

Escott solved the delivery of Robinson, Fordham hurler, and Merullo romped home with what proved to be the deciding marker. Frank protected the slim lead and held the home team scoreless in the last half of the inning.

It was a well played encounter, a real pitching duel between Escott

GOLFERS TRIUMPH OVER TEMPLE, 5-1

Dwyer and Robinson Star in Avenging Victory Over Owls at Radnor

Avenging their only defeat of the season, the Villanova linksmen hung up their third straight victory by trimming the Temple Golf team to the tune of 5 to 1 last Monday on the Radnor Golf Course.

Jimmy Dwyer maintained his victory column unblemished, by spinning a brilliant 74 to trounce his opponent, George Alexander, 7 and 6. This was Jimmy's fifth victory of the season and all indications point towards an undefeated season for the 'Cat number one man.

Best Ball Close

Ed Tirrel, playing in the number two position, wasn't quite as successful; although Ed shot an 80, Baragher of Temple finished the round two-up. Jimmy and Ed won the best ball match by a sufficient one-hole lead in a closely-fought tussle.

Tommie Robinson, freshman member of the team, turned in a 78 to top Johnny Moore, number three man of the Owl squad, 3 and 2.

Lou Dubino matched Tommie's 78 to hand S. Kovaly a fine drubbing by the score of 7 and 6. Tommie and Lou teamed together to hand their two opponents a decisive setback in the best ball match by defeating them 7 and 6.

To date the squad has lost only one match, tied one and won three out of the five played. This week the golfers will do plenty of swinging as well as fairway tramping for they are scheduled to play on four successive days.

RAY USES SUPPLIES

Ray Gadsby, trainer of Villanova athletic teams has treated 33 players of the squad of 71 for injuries during Spring practice. And he has used to date, 3000 yards of cotton, two gross of handypack adhesive tapes, two quarts of concentrated disinfectant paste, seven quarts of iodine, six dozen ammonia inhalers; five gallons of a rubbing solution composed of alcohol, pure olive oil and oil of wintergreen plus three baking lights of varying degrees. None of the injuries were serious,

GRID SQUAD ENDS SPRING TRAINING

Conclusion of Practice Drills Expected at End of This Week

Villanova gridders will complete their Spring training season this Friday. This was the statement issued by Coach "Clipper" Smith yesterday. This announcement will put an end to two months of extensive and gruelling practice of some 60 aspirants to next year's varsity.

This week will be devoted to brushing up on plays and light practices with no contact work. Pads, since they are no longer necessary, will be discarded.

The season, long and arduous, included two practice tilts with Columbia University. An 18-18 tie was the first result, but the 'Cats came through 14-6 in the second. There were no other games, as all the time available was devoted to tackling, blocking and scrimmaging.

Coach Smith feels that the Spring practice has been very suc-

WILDCATS DEFEAT FORDHAM

Intra-Mural Baseball to Close this Sunday

POSTPONEMENT OF FRAYS CAUSED BY BIG JUNIOR WEEK

Belated Mendel-Fedigan Contest Will Decide Hall Championship

SWEENEY SLATED TO HURL

There was a lull in the Intra-mural baseball activity this Sunday because of the terrific toil that Junior Week took. As a result Fedigan and Mendel will have to wait until next Sunday before they can wage their all-important battle, while Austin and Alumni will be forced to wait the same length of time.

Spring was definitely in the air last week, so many of the athletes took the trail for home instead of the beaten path leading to Mendel Field. This caused Father McKee no end of anguish, and he is seriously contemplating the end of the scourge of athletes, in other words, Junior Week.

Mendel and Fedigan were to have met in a contest which would have decided the league race, if the Gigolos had won. However, the championship will not be decided now until next Sunday. If the Gigolos lose to the Penthousers, the league will be faced with the possibility of a three-way tie, which Austin can effect by beating Alumni and this seems very probable.

Manager Bill Dobrowolski, of Fedigan, is chafing at the delay in his pennant plans, but welcomes the opportunity of resting his sensational hurler, Bill Sweeney, for the impending fray. Meanwhile Clem Lavin, the Penthouse powerhouse, is faced with the loss of Lloyd Rice, who once more has deserted the intramurals to wear the spangles of the freshman ball tossers. This will be a severe loss to the Mendel batsmen, and Lavin is in a quandary as to the pitching selection for Sunday's embroglio.

Father McKee has Ted Goumy primed to shoot the works next Sunday in the hopes of gaining a triple tie for first place. Of course this will depend upon the outcome of the Mendel-Fedigan shindig. Alumni has yet to win a contest in the league, and it does not seem probable that they will begin at Austin's expense. However they will be out there to win and upsets have been known to occur.

The Mendel-Fedigan tussle will take place in the morning, while the afternoon contest will feature the Alumni and Austin outfits.

Donahue faced "Tilden" McCall and managed to eke out a game in the second set to fall six-love, six-one.

Hugh Riley, Freshmen net enthusiast, shared Montgomery's misery by also losing two love sets, giving the Bison a 3-0 lead. Fred Reppleyea, frosh athlete, took up the burden from this point, and won two contests in the second set, falling 6-0, 6-2.

Point number six was tallied by "Duke" McDonough, who defeated Frank Fioretti by 6-2, 6-1. Fioretti won as many games as the others did combined, and for that is to be considered the star of the fray. The members of the regular squad are still on strike, and as far as is known at the present time, these boys will continue to represent Villanova on the clay court, unless other plans are made in the near-future.

Varsity Diamond Club Beats Rams

and Robinson, Ram right-hander. The Main Liners were unable to solve the offerings of Robinson until the last frame. Meanwhile the Rams were picking up single tallies in the third and seventh innings. A long fly, hit by Andy Palau, Fordham backstop, with the bases loaded, drove in the first Ram run. The second and final tally was counted by Mike Hearn, who raced home from second on a base-hit by Frank Metoskie.

The lower end of the Villanova batting order had practically all the power. Seven of the nine hits garnered off the Fordham pitching were made by the last three men. Escott led with three important singles. He was helped materially by Crawley's double and single, and Merullo's two singles.

Fordham batters banged away at the middle of the Villanova infield all afternoon but didn't get any place. The 'Cats keystone pair handled 19 chances with only one miscue. Crawley had four putouts and four assists, while Merullo was all over the infield, scooping ten ground balls to pile up ten assists.

The triumph was the third straight for Escott, who had previously pitched the 'Cats to wins over Penn and Cornell. In his first season as a varsity twirler, the Somerville southpaw has come along fast and rates as the ace of the staff. Last year as an outfielder "Quack" was one of "Doc" Jacobs' leading clubbers and is again hitting the old apple at a lively clip this season. He showed this Saturday when he came through in the pinch to win his own ball game.

SCHOOLBOYS BREAK RECORDS IN 10TH ANNUAL CARNIVAL

Two Champions Fall from Thrones in Scholastic Track Meet

Villanova's tenth annual inter-scholastic track and field meet saw two of the three defending champion teams dip their colors in favor of newly-crowned victors.

St. Benedict's Prep, Newark, was the only last year's team to retain its crown, winning the Class C diadem. Ridley Park nosed out Upper Darby in the Class A division and North Catholic breezed home the winner in Class B.

Records Tumble

Eight records fell before the 1937 athletes in Classes A and C. Upper Darby racked up two new records, one in the 440-yard dash and one in the 880-yard run. Bob Heubner was the record breaker for the quarter, covering the distance in 53 seconds flat. Dick Belyea was the other member of the Royal squad to set a record when he covered the half mile in 2 minutes, 4.5 seconds.

Irvin Kennedy, Haverford High miler, turned in another record in Class A when he traversed that distance in 4 minutes 39.9 seconds. Bob Beatty, of Ridley Park, set a new mark in the javelin throw of 166 feet 1¾ inches.

St. Benedict's, like Upper Darby, also had two record breakers. Dick Miriabella set a new record for the Jersey boys in the Class C division when he cleared the bamboo at 11 feet 4 inches in the pole vault. Walter Carey hung up their other mark with a snappy 4 minute 38.1 seconds mile run.

440-Mark Falls

Other Class C record-breakers were George Tucknott, of De La Salle, who ran the quarter mile in 51.7. Jack Borham, of Harrisburg Academy, set a new Class C Javelin mark of 188 feet even.

In the final tabulations, Ridley Park just managed to win the Class A title by two points. Ridley Park gathered 39 1-6 points against Upper Darby's 37 1-6. Lansdowne ran third with 24½.

Class B was the only division to be won decisively. North Catholic piled up 55 points to top West Cath-

JACOBS

Comments on the Baseball Games

I mentioned the fact last week that we had a game club, a club that was in there trying, fighting all the way. They did just that thing at Penn State and they again proved it last Saturday at Fordham.

The score itself showed how we came from behind to win in the ninth inning, but it didn't tell the whole story. There were moments in the game, especially in the fifth and seventh innings, when Fordham had the bases loaded with no outs and were only able to get one run each time. Right there they had to show their stuff to stay in the ball game.

Pitchers Shine

The pitchers of the game, Escott and Robinson, were undoubtedly responsible for the feature part of the game. Fordham's Robinson turned in a good job, one that would win a lot of ball games if the competition were not so keen. When you speak of Escott, however, nothing you can say will be too high praise for him. In the seventh inning with the bases loaded, two heavy hitters up and only one out "Quack" worked on them very carefully and struck them out. Mike Hearn from Fordham came in on the first out but Frank struck the next man out and the Fordham scoring ended right there. His control was good and he was able to pitch to spots and a pitcher that is able to do this is the difference between the man that knows how to throw a ball and the one that knows how to pitch. To top off his great pitching, he came through with that base-winning blow that decided the game. Everybody on the ball club deserves a word of praise whether they hit or not, whether they were in the game or not, and whether they got into the game or not everybody on the squad played a big part in the victory.

Final Action

In that final inning with Garbark lurking on second base, and two outs, Crawley hit the first pitch for a great double down the left field foul line. With Crawley resting on the second bag, still one run behind, and Merullo at bat, we needed a base-hit to tie the score. It was a tough spot to be in as you will remember that last year we had the tying run on second and we couldn't get him in. But Merullo was equal to the occasion. He singled sharply to left field while "Cowbody" sped around to third on his way to the home plate and crossed it tying the score. On the throw to home plate to head off Crawley, Merullo went to second and it was at this juncture that "Quack" Escott put his big bat into play and came through with a hit, his third for the day, that permitted Merullo to come across the plate with the big winning run. On "Quack's" attempted steal to second the second baseman tagged him out and the game ended.

It seems as though everybody on this team takes his turn in producing the plays that win the ball game. They've all done a great job and I know that they will be out there hustling to win the remaining games.

TRACKMEN FACE RIDER

This Friday the Wildcat track team will engage in its first meet of the 1937 season when it travels to Trenton to face the strong Rider College runners. Leading the pack will be Captain Tom Cook, the broad jump specialist. Due to the fact that the Temple and Albright meets were called off, the tracksters are in good shape despite the activities of Junior Week, and they should be able to give a fine account of themselves at Rider.

Assisting Cook in the various events will be Lou Biester and Vince LaBrasca in the 440; Ben Maloney in the mile and 880; Harvey Buek in the hurdles, and Tom Delate in the mile and two mile runs. The lads have had time to recover from any effects of Junior Week, and if the weather is right a victory for the Main Liners does not seem impossible.

A MOMENTOUS WEEK has drawn to a close and that last sprint for the tape is under way. . . .Of all the Villanova dances there the music was furnished by "big name" bands, this Junior Promenade was tops for delightful atmosphere and danceable rhythms. . . .Those students restrained outside the open door could be heard sighing, "O, for the life of a goldfish."

Advance information from the weatherman would have been welcomed by the Baseballers, who were barred from the Prom on account of a game with Lehigh on the following day, which was called off because of rain after the boys had journeyed all the way up there.

The sampling of one of Norristown's most famous products has been the special assignment of all and sundry who could beg, bum, or steal a ride. . .Mr. George Harris' group was one of the best behaved, according to Harry.

It looked as though it would soon be serious when Tony Saia and Francis Panepinto began to exchange epithets at "Doc" Troncelliti's party after the Prom. . .but a couple of well-placed glasses turned their attention to the finer things in life and they were soon lost in friendly conversation.

Turning our attention to the principle function of this column, namely, commentation on sporting events, we see that the Frosh baseball team has some strong stickmen. Peirce School took a 11-0 lacing and the Temple Frosh came out on the short end of a 15-3 score. . . . It seems as though Villanova will have more than enough strength to break in the national spotlight within the next couple of years. . . . That victory over Fordham was a big step in the right direction.

Villanova's four - year losing streak on the track and field may be destined to go on and on. . . . The one opportunity of the season, Albright, postponed their encounter which was to have taken place last Wednesday. . . .

With the Ram's hide tucked safely away, the Varsity ball players are out to spread their fame on a tough road trip that pits them against Providence and Holy Cross. . . . Both teams are stiff opposition . . especially Holy Cross which lost only one game last year and is also looking like a great team so far this season.

One of the college's outstanding examples of brain and brawn is Jordan Olivari who, besides being one of the hardest hitting members of the football squad, is No. One man of his class. . .We wish to offer our congratulations to him on the reception of the Spanish medal.

olic's 26½. Camden High came in third with 25 points.

Class C, like Class A, was very close. Haverford School gave St. Benedict's a run for their place, but the Newark boys clinched their title in the final event by winning the mile relay. The final results were: St. Benedict's Prep 41, Haverford 37, and Episcopal 26.

Forty-five schools were entered in the carnival. The threatening rain held off miraculously until the final event. The only casualty of the afternoon was Bill Ryan, Brown Prep hurdler, who broke his leg when he tripped in the finals of the 160 low hurdle event.

TOTAL POINTS (Class A)—Ridley Park 39 1-6, Upper Darby, 37 1-6, Lansdowne, 24 ½, Ambler, 20 3-6, Cheltenham, 19, Chester and Glen-Nor, 15, Radnor and Springfield, 9, Collingdale, 6, Haverford High, 3 1-3, Darby and Nether Providence, 4, Sharon Hill and Swarthmore, 0.

In the Limelight

By JACK RHOADS

WITH SPRING well upon us and the Spring sports schedule right in stride, the limelight swings around and gets onto focus those who give their all for Villanova during the warm months. The group is rather limited, but what it lacks in numbers it makes up in ability.

The spot-light this week is turned on a congenial and likeable fellow who always has a smile on his face, and is known by everyone as Leo Schoppmeyer. Leo has the distinction of being the only senior on the baseball squad this season.

Leo will not have to go to the big city to make good because he hails from that great metropolis, New York. "Schoppy," as he is known to his intimates, is a dyed-in-the-wool Gothamite, and except for a few brief sojurns in smaller cities, he has spent much of his twenty-one years around the big burg.

Warm Weather Athlete

The reason for his trend towards warm weather sports probably may be laid to the fact that his birthday occurs on the twelfth day of June. Ever since that memorable day back in 1916, Leo has been destined to make a name for himself in the sporting world. He comes to his ability naturally, for his dad played a mean game of ball around the initial sack for the old Brooklyn Federals, and an older brother played in the minors for several years.

Right from the cradle, Leo started playing ball; so by the time he was in grammar school, he was a veteran of the diamond.

His wares were not long overlooked, and before long he was showing up high school boys in hitting and fielding while he was still in elementary school. Sooner or later "Fancy Dan" had to go to high school himself and it was a mighty fortunate day for George Washington High when Leo entered its portals in the quest of knowledge, both mental and physical. For not only did he heap honors for himself, but he also brought them on the school. In his senior year he captained his team to the first State championship in the history of the school. This was no small job when one is in such competition as is found in New York.

Besides winning three varsity letters in baseball, Leo also tried his hand at basketball. He cut some fancy capers as a courtman, and at the end of four years he found that the institution had rewarded him with three letters for the role he had played as hoopster. Leo played a little football, but he did not fare as well as he did in his first loves.

"Schoppy" received a great thrill out of playing in Babe Ruth's stamping ground for the State title. The big stadium did not cause him to have stage-fright; for in that series "Dan" played bang-up ball to lead his team to victory over Jamaica High. His sterling play attracted attention of big league scouts and had not his quest for higher learning been greater than the lure of the diamond, Villanova would have been the loser.

Leo entered Villanova in the Fall of 1933. He threw baskets for the Kittens, and in the Spring he aided the Frosh with his dashing game around the second sack. Sickness prevented him from seeking a berth on the varsity basketball team in his sophomore year. However, by the time Spring rolled around he was in fine shape. He easily won the job as custodian of the keystone bag. He had a good season both in the field and at the bat. The opposing batsmen found it difficult to drive out a hit through the infield that season, particularly in the vicinity of second base. In his junior year he made the basketball squad, but the lay-off had taken its toll and Leo did not get in many contests. That was not true in baseball, however, for he saw plenty of service.

"Doc" Jacobs moved him over to short to fill the gap left by Ben Geraghty, but he did not feel at home in his new position, so it was not long before he was back at second where he flashed his old form.

As this year is his final in intercollegiate baseball circles, "Schoppy" is out to "shoot the works" and make this year his best. We all hope that Leo gets his chance to fulfill his ambition to make the grade in the big league. He has earned his right to a chance with his hard, clean, aggressive play, for he is the ball-players' ball player.

PLANS OFFERED FOR MURDER PREVENTION

Yale Professor Advises Study of Philosophy and Fundamental Science

Brunswick, Me.—(ACP)—To prevent collective suicide, or collective murder and he complete destruction of civilization by war, we must look to the guidance of the philosopher.

That is what Pres. James Rowland Angell, of Yale University, explained at the opening of Bowdoin's institute of Philosophy.

"To philosophy and fundamental science, between them, we must look for the most profound and complete understanding of the universe of which humanity is capable.

"Presumably they can never be complete or exhaustive, and for one reason, because reality if apparently dynamic, creative, evolutionary and new insight into it, is ever to be won afresh."

The people of the world, said Dr. Angell, are living in a time of unprecedented ferment and instability.

"In government we know not what a day may bring forth. Much of Europe is in turmoil, and much of it is so solicitous, nervous, dreading the future. The Orient is hardly less unstable.

"Despite the seemingly unforgettable lessons of the great war, the nations of the world are apparently once again preparing to enter on the insanity of armed conflict.

Inefficient Alarm Proves Downfall Of Frat Members

Robber Escapes With $25 Because of Humorous Antics of Brothers

Even burglar alarms don't do any good if brothers in the house cry "wolf." At least, that is what members of the Chi Phi fraternity at the University of California learned.

The alarm was installed a few days after the radio of Douglas Gardiner had been stolen from his room.

Not long ago, the warning bell rang early in the morning, and pajama-clad men, armed with paddles, knives and baseball bats, charged down from the third floor sleeping quarters.

"Don't shoot," cried familiar voices, and two brothers scrambled to their feet from the floor, admitting that they had cried "wolf."

As soon as all the fellows had gone back to bed and quieted down, the alarm rang a second and third time.

"Aw, to hell with 'em," mumbled most of the sleepy brethren, and they turned over in bed—all but Gardiner, who didn't want to be a two-time victim. He tore down the stairs three at a jump, reaching the ground floor in time to see a shadowy figure flit across the street and leap into a waiting car.

Occupants of second floor rooms found their wallets lightened by $25.

Disappearance of Hazing in Many Colleges Attributed to Initiative

"During the last 25 years, hazing has been disappearing from colleges. This is due largely to the fact that students are devoting their energies to other activities and have little time for such trivialities." Raymond E. Manchester, dean of men at Kent State University, thinks students are almost past the prankish "Roverboy" days.

"No great civilization ever has developed leisure and lived. There are few, if any indications, that America will be any exception. Given leisure, man will go to sleep—that is, he will let down, get soft, become an onlooker, cease to be vigorous and thus lose initiative." New York University's Dr. Jay B. Nash, professor of education believes America will perish if people don't adopt hobbies.

"Co-ordination, speed, teamwork, physical stamina and the ability and desire to work hard—that's the stuff that makes winning football teams in any league. The popular myth that some schools are simply graced with a great deal of fight and spirit and can go out there every Saturday with a lot of fight talk and bowl over their opponents is purely bunk." Words with impact from "Hunk" Anderson, new line coach at the University of Michigan.

"There are two broad avenues to follow—the avenue of escape and the avenue of fulfillment. The man who follows the avenue of escape does not come to terms with life at all. He either loses himself in activities feverish but unsubstantial, or falls into lethargy. Those choosing this path are not real adults." Cocooned-adults take a spurring from President Harry M. Wriston, of Brown University.

CUTTING CLASSES PROVES SUCCESS

Rochester University Junior Attends School Only For Regular Examinations

Rochester, N. Y.—(ACP)—When lectures proved too dry to satisfy his thirst for knowledge, Seth Shaver, a junior at the University of Rochester, decided to do something unconventional.

Because he figured he could learn much more by doing private research and reading, Shaver asked for an unlimited "cut" permission. Two professors, taking into account his high grades, excused him from all lectures.

For more than a month, he has attended classes only to take regular examinations of the courses and has passed them all with plenty to spare.

ASCETICS MYSTERY CLARIFIED IN TEST

Professor Conducts Experiment to Prove "Firewalkers" Have Tough Feet

London, Eng.—(A.C.P.)—There is no mystery about the Indian ascetics who walk through fire; they simply have tough feet.

So said Professor J. C. Flugel, of the University of London, in regard to experiments recently conducted by that institution's Council for Psychological Investigation.

Glowing red embers were thrown into a trench 25 feet long and five feet wide. The temperature of the smoking lane was about seven times and one-half as hot as boiling water, or 740 degrees Centigrade.

Even Ahmed Hussain, a 28-year-old Moslem fire-walker suffered burned feet. The amateurs who walked through the ashes were burned in varying degrees.

"My feet seemed to sink into the flowing ashes," said A. J. Bould, a university student, "and some red-hot cinders stuck painfully to the sides of my feet. It was not too bad."

"I made the experiment out of interest in its psychological aspect," declared D. C. Russell, a psychology student. "I felt no great pain."

"I didn't feel much heat," said R. Adcock, the son of an asbestos manufacturer. "My father is an asbestos manufacturer. Perhaps asbestos runs in our blood."

Junior Election Results In Tie

BIESTER AND WEBER IN STALEMATE FOR CLASS PRESIDENCY

Special Election Will be Held Tomorrow to Determine Winner

DURKIN WINS TREASURER'S POST THIRD YEAR IN ROW

Guckenberger Re-elected Secretary; Daniel O'Connor Is Vice President

HARRY J. McGLADE

Yesterday's Junior Class elections resulted in a tie in the presidential poll involving Louis J. Biester, of the Commerce and Finance School, and Joseph H. Weber, student in the Science School, who drew the same number of votes for that office.

This untimely complication will necessitate a special election to decide upon a definite candidate to fill that office. Mario J. Menocal, Chairman of the Student Council, has designated tomorrow for that purpose. The special election will be held at the rear of the dining hall between the hours of 12 and 1.

The office of vice-president has been filled by Daniel J. O'Connor, of the Technology School. O'Connor, chairman of this year's Junior Prom, has recently been appointed Sports Edotir of the Belle Air. The newly-elected vice-president defeated Joseph J. Toland, Science School student and Editor-in-Chief of the VILLANOVAN.

Durkin Unanimous Choice

William T. Durkin, student in the Technology School, was chosen treasurer of the Class of 1938. He was the only aspirant to this post, and as a result received the unanimous vote of the Junior Class.

Henry C. Guckenberger defeated John J. Courtin to claim the office of secretary.

At a recent meeting of the A. I. E. E. of Villanova College, held on May 10, a motion-picture made by the secretary of the society, Robert Strong, '38, was exhibited. These pictures, which inspired much favorable comment among the members of the organization, were made on the society's recent trip to the American Institute of Electrical Engineers' student convention held at the Johns Hopkins University.

Strong's work, which was the chief topic of the meeting, was an outstanding piece of student work. The pictures consisted of candid camera shots of the members and various shots of Johns Hopkins and the Conowingo Dam. The dam was a point of visit on the return trip from Baltimore.

THOMAS F. KENNEDY

MENDEL BULLETIN WINS ALL-AMERICAN AWARD

The Mendel Bulletin, quarterly publication of the Villanova School of Science, has recently been given All-American rating by the Associated Collegiate Press Association.

Villanova's Science publication this year enjoyed the distinction of being one of the best of its kind in the country and congratulations are due its editors and staff.

Unlike other years the Mendel Bulletin this year became a quarterly magazine. Many new features such as microphotography and a complete new style of make-up enabled the publication to receive such high honors. For the first time in its history the Mendel Bulletin had no editor but was published by a special committee organized for the purpose.

The announcement of this honor is the second to come to Villanova publications this year. A month ago the VILLANOVAN won All-American honors from the same association.

Only those students who have participated in extra-curricular activities for the scholastic year, and who are in good scholastic and disciplinary standing are eligible for this distinction.

Because of this three-fold qualification, several students who were nominated for the awards were unfortunately unable to qualify for them in that they were deficient

TO THE GOOD FATHERS!

EVERY year, as this year, a new class graduates from Villanova, leaving the college campus for the harsh, unprotected, windy sweep of the world's market places. And every year, as the next Senior Class sallies forth, it leaves behind it a group of devoted men known only as "the Fathers." Those who know them intimately know them as personalities, but through the dull haze of time, the holy men who have labored to make Villanova what it is are known merely as "the Fathers."

There is something holy about anonymity. . .something sad, strange, mysterious, yet essentially holy about persons who serve yet are unknown; persons who love yet are personally cherished by none; persons who sacrifice yet receive no recognition, no honor, no praise. Such are the dear Augustinian Fathers who are really and truly the Fathers of the boys that leave Villanova every year.

Pope Pius XI, in his recent encyclical on the Sacred Priesthood, said: "Surrounded by the corruptions of a world in which everything can be bought and sold, he (the priest) must pass through them utterly free of selfishness. He must holily spurn the vile greed of earthly gains. He is in search of souls, not of money; of the glory of God, not his own. He is no mercenary working for a temporal recompense, nor yet an employee who, whilst attending conscientiously to duties of his office, is looking to a career and personal promotion. He is the good soldier of Christ who entangleth not himself in secular business: that he may please Him to whom he hath engaged himself."

All honor, then, to the sacred soldiers of Jesus Christ who we know as the Augustinian Fathers. Words that we say to them today mean nothing. But let every man leaving Villanova remember that he leaves behind him friends. Friends who have worried about him; friends who'll do anything for him if he is ever in trouble; friends who have so often lifted him up, through the confessional, to the loving arms of Jesus; friends who have suffered the sufferings of the boys; friends who have remained home when the "boys" went out. No Villanova man worthy of the name can ever forget the Augustinian Fathers. Perhaps he may never utter their names after he leaves the college—but he'll live a life that bears the precious, holy imprint of the Catholic philosophy which the Augustinian Fathers tried so hard to give to every boy in their care.

All honor, we repeat to the Augustinian Fathers. May their memory never be erased from our heart; may we ever remember them in our prayers; may our lives reflect their good influence; and May God continue to Bless and prosper their order, their works, and their institutions!

"Et in velamento alarum tuarum exsultabo, adhaesit anima mea post te: me suscepit dextera tua."

FAREWELL VILLANOVA

ONLY a few more days and the class of 1937 will no longer exist. With the graduation exercises on June third another class will have gathered for the last time as a unit. Never again will they meet on earth as a unit.

Taken from this angle that thought seems a bit melancholy. It is gratifying, however, to think, on the other hand, that another group of Catholic men are going out into the world prepared to meet the problems of the universe with the strong weapon of a good Catholic college training. Another great group of men have been imbued with their spirit of conquest. Another class is going out into the world to carry on for these good fathers and to live up to the Villanova College "Unitas, Veritas, Caritas"; Truth in all dealings, Unity in all trials and constant Charity towards their fellow men.

For centuries the Augustinians have taught these policies and for centuries their students have carried these three great words engraved on their hearts and reflected in their daily actions. Being students of these "teachers of distinctions" we feel sure that the present class will be no exception and will carry this great motto out with them into their daily lives. Villanova expects it of them and Villanova is confident that they will do all in their power to prove themselves typical students of the great Augustinian Fathers.

ANOTHER YEAR—and that's the last time you will be subjected to this column and—that poetry?

Grades had been just average at Georgia Tech until Clifford Witcher, a blind student, brilliant in his studies, entered the class, the professor noted—in writing his quizzes, Witcher used a typewriter. Since all the tests were true and false, the poorer classmen would wait for the typewriter clicks and write "yes" at three and "no" at two—Now Grades have slumped to normal because Witcher now types a period mark after each "no" answer.

The boner pulled by a University of Minnesota freshman who wanted to know "what building the campus is in" was bad, but the one made by an adult visitor to the University of Cincinnati was worse. . . . A Professor was conducting the visitor and his party over the campus and finally came to the football stadium.

"This," exclaimed the faculty member, "is our stadium!" Impressed, the visitor studied the grounds for an instant and turned to the professor:

"This is all very fine, but I hear you have a very fine curriculum here. Would you take us through that next?

To help ride-thumbers at Penna. State College keep their appointments in other cities, George D. Thomas, instructor in industrial engineering, has written a "Hitchhikers' Timetable," which tells the reader the best hours to "flag," the distances to the various cities and the length of time the journey will take. — Ardmore Chronicle please note.

Don't eat foods that are supposed to be "good for you" if you can't stand their taste, says Dr. Ira A. Manville, of the University of Oregon. If a so-called beneficial food is repellent to your taste, leave it alone or you may develop rheumatism, hay fever or eczema.

Odds and Ends

ONE MORE year gone. All about us we note the frenzied preparation for final examinations, the beaming freshmen gleefully probing the possibilities in the upperclassmen halls, and last, but not least, Summer. Summer, as you no doubt know, is that time of the year when all good Villanovans return home to talk about themselves; it makes for very interesting conversation, indeed. EVEN if the folks at home do develop a powerful sympathy for Temple.

We wonder just what will enter school next year. The present freshman class certainly is one to amaze the oldest inhabitant; but if the present trend continues, the class of 1941 should be still better. On the other side of the portrait, we take one last look at the rather battered class of 1937. Perhaps that, too, is just as well.

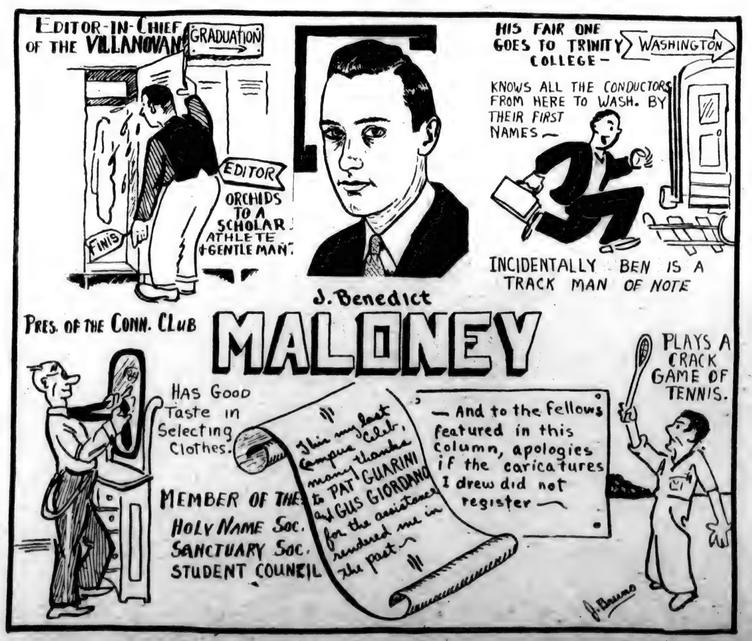
ON THE CAMPUS

Not according to Hoyle: The arguments between Joe McCabe and "Hack" Donovan during those hearts games in the tin. By the way, Joe, that news has spread to the sophomore class. And Fedigan Gib Kolb is displeased to find you are muscling in on his territory. Love plays the percentages: Larry Stanwyck, Fedigan romeo, has solidified his position with a Cynwyd damsel in a unique manner. He sent her mater a Mother's Day greeting card. Progress: "Binkie" McGinley now calls at Mayfield Hall, instead of Connelly when he visits Rosemont. (Mayfield, youse hermits, is the junior-senior residence.) False Rumor: The one saying that "Pop" Shealey will cancel tailor's bills if you sign his Belle Air. We ought to know—we tried it. Yesterday: Don Mackowski vainly trying to catch Jimmy Quigley in the act of starting his 11 P. M. meal. THAT was a real duel of wits. Today: Tuesday, according to the best authority, Chapple says so, too. Any day: Bill Cleary being first in line at Farley Inn waiting for the daily letter.

COMMUNITY NOTES

All who so desire may now wear Summer dress. The Feron brothers, co-chairmen of the College Fashions Committee may be consulted in Austin Hall for full particulars.

Classes for the school year 1937-'38 begin September 22. (Those leers come from the seniors.)



THE OBSERVER

THIRTY DAYS hath September, April, June, and November! all the rest have thirty-one, except February . . . which comes once a year.

That gem, that pearl of wisdom, that witticism, my friends, is one of the priceless utterances of Mr. Francis D. T. Bowen (the D. T., incidentally, as Doctor McHugh holds, means "delirium tremendous.") Seriously, we hear that the madman from Maryland has continued in the barbering business. He hooked O'Loughlin for a fifteen cent shave the other day. Some people never learn.

"Why hello, Francis. . . ." Sassah, friends, Bowen just came in the room.

"Say, Observer, why don't you say something nice about the Villanovans. Y ought to put in a boost about the Villanovans, for they are a great bunch of boys."

"At last they have come into their own," said Dr. Bowen. "They are pretty good," admitted Mr. Bowen, himself a member of the Villanovans.

"Why," expanded Bowen, "we never even have to hunt up jobs. They hunt us up."

Fellows, I agree with Bowen. The Villanovans are a great little bunch of musicians. We ought to support them more. Here's to a bigger and a better season, next year, for our Villanovans.

We hear that several of the professors in various schools on the campus are afraid that Judge Marquette might come into their class. Judge Marquette, erudite scholar from Fedigan Hall, author of that monumental work: "A Treatise on the Spanish Athletic Contest of Bull Throwing," composer of that great poem, "Tales from Kelley's Forrest," noted music critic, and pal of Adolf Hitler. . . . Judge Marquette is now making a study of the students at the college

After intensive research, Judge Marquette decided that no one in the college, including the professors, knows what they are talking about. We owe Judge Marquette a vote of thanks for letting us in on the know. Gee, what a swell fellow. If he hadn't told us about it, we might never have discovered it. Funny. You never suspect who your real friends are.

We hear that a time-watcher up on the second floor of Fedigan Hall always has a green light in his window for Judge Marquette. How sweet!

Christopher Dawson, writing in the May Day edition of the London Tablet, reveals that: "The industrialism of Henry Ford . . . is not an ide l that men will die for, as they will for Communism, and unless we can meet Communism on its own ground—the ground of social justice and social order—we are bound to be defeated."

The thing tha' we must substitute for industrialism and the patter of Mr. Ford is Catholicism. Communism is a great ideal, but Catholicism is a greater ideal. Catholicism is the greatest ideal, an ideal which makes Communism look cheap, yet the masses of mankind, in this day, rarely hear of Catholicism. Is it not clear that it is up to us—you and me—to do something about this, to stop the advance of Communism not only by fighting it but by holding up before men the glorious ideal of social Catholicism?

Stahmann: "What can you give us?"

O'Loughlin: "What have you to offer?"

Simons: 'We must watch our step."

Bowen: "We'll back you up if you give us what we want."

Weber: "I've got a hunch."

Election time! Clean politics! Fful!

C. and F. students should be interested in the story brought out recently before the Securities and Exchange Commission. Three young Harvard men, three years out of college, by clever manipulation of stocks and bonds, ran a fortune of $10,000, a mere nothing, up to $300,000,000 in the three years of their operations.

Beginning with an original ten thousand dollar account, money which the boys received from their family they used that money to acquire a majority interest in an investment trust. Then, utilizing the assets of that investment trust, they borrowed $30,000,000 and secured an interest in another investment trust. They kept up this aggregation of c mpanies until they controlled $300,000,000 of corporate assets. Today, the young men stand cleared of any foul and unfair practices. They are still at it. If they continue to have the same success, according to past performances, they ought to control ten billions of dollars by the end of 1940, a sum which about one third of the national debt of the United States of America.

It just goes to show you how a few young fellers can show the old folks a few tricks if they have their own way. It is dangerous business, but young fellers seldom think of danger. All they can see is the profit and the glory. Curious, isn't it?

Things to see: the intra-mural baseball games. They ought to be called the intra-mural street fights. Corkill: what were you doing last Sunday morning walking the streets of Philadelphia? Moose Donovan: what did you do with the fireman's hat that you swiped when Ike Clothier's barn burned down early last Sunday morning?

VILLANOVATIONS to Tom Kennedy and his staff for producing one of the biggest and best Belle Airs ever. The resume of the Seniors' doings was quite the thing; only Pop Shealey thought he was slighted when he was not mentioned as one of Murph's assistant fire chiefs. After all, Pop was the big gun down there. Ask the boys. I sympathize with you, Duff. Slighting seems to be the present mode at the college functions lately. Whether it is being done purposely or not, cannot be determined, as there is a mass abundance of buck-passing.

Judge Landis: You have handled many cases in your time, but I'll bet this one will eclipse all the biggies.' Mendel was leading Fedigan, 5-4 in a softball encounter. Ray Sheik, Gigolo slugger, who was batting, became irritated at one of Umpire Vic Cook's decisions, and slammed the stick on the home platter, breaking it. There were no other bats about, and the Austinites, naturally, refused to loan theirs to the vying teams; consequently, Father McKee, the major domo of the murals, called the game in favor of the Penthousers. Of course, we realize that Austin has to win something, whether it be by hook or crook.

The Fedigan Glee Club is rehearsing nightly on the Spring Mill side of the building, despite the absence of the star quartet; "Quack" Escott, Mike Garbark, Ray Stoviak and "Ice-wagon" Crawley . . . Ralph Edwards has taken up the baton in the Community Sing. "Margie" seems to be the number one song. "Sparky" Jarosik's rendition of "Juanita" (he really means "Jannette") is something to meditate about.

All-Villanovans: Joe Sleep—Tom O'Mahoney (He slept on a twenty-four hour schedule) . . . Joe Handicap—Muscle Caliendrillo (Poor Joe never did all right by himself) . . . Joe Truck—Sandor Toth, the Mendel flash . . . Joe Esquire—Jack Donahue (A page a day) . . . Joe Speed—Martin Ignatius McDermott . . . Joe Joker—Chas. O'Connell (One for every occasion) . . . Joe Dinner-crasher—Any Bay-Stater . . . Joe Personality—Frank Feron . . . Joe Drawl—Bill Slaughter . . . Joe Taylor—Jack Chapple (Ask him) . . . Joe College—RAY MURPHY.

DIAL LOG

VACATION is just around the corner. Before covering the typewriter for the current school year I would like to forge ahead of time to the extent of two weeks. Let us forget anatomy, biology, calculus, psychology, statistics and the drudgery of finals; take on an "Oakie College" atmosphere, and go truckin' on down vacation lane. ONLY . . .MAKE BELIEVE that we have satisfactorily completed "blue book" week.

We know too well that good old road to the shore, the mountains, or even the city resort—where frivolity and laughter predominate, and the days are spent basking in the sun, the nights dancing in fun. The bookworm is reborn into an exponent of rhythm and romance . . . with a "zazu-za" and a "hi-de-hi." It is at this time that the academic student catches up with all he missed. June makes up for January's toil. July compensates for February, March and April; August pays up for the September-to-December struggle. May? Well, final exams are dated for May. That can never be reciprocated!

This Summer will find many of the top-notch entertainers touring the country. Be your home in Pennsylvania, Connecticut, New York, or Kalamazoo, Mich., it makes little difference. Some of your favorites are bound to strike it. Undoubtedly, the season's mecca for the stars will be in Atlantic City. The resort's famous Steel Pier always provides the "best of the bests" for entertainment. The grand opening will feature the three-band combination of Lombardo, Tommy Dorsey and Benny Goodman on Decoration Day, which was previously announced in this column.

Incidentally, Guy is advocating an "accent on youth" these days; he claims that college youth establishes the musical tastes for the nation. For this reason the Royal Canadians are devoting the first two weeks in June to the co-eds and their better halves (comments from Rosemont will be ignored) by jaunting southward. They will play for proms at North Carolina State, the University of Virginia, and the Virginia Military Institute. The glamorous Ring Dance at the United States Naval Academy will wind up the tour.

Prediction

"Sweet Leilani," the pie-shop's current favorite melody, will be another Crosby-made tune to hit the top.

The Robin Hood Dell in Fairmount Park, Philadelphia, is busily planning another elaborate series of Summer concerts. The world-wide renowned pianist, Jose Iturbi, will conduct most of the programs, with guest conductors appearing intermittently. Soloists will include Grace Moore, John Charles Thomas and Efrem Zimbalist. Two operas will be given. They are "Carmen" and "Madama Butterfly."

Collegiana's "idol," Benny Goodman, is being contacted to continue where Paul Whiteman left off last season, in conducting a pair of combined jazz-symphonic concerts. George Gershwin and "Peggy Garcia" Rubinoff are also being considered. It is my humble opinion that, although Mr. Goodman is the best box office attraction, the latter two are better qualified.

Daring, but Naughty

Recently, the Metropolitan singing star, Nino Martino, made a personal appearance at the West Chester State Teachers College. To avoid the usual troupe of autograph seekers, the school authorities forbade the students to go backstage. Dino D'Orazio, senior co-ed, and herself no mean vocalist, was sadly disappointed upon hearing the announcement. However, her desire was not to be spurned. Instantly, she acquired a Scarlett O'Hara complex; by some ingenious method reached the forbidden territory after the concert had ended; conversed with the artist in his native Italian tongue, and is now the envy of her chums for possessing the star's only autograph on the campus.

New Yorkers and Brooklynites who desire to witness a broadcast sponsored by Chesterfield Cigarettes can secure tickets by contacting this department any time before final week. This offer is not restricted to residents of New York State, but to anyone having the opportunity to visit the Metropolis.

We have come to another crossroad in the path of life. To the class of 1937 I extend my sincere wish for success; to my readers a fond hope for a pleasant, enjoyable vacation. September will begin another year. See you then . . . I hope, I hope, I hope . . . Wow! Those Finals!

positions of esteem during his years at Villanova. He has been consistently an honor student and has led his classmates in scholastic endeavor. He was three years a member of the Student Council, a member of the staff of the VILLANOVAN for the same length of time, president of Beta Gamma, debating chapter, and Associate Editor of the Belle Air publication in his senior year.

Following luncheon in the monastery dining hall at 1:00 o'clock, the faculty, graduating class, and guests will assemble for the striking Academic Procession which will begin at 2:30 o'clock. The processional march is one of the most memorable of commencement exercises. Upon completion of the invocation by Fr. Walsh, and the valedictorian address by Differ, the conferring of degrees will get under way, to be followed by the address by Mr. O'Conor.

Degrees Given

The degrees will be conferred upon the graduates by their respective deans. Father Bartley will present the degrees of the graduates of the Summer and Part Time Schools and the Commerce and Finance School. Rev. Joseph M. Dougherty, O.S.A., will present the degrees in the Science School, and Carl T. Humphrey, S.B., D.SC., will confer degrees to the Technology students. Rev. John F. Burns, O.S.A., will confer the degrees in Bachelor of Arts, Philosophy, and Education.

The showing of these pictures was a climax to a very successful year of endeavor of the society.

expressed the desire to live up to the high standards that had been established by Cronin.

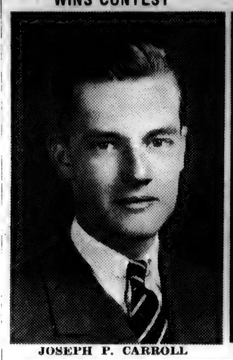
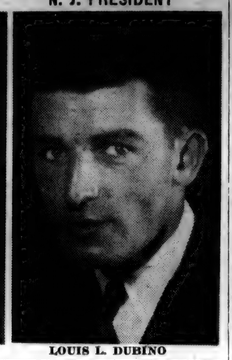
WINS CONTEST



JOSEPH P. CARROLL

N. J. PRESIDENT



LOUIS L. DUBINO

Oratorical Contest Won By Carroll

Joseph P. Carroll, senior in the School of Arts and Philanthropy, who last year won the oratorical contest, again showed his superiority in the field of public speaking by defeating his opponents this year. Each participant of the contest was required to give a 15 minutes' discourse on "Individual Protection Under the Constitution."

This contest is sponsored each year by the school authorities in an effort to choose the best public speaker of the college. The affair is open to all and the winner receives a gold medal during the commencement exercises.

RESERVATION

Room reservations must be made this evening in the vice-president's office in Mendel Hall.

orating his fifteenth year as a dean at Villanova, expressed deep appreciation for the honor conferred upon him, and that he had a great deal of pleasure being head of the School of Commerce and Finance for so long a time.

The new editorial board announced that plans have already been made for next year's annual, and actual work has started on it.

O'Connor has been actively engaged in extra-curricular activities here. He has served as a member of the Junior Prom Dance committee and Ring Committee. Biester has served on the same two committees but was chairman of the Ring Committee. Weber was chairman of the Blazer Committee, and as has been mentioned, O'Connor was chairman of the Junior Prom. Feehan is also very active about the campus.

in one or both of the secondary requirements.

48 Activities Represented

Awards are presented annually for activity in any one of the 54 extra-curricular activities on the campus, but because of the small membership in some of the organizations, and also because some of the members nominated were not eligible awards were given for activity in the organizations outside 54 activities.

It is considered to be quite a distinction for those who are the recipients of these honors, in that Villanova College has as its aim not only the instilling of knowledge into its students, but also the aims of giving its students a well-rounded education which can only be obtained by interest and activity in the organizations outside of the scholastic range.

Five Award Students

Those students who are worthy of outstanding distinction because of the winning of five awards are: Eugene A. Barr, senior Engineer; Louis J. Biester, junior C. & F.; Thomas J. Carbine, sophomore Arts; James H. Lyons, junior C. & F.; Daniel J. O'Connor, junior Engineer; John L. Simons, junior Engineer; Joseph J. Toland, junior Science and Editor-in-Chief of the VILLANOVAN.

SPECIAL ELECTION FOR JUNIOR CLASS

Kennedy, Slaughter, Selected to Represent Class in Student Council

tives were selected from the Commence and Finance School. Thomas G. Kennedy and William G. Slaughter emerged the victorious candidates in a field of six.

Evidences of thorough party organization have been disintegrated by the banding together of the Commerce and Finance School, who succeeded in installing three candidates, and tieing for the presidency.

This is the first time in the history of junior class elections that two candidates drew a final tie in the presidential office. The position is of such esteem and importance that a thorough consideration should be given both candidates before a final ballot is cast by class members.

This year's new host of officers will succeed the following leaders of the past term of office: John L. Simons, Technology student, who was also a contender for the presidential office this year, retires from the office of president; John McKenna, student in the Education Department of the Arts School, vice president; Gukenberger, re-elected treasurer for another term of office.

Gilbert Bagot, Arts and Philosophy School, and Edward Troncelliti, Science School, and Edward Shovlin, also of the School of Arts and Philosophy, are last year's Student Council representatives who, together with Kennedy and Slaughter, will represent the Class of 1938

Holy Cross Game Called as 'Cats Lead 4-2

SPORTORIAL BY

BILL BOWKER

ONLY FOUR short weeks ago we came to be the boss of this column, and now it is time to lay off for a couple of months. Time certainly flies, and it is with some regret that we lay down the pen for the Summer. Perhaps the layoff will do us some good.

—V—

With the realization of the coming of June is the bringing to mind of the fact that graduation will take from us many friends. Among those we will miss are Nort Paden and the seniors of the recent VILLANOVAN sports staff, and J. Benedict Maloney and his cohorts of the college staff.

—V—

From the ranks of athletes we say farewell to footballers Georgie Fox, Tony Sala, Bill Christopher, and "Bunny" Galazin. Basketball sends Don Brennan and Harry McNally into the world, and the ill-starred tennis team loses Joe McCabe. "Doc" Jacobs will not see the face of Leo Schoppmeyer next year, and Captain Tom Cook and Ben Maloney will leave the track squad. To all we say "au revoir!" and "Good Luck."

—V—

Softball has finally got its toehold in the intramural picture, and is now in full swing, although almost too late to figure in the determination of the final standings of the intermural athletes. An incident of note in last week's games was the awarding of the game between the Mendel and Fedigan aggregations to the former outfit due to a member of the Gigolo nine having broken a bat. Fate is certainly funny. We don't know the full particulars of the affair, so we will refrain from any comment. However, it seems rather far-fetched to call a game because of a broken bludgeon, unless, of course, it was the only one available.

—V—

A bit of rancid umpiring comes to our sight, or ears, if you will. Up at Holy Cross, the officials handling the game saw fit to allow the contest to be played, despite a driving rain, until such time as the home team's chances were definitely jeopardized. At this moment, when the visiting pitcher had retired two men in the last half of the fifth inning, and had already got two strikes on the batter, the arbiters decided to call a halt to the proceedings. Previous to this, the Holy Cross captain had been permitted to step from the batter's box, intentionally delaying the game, which would most probably been won by Villanova had not the officials suddenly decided that it was too wet to pitch another ball, which easily might have been the deciding factor in the game. Definitely unsportsmanlike is the phrase to fit the action. If it was dry enough to play a couple of innings, it certainly must have been dry enough to pitch one more ball. These are our sentiments.

In scheduling Loyola of the West, the Villanova athletic authorities are opening the gate for games with bigger and better-known teams on the Western Seaboard. Loyola always has a hard-fighting squad, but it is not well known as teams such as Santa Clara. A good showing by the boys will do much to get contests with "name" schools.

—V—

A word of praise to "Bunny" Galazin's Freshman club. To date they are undefeated, having repulsed the Peirce, Northeast Catholic, Ursinus, Penn State, and Temple grid aggregations. Heavy hitting and high-class hurling are responsible for their fine record.

—V—

This looks like the end of another column. Summer vacation is upon us and we hope all you lads get a nice coat of tan to bring back with you next Fall.

Marquette, Auburn, Detroit, Manhattan, Temple, Bucknell and Boston U. Other Major Foes of 9-Game Schedule

BLUE FACES PENN MILITARY OCT. 2

By TOM O'MAHONEY

The Wildcat of Villanova College will prowl against three new opponents in the coming gridiron wars, it was revealed today by the Rev. Charles J. Melchior, O. S. A., faculty moderator of athletics. After the traditional opener with Pennsylvania Military College on the Main Line turf October 2, the 'Cats oppose the Orange and Blue of Auburn in an intersectional battle on October 9. Philadelphia fans will see another team from the outlands on November 6, when the Golden Avalanche of Marquette roars into action against the Blue in what is expected to be a climax game. November 28 sees the clash between Villanova and Loyola of the West in the gigantic Olympic Stadium, site of the 1932 Olympic Games.

Los Angeles fans will be seeing the 'Cats for the first time, although the Blue has played Coast adversaries before; notably the famous 13-7 game in which Washington State, 1930 champions of the Pacific Coast League, were very nearly upset by an inspired Wildcat team at historic Franklin Field. However, "Clipper" Smith's teams are known and respected in the celluloid and orange belt, for Portland and Santa Clara, while under "Clipper's" tutelage, defeated many of the best Far Western squads, and always played clever football.

INTENSE DOWNPOUR CAUSES UMPIRES TO HALT CONTEST

Escott Within One Pitched Ball of Victory When Fray Is Stopped

OFFICIALS DISCONTINUE PLAY WITH 2 OUT IN 5th

Lose to Providence Friars on Thursday by 4-1 Count

By JOHN L. SIMONS

"Home town" umpiring cost the Villanova Wildcats a victory over the undefeated Holy Cross nine, when the two teams met at Worcester, last Friday. The Jacobsmen were leading by a 4-2 score, when the umpire called the game in the last half of the fifth inning. Therein lies the story.

It had been cloudy all day with occasional drizzling showers. But the 'Cats found the cloudy going to their liking and quickly jumped away to a 4-2 lead. Along about the fifth frame the skies became blacker, and the visitors tried to get the inning over to make it a legal ball game.

Game Called

Frank Escott, of Somerville, Massachusetts, who was in the box for Villanova, promptly proceeded to get the first two batters out. Meanwhile the Holy Cross gang did its best to delay the game. The next batter twice stepped out of the batter's box, using up a lot of time. Escott worked him to two strikes, and at this juncture with two out and two strikes on the batter, the umpire stepped in and called the game on account of rain.

Heavy Hitting of Ball Club is Done By Sophomores as Season Nears End

Dell 'Uomo, Bond and Crawley Among Leaders After Eleven Games Are Completed; Seventeen Doubles Hit

By JOHN DIMON

With eleven games played to date, Charlie Del'Umo, mite but hard-hitting third sacker, leads his mates in batting with a .381 average, gained on 14 safe bingles off enemy flingers. Unofficially, Charlie had a tremendous mark of .394 before the Providence encounter.

After starting the season miserably, Bobby Bond, promising first sacker (Quote Jacobs), climbed out of his temporary hitting doldrums to finish a close second to Del 'Oumo with a neat .377, according to the release.

In third place looms a tie between two of the smallest players on the club, Ruby Sheftic and "Cowboy" Crawley. Both are hitting the pill at a .351 clip. Sheftic has dropped into a slump lately, and has been temporarily benched in favor of either of the pitchers, Bill McLoughlin or Fran Escott, or Mike Garbark when Art Vigilante is doing the receiving.

Dropping from a high second place in last week's standing, Len Merullo is fifth with a .340 slice. This is a decrease of .047 from his previous total. However, Lennie's absence from the game for some time has had some bearing on his meek hitting of late.

Ray Stovink and Garbark, leaders of last season's hitting barrage, have had their willows silenced this year by effective pitchers and as a result their averages have suffered considerably. Ray is hitting a mere .295, while the husky catcher is just getting by with .270. Lou Wannemacher, portly outfielder, started off like a whiz, but his latest attempts have mostly been nullified, as his mark of .271 can testify.

Walt McKenna is the real leader of the group with a high total of .385, but his mark does not warrant him first place, since he has participated in very few contests this campaign.

Although the Wildcats have been hitting in spots, they have been able to win games via the long distance clouts. The Jacobsmen have banged out safeties for a grand sum of 64 extra bases, a tremendous amount considering the number of games played and the low scores tallied. Seventeen doubles, five homers and two triples comprise the extra-baggers. Bond paces the pack with six doubles. Wannemacher is close behind with four, while Stoviak, Sheftic and McKenna have a brace each. Bond also has the most safeties, 18.

Besides hitting two - baggers, Stovink's forte is making round trippers. The husky gridster has swatted three homers thus far to lead in that department. The two triples registered came via Garbark's and Wannemacher's lofty line drives.

FINAL ISSUE

This week marks the final time the VILLANOVAN will be issued for the current scholastic year. The publication will reappear on the campus the first week of October.

RACQUETEERS HOLD BROOKLYN TO TIE

Rain Halts Match as Locals Knot Count at Three Apiece

Taking upon themselves the task of completing the varsity tennis schedule, Villanova's freshman tennis squad fared better than their former teammates by sharing a 3-3 stalemate with the Brooklyn Tennis Club on the local courts. Rain curtailed the doubles matches as the single events were completed.

Weinfeld Shows Well

Leonard Weinfeld, co-champion of the intra-mural tournament, almost created an upset when he carried Harry Arnstein, former Virginia Junior champion, to three sets. Arnstein, a former North Carolina University ace, emerged victorious by the scores of 2-6, 6-4, 6-4.

Dennis Dunne faltered in the final set after coming from behind, to lose to Bob Worthington who used to "bang 'em" for Niagara University. Worthington's steadiness served him well, giving him a 6-3, 4-6, 6-3 triumph.

It was Fred Reppleyea, a member of the ill fated varsity who turned in the first Wildcat victory

FRESHMAN DIAMOND CLUB DEFEATS TWO

Vanquish Ursinus and Penn State Yearlings for Five Straight Wins

Coach Bunny Galazin's hustling band of Frosh baseballers has been doing all right by itself. Besides exhibiting a brand of ball characteristic of a veteran club, the team has completed its scheduled season without a defeat to mar their record. True, the footballers managed to squeeze out a victory in a pick-up game, but even "Doc" Jacobs had to think up a "brain child" before his Varsity could carry off a one run verdict; however, that was outside of regular competition.

In a well-played game the Yearlings defeated Penn State Frosh at Lewisburg, last Saturday, 6-2. This was their fifth victory of the season, which saw Peirce, Northeast Catholic, Temple, and Ursinus fall before their onslaught.

"Wee" Cliff Choquette held the Nittany Cubs to five scattered hits, and was never in trouble at any time other than the fifth. In this inning a bingle by Relic followed by a long triple from the bat of Buchan brought in their first run Sherwin's tap, just out of reach o

Fedigan Clinches Diamond Crown

Pawlowski Hurls No-Hit Contest to Snare Diadem

Mendel Tallies on Error as Final Count is 9 - 1; Second Successive Mural Championship for Gigolos; Austin Wins

RHOADS HAS PERFECT DAY AT BAT

Ben Pawlowski featured Fedigan's championship win over the Mendel Residents in Sunday's opening Intramural contest as he tossed a no-hit ball game. The Gigolos smothered the Penthousers 9-1 and in doing so gained the league championship for the second year in a row. In the second game of the day Austin knocked out a 6-3 win over the hapless Alumni team.

Pawlowski was a surprise starter, for the general opinion was that Bill Sweeney, the lanky righthander, would be Bill Dobrowolski's hurling choice. However, Pawlowski's performance made the Fedigan adherents forget Sweeney for the time, as the bespectacled tosser would have been hard-pressed to emulate "Blazin' Ben's" stellar performance.

HERE and THERE

By Tom Carbine

Gigolos Get Lead

The Fedigan outfit jumped into the lead as soon as the contest opened by bringing home one marker in the first inning.

Mendel tied the score in the second frame when Dobski gained first on Carleton's error, stole second, and crossed the plate on the second of a pair of passed balls. This was the only score chalked up against Pawlowski, and the closest Mendel came to the lead.

The game remained in a deadlock until the fourth inning when the Gigolos scored one run and were never once headed. They clouted Bob Wilson to a fare-thee-well, rapping out no less than 15 baseknocks in the seven inning stretch. Jack Rhoads and Jake Simons led this attack by garnering four and three hits, respectively. Jim Carroll and Jack Dunnigan also aided the rout by grabbing themselves two hits apiece.

This victory was Pawlowski's second of the year over the in-and-out Mendel crew and emphasized th fact that Ben really had the old "Indian" sign on the Penthousers. Pawlowski combined a sharp curve with the proper amount of speed to gain this much-coveted win.

In the second fray of the day the Austin balltossers drubbed the Alumni nine, 6-3, and swept into second place. Ted Goumy and Don Bangert hooked up in a pitchers' duel that was much closer than the score indicates. Bangert gave up two hits while Goumy only allowed Connolly's triple to fall in safe territory.

Goumy and Bangert made good pitching seem the rule rather than the exception of the day, and added their contributions to the excellent mound performances that have featured the Intramural contests all Spring. Ragged support was responsible for Bangert's demise, and most of the runs scored against him came as a result of passed balls and stolen bases. These factors, combined with Connolly's long three-base drive, were too much for the Frosh to overcome.

Meanwhile Goumy was the recipient of fine support and scattered the two Alumni hits so that they would do little damage. This win climaxed an uphill fight for the Austinites, who finished in second place, while the loss climaxed a disastrous campaign for the Alumni club, which failed to win a contest. It is rumored that Frs. Ludwig and Lunney have sent scouts into the hinterlands in search of prospective frosh ballplayers.

TENNIS PLAN

When rain prevents dual tennis matches on the outside courts at Villanova College the matches will be taken indoors to the field house. This will go into effect next season.

HOME COURSE

Villanova's golf team is playing its home matches at a new club but on the same course this year. The Main Line Golf Club, its home, course, has changed its name to the Radnor Golf Club.

Even under adverse conditions Coach "Jumbo" Elliot has succeeded in whipping into shape a track team that has ably represented Villanova in Inter-collegiate competition. . . . Last week saw the "knights of the cinder path" nose out West Chester by one point and then continue their winning stride by beating Rider College at Trenton.

The victory over West Chester was the Wildcat's first win in dual competition in four years, while at the same time it was the Teachers' first defeat in three years. . . . At the final event West Chester held the lead but Tom Cook came through in his specialty, the broad jump, with a winning leap that carried the Wildcats to victory by the very slim margin of one point.

Wet weather caused the field events to be cancelled in the Rider meet. . . . Some of the boys who let others set the pace around the track were wishing that they had been field men for the splashing dirt and water made them forget about the good derived from engaging in clean sport.

As soon as "Clipper" Smith released him from Spring practice, Harvey Buek resumed his training for the timber topping events. . . . And to very good advantage for at present he is unbeaten in four starts. . . . Coach Elliot also has some reserve strength on which he has not yet had to call in Buek's accomplishments in the sprints and field events.

These two victories by the harriers are very forceful answers to the challenging editorial of the VILLANOVAN following Villanova's poor representation in the Penn Relays. . . . Perhaps next year we'll see the Blue and White squad competing against the best in the country at this famous meeting. . . . At that time our promising freshmen will be able to represent their school in intercollegiate meets.

ON THE SIDE: Former Varsity quarterback Bill Christopher is still puzzled over where his roommate "Jaber" Burke acquired his bowler.

The repeal of Prohibition has proved to be the new life blood needed by that honorable game of darts as practiced on many a barroom wall. . . . The more proficient have just completed a tourney which was won by a Philadelphia four. . . . They are now willing to take on all comers. . . . Forrest and Red Lion please notice.

NOTICE: Rough and tough 150-lb. football player Jim Butler talking to his chamber-maid. . . . It seems that he was interested in learning a few things about that enigma of life—love.

Trackmen Beat Two Foes

MENDEL ASSUMES LEAD IN SOFTBALL AFTER FIRST WEEK

Three Successive Victories Put Skytoppers Ahead of Fedigan, Alumni

Intramural softball has at last reached a legal standing on the Villanova campus and Mendel Hall, current intramural champions, is leading the league with three wins to their credit. With the unbeatable combination of Fred Reppleyea, pitcher, and Lloyd Rice as home-run hitter, the Penthousers have run into little competition with the exception of Fedigan Hall who ran them a close race and who lost through the unfortunate incident of a broken bat which Father McKee refused to replace.

Sheik Breaks Bat

Ray Sheik, disgruntled Fedigan batsman, ired at a close decision, struck the bat on the plate and the wood cracked. Father McKee, amazed at this turn of events, promptly called the game and awarded it to the Mendel men who were leading 6-5.

Mendel appears to be the softball team of this season. In the Austin game, which they took, 24-6, they knocked out five homers. Fred Reppleyea and Lloyd Rice, from the Penthouse, have five and three homers to their credit, respectively. The Alumni game ended with Mendel coming out on the long end of a 12-6 score and this team, next to Fedigan, seems to be the only match for the prowess of the Mazzeimen.

Fedigan Takes Two

Fedigan Hall, represented by practically the same group as their baseball team, suffered but one defeat, that at the hands of the inspired Mendelians. They handily overcame the type of playing offered by Austin and Alumni, and won each game by a healthy score. The bat-breaking occurrence was the only thing that might have stopped them from completing a successful week in the intramural softball rivalry.

It seems that Alumni, although slightly better than the Austinites, are having the same luck at softball as they have had at baseball. After suffering two defeats at the hands of the Fedigan Gigolos and the Mendel Hall Lions, they went ahead and defeated the Austinians after a much heated contest during which the McKeemen attempted to resort to undertactics to achieve their end, but notwithstanding their dastardly endeavors, Father Ludwig's boys came back victorious.

Austin Trails

When Austin is mentioned in the intramural softball league little can be said to their credit. Although the boys try hard, the competition seems to be too keen for them and they scarcely seem competent to cope with it. In three starts they have retired from the field second best even though the team played was only mediocre. However, with an eye to the future, they face the next frays with undaunted courage and hope to win them.

Alumni Hall Leads Pack In Mural Race as School Year Nears Close

By HARRY MAZZEI

With only the Softball League remaining unfinished, we find that Alumni Hall is leading the Intramural Sports Program with a total of 58½ points while they are being closely pursued by the Mendel Residents who have amassed a total of 54½ digits. Austin Hall is third, having 50 markers, but they have no chance of catching their high-flying rivals.

Mendel Leads Softball

At the present time the Mendel Penthousers are leading the softball race with three wins and no defeats, while Fedigan is second with two victories and one defeat. Alumni, the present Intramural pacesetter, is third, while Father McKee's Austinites are wallowing in the cellar. If the race continues at its present pace, the Penthousers will capture the Mural title, but any deviation from the present procedure will mean a win for Alumni. Added importance is attacked to the Softball race with the announcement that the Spring Tennis Tournament will not be held, because of the poor condition of the Main Line Courts. This will be a terrific blow to several of the Halls that have outstanding racqueteers, but nevertheless it is an expedient move.

Looking back over the year's play in the various phases of play it is interesting to note that the Alumnis won outright three first places, two more than any other hall, so it can easily be seen why they are now leading the pack.

Tennis Ends in Tie

In the Fall tennis, Rice and Weinfeld tied for the net championship and gave the Mendel and C. & F. representatives eight and one-half points, respectively.

"Red" Kamen, Paul Costello, and Jake Jacuboweki helped to win the awards for the Alumni outfit by their performances before the footlights.

The Mendel Residents staged an upset in the first half of the basketball campaign as they defeated the Mendel Day-Hops, the ultimate winners, for the first-half gonfalon.

The Day-Hops came back strong in the second-half chase, captured the flag, and went on to sweep the league title by outplaying the Residents in the play-offs.

Alumni Ties Bouts

Intramural boxing saw the "Big Green" of Alumni and the colors of the Mendel Day-Hops at the top. Both teams won eight and one-half points.

Father McKee's Water Brigade came to the fore in the swimming events as they splashed through for their first ten points of the year. Kerrigan and Butler led the Austinites in their water-churning feats.

Track was next contested and again Alumni was returned the winner. Their victory came as an anti-climax when Charlie Barrett competed after the events were officially closed and won the deciding points of the "Greenies."

Charlie Roche contributed his share to Alumni Hall by coming in with the Golf Championship. Roche scored an 84, while his nearest competitor, Charlie Bartol, of Mendel Hall, posted an 86.

Fedigan, as was to be expected, ran off with the baseball champion ship by winning five games and losing only one. Bill Sweeney and Ben Pawloski were the outstanding stars of this team, as both turned in consistently well pitched games.

TEMPLE-VILLANOVA

The Temple - Villanova baseball game, originally scheduled for the former's field, will be played here today because of the poor condition of the Owl diamond.

Vanquish Rider and West Chester Squads in Week

Victories Are First Scored by Wildcat Runners in Four Years; Cook and Buek Lead Assaults; Rain Hampers Trenton Meet

TEACHERS' FIRST LOSS IN 3 YEARS

This was a very good week for the cindermen, for not only did they break their four year long losing streak by disposing of the West Chester Teachers, but they extended it by defeating Rider on Friday afternoon in Trenton.

Villanova's return to its winning ways was rather unexpected and it speaks well of Coach Jim Elliott. He has done a fine job in molding a well-rounded squad and deserves a great deal of praise.

In disposing of West Chester, the Wildcats were the first team able to bowl over the future pedagogues in the last three years. The last team to turn the trick was Temple, who lowered the Teachers' colors back in 1933.

Close Meet

The meet was very close and the final outcome was in doubt until the last event, the broad-jump. Captain Tom Cook came through to win his specialty and with the aid of Bob Barrett, who placed second, Villanova was able to carry off the honors. The final tabulation favored Villanova by a single point, 63½-62½.

Harvey Buek did a yeoman's job in topping the timbers. He showed his heels to the opposition in both the 120-yard high hurdles and the 220-yard lows. He flashed brilliant form and was the only double winner for the Wildcats. The Teachers were superior in the sprints, but the victors made up for that by taking the majority of the field events.

Beat Rider in Mud

On Friday Coach Elliot's boys travelled over to Trenton and avenged a defeat that Rider previously handed our swimming team earlier in the year. The track was in better condition for swimming than for running because of the rain; but the boys did not mind a little water and they proceeded to duck Rider in the mud to the of 47-25. The field events were completely washed out.

Buek again turned in victories in the hurdles and with the exception of the mile and two miles, Villanova annexed all the first places. Considering the condition of the track all the times were fast.

the infield, accounted for the second and last marker. Choquette steadied after this outburst and was complete master of the situation.

Bob Pash, whose fielding has been a contributing factor to the team's success, came out of his batting slump and smacked two resounding three-base blows. Micky Vernon, stellar first sacker, and back-stopper John Armano were the only others to hit safely twice. Had Buchan, whose fine hurling went for naught, been accorded better support, the results might have been much closer. Three costly errors by the infield at opportune moments (for the Kittens) cons[illegible] kept him in hot water. [illegible]nus Falls, 4-3

The [illegible] fray was a nip-and-tuck affair that saw the Frosh win out in the last inning with one out. Pitcher Andy Sisco gained a life when the shortstop dropped his high fly. Mike Lazorchek sacrificed him to second, and Shea walked. Vernon was intentionally passed for the second time, filling the sacks. It looked like good strategy when Howlett struck out, but Lloyd Rice proved to be the "fair-haired boy" as he drove a scorching single through second, scoring Sisco with the winning run. The score, 4-3.

The team as a whole possesses average hitting ability although Howlett, Rice, and Vernon wield very potent maces. Their lack of power has been set-off by their fiery spirit and the ability to come through in the pinches.

Auburn, Marquette On 1937 Grid Card

overwhelmingly successful on the gridiron, has never failed to produce a good club, capable and well-drilled. Tom Lieb, mentor at the Coast institution, is looked upon as one of the better coaches in the game today, and has lately expressed optimism over the '37 campaign —which means that the 'Cats will be wise indeed to take the Californians seriously.

Repeaters on the local schedule include Manhattan, whose teams have failed to score on the Wildcat in the modern series between the schools; Bucknell, our oldest opponent, whose squads have too often risen to impossible heights in Villanova games, and Detroit, always a threat, as they proved last year by trimming Duquesne, Manhattan, and by bowing to Auburn 6-0 in a bitterly contested game. Boston University will be met for the second time in two years at Boston as a tune-up for the Temple classic.

Temple Duel Draws

The duel between the Blue and the Cherry and White is always tops in the Quaker city area for good football with a tradition of hard, clean play behind it. Both "Clipper" Smith and the senior members of the squad would rather beat the Broad Streeters than win any other game on the schedule. The age-old rivalry between the two schools is augmented by the rivalry of the respective mentors of the 'Cat and the Owl which dates back to the time of "Pop" Warner's reign at Stanford and "Clipper's" simultaneous period at the helm for Santa Clara. Last Fall, the Blue wall leaked once — and the Owl piled through for the only score of the game. It would be a rather safe bet to say that the senior members of the squad are all anxious for that whistle to blow in Temple Stadium next November 20.

While not an entirely new enemy, Auburn, "fairest village on the plain," has never been a scheduled foe. In the New Year's Day game at Havana, the Tiger and Wildcat confounded the zoologists by emerging from the contest with honors even, and this game should be a brilliant renewal of the post-season conflict. Marquette, the other newcomer to the 'Cats' lair, has made one appearance in Philadelphia, that being in 1935, when Temple removed the Gold from its undefeated perch, but the Westerners will probably be trying to redeem themselves in Billy Dyer's eyes, and should furnish interesting opposition.

Jaspers Have Improved

Manhattan must be deemed the most improved team on the "V"-men schedule, and one which will be anxious for revenge for the unmerciful defeats at the hands of the Main Liners. "Chick" Meehan always has a big, tricky club, and the present Jasper squad is no exception. Coming as it does on the heels of the Auburn and Manhattan game, the annual Bucknell embroglio will also be no runaway. The Bisons served notice on their future foes that this is a good Bucknell team when the Herd trampled on the Big Red of Cornell in a Spring practice game to the tune of 6-0.

Coach Gus Dorais' Titans await the coming of the Blue to Detroit in much the same way that the Wildcats anticipate the Temple game, and the aerial circus will once more test the Wildcat sky defense to cause many disturbing moments in the visitor's camp. Boston University, while hoping for a victory, can hardly expect one. The powerful Blue line stopped the Terriers cold last year, and should do so again.

There will be one game at Villanova Stadium, three at Shibe Park, one at Temple Stadium and one game will be played in New York, thus placing the majority of the games in easy reach of students as well as local pigskin devotees.

GOLFERS CONCLUDE SUCCESSFUL SEASON

Defeat F. & M. and St. Joseph's to End Campaign; Dwyer Undefeated

Villanova golfers came to the end of a successful season last week with victories over Franklin and Marshall and St. Joseph's College. The Wildcat linksmen suffered a setback at the hands of Rider on their journey to Trenton last Tuesday.

A defeat earlier in the season was avenged by the Rider men as the 'Cat golfers went down to defeat by the score of five and one-half to one-half. The only score of the day for Villanova was made possible on the last hole which Ed Tirrell pared to halve a closely-fought best ball match.

Defeat F. and M.

On Wednesday Franklin and Marshall lost its first intercollegiate golf match of the season to Villanova by the score of five and one-half to three and one-half. Jimmy Dwyer ending this season undefeated won his match very handily in beating McLaughlin 7 and 6. Ed Tirrell lost his match to Russell of F. and M. 4 and 3. The Villanova boys, however, came through to win the best ball match two up.

Three points were won in the second foursome in which Tommie Robinson and Lou Dubino teamed up to win the best ball match one up. Tommie and Lou likewise won their individual matches, defeating Prickett and Fred Feeser 2 up and 4 and 3, respectively.

In the third foursome Harry McNally and John McManus played their first matches of the season. Harry halved his match with Brubaker but Johnnie wasn't as successful, losing to Lefevre 8 and 7. Lefevre and Brubaker won the best ball match very easily in coming out on top 6 and 5.

when he downed Harold Cann in straight sets 6-4, 6-1.

Leary, Wallach Knot Score

John Leary and Captain Saul Wallach came through in the number four and six singles matches to earn the stalemate with the New Yorkers.

Bert Wellenbach muffed his chance to become a hero when he failed to come through in the pinch against Marty Sobol in the number three singles event. Wellenbach took the first set from the Brooklyn lad 6-4. In the second set, Bert held a 5-4 lead in games and an advantage point. Ten times in that set he had set and match points on the visitor and on every occasion Sobol stayed off defeat until he ran out the set at 9-7. The third chapter found the local net man on the short end of a 6-2 score.

The locals will give battle to St. Joseph's, Ursinus, P. M. C., Norristown Tennis Club on successive days, winding up their campaign with Temple in Philadelphia.

Lloyd Rice, Maryland Prep School champ, is expected to join the Main Liners for these matches. He shares the school title with Weinfeld. Other members of the team are Marvin Mones, Beatty, Schermerhorn, and Joe Fioretti.

SPORTS STAFF

There will be a meeting of the sports staff in the VILLANOVAN office, 119 Mendel Hall, at 1 P. M. All members are requested to attend.

COMPARATIVE SCORES

Villanova lost to Princeton, 5-2, then defeated Penn, 8-0. Penn later whipped the Tigers by a 4-3 score. Figure it out. Which is the best team? Again, the Wildcats trounced Providence, 9-5, and then dropped a 4-1 decision to the Friars last week.

Opinions

This question was put to several persons:

What is your candid opinion of a proposed indoor Villanova sports carnival? That is, a boxing meet would be held in the afternoon, followed by a swimming meet, followed by a basketball game. Dancing would conclude the sports fiesta.

"Clipper" Smith: The proposed plan of holding a Mid-Winter Sports Carnival has, in my opinion, a great deal of merit. A program of this nature should prove attractive to a large number of people, and with the facilities at hand, there is no reason why it should be unsuccessful. There are many details to be covered, however, and I feel that we should give the matter a great deal of thought before making definite plans.

Bob Whelan: The idea of holding a Mid-Winter Sports Carnival appeals very strongly to me and I hope that we will be able to go through with it. The varied nature of the different events on the program would undoubtedly prove of interest to a great many people, and I feel that an affair of this kind will help greatly in increasing interest in the Winter sports program at Villanova.

John Tole, C. & F. Soph: This proposal, if carried out, will undoubtedly provide much amusement for the students and perhaps for the general public as well. If the results of this plan prove successful it will prove a boon to Villanova athletics in the future.

Harry Burns: This Mid - Winter Sports Carnival scheme appears to be an excellent idea from the standpoint of both the athletic staff and the student body as well. It will certainly help to enhance the athletic reputation of the College and will moreover of the student body as a whole.

This was the closest the Crusaders have been to defeat this season, having bowled over all other opposition. It was unfortunate that Escott could not get the victory before what was practically a home-town crowd.

'Cats' Streak Broken

Thursday of the past week was another bad day for the Villanova baseballers. They went up to Providence, where the Providence Friars cracked the 'Cats' nine-game winning streak with a 4-1 triumph. In cracking the streak the Friars extended their own run of wins to seven in a row, and gained revenge for a 9-5 defeat the 'Cats handed them at Villanova earlier in the season.

Loose fielding and inability to hit in the pinches led to Villanova's downfall. The five errors committed by the Main Liners' defense had plenty to do with the Providence scoring. The Villanova bats were strangely mute when there were men in scoring position, as the fact that eleven men were left stranded on the bases shows.

Until the final inning the visitors were scoreless. In the ninth, however, aided by a triple from the bat of Mike Garbark, they managed to push across a lone tally to avert a whitewashing.

SCHOLARSHIP FUND BEGUN BY JUNIORS

Second Year Class Presents $425 Installment to Start Annuity

In accordance with the example set by preceding classes, the Class of 1938 has instituted its scholarship fund to perpetuate the spirit of the class with a living memorial long after they have left Villanova College.

Following the example set by the Class of 1928 and each succeeding class since that time, the present junior class instituted its scholarship fund with a first installment of $425. This sum represents the proceeds from this year's Junior Prom, plus the remittance from the State and Federal governments on the tax levy for these affairs, since the scholarship fund comes under the head of a charitable purpose. This together with a balance from last year's social activities represents the total of $425. The Juniors hope to be the first class to complete the fun before graduation.

In revealing his selection, Father Falvey said, "Barrett was chosen because he is capable, a good student, satisfies the requirement of being a boarder and can be here at all times. The chairman will have the whole responsibility for the orientation program. We want the committee to work behind him as one team." The new Vigilance chairman was a nominee for class president and won a Merit Award for intra-mural athletics.

Chairman Barrett in a statement to the VILLANOVAN said, "We expect everyone on the campus to facilitate our work next Fall by being cordial to the freshmen and by initiating them as soon as possible into the customs and traditions of Villanova."

Villanova Ideal For Qualified Young Man

History Of Villanova Is Epic Of Determination

Efforts of Augustinian Fathers to Establish Present Institution Despite Adverse Conditions Is Model of Fortitude

ONCE BELLE AIR

Engrossed in thoughtful retrospection we prescind from the paradoxical splendor that is Villanova's to review the tradition that is so beautiful enjoined with the culmination of our ideals.

Early in the 19th century John Rudolph, a wealthy Catholic merchant, purchased an estate which he named Belle Air, after the ancestral home of his father. At the death of Mr. Rudolph, Belle Air was sold to the Augustinian Order which at that time was looking for a suitable site to establish a mother house. It is here that we take up the history of Villanova. For on August 28, 1843, the feast of St. Thomas, of Villanova, St. Thomas was inaugurated the patron Saint of what was destined to be our own Villanova.

Enrollment of Six

With the coming of September, classes opened with an enrollment of six students. Classes were conducted in the first floor rooms of the Belle Air mansion by the faculty which consisted of three priests and four laymen.

Villanova's growing popularity and increased enrollment necessitated the addition of a new building which was completed in the year 1844. Soon after the first college prospectus was issued and in the Summer of the same year the erection and dedication of a new chapel took place. At this time it was imperative to suspend classes for a year to allow sufficient time for the reconstruction of the Church of St. Augustine which was burned as a result of the Know-Nothing uprising.

Reopened in 1846, the first public commencement was held on July of the next year. "An Act to Incorporate the Augustinian College of Villanova in the County of Delaware and the State of Pennsylvania," was enacted by the Legislature, in the year 1848, giving the college a charter by which it was empowered to grant degress. In the same year the present college was adopted and the Ecclesiastical School inaugurated.

Alumni Oldest Building

Alumni Hall (at present the oldest building on the campus) was completed in 1874. A second financial storm swept Villanova in the year 1857, at which time classes were discontinued for a period of eight years.

The incorporation of the Arts, Engineering, and Pre-Medical schools was made possible by the completion of the Monastery and College Hall during the year.

Its predecessor destroyed by fire, the present St. Rita's Hall bears mute testimony of the invincible determination and undying courage of the Augustinian Fathers.

Classes were again interrupted by our country's entrance in the World War. Villanova became one of the many training quarters established in the East. Following the Armistice, classes were once again resumed.

Open Commerce School

Ever alert and willing to satisfy the needs of Catholic Youth the Augustinian Fathers inaugurated a school of Commerce and Finance in 1922. Then necessity of expansion lead to the erection of a new dormitory in 1925. Incorporated in Austin Hall was a library containing over 30,000 volumes.

A ruinous fire razed College Hall in January, 1928, destroying living quarters, class rooms, and nearly all the offices and records. Soon after, Mendel Hall rose from the ashes and Fedigan Hall, our newest dormitory, was erected.

Keeping pace with the ever-increasing demands of progress, two more magnificent structures were erected—the Commerce and Finance building in 1930 and the Auditorium-Gymnasium in 1931. Immediately following the election of Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., as president, another catastrophy descended upon the new administration. The Monastery, home of the Augustinian Fathers for over half a century, was totally destroyed by fire. Accepting this misfortune with their characteristic patience and fortitude the Fathers took up quarters in other parts of the college grounds.

At once work was begun on the erection of the new Monastery which was completed in 1934. The new abode is well indicative of the spirit and determination of the Augustinian Fathers.

Villanova Strives To Develop Minds Of Its Students

As a "Small College" it Trains Them Intellectually, Morally For Life

Foremost in the ideals of Villanova and secondary only to scholastic achievement is character building. Ever since the Augustinian Fathers established the institution, character building has been its principal aim.

Trained Mind Necessary

In its enthusiastic efforts to develop the academic side of college life, Villanova has never lost sight of the fact that a trained mind and a critical judgment, although necessary for success, are of greater value when controlled by a strong will and directed by a keen moral sense.

Villanova is classified as a "small college." This in no way detracts from her ability to train men to be useful but rather adds to the accomplishment of that ideal. A small college is advantageous in that it provides for the full development of the individual student both intellectually and morally.

Develop Character

The associations formed in the classroom are carried into the social life of the student and are most effective instruments in the development of character. The close association of the students and the faculty is undoubtedly an aid to a troubled mind.

Dr. Josiah H. Penniman, Provost of the University of Pennsylvania, and one of the foremost educators in America, has this to say about small colleges: "I know of nothing—except the love of one's family, that equals in its influence upon character, which brings us together in after life, as do the associations formed in a small college."

CONFESSIONS HEARD

Opportunities for regular reception of the Sacrament of Penance are easily available for Villanova students. Confessions are heard every morning before and during the two Masses and every Wednesday evening after night prayers.

Purpose of Villanova Not Educational Alone; Develops Catholic Gentlemen

Villanova's task is the accomplishment of many aims. True, its purpose is to educate, but just as important is its duty to guide the lives of the students during their four years of training and to supply them with a criterion by which they may guide their lives after their college days have ended.

Something to Offer

This task is accomplished very efficiently at Villanova for her religious professors are not trying merely to compete with the high-salaried professors of non-Catholic institutions of learning. They have something additional to offer. If Villanova could offer only secular education, the sacrifices of the professors would be wholly unwarranted.

Here at Villanova, a student has the full advantage of Catholic environment. He has the opportunity of coming in close contact with priest-professors, also with lay-professors, who are known to be men of sterling worth and high principles.

There is daily mass, with ample facilities for daily and frequent reception of the Blessed Sacrament. A student has unrestricted access to the college chapel at all times, where he may seek advice and comfort before the Blessed Sacrament. Any student is at liberty to consult his Confessor or any of the Fathers on matters pertaining to his spiritual welfare. Also, he has the benefit, from time to time, of listening to talks or lectures on topics of Catholic interest.

Little Required

Comparatively little is required of a student along religious lines, as against what is required of him in the scholastic line. Mention two periods of religious instruction weekly—one week-day mass, a short evening chapel service, the monthly reception of the sacraments—and you have said it all.

In fact, it must be admitted that little more of a student's actual time is required to be devoted to the religious phase of his education than would be insisted upon in many non-Catholic colleges. This is not because the college authorities undervalue the religious element, but because they feel that the student will not undervalue it and, consequently, that he will freely make use of the many opportunities offered to him of increasing in the knowledge and practice of his faith.

Develops Gentlemen

It is the ideal of Villanova to develop Catholic gentlemen—gentlemen in every sense of the term. Catholic gentlemen are distinguished by certain marks such as their ability and tendency to select the right type of friends, their knowledge of the faith and the application of that knowledge, and their own personal conduct. With these facts in mind Villanova has attempted to establish a standard of living that is invaluable in guiding the lives of the undergraduates and of those who graduate at the termination of their college course.

EMPHASIS PLACED ON RULES OF NEATNESS

Administration Demands that Student Wear Coat, Tie in Class

Ever careful that the students of Villanova College bear themselves as is becoming Catholic gentlemen, the administration of Villanova has taken measures to install this thought into the minds of their boys.

Neatness at all times is urged, and each student attends class in a suit coat and tie. Particular emphasis is likewise given to cleanly shaven faces. These elementary rules of neatness are the first steps towards a complete education.

AIM OF VILLANOVA TO OFFER STUDENT LIBERAL EDUCATION

Constant Increase in Courses Makes Specialized Knowledge Available

ENVIRONMENT IDEAL FROM EDUCATIONAL VIEWPOINT

Located in Quiet Vicinity, Yet Within Easy Access to the City

Applications Now Accepted; Mathematics, History, Languages and English Included

Ever since the establishment of Villanova College it has been the aim of the Augustinian Fathers to offer to young men an opportunity of receiving a liberal education—an education that develops all the faculties of soul as well as of body, and finds its expression in a clear-thinking, right - acting Christian gentleman.

The Fathers, ever conscious of the increased desire for specialized knowledge, are constantly adding to their already extensive courses those subjects necessary to fill them.

Location Is Ideal

From an educational viewpoint, no more ideal location could be found for an institution of learning. Villanova combines the advantages of the city and country. The absence of any large settlement in the immediate vicinity assures the seclusion necessary for student life, while easy access to Philadelphia affords an opportunity for visiting the many industrial plants of a great manufacturing center and of consulting the various libraries of a metropolitan city.

Villanova offers courses in the various fields of education. The School of Arts and Philosophy presents courses leading to Bachelor degrees in Arts, in Philosophy, and Bachelor of Science in Education, also a Pre-Legal course. The School of Technology presents courses leading to the Bachelor of Science degrees in Civil Engineering, Electrical Engineering, Mechanical Engineering, Chemical Engineering, and in Chemistry. The School of Science presents courses leading to Bachelor of Science in Biology, Pre-Medical and Pre Dental courses.

The School of Commerce and Finance presents courses in Accounting, Brokerage, Commerce and Transportation, Insurance, Journalism, and Merchandising, leading to the degree of Bachelor of Science in Economics.

SCHOLASTIC PHILOSOPHY

FOR centuries, the men of the world have been seeking a solution to the educational problem, to the social problem, to the problem of State and Church, and to the many other fundamental questions which perplex us more deeply every day. No solution has been reached and today, looking back over the past 500 years of history, we can see that we have traversed a road which has led us to where we are today: the brink of chaos.

At the root of these problems, are false philosophical principles. When the Protestant Revolution overthrew the Catholic tradition, it also discarded the joy of medieval education: Scholasticism. And until the world returns to the philosophy of Scholasticism, there can never be any hope of real education, of real social reform, or of real social progress.

The Catholic College, fount at which we drink up the enlightening waters of Scholasticism, is admirably equipped to play a vital part in leading back to true philosophic principles the befuddled educators of our age. For the philosophic keenness, nobility, and stability of Scholasticism, is re-inforced and guided by obedience to the true Christian Faith: Catholicism. Hand in hand, Catholicism and Scholasticism yield those who are philosophers indeed.

The greatest of all systems of philosophy is Thomism—the philosophy of St. Thomas Aquinas. It is so reasonable, so sublime, that Pope Leo XIII, in his Encyclical letter, Aeterni Patris, said: "reason, borne on the wings of Thomas to its human height, can scarcely rise higher, while faith could scarcely expect more of stronger aids from reason than those which she has already obtained through Thomas."

Is it any wonder that in this same letter, Leo XIII advised the faithful and their leaders, the Hierarchy, that: "Our first and most cherished idea is that you should all furnish a generous and copious supply to studious youth of those crystal rills of wisdom flowing in a never-ending and fertilizing stream from the fountainhead of the Angelic Doctor."

We call all educators to study and examine the philosophy of St. Thomas. We point out to them the superb superiority of the Catholic education for its fusing of Thomism and Catholicism, its achievement of the ultima thule in education. We call to a world soul-sick for abiding principles to follow the Catholic college, and its reasonable method of putting first things first in basing its curriculum around philosophy.

THE CATHOLIC EDUCATOR

IN a world of shifting standards, where people are prone to pattern their thoughts and actions after constantly changing fashions in morality, there can be little cause for wonder that a similar instability should have crept into our educational system. It should not be inferred, however, that professors are deliberately misleading students, or even seeking to confuse them upon the reliability of certain fundamental moral and natural truths. It is the professors' own want of certainty, arising from the lack of a thorough understanding and belief in a fixed moral code, which has left them as susceptible to intellectual fallacies as the most uninformed of their students, that prompts them to continue teaching falsehoods. Pernicious theories of a social and ethical character, compounded from false logic and distorted truths, are daily being inculcated into the minds of students too inexperienced to see their fallacy, by instructors whose only misfortune is to believe in the truthfulness of the things they are saying.

Unfortunately it is within this generation that these doctrines are doing the most harm. Prior to this people were raised and educated under a standard of respectability which of itself demanded conformity to certain conventions which were based, in a general way, upon Christian morality. But modern youth, carried away by the notion that its own problems are different than any others, is quick to seize upon any theory that is of an unconventional and anti-social character merely to vindicate its own "wildness" and to forestall any attempt at its regulation. Thus they prove a ready receptacle for any theories of conduct that emphasizes personal rather than moral motive for action.

From this miasma of false and conflicting theories, founded upon a misunderstanding of man's purpose in existence, it is a pleasant contrast to enter upon the clear area of truth, and the conviction in its infallibility as a guide to human behaviour that exists among Catholic educators. Where others are uncertain they are certain, where others hesitate they advance, where others compromise they are unyielding; constantly submitting the problems of existence and their proposed solutions to the scrutiny of fundamental principles they are always prepared to pronounce convincingly and authoritatively upon them.

A SMALL COLLEGE

THE inestimable advantages enjoyed by those who receive their education from a small, well-equipped college cannot be over emphasized. The small classes make for a closer contact between professor and student with the former taking a personal interest in the intellectual development of the latter. The laboratories not being over-crowded, each student not only has ample space for work, but what is more important, has the use of apparatus to himself, so that he is constrained to understand all the factors involved in an experiment before he is able to perform it.

The number of friendships and acquaintances formed among fellow students, is usually of such proportions that the whole institution takes on the character of a large family with each individual knowing and willing to co-operate with the other.

COLLEGE CHATTER

By
FRANK BONETTI

HOW many of us realize upon seeing the close friendships and sincere relationships of students, here at Villanova, that many of these fellows hadn't ever seen one another before coming to Villanova?

Practically every state in the Union is well represented here at our "institution of learning." There are also several students from areas outside the country. For instance, did you know, we have three fellows from Cuba, two from the Philippine Islands, and seven from Puerto Rico.

Pennsylvania, the Keystone State, has the largest representation. More than half the student body come from this area. Our sister state of New Jersey is also well represented, no fewer than 135 students are at present seeking knowledge here at Villanova.

New England which has always sent many future intellectuals to our school is again well accounted for this year. More than 40 men are registered here from the state of Connecticut. Massachusetts, its next door neighbor, has in the bygone days sent many notables to our halls of learning, this year not being an exception. It has 45 students seeking that sheepskin.

New York, the most populated state in our United States, also has one of the largest contingents of any state. More than 82 students from the Great White Way and its neighboring cities are now established on our beautiful campus.

The south with its sunshine and warmth has seen fit to send several of its native sons to our school, among them we have, two students from West Virginia, one from Virginia, South Carolina one.

The western part of our country has many representatives here. The great state of Illinois with ten men leads the pack, following closely on its heels we have Ohio with four, Oklahoma with two, Iowa has seen fit to send only one delegate, as has Indiana, Michigan and Minnesota.

Such nearby states as Maryland and Delaware also have men established at our institution, the former having 12 representatives and the latter eight.

Our nation's Capitol district, the District of Columbia, not to be outdone by its sister states, delegated five of its native sons to matriculate at Villanova.

It seems we have covered the Southern, Western and Eastern areas, but lest we forget to mention our cold fellow state of Maine, which has sent a representation all the way down to Villanova.

These statistics show that practically every sate in the Union is well represented at Villanova, but it must be borne in mind that these figures only include the full-time students and not Summer school, and extension schools. For if we were to delve into the areas who have sent delegates to our Summer extension classes it would take in not only our United States but also from neighboring countries.

So, when you make a friend here at Villanova be sure you make a good one because you will probably only be with him for four years.

That a close, binding friendship is not soon forgotten on the Villanova campus was demonstrated conclusively on New Year's Day when the Villanova fotball team traveled to Cuba to meet the strong Auburn eleven. A young man, who formerly attended Villanova, learning of the visit of the Wildcats, immediately set out to secure the best accommodations possible for the players at the most reasonable cost. Certainly, this shows that the friendships which spring up at the Main Line college are not so quickly destroyed as those of other institutions.

From the foregoing, it can readily be seen why Villanova proves a mecca for all prospective students throughout the United States and outlying possessions. After all, true friendship is the most treasured possession in the world.

ODDS and ENDS

By

VILLANOVA COLLEGE offers anything that the student could possibly wish for. Its location is excellent both from a standpoint of beauty and convenience, its buildings are modern and well equipped — and its fellows—well, its harder to find a better group anywhere. Unlike many colleges there is a definite spirit of friendliness that is characteristic of few other schools.

Chief among the habits of good fellowship instilled into the new students that set foot on the campus the first day is the very excellent "Hello" habit. This custom consists of a ruling that every student MUST say "Hello" to anyone he happens to meet on the campus. By means of this rule a bashful freshman meets the willing senior and the boy from out-of-town gets acquainted with his next door neighbor. Soon this custom really becomes a habit and does more to create good fellowship on the Villanova campus than any other feature.

Villanova students are always free to drop in any room on the campus and join in the talk-fest going on. The priests' rooms are always open, and it is never too late nor inconvenient for the students to drop in for a chat with the good Fathers who make themselves the students' companions.

Our college is ideally situated for the engineer because of its proximity to Philadelphia, one of the foremost industrial centers of the nation. Many trips are taken each year by the Engineers through the large industrial plants of the Quaker City.

The embryonic doctor finds Villanova especially to his liking because he has direct contact with the Jefferson, Hahnemann and Misericordia Hospitals in Philadelphia and has at his disposal the marvelous Wistar Institute of Anatomy, known throughout the world for its marvelous displays. Among other things of interest to the Pre-Medicos is the Philadelphia Academy of Natural Sciences, the library of which is the largest of its kind in the world.

Business students and those attracted by the Fine Arts find Villanova's proximity to Philadelphia of great value to them because they are able to visit and observe the workings of the city government and the large industrial firms.

Also found in Philadelphia are the famous Independence Hall, Carpenters Hall, the immortal Betsy Ross House, the Old Christ Church and the old Mint. No explanation of these places is necessary, for the student of history will find them to his liking. Few cities in the nation can compare with Philadelphia for historical importance.

Recreational facilities at Villanova are excellent. Its closeness to Philadelphia allows attendance at the opera, the legitimate theatre and the greater moving picture houses. For students desiring only to take in a nearby movie special rates in transportation and theatre prices are available at all the local theatres for Villanova students.

Then, too, there are always the Villanova dances mentioned elsewhere in this paper, to say nothing of those held at Rosemont, Immaculata and Mount Saint Joseph's colleges for Catholic women.

Philadelphia's Academy of Fine Arts as well as the Fels Planetarium and the Franklin Institute offer excellent opportunity for study and research. All these things are within easy distance of the college.

Situated as it is on the beautiful and famous Main Line, Villanova is virtually a "walker's paradise." It is surrounded by miles and miles of country roads which stretch as far as eye can see. To the minds of Villanova students, Villanova is THE college. We think there is no better located, no better equipped, no finer taught nor no finer peopled college in the country than Villanova. Come out and look around. You're always welcome.

Arts, Science Departments Offer Many Courses

Dept. of Arts, Philosophy Provides Liberal Education

Courses Lay Foundation For Study of Various Professions; Supplemented By Education School

TRAIN TEACHERS

One of the oldest departments on the Villanova campus, the School of Arts and Philosophy, embraces the very institution of the college itself. In 1842, the Augustinian Fathers, established in old St. Augustine's Church in Philadelphia since 1796, inaugurated the School of Arts and Philosophy on the present site of Villanova College.

The purpose of this school, as expressed by its dean, Rev. John F. Burns, O.S.A., Ph.D., is to provide systematic courses meeting the requirements of a liberal education, as well as to lay down a foundation for the study of the several professions or for the intelligent following of business and industrial pursuits.

Groundwork Laid

The best foundation for specialization in professional subjects is drawn from the cultural advantages supplied by the knowledge of literature, philosophy, and science, which give insight and breadth of vision and make for the formation of a really cultivated mind. Courses leading to the reception of degrees of Bachelor of Arts, and Bacheior of Philosophy, are officially recognized, and admit students without examination to the standard Law Schools of the country.

Supplementary to the School of Arts and Philosophy is the Department of Education which offers specialized training in preparation for the teaching profession. The teacher-training program is, in effect, a five-year program, leading to the Bachelor's and Master's degree. Those students who are planning to take up teaching as a profession are strongly urged to take the five-year program. While such a program is not made obligatory by state requirement, there is little doubt that it will soon be so.

The Department of Education proper consists of the junior and senior collegiate years, and a graduate year. Admission to the course pre-supposes two years of college education. The degree of Bachelor of Science in Education is granted upon the mastery of the senior year in college. The candidate may qualify for the Master's degree by additional work.

COLLEGE LOCATION AID TO SCIENTISTS

Many Ponds and Streams Aid Biology Students in Work

Situated as it is in the suburban districts of metropolitan Philadelphia, Villanova offers a large out door laboratory for the budding young scientist.

While most of the specimens for the biological laboratories are supplied by reputable biological supply houses throughout the nation, adventuresome young men desiring to get their information first hand have ample opportunity to do so in the countryside around Villanova. The college is located in the midst of a beautiful rolling country in the southeastern section of Pennsylvania which is well known for the beauty of its foliage and variety of its wild life.

On the college campus itself there are found two ponds and several small streams from which it is possible to obtain much of the algae, flowers and mosses studied in the biology laboratories. For the student of Embryology and Histology these ponds offer many specimens of developing eggs and young larvae of animals. Lining their banks are found many types of wild flowers which can thus be studied in their natural habitat.

In the near-by woods, cardinals, orioles, wild ducks, hawks and pheasants make their homes and can be readily seen by students interested in their development and life.

COLLEGE HONORS STUDENT MERIT

Extra-Curricular Activity Rewarded By Highly Prized Certificate Awards

Villanova College has in practice a system whereby the college honor students for meritorious participation in extra curricula activities. This reward comes in the form of the Merit Award.

To be eligible for the award the student must have a good academic standing and also be in good standing with the chaplain for chapel attendance and with the dean of men.

Conditions Must Be Passed

The moderators of all the various activities of the campus, such as intramural sports, band or dance orchestra, publications, debating teams and dramatics present a list of candidates to the dean of men. He forwards them to the deans of the respective schools of the college who pass on the students for scholastic standing.

Next the chaplain approves all those who have been faithful in attending chapel. Finally those remaining are passed upon by the Board of Counsellors comprising the dean of men and the rectors of the halls for discipline.

Those students who passed all the requirements are then presented with a handsomely engraved certificate bearing the seal of the college together with the name of the student, the activity in which he has participated and the signatures of the president of the college, the dean of men, the faculty moderator, and the chairman of the student council.

With such requirements, the number of winners is limited and consequently the winning of such distinction is something to be appreciated.

COLLEGE LIBRARY HAS EXTENSIVE QUARTERS

The happy hunting ground of the ambitious student is found within the walls of the library, where he may peruse books, either of a scholastic nature or of fictional character, to his heart's content. Above may be seen some of the students either at work or pleasurebent in the library.

COLLEGE LIBRARY HAS VULGATE TEXT PRINTED IN 1482

Priceless Bible Text is Rare Specimen; Shelves Contain 35,000 Volumes

Villanova College library, although old, is not antiquated. Its nucleus dates back to a period some years before the establishment of the college in 1842. When St. Augustine's Church in Philadelphia was burned by the Know-Nothings, the Augustinian Fathers removed the salvaged books to the college.

Rev Francis E. Tourscher, D. D., O. S. A., is the present librarian. The library was re-organized according to scholarly and recognized system of the Library of Congress. By this modification, the students have quick and frequent access to any book on the library shelves.

Thousands of Books Housed

Housing upwards of 35,000 books carefully selected for the use of the students and receiving more than 150 current periodicals on literature, philosophy, engineering, and education, the library is open all year.

At the present time, it occupies the first floor of Austin Hall pending the construction of the library building. Many rare and valuable editions are to be found on its shelves together with up-to-date books. Prominent among these is the Vulgate Bible text printed in 1482, the year before the birth of Martin Luther. It was printed in Nuremburg, Bavaria, by Anton Koberger. Though this text was printed ten years before Columbus discovered America, the smooth white surface of the paper shows no signs of corroding. Bound in with the Old and New Testaments, the Koberger has a college grammar of Latin. As medieval texts are rare, this treasure is above financial value.

Rare Texts on Shelves

The oldest book in the collection is a Roman impression printed by Herold in 1481. Written by Ambrose Coriolonus, this work contains a series of expositions on Monastic legislation according to the rule of St. Augustine. Ambrose Carilanus of Coranus, was a former Prior General of the Augustinian Friars who died at Rome in 1485.

Another Roman impression in the collection is the works, letters, poems and treatises of John Arthur Companus, printed by Eucherus Silber in 1495.

Among the famous manuscripts in the library are "Legenda Aurea," written in the 14th century and "Historia Deorum et Herorum," the work of a 15th century scribe.

VARIED STUDIES

Established in 1915 to meet the growing demand for a short, specialized preparation for Medical School, the School of Science was inaugurated at Villanova College offering a fully approved college Pre-Medical course.

Under the leadership of its present Dean, the Rev. Josph M. Dougherty, O.S.A., Ph.D., the Villanova School of Science has now merited the recognition and consideration of the most prominent Medical Schools in America, as well as the New York Board for Regents, American Association of Medical Colleges, and the State Board of Medical Licensors.

The Bachelor of Science degree is approved by the Association of American Colleges and the Association of Colleges of the Middle States and Maryland. Its course also meets the requirements of the Council of Medical Education and Hospitals of the American Medical Association.

The School of Science offers its students, besides an excellent Scientific Curriculum, a well-balanced and essential cultural course. In addition to lectures in general biology; bacteriology; comparative and human anatomy; embryology; genetics; physics; physiology; inorganic and physiological, organic and physical chemistry; and histology and others, a course in immunology, taught by the Dean, a specialist in this field, is also offered by the School of Science.

The faculty of the Science Department lays emphasis upon the subjects leading to the acquisition of the Bachelor of Science degree, rather than on the minimum requirments for th entrance to a professional school.

That a close, binding friendship is not soon forgotten on the Villanova campus was demonstrated conclusively on New Year's Day when the Villanova fotball team traveled to Cuba to meet the strong Auburn eleven. A young man, who formerly attended Villanova, learning of the visit of the Wildcats, immediately set out to secure the best accommodations possible for the players at the most reasonable cost. Certainly, this shows that the friendships which spring up at the Main Line college are not so quickly destroyed as those of other institutions.

From the foregoing, it can readily be seen why Villanova proves a mecca for all prospective students throughout the United States and outyling possessions. After all, true friendship is the most treasured possession in the world.

ODDS and ENDS

VILLANOVA COLLEGE offers anything that the student could possibly wish for. Its location is excellent both from a standpoint of beauty and convenience. Its buildings are modern and well equipped — and its fellows—well, its harder to find a better group anywhere. Unlike many colleges there is a definite spirit of friendliness that is characteristic of few other schools.

Chief among the habits of good fellowship instilled into the new students that set foot on the campus the first day is the very excellent "Hello" habit. This custom consists of a ruling that every student MUST say "Hello" to anyone he happens to meet on the campus. By means of this rule a bashful freshman meets the willing senior and the boy from out-of-town gets acquainted with his next door neighbor. Soon this custom really becomes a habit and does more to create good fellowship on the Villanova campus than any other feature.

Villanova students are always free to drop in any room on the campus and join in the talk-fest going on. The priests' rooms are always open, and it is never too late nor inconvenient for the students to drop in for a chat with the good Fathers who make themselves the students' companions.

Our college is ideally situated for the engineer because of its proximity to Philadelphia, one of the foremost industrial centers of the nation. Many trips are taken each year by the Engineers through the large industrial plants of the Quaker City.

The embryonic doctor finds Villanova especially to his liking because he has direct contact with the Jefferson, Hahnemann and Misericordia Hospitals in Philadelphia and has at his disposal the marvelous Wistar Institute of Anatomy, known throughout the world for its marvelous displays. Among other things of interest to the Pre-Medicos is the Philadelphia Academy of Natural Sciences, the library of which is the largest of its kind in the world.

Business students and those attracted by the Fine Arts find Villanova's proximity to Philadelphia of great value to them because they are able to visit and observe the workings of the city government and the large industrial firms.

Also found in Philadelphia are the famous Independence Hall, Carpenters Hall, the immortal Betsy Ross House, the Old Christ Church and the old Mint. No explanation of these places is necessary, for the student of history will find them to his liking. Few cities in the nation can compare with Philadelphia for historical importance.

Recreational facilities at Villanova are excellent. Its closeness to Philadelphia allows attendance at the opera, the legitimate theatre and the greater moving picture houses. For students desiring only to take in a nearby movie special rates in transportation and theatre prices are available at all the local theatres for Villanova students.

Then, too, there are always the Villanova dances mentioned elsewhere in this paper, to say nothing of those held at Rosemont, Immaculata and Mount Saint Joseph's colleges for Catholic women.

Philadelphia's Academy of Fine Arts as well as the Fels Planetarium and the Franklin Institute offer excellent opportunity for study and research. All these things are within easy distance of the college.

Situated as it is on the beautiful and famous Main Line, Villanova is virtually a "walker's paradise." It is surrounded by miles and miles of country roads which stretch as far as eye can see. To the minds of Villanova students, Villanova is THE college. We think there is no better located, no better equipped, no finer taught nor no finer peopled college in the country than Villanova. Come out and look around. You're always welcome.

Arts, Science Departments Offer Many Courses

Dept. of Arts, Philosophy Provides Liberal Education

TRAIN TEACHERS

One of the oldest departments on the Villanova campus, the School of Arts and Philosophy, embraces the very institution of the college itself. In 1842, the Augustinian Fathers, established in old St. Augustine's Church in Philadelphia since 1796, inaugurated the School of Arts and Philosophy on the present site of Villanova College.

The purpose of this school, as expressed by its dean, Rev. John F. Burns, O.S.A., Ph.D., is to provide systematic courses meeting the requirements of a liberal education, as well as to lay down a foundation for the study of the several professions or for the intelligent following of business and industrial pursuits.

Groundwork Laid

The best foundation for specialization in professional subjects is drawn from the cultural advantages supplied by the knowledge of literature, philosophy, and science, which give insight and breadth of vision and make for the formation of a really cultivated mind. Courses leading to the reception of degrees of Bachelor of Arts, and Bachelor of Philosophy, are officially recognized, and admit students without examination to the standard Law Schools of the country.

Supplementary to the School of Arts and Philosophy is the Department of Education which offers specialized training in preparation for the teaching profession. The teacher-training program is, in effect, a five-year program, leading to the Bachelor's and Master's degree. Those students who are planning to take up teaching as a profession are strongly urged to take the five-year program. While such a program is not made obligatory by state requirement, there is little doubt that it will soon be so.

The Department of Education proper consists of the junior and senior collegiate years, and a graduate year. Admission to the course pre-supposes two years of college education. The degree of Bachelor of Science in Education is granted upon the mastery of the senior year in college. The candidate may qualify for the Master's degree by additional work.

COLLEGE HONORS STUDENT MERIT

Extra-Curricular Activity Rewarded By Highly Prized Certificate Awards

Villanova College has in practice a system whereby the college honor students for meritorious participation in extra curricula activities. This reward comes in the form of the Merit Award.

To be eligible for the award the student must have a good academic standing and also be in good standing with the chaplain for chapel attendance and with the dean of men.

Conditions Must Be Passed

The moderators of all the various activities of the campus, such as intramural sports, band or dance orchestra, publications, debating teams and dramatics present a list of candidates to the dean of men. He forwards them to the deans of the respective schools of the college who pass on the students for scholastic standing.

Next the chaplain approves all those who have been faithful in attending chapel. Finally those remaining are passed upon by the Board of Counsellors comprising the dean of men and the rectors of the halls for discipline.

Those students who passed all the requirements are then presented with a handsomely engraved certificate bearing the seal of the college together with the name of the student, the activity in which he has participated and the signatures of the president of the college, the dean of men, the faculty moderator, and the chairman of the student council.

With such requirements, the number of winners is limited and consequently the winning of such distinction is something to be appreciated.

COLLEGE LOCATION AID TO SCIENTISTS

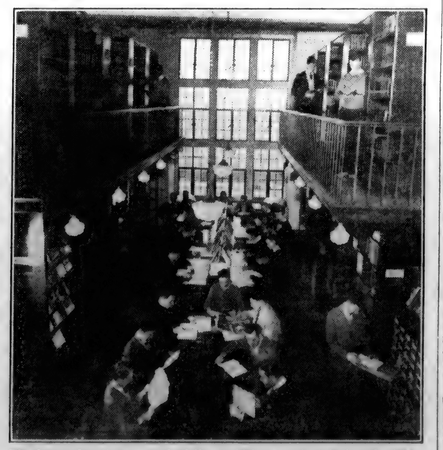
Situated as it is in the suburban districts of metropolitan Philadelphia, Villanova offers a large out door laboratory for the buddin, young scientist.

While most of the specimens fo the biological laboratories are supplied by reputable biological supply houses throughout the nation, adventuresome young men desiring to get their information first hand have ample opportunity to do so in the countryside around Villanova. The college is located in the midst of a beautiful rolling country in the southeastern section of Pennsylvania which is well known for the beauty of its foliage and variety of its wild life.

On the college campus itself there are found two ponds and several small streams from which it is possible to obtain much of the algae, flowers and mosses studied in the biology laboratories. For the student of Embryology and Histology these ponds offer many specimens of developing eggs and young larvae of animals. Lining their banks are found many types of wild flowers which can thus be studied in their natural habitat.

In the near-by woods, cardinals, orioles, wild ducks, hawks and pheasants make their homes and can be readily seen by students interested in their development and life.

COLLEGE LIBRARY HAS EXTENSIVE QUARTERS



The happy hunting ground of the ambitious student is found within the walls of the library, where he may peruse books, either of a scholastic nature or of fictional character, to his heart's content. Above may be seen some of the students either at work or pleasurebent in the library.

COLLEGE AWARDS 3 SCHOLARSHIPS TO QUALIFIED STUDENTS

Catholic Graduates of High Schools Eligible for Competitive Examinations

TESTING WILL COMMENCE HERE ON MONDAY, JUNE 21

Three scholarships, valued at one thousand dollars each and applicable to a four-year college course, will be awarded by Villanova College to properly qualified students for use beginning September, 1937.

The competitive scholarship examinations will be conducted at Villanova College on Monday, June 21, 1937. Catholic young men who are recent high school graduates and who need financial help to assist them through college are eligible for entrance in the examinations.

Based on Fundamentals

The award of scholarships will be based upon the results of competitive examinations covering the following subjects: mathematics, English, history, and language. Questions in the examinations will be based upon the material ordinarily covered during the high school courses in the aforementioned subjects.

The mathematics examination will entail comprehensive material in algebra, and plane and solid geometry. The usage of the English language, its spelling, and vocabulary, will be included in detail in the tests in English. A comprehensive examination will also be conducted covering reading, vocabulary, and grammar in one of the following: French, German, Spanish, or Latin. Also included in the examination material will be questions of American history, which will cover all matter up to the present day.

Registrations Accepted

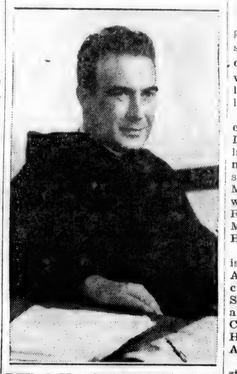
Students desirous of entering these competitive scholarship examinations, and who wish further information concerning their qualifications and method of conduction will send their applications to: Registrar, Villanova College, Villanova, Penna.

The program to be followed in conduction of the examinations on June 21 is as follows:

Villanova Science School Holds Prominent Position

Has Merited Recognition Among Foremost Medical Schools of Country, and Various Medical Associations

DEAN OF SCIENCE



REV. J. M. DOUGHERTY, O.S.A.

VARIED STUDIES

Established in 1915 to meet the growing demand for a short, specialized preparation for Medical School, the School of Science was inaugurated at Villanova College offering a fully approved college Pre-Medical course.

Under the leadership of its present Dean, the Rev. Joseph M. Dougherty, O.S.A., Ph.D., the Villanova School of Science has now merited the recognition and consideration of the most prominent Medical Schools in America, as well as the New York Board for Regents, American Association of Medical Colleges, and the State Board of Medical Licensors.

The Bachelor of Science degree is approved by the Association of American Colleges and the Association of Colleges of the Middle States and Maryland. Its course also meets the requirements of the Council of Medical Education and Hospitals of the American Medical Association.

The School of Science offers its students, besides an excellent Scientific Curriculum, a well-balanced and essential cultural course. In addition to lectures in general biology; bacteriology; comparative and human anatomy; embryology; genetics; physics; physiology; inorganic and physiological, organic and physical chemistry; and histology and others, a course in immunology, taught by the Dean, a specialist in this field, is also offered by the School of Science.

The faculty of the Science Department lays emphasis upon the subjects leading to the acquisition of the Bachelor of Science degree, rather than on the minimum requirments for th entrance to a professional school.

COLLEGE LIBRARY HAS VULGATE TEXT PRINTED IN 1482

Priceless Bible Text is Rare Specimen; Shelves Contain 35,000 Volumes

Villanova College library, although old, is not antiquated. Its nucleus dates back to a period some years before the establishment of the college in 1842. When St. Augustine's Church in Philadelphia was burned by the Know-Nothings, the Augustinian Fathers removed the salvaged books to the college.

Rev Francis E. Tourscher, D. D., O. S. A., is the present librarian. The library was re-organized according to scholarly and recognized system of the Library of Congress. By this modification, the students have quick and frequent access to any book on the library shelves.

Thousands of Books Housed

Housing upwards of 35,000 books carefully selected for the use of the students and receiving more than 150 current periodicals on literature, philosophy, engineering, and education, the library is open all year.

At the present time, it occupies the first floor of Austin Hall pending the construction of the library building. Many rare and valuable editions are to be found on its shelves together with up-to-date books. Prominent among these is the Vulgate Bible text printed in 1482, the year before the birth of Martin Luther. It was printed in Nuremburg, Bavaria, by Anton Koberger. Though this text was printed ten years before Columbus discovered America, the smooth white surface of the paper shows no signs of corroding. Bound in with the Old and New Testaments, the Koberger has a college grammar of Latin. As medieval texts are rare, this treasure is above financial value.

Rare Texts on Shelves

The oldest book in the collection is a Roman impression printed by Herold in 1481. Written by Ambrose Coriolonus, this work contains a series of expositions on Monastic legislation according to the rule of St. Augustine. Ambrose Carilanus of Coranus, was a former Prior General of the Augustinian Friars who died at Rome in 1485.

Another Roman impression in the collection is the works, letters, poems and treatises of John Arthur Companus, printed by Eucherus Siber in 1495.

Among the famous manuscripts in the library are "Legenda Aurea," written in the 14th century and "Historia Deorum et Herorum," the work of a 15th century scribe.

Technology, Commerce Courses Excellent

School Of Technology Completes 26th Year

Over Quarter Century of Progress Shows Rapid Rise to Prominence in Engineering Fields

4 DEGREES GIVEN

The School of Technology of Villanova College was instituted in the Fall of 1905 under the capable guidance of Dr. Lawrence A. Delaurey, O. S. A., and since that time has risen to be classed among the foremost institutions in the country, offering courses in civil, electrical, mechanical, and chemical engineering.

Carl T. Humphrey, M. S., Sc. D., assumed duties as dean of the School of Technology in 1908. Dean Humphrey's vast experience in the field of engineering and his long association with students, while on the faculty at Massachusetts Institute of Technology and Harvard, has been partly responsible for his fine work at Villanova. He has seen the Bachelor of Science degree in Technology merit the fine recognition and esteem it has received from the United States Government and from engineering corporations.

Small College Atmosphere

The Trustees of Villanova College have acted upon their conviction that courses adapted to the capabilities of the average student of engineering, and to the needs of industry, can be better presented by a properly supervised "small college" than they can be by the larger "universities." Endeavor is made in the School of Technology, as well as in the other schools on the Villanova campus, to treat students individually rather than in groups. Instruction is given by lectures, by recitations, and, necessarily, by practical work in the college laboratories and shops.

During the four year's engineering course at Villanova, the student is afforded every opportunity to acquire fundamental and advanced knowledge in technical and educational subjects. In the freshman year a groundwork in chemistry, mathematics, physics, and cultural subjects is given.

Fundamentals Stressed

The sophomore year entails further knowledge in the fundamentals of mathematics, physics, and English, as well as preparation for the technical work to be adopted later. In the junior year the students of all branches are required to pursue an extensive course in applied mechanics, followed by strength of materials, which gives the theory of beams, columns, and shafts.

At this time the students in civil, mechanical, and chemical engineering are given a special course in electrical engineering after they have finished the regular and general course in physics. All departments are given training in theoretical hydraulics in the senior year, as well as extensive work in their particular line.

COMMERCE SCHOOL MEETS NEEDS OF MODERN BUSINESS

Diversified Curriculum Offers Courses in All Phases of Industrial Management

PRE-LEGAL STUDY BEGUN

In response to the growing demand in the world of business and industry for men who have a grasp of the intricate problems underlying its construction, Villanova College inaugurated the School of Commerce and Finance on its campus in September, 1922.

Under the qualified direction of its Dean, the Rev. Joseph C. Bartley, O. S. A., Ph. D., the Commerce School gives to its students a broad and general conception of the industrial organism, before undertaking any particular specialization. By this method the student acquires a basic knowledge of the many aspects in the field of commerce and finance.

Basic Knowledge Stressed

Courses in accounting, business administration, finance, marketing, and preparation for law, are offered. These courses include in the curricula sufficient cultural studies in accordance with the tradition of a liberal arts education, which holds that no amount of technical training makes an educated man.

Undergoing a complete revision in the past scholastic year the Commerce and Finance Department has built up a curriculum that will enable any student to adjust himself favorably to the field for which he is best suited. Philosophy, literature, psychology and social science have been adopted with the intention of offering to the student the opportunity of a general and well founded view of the social, political and religious life of the community in which he lives.

Social and Economic Item Listed

Ranked among the leading schools of the foremost colleges, the Commerce and Finance School at Villanova presents a complete curriculum and selection of subjects of social and economic importance. In the course are included subjects on economics, statistics and money and banking.

Also supplemented in the School of Commerce and Finance is a course which will supply the student with sufficient credits for entrance into the law schools of the country.

COLLEGE SUMMER SCHOOL OFFERS MANY COURSES

Variety of Subjects Covering Several Fields Given During Session

Begun in 1919, the Villanova College Summer Sessions have been conducted to furnish courses for those who find it desirable to pursue their studies during the Summer months.

Meets All Needs

In establishing this school, the authorities of Villanova have arranged the courses to meet the needs of the Catholic teaching Sisterhoods and Brotherhoods; school teachers and others in professional service, nurses in training, librarians, and graduate students wishing to continue their studies by means of Summer Session courses only.

A notable feature of this branch of the college is the large number of courses which are offered for graduate work. Teaching at these sessions are a representative group of visiting professors coming from the various high school and universities in the vicinity of Philadelphia.

V. C. PART-TIME, EVENING SCHOOLS OFFER COURSES

Opportunities for Various Degrees Offered by Philadelphia Classes

Villanova College is conducting Saturday Morning Sessions from 9 A. M. to Noon, both on its campus and at the Hallahan Girls' High School in Philadelphia.

All courses are given by the regular members of the College teaching staff and are identical in method and content with courses given on the campus. Over 700 students are registered for the present sessions, some of which are registered for graduate work.

Broad Program

A broad program of courses is offered by means of which part-time students are able to acquire the following degrees: Master of Arts, Master of Science, Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Science in Education (Elementary), Bachelor of Science in Education (Secondary) and Bachelor of Science in Nursing.

Evening Classes of the same nature are also held at the Catholic Girls' High School.

Technology Department Offers Wealth of Experimental Rooms

Reputed to possess the best-equipped laboratories in the various colleges in the country, the Villanova College School of Technology offers a diversification of experimental roome to its students.

Included in the category of laboratories are wood shop, machine shop, drawing, in addition to the regular laboratories of highway, dynamo, materials, mechanical engineering, organic, general, quantitative and physics.

Road Building Studied

In the highway laboratory, the students undertake the testing of concrete specimens for strengths in comprehension and tension. It is here that the engineers acquaint themselves with the rudiments of concrete and learn of their forces. This is considered one of the most important laboratories in the engineering department.

Another experimental room which receives considerable attention from the engineering students is the dynamo laboratory. Various electrical devices are studied and the students work with generators, motors, transformers, and others of the like. They experiment in detail with these different appliances and acquire invaluable knowledge in regards to electricity.

Minerals Given Severe Tests

Another laboratory which is one of the outstanding in the engineering school is that of material testing. The students test steel, iron and wood and perform what is implied, that is, testing for the various results.

The mechanical engineering laboratory is used exclusively by those majoring in mechanical engineering. Steam engines and internal combustion engines are studied in detail and various experiments are performed on these machines.

The chemical laboratory is divided into the general, organic, quantitative and physics. In the general, the chemistry is all-embracing and the student receives a general knowledge of chemical experiments. In the physics laboratory, the many physics laws are verified. Organic preparations are studied in the organic experimental room. The quantitative laboratory presents to the students the various methods of altering the weights and percentages by chemical analysis.

Intricate Details Revealed

The machine shop acquaints the engineering students with the intricate parts of the various machines. Parts of machines are studied in every detail, and the students receive a good deal of practical knowledge by means of this course being offered.

The wood shop and drawing room are also important in the curriculum of the technology school. In the former, many objects are made by the students for their own use and benefit, while all kinds of drawing is done in the latter, including free-hand and by rule.

With such a wide variety of experimental rooms, it can readily be seen why Villanova's Engineering School is considered one of the foremost in the nation today.

REAL ESTATE LIENS REVEALED BY PROBE OF LAW STUDENTS

Course in Property Encumbrances Offered Senior Members of Commerce School

PROFESSOR HENRY GUIDES LAST-YEAR MEN IN WORK

Theoretical and Practical Knowledge of House Purchase is the Outcome of Research

A course in conjunction with business law is offered to the senior students of the School of Commerce and Finance in the form of research into the encumbrances on any property in the district of Philadelphia.

Under the able and prudent guidance of William H. Henry, LL. B., professor of business law, the members acquire invaluable practical experience which will prove very helpful in the future.

Procedure is Arduous

The procedure to be followed by each student requires a great deal of work and effort, but their learning of many legal aspects of this phase will more than compensate for their efforts.

Each student receives his assignment from Mr. Henry in the form of a designated street number, from which he locates the ward where it is located. He then follows this with the main point of the assignment, that is, the discovering of any lien or mortage against the said property. This requires a complicated process that takes from five to ten hours to complete.

Of course, if the property has no lien against it the assignment will not be so long, but if a mortgage is discovered, there follows a long and wrawn-out process.

Research is Under Real Estate Law

This research, which comes under the title of real estate law, is one of the most beneficial offered to the students of Villanova. Starting slowly, it has risen rapidly to become one of the most important courses presented in the Commerce and Finance Department.

It not only gives the students theoretical knowledge, but enables them to secure the much-sought practical experience which every college student wishes to have upon his graduation

PROFESSOR HENRY GUIDES LAST-YEAR MEN IN WORK

Theoretical and Practical Knowledge of House Purchase is the Outcome of Research

A course in conjunction with business law is offered to the senior students of the School of Commerce and Finance in the form of research into the encumbrances on any property in the district of Philadelphia.

Under the able and prudent guidance of William H. Henry, LL. B., professor of business law, the members acquire invaluable practical experience which will prove very helpful in the future.

Procedure is Arduous

The procedure to be followed by each student requires a great deal of work and effort, but their learning of many legal aspects of this phase will more than compensate for their efforts.

Each student receives his assignment from Mr. Henry in the form of a designated street number, from which he locates the ward where it is located. He then follows this with the main point of the assignment, that is, the discovering of any lien or mortage against the said property. This requires a complicated process that takes from five to ten hours to complete.

Of course, if the property has no lien against it the assignment will not be so long, but if a mortgage is discovered, there follows a long and wrawn-out process.

Research is Under Real Estate Law

This research, which comes under the title of real estate law, is one of the most beneficial offered to the students of Villanova. Starting slowly, it has risen rapidly to become one of the most important courses presented in the Commerce and Finance Department.

It not only gives the students theoretical knowledge, but enables them to secure the much-sought practical experience which every college student wishes to have upon his graduation.

UPON looking at the record, it is seen that the sports year 1936-'37 produced an interesting mixture of joy and gloom, of success and reversal. Perhaps the most stunning defeat suffered by a Wildcat team occurred at Bucknell last October 31, when the Blue and White went down ingloriously to a 6-0 score. It was a day of upsets in the football world. Minnesota, Army, Holy Cross and Yale all ending up behind the famous eight-ball; but to be beaten by the Thundering Herd, or as it was put before the fray, the Rambling Whisper, was disgrace in its ultimate form. On the other hand, the team redeemed itself for that debacle and the loss to Temple by putting on a wonderful exhibition in New York to overcome Manhattan 12-0. Here the score was no indication of the difference between the opponents. The Wildcats plunged and passed like All-Americans; their spinners, reverses and open field laterals had the Kelly Green more than slightly dismayed. The in and out season was climaxed by the now famous trip to Havana, where the Main Liners tied the Orange and Blue of Auburn in a game played under a tropical sun.

—V—

Color? To be sure, Villanova had no Larry Kelley; but in the estimation of many observers our own Art "Rabbit" Raimo possessed that indefeinable pigment in large lumps. His sensational weaving through enemy lines earned the 165-pound fullback the Lions' Club "Most Valuable Player" Plaque for the season.

—V—

The basketball team scored many notable victories, although the squad did not attain the success registered by other Villanova teams. Providence, Duquesne, Dickinson, Bucknell, City College of New York and St. John's were included among the V-men prey, as Indiana, Temple, George Washington and New York University took the measure of the 'Cats. We bid farewell to a team which, with better fortune, might have done a lot more damage to opposing quintets.

—V—

Villanova was represented most capably within the squared circle by a team which lost only one match, and that to Wisconsin, Big Ten champions who have a disturbing habit of not losing to anyone. Even in this encounter the 'Cats glovers, preponderantly freshman in makeup, handled themselves well, and were very certainly not disgraced or outclassed by their more experienced foemen. Captain Tony Sala, who doubles in brass by dropping them on the gridiron and in the ring, was undefeated in inter-collegiate competition again, and also successfully defended his Eastern Intercollegiate crown for the third time at Syracuse in three hard bouts.

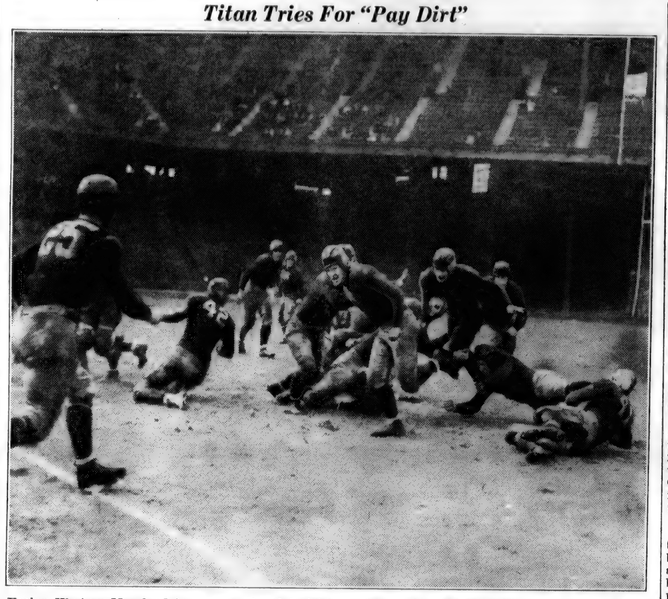
—V—

It is still too early to comment on the baseball season except to say that the future looks bright. After suffering two reversals to Princeton and the Phillies, the Blue tossers found themselves and slaughtered Pennsylvania and Providence, compiling 17 runs against their opponents' four. Now that the warm weather has arrived to loosen up the old soupbones, the Feline mound artisans should muffle enemy bats as capably as they did last year. The new "destiny" infield, composed of sophomores Bond, Crawley, Merullo and Del' Uomo has looked very good to these eyes, inexperienced though they may be.

END TAKEN OUT

When Ray Gadsby, trainer of Villanova's athletic teams checked up on the grid squad he reported to head coach Clipper Smith that 22 players of the squad of 71 had suffered injuries of some sort or another during the drills, none of them serious with one exception. He listed that exception—a guard who had his pants torn off.

Titan Tries For "Pay Dirt"



Facing Western Maryland in a game played in Villanova's new home field, Shibe Park, home of the Philadelphia Athletics, the Wildcats came through to win by two touchdowns, making the score of 13-0.

Wildcat Varsity Football Mentor Gained Wide Experience in West

By WILLIAM BOWKER

When the students of Villanova College returned to school in the Fall of last year, they saw a new face at the helm of the football ship. His name? "Clipper" Smith. Throughout the breadth and length of the West Coast of these United States he was known as the "Clipper," and now, after a year's stay on the Atlantic Coast, so to speak, we find his now familiar cognomen in the lines of the Eastern newspapers.

How He Got the Name

In case anyone is interested, Mr. Smith, of coaching fame, has as his given name, Maurice. For those who do not already know, and they are few, it will not be amiss to relate how he came about acquiring the name by which he is known in the sports world. Naturally it was given to him by his teammates at Notre Dame, where the "Clipper" cavorted under the most able tutelage of the one and only Knute Rockne. This one year the Ramblers were playing the team from the Great Lakes Naval Training base, and a certain guard on the N. D. eleven was causing the Sailors no end of worry by his aggressive play. So much so, that upon the conclusion of the game, one of the Reserve lads came in the Rockne's dressing room and inquired of one of the players who the 145-lb. demon guard was. The answer came from the players, "Oh, that fellow, that's 'Clipper' Smith." And so the name.

Columbia First

After the four years at Notre Dame had come to their all too quick conclusion, the "Clipper" left the tutelage of the Grand Old Coach to take up the duties of instilling that fighting spirit into the hearts of the pigskin chasers of Columbia University of Portland.

Many of his friends questioned the advisability of moving his duds into a more or less unknown place, but the Smith man knew what he wanted to do and he did it. The season of 1921 saw the University of Columbia, with an enrollment of about 100 men, become a known factor on the coast, although the material available was not of the best, by any means.

Gonzaga to Santa Clara

"Clipper's" fame spread about the coast, and as a result, Gonzaga College, of Spokane, Washington, took the lad into its arms and installed him as head coach. Again, a comparatively unknown football team took on the aspects of being a "tough nut to handle." Gonzaga's football saga became definitely brighter and more satisfying to its followers. The crowning effort of the Smith regime was the conquering of the mighty Gaels of St. Mary's College, coached by none other than the "Clipper's" old teammate, "Slip" Madigan. Four years after his arrival at the banks of Gonzaga, he packed up his bags and traveled southward to Santa Clara.

As before, Santa Clara was forced to build a new team, although the material given him was much better than was the case the two previous times. Smith had good material, and he made the most of it. However, the Jesuit school had not been heard of much in the way of football. The "Broncos," as they were known, began to throw their riders with the advent of the "Clipper." Among the most noted of the riders to be unseated, and the first to be awarded that dubious honor was "Pop" Warner, who, with his Stanford Indians, was the victim of a sensational upset. Mr. Warner was soon joined by other coaches, who found to their consternation that Smith coached teams were becoming noted for their habit of knocking off the bigger, and supposedly better, teams. California's Golden Bears fell before the "Bronco's" ferocious attack two years hard-running. Stanford and St. Mary's, two of the "big guns" of the coast, could do no better than to tie the Santa Clara club in 1935, the best season Santa Clara had under Smith.

East to Villanova

That brings the saga of Villanova's new coach up to the present where he is holding forth as head of the destinies of the Wildcats.

POST SEASON FRAY WITH AUBURN TEAM GRIDDERS' CLIMAX

Smith's First Year Great Success as Wildcats Climb Football Ladder

By JOHN L. SIMONS

In his first season as football mentor Clipper Smith fielded a very successful team. Villanova's Wildcats, 1936 edition, showed throughout the season rare courage and "guts." It was due largely to this never say die spirit that the Villanova eleven was invited to participate in the post-season game with Auburn at Havana. After the tough, bruising defeat the 'Cats suffered at the hands of Temple they could have been excused for a let-down.

But the Blue-and-White warriors refused to quit. They came back the following Saturday, November 21, breathing fire and proceeded to wallop a highly-touted Manhattan College team by a 12-0 score. This influenced the promoters to invite the Villanova team.

Auburn Game Climax

All this led up to the climax of the campaign, the contest with Auburn. It was this game more than any other that gave Villanova the boost into prominence as a football power. Auburn perennially rates with the big teams, and when the Villanova boys came from behind in the best Merriwellian style to tie the Plainsmen at 7-7, the 'Cats hit the top.

The 'Cats started on the road to Havana away back last September when they handed the Cadets of P. M. C. a 32-7 shellacking in the only game played on the home field. Four veterans, Andy Stopper, Ray Stoviak, Art Raicno and Jack Earle, and one newcomer, Harvey Buek, led the Villanova scoring parade.

On the following week-end the Main Liners traveled into Shibe Park in Philadelphia to meet their early season nemesis, the Detroit Titans. This time, however, the jinx was shattered, and the 'Cats playing before a Sunday crowd of 17,000 took the Midwesterners into camp, 13-8.

Nittany Lions Caged

Clipper Smith's charges were still in a jinx-breaking mood the next week. On Saturday, October 10, the Wildcats defeated Penn State at State College. This was the first time Villanova was able to beat the Nittany Lions since the series began back in 1902. A touchdown in the second half of the touchdowns in this triumph. It was in this fray that the "Clipper" first used his "Pony Express" fullback, Art Raimo, at right half. Art showed his versatility by making good with a bang at his new post.

The Blue-and-White kept its record clean by trouncing a hitherto undefeated Western Maryland aggregation by the same score 13-0. Frank Nye and Art Raimo, a pair of Juniors, occupied the scoring spotlight in a game that was also featured by the long-range punting of Andy Stopper.

The victory string was run to five when the 'Cats had a very decided "on" day and trampled the Boston University gridders 25-7. The exhibition of blocking put on by the boys that afternoon was perfection itself.

With the victory streak at five disaster came upon the Wildcats when the Thundering Herd of Bucknell sent the Main Liners down to their first defeat of the year by the margin of a lone touchdown, 6-0. The blocking, which was effective the previous week, was noticeably lacking.

With this bad game out of their system the gridders swung back into the win column when they traveled to Columbia, South Carolina, to hang a 14-0 defeat on the Gamecocks of South Carolina University. Temple beat the Cats 6-0, then came Manhattan.

GADSBY IS PLEASED BY BOXERS' RECORD

Glove Team Faces Toughest Schedule in Career and Comes Through

By RAY GADSBY

This year's boxing season as a whole was certainly successful to my mind. Although we didn't win all our matches, I was quite satisfied with the showing made by our boys in the stiff competition they met this season. Many of the bouts we dropped were close enough to be called either way, but that all comes in the game.

The season's opener with Army in the Cadets' Field House at West Point came more or less as a surprise to everyone. Army has not been defeated for several years on their home grounds. Most people expected us to come home on the short end of things, but the boys put up a great fight. After losing the first two bouts I thought we had earned a point in Eddie Kirk's fight. Apparently the judges thought differently and awarded the victory to Army. Pete Rodgers dropped another close one in the heavyweight division to enable Army to gain a draw. The high spot was Bob Mentzinger's knockout victory over Cadet Hull, Rocky Mountain champion, in the 145-pound class.

The result of the deadlock with Temple was a distinct shock to all persons connected with Villanova. Many of the spectators were of the opinion that the Wildcat Mittmen should have returned with a victory. There were three forfeits in this match. We were forced to concede the 115-pound class because of the illness of Vince Shugrue. Temple forfeited to Bill Duffy and Captain Sala, two sure winners for us. It was in this meet that Kirk, still smarting from the Army decision, came through with a first round knockout victory. "Sparkie" Jarosik began showing really good form with another first round knockout. However, I must admit, the final results were a big disappointment to me.

The outstanding accomplishment

BASKETBALL SQUAD WINS 15 CONTESTS UNDER NEW COACH

Alex. G. Severance Appointed to Succeed "Doc" Jacobs as Mentor

SOPHOMORES AID SENIORS IN SUCCESSFUL CAMPAIGN

Victories Over C. C. N. Y., Duquesne, St. John's Feature Court Season

With a new coach at the helm, and an undefeated group of last year's championship yearlings in the lineup, Villanova took a new and decided turn in the basketball world this past season.

Al Severance, '29, successful mentor of the frosh in previous years succeeded George "Doc" Jacobs in the driver's seat. At the first turnout of the candidates, prospects for the coming season looked very, very bright. However, the club ran into various difficulties at the outset, but finished brilliantly in winning 15 of the 22 games.

Noonan and Carrig Out

The squad looked very impressive in the early workout with everything pointing to a successful season. However, the campus rocked when Charlie Noonan was forced to leave school at the apex of his short but brillian career. Charlie was considered the best shot and money player on the entire team.

To add to the new mentor's worries, Joe Carrig was seriously injured in the annual frosh-soph embroglio. He turned up with a crushed shoulder, which forced him to sidelines for the season. A day or so before the opening contest with Seton Hall, Lank Montgomery turned up with a sprained back.

The Wildcats made an auspicious start trouncing a highly-overrated Seton Hall five, 23-21. Coach Severance used a variety of combinations in an effort to secure a winning unit. Montgomery, despite the fact that his back was taped, played a marvelous game at the forward position.

Western Maryland next challenged the onslaught of the Felines, but the Terrors were disappointing in their 51-20 defeat. Hank McNally led the scorers with 16 notches. Dubino was close behind with 14.

Away to New England

The Cats then entrained for the New England States where they faced three adversaries in as many days. St. Anselme fell easily, 37-32. However, Providence put up a stern fight before falling, 40-39. In the last game of the road trip the ephemeral streak of the Wildcats was snapped by a cocky Springfield five. The game was played on a collapsible floor placed over an ice rink in the hockey arena. The visiting team suffered immensely from the cold atmosphere of the Field House. The ultimate winners realized the Felines plight, and took advantage of it. The score was 20-4 at the half, but the Wildcats put on a burst of speed and outplayed their foe in the remaining canto, but this was not enough. The final score was 32-22.

Villanova arrived home in time to absorb their second successive drubbing. This time Indiana did the honors, 43-28. The Big-Ten champs were unstoppable in the opening period, but little Vigilante was the moral hero of the evening. He stopped big Bib Guinning cold when placed on him in the second half.

Villanova showed a reversal of form to upset a highly-favored Duquesne quintet, 32-20. The Dukes were badly battered and only the insertion of substitutes on the part of Severance prevented further humiliation. Krutulis led the scoring with 11 markers.

Temple Again

Dickinson proved an easy victim for the local charges. The Red Devils fell hard, 44-28. However, Temple again set Villanova in the defeat column. Howie Black's 14 tallies were too much for the Wildcats to master. Krutulis played a bang-up game before he was forced to retire early in the second half. He tied the score at the outset of the last canto but was benched by the officials before he could do much damage. Temple, 28; Villanova, 23.

George Washington traveled north to hand the Main Liners another pasting. The Colonels, paced by Ben Goldfaden, walked off with another 33-23 win. Villanova jumped back into the winning circle with a 33-27 conquest over Providence. It was their second victory of the present campaign over the Friars.

Geneva Wins

Ursinus gave very little competition, falling hard, 39-14. Lou Wannemacher, reserve utility man, was the individual star of the fray. Geneva turned an almost inevitable defeat into a brilliant victory, when they trounced the Wildcats, 25-21, Villanova's inability to register from the foul marker really cost them the game.

Bucknell was spanked, 37-14, in the annual grudge game. Westminster also fell heavily, 27-14. The Coventers were counted on to be one of the best teams out of the West, but they certainly were disappointing in their appearance here.

Dickinson surprised the overconfident Villanovans when they eked out a 27-26 win. Bull Kintzing, star center, pushed the Red Devils ahead with a field goal in the waning seconds of the dull and dismal affair.

Lafayette's Leopards fell an easy prey to the Wildcat's claws. Villanova forged head at the opening whistle and finished strongly, 44-30. C. C. N. Y. furnished the greatest scare for the locals this season. Villanova finally won, 33-32, after the lead had see-sawed back and forth several times. The last of McNally's six foul shots provided the margin.

Six Straight

Albright and Lehigh went down, 39-20, and 34-23, respectively. N. Y. U. stopped the Feline win streak at six, the longest of the season. The game was played in the Garden and the crowd possibly had some influence on the ultimate losers for they never did get going and the New Yorkers finished on top, 37-23.

The Cats scored their fourth upset of the year when they overwhelmed the strong St. John's Indians, 31-25. Brennan played the game of his career in holding the high-scoring Gerry Bush to one point. George Washington tallied their second win of the season in the final game of the campaign. Obie O'Brien paced his mates to a 29-27 runaway.

Graduation will take its toll in the persons of McNally and Brennan, two of the best floor men on the outfit. However, Villanova rooters can smile for all the veterans but one, Walt McKenna, are sophomores this year. A strong freshman club will, without doubt, bolster the varsity considerably next year, and if the spirit, co-operation and good material are any goog indications, the Cats should finish on top against some of the best basketball opposition in the East next season.

Frenzied Action on the Boards

of the season was the decisive 6-2 win over Bucknell, Eastern Association Champions for 1937. Shull broke into the winning column by beating Steve Stephano, last year's Eastern Association 115-pound champion. Eddie Kirk soundly trounced Androski, who later won the 135-pound title in the Association Championships at the Penn A. C. Valentine and Quick, 165- and 175-pound title holders in the same Association, were also decisively beaten by Jarosik and Sala. "Sparkie" fought the finest bout of his collegiate career that night. Sala met a tartar in Marty Quick. Tony had only one bout under his belt to date that night, while Quick boasted five straight victories. Sala was almost floored with a wild right in the opening round, but he soon regained his equilibrium and boxed his way through the remainder of the round. He won the second and third round to gain the decision. Some people thought it was very close, but they didn't realize the power of Tony's punches. It was later discovered that Sala cracked three of Quick's ribs in the fight.

After dropping matches to Western Maryland for two straight years, the Wildcats had sweet revenge on the Green Terrors by clubbing out another decisive 6-2 win. Although I had expected a victory, the results exceeded my expectations. The highlight of the evening's activities was the brilliant exhibition put on by Captain Sala in defeating Tony Ortenzi, Western Maryland's stocky light-heavyweight. Sala showed championship form in beating the durable Ortenzi. It was amusing to watch Bill Duffy, a legitimate welterweight take the human beanstalk, Andrews, the visiting 155-pounder. Despite the handicap of reach and height, Bill came through in capable style, easily carrying the judges' decisions.

Intercollegiates Next

Then came the Eastern Intercollegiate Championship matches at Syracuse. Sala again retained his light-heavyweight title the hard way—without a single "bye." His first opponent was Sol Maksik, of Penn. Maksik, who has fought 155, 165 and 175 in this three years of collegiate competition, had yet to meet defeat. There was no doubt but that the Quaker put up a great fight and is a good boxer, but Tony outboxed and outslugged him throughout the entire three rounds. Sala, by another fine show of sportsmanship, carried his semi-final opponent George Regan, of Syracuse, through the third round. For this fine gesture, he received a tremendous ovation. Tony came through in amazing fashion after two close rounds to beat his final opponent, Nestor Kociubinsky, of Penn State, who previously had likewise been undefeated. It was certainly a thrill to hear the announcer at the finish shout—"The winner and still champion, Mr. Anthony Sala, Villanova." Three times intercollegiate champion! It will be a long time before another such record appears on the annals of intercollegiate boxing.

The Wisconsin meet is no longer news. It was admitted by both the spectators and the Wisconsin students that four of the bouts, Kirk, Shull, Duffy and Jarosik, could have been called either way. We started off the match with two strikes on us, having to forfeit the 115 and heavyweight bouts. In our other fights, Mike Rutecky fought in the unlimited class, but it was too much to expect of him to compete with the experienced men he met. College boxing is just like college football or baseball. A coach couldn't expect a man to be a star in football if he hadn't played in high school. Experience is needed just as much if not more in boxing.

We have started compiling a schedule of eight or nine meets with some of the best boxing teams in the East for next season. Because of the large crowds which witnessed our bouts during the past year, I feel certain that boxing will soon become a major sport at Villanova. However, as far as the team goes, things look rather dubious.

TANKMEN WIND UP SUCCESSFUL SEASON

York Staters Only Team to Defeat Wildcat Swimmers

Villanova's splashers set a new high during the 1937 season in the number of meets scheduled and won in one campaign. Under the direction of Coach Arthur Mathieu, Manager Joseph Dougherty lined up nine meets with teams from Pennsylvania, New York and New Jersey.

The Pennsylvania institutions included St. Joseph's College, Lafayette, Swarthmore, West Chester State Teachers and the Wildcats' traditional rival, Temple University.

York Staters Win

New York State sent St. Francis, of Brooklyn, to meet the mermen, and from the state of New Jersey came Rider College. Incidentially, it was these two above mentioned teams that were responsible for Villanova's two defeats. The fact that the winning teams were from outside the state of Pennsylvania holds no significance with regard to the caliber of swimmers in this state for although St. Francis has a fine team, on the day she met Villanova she was aided by illness which hindered almost all of the Blue and White's first string men from competing.

St. Joseph's College were the first victims of the season. They suffered an overwhelming defeat at the hands of the Natators which defeat was repeated with greater severity two months later in the closing encounter of the season.

Lafayette Swamped

After bowing to St. Francis the mermen received Lafayette in the home pool and proceeded to wash their ears in return for the very severe ducking received at Easton last year.

Another enjoyable victory for Villanova was that over Swarthmore College. In previous years the visitors have caused the meets to be exceptionally close and this year's comfortable win definitely proves that the sport of swimming on the Blue and White campus has taken a decided step forward.

One of the most delectable conquests of the season was the compete picking of the Owl. And similarly, as in the case of St. Joseph's, the second meeting was even more disastrous than the first; of all the teams on the campus this year the swimmers were the only ones capable of making the Owl retreat from the fury of the Wildcat's claws.

West Chester also proved to be a willing subject for the fin-men as they taught the correct method of coming in first in every event.

The second and final defeat of the season which was suffered at the hand of Rider College took quite a bit of wind out of the sails of the Blue and White swimmers who were becoming a bit chesty. Rider possessed some fine swimmers and despite all efforts on the part of Villanova they won a decided victory even though the Wildcat mermen made them fight for every point.

Points scored by the Wildcat finmen for the whole season almost doubled those chalked up against them. In nine meets Villanova scored an average of 48 8/9 points per meet to 27 2/9 points for the opposition.

Greco '38 Captain

Captain-elect for the 1938 season is Toby Greco, who stood fourth this season in the number of points scored with 47.06. Greco, whose specialty is the backstroke, will be a senior in the School of Science next year. As a competing member of the Penn Athletic Club Swimming he has earned himself a reputation in this city.

FROSH PROFICIENT IN MAJOR SPORTS

Large Squads Display Talents in First Year Athletics

In reviewing the activities of the freshman football and basketball teams, we find that even though the football men only scrimmaged with the varsity and played no outside games, they together with the basketballmen proved themselves to be the greatest collection of freshmen material that ever entered these portals.

With the basketball season being over for nearly two months and Spring practice well on its way, we can gaze with pride on the splendid record that the freshman basketball team made during the past season. Out of a total of fifteen games the Kittens came back with twelve wins against three losses.

The only two quintets powerful enough to beat them were the Temple Frosh and the Brown Prep courtmen, and after seeing the subsequent record of these two teams, these defeats were nothing to be ashamed of. They reached the peak when they defeated the highly-touted Ursinus quintet by ten points.

Their season was very successful and their Spring practice sessions point to a more successful season in 1937-38 when they join the varsity.

The freshman football squad, composed of thirty-five men, although it has no record to fall back on in college except that of varsity scrimmages, can look back individually to its preparatory school record that ranks with the best in the country. Every man is well-equipped with both brain and brawn and is in the best physical shape possible.

During this Spring practice they have turned out en masse with such a burst of vigor and zest that they have instilled it into the the varsity men. Some freshmen have even threatened to take over several of the varsity berths. "Doc" Jacobs is to be congratulated for the excellent job of scouting that he made last year.

"Clipper" has formed several teams composed of freshmen and these have often pushed the varsity right off the field. He also formed a pair of fast backfields composed entirely of '40 men and these he plans to use in games as a unit. One is quarterbacked by Harry Mazzei and the other by John Howlett. A pair of skillful and competent ends were discovered in Frank Bukofski and Walt Nowak. It seems that these two boys have all the makings of varsity material and will see plenty of action in this coming season.

Tommy Casper, from Wayne, Pa., and Peter Periera show great promise in the guard position and have already been accorded recognition for their capable work. Andy Chisick will probably be the substitute center this year as he has many times in Spring as well as in Fall practice distinguished himself by his competent work in his position. Andy comes from Newark and played first string center there for two years successively. Among the backs we have quite a few big boys who show signs of having something on the ball. Vic Cook, Red Kamen, Tom McMahon and Jim McKnight are all battling for a position of the first three teams and doubtless some of them will make it.

In the Columbia scrimmage these frosh showed up remarkably and were complimented both by "Clipper" and Lou Little. Their blocking, tackling and execution of plays was very commendable. Although we are quite certain that this year's freshman team will turn out well, we will, however, have to wait for the first game to actually see it.

UPON looking at the record, it is seen that the sports year 1936-37 produced an interesting mixture of joy and gloom, of success and reversal. Perhaps the most stunning defeat suffered by a Wildcat team occurred at Bucknell last October 31, when the Blue and White went down ingloriously to a 6-0 score. It was a day of upsets in the football world. Minnesota, Army, Holy Cross and Yale all ending up behind the famous eight-ball; but to be beaten by the Thundering Herd, or as it was put before the fray, the Rambling Whisper, was disgrace in its ultimate form. On the other hand, the team redeemed itself for that debacle and the loss to Temple by putting on a wonderful exhibition in New York to overcome Manhattan 12-0. Here the score was no indication of the difference between the opponents. The Wildcats plunged and passed like All-Americans; their spinners, reverses and open field laterals had the Kelly Green more than slightly dismayed. The in and out season was climaxed by the now famous trip to Havana, where the Main Liners tied the Orange and Blue of Auburn in a game played under a tropical sun.

Color? To be sure, Villanova had no Larry Kelley; but in the estimation of many observers our own Art "Rabbit" Raino possessed that indefeinable [illegible] college backs. His sensational weaving through enemy lines earned the 165-pound fullback the Lions' Club "Most Valuable Player" Plaque for the season.

The basketball team scored many notable victories although the squad did not attain the success registered by other Villanova teams. Providence, Duquesne, Dickinson, Bucknell City College of New York and St. John's were included as some the V-men prey, as Indiana, Temple, George Washington and New York University took the measure of the Cats. We did succeed in a team which, with better fortune, might have done a lot more damage to opposing quintets.

V

Villanova was represented most capably within the squared circle by a team which lost only one match, and that to Wisconsin, Big Ten champions who have a disturbing habit of not losing to anyone. Even in this encounter the Cats glovers, preponderantly in stature in manpug, handled themselves well, and were very certainly not disgraced or outclassed by their more experienced foemen. Captain Tony Sala, who doubles in brass by dropping them on the gridiron and in the ring, was undefeated in inter-collegiate competition again, and also successfully defended his Eastern Intercollegiate crown for the third time at Syracuse in three hard bouts.

V

It is still too early to comment on the baseball season except to say that the future looks bright. After suffering two reversals to Princeton and the Phillies, the Blue tossers found themselves and slaughtered Pennsylvania and Providence, compiling 17 runs against their opponents' four. Now that the warm weather has arrived to loosen up the old soupbones, the Feline mound artisans should muffle enemy bats as capably as they did last year. The new "destiny" infield, composed of sophomores Bond, Crawley, Merullo and Del' Uomo has looked very good to these eyes, inexperienced though they may be.

END TAKEN OUT

When Ray Gadsby, trainer of Villanova's athletic teams checked up on the grid squad he reported to head coach Clipper Smith that 22 players of the squad of 71 had suffered injuries of some sort or another during the drills, none of them serious with one exception. He listed that exception a guard who had his pants torn off.

Titan Tries For "Pay Dirt"

Facing Western Maryland in a game played in Villanova's new home field, Shibe Park, home of the Philadelphia Athletics, the Wildcats came through to win by two touchdowns, making the score of 13-0.

Wildcat Varsity Football Mentor Gained Wide Experience in West

By WILLIAM BOWKER

When the students of Villanova College returned to school in the Fall of last year, they saw a new face at the helm of the football ship. His name? "Clipper" Smith. Throughout the breadth and length of the West Coast of these United States he was known as the "Clipper," and now, after a year's stay on the Atlantic Coast, so to speak, we find his now familiar cognomen in the lines of the Eastern newspapers.

How He Got the Name

In case anyone is interested, Mr. Smith, of coaching fame, has as his given name, Maurice. For those who do not already know, and they are few, it will not be amiss to relate how he came about acquiring the name by which he is known in the sports world. Naturally it was given to him by his teammates at Notre Dame, where the "Clipper" cavorted under the most able tutelage of the one and only Knute Rockne. This one year the Ramblers were playing the team from the Great Lakes Naval Training base, and a certain guard on the N. D. eleven was causing the Sailors no end of worry by his aggressive play. So much so, that upon the conclusion of the game, one of the Reserve lads came in the Rockenmen's dressing room and inquired of one of the players who the 145-lb. demon guard was. The answer came from the players, "Oh, that fellow, that's 'Clipper' Smith." And so the name.

Columbia First

After the four years at Notre Dame had come to their all too quick conclusion the "Clipper" left the tutelage of the Grand Old Coach to take up the duties of instilling that fighting spirit into the hearts of the pigskin chasers of Columbia University of Portland.

Many of his friends questioned the advisability of moving his duds into a more or less unknown place, but the Smith man knew what he wanted to do and he did it. The season of 1921 saw the University of Columbia, with an enrollment of about 100 men, become a known factor on the coast, although the material available was not of the best, by any means.

Gonzaga to Santa Clara

"Clipper's" fame spread about the coast, and as a result, Gonzaga College, of Spokane, Washington, took the lad into its arms and installed him as head coach. Again, a comparatively unknown football team took on the aspects of being a "tough nut to handle." Gonzaga's football saga became definitely brighter and more satisfying to its followers. The crowning effort of the Smith regime was the conquering of the mighty Gaels of St. Mary's College, coached by none other than the "Clipper's" old teammate, "Slip" Madigan. Four years after his arrival at the campus of Gonzaga, he packed up his bags and traveled southward to Santa Clara.

As before, Santa Clara was forced to build a new team, although the material given him was much better than was the case the two previous times. Smith had good material, and he made the most of it. However, the Jesuit school had not been heard of much in the way of football. The "Broncos," as they were known, began to throw their riders with the advent of the "Clipper." Among the most noted of the riders to be unseated, and the first to be awarded that dubious honor was "Pop" Warner, who, with his Stanford Indians, was the victim of a sensational upset. Mr. Warner was soon joined by other coaches, who found to their consternation that Smith coached teams were becoming noted for their habit of knocking off the bigger, and supposedly better, teams. California's Golden Bears fell before the "Bronco's" ferocious attack two years hard-running. Stanford and St. Mary's, two of the "big guns" of the coast, could do no better than to tie the Santa Clara club in 1935, the best season Santa Clara had under Smith.

East to Villanova

That brings the saga of Villanova's new coach up to the present where he is holding forth as head of the destinies of the Wildcats.

POST SEASON FRAY WITH AUBURN TEAM GRIDDERS' CLIMAX

By JOHN L. SIMONS

In his first season as football mentor Clipper Smith fielded a very successful team. Villanova's Wildcats, 1936 edition, showed throughout the season rare courage and "guts." It was due largely to this never say die spirit that the Villanova eleven was invited to participate in the post-season game with Auburn at Havana. After the tough, bruising defeat the 'Cats suffered at the hands of Temple they could have been excused for a let-down.

But the Blue-and-White warriors refused to quit. They came back the following Saturday, November 21, breathing fire and proceeded to wallop a highly-touted Manhattan College team by a 12-0 score. This influenced the promoters to invite the Villanova team.

Auburn Game Climax

All this led up to the climax of the campaign, the contest with Auburn. It was this game more than any other that gave Villanova the boost into prominence as a football power. Auburn perennially rates with the big teams, and when the Villanova boys came from behind in the best Merriwellian style to tie the Plainsmen at 7-7, the 'Cats hit the top.

The 'Cats started on the road to Havana away back last September when they handed the Cadets of V. M. I. C. a 32-7 shellacking in the only game played on the home field. Four veterans, Andy Stopper, Ray Stoviak, Art Raimo and Jack Earle, and one newcomer, Harvey Buek, led the Villanova scoring parade.

On the following week-end the Main Liners traveled into Shibe Park in Philadelphia to meet their early season nemesis, the Detroit Titans. This time, however, the jinx was shattered, and the 'Cats playing before a Sunday crowd of 17,000 took the Midwesterners into camp, 13-6.

Nittany Lions Caged

Clipper Smith's charges were still in a jinx-breaking mood the next week. On Saturday, October 10, the Wildcats defeated Penn State at State College. This was the first time Villanova was able to beat the Nittany Lions since the series began back in 1902. Andy Stopper scored both of the touchdowns in this triumph. It was in this fray that the "Clipper" first used his "Pony Express" fullback, Art Raimo, at right half. Art showed his versatility by making good with a bang at his new post.

The Blue-and-White kept its record clean by trouncing a hitherto undefeated Western Maryland aggregation by the same score 13-0. Frank Nye and Art Raimo, a pair of Juniors, occupied the scoring spotlight in a game that was also featured by the long-range punting of Andy Stopper.

The victory string was run to five when the 'Cats had a very decided "off" day and trampled the Boston University gridders 25-7. The exhibition of blocking put on by the boys that afternoon was perfection itself.

With the victory streak at five disaster came upon the Wildcats when the Thundering Herd of Bucknell sent the Main Liners down to their first defeat of the year by the margin of a lone touchdown, 6-0. The blocking, which was effective the previous week, was noticeably lacking.

With this bad game out of their system the gridders swung back into the win column when they traveled to Columbia, South Carolina, to hang a 14-0 defeat on the Gamecocks of South Carolina University. Temple beat the Cats 6-0, then came Manhattan.

GADSBY IS PLEASED BY BOXERS' RECORD

Glove Team Faces Toughest Schedule in Career and Comes Through

By RAY GADSBY

This year's boxing season as a whole was certainly successful to my mind. Although we didn't win all our matches, I was quite satisfied with the showing made by our boys in the stiff competition they met this season. Many of the bouts we dropped were close enough to be called either way, but that all comes in the game.

The season's opener with Army in the Cadets' Field House at West Point came more or less as a surprise to everyone. Army has not been defeated for several years on their home grounds. Most people expected us to come home on the short end of things, but the boys put up a great fight. After losing the first two bouts I thought we had earned a point in Eddie Kirk's fight. Apparently the judges thought differently and awarded the victory to Army. Pete Rodgers dropped another close one in the heavyweight division to enable Army to gain a draw. The high spot was Bob Mentzinger's knockout victory over Cadet Hull, Rocky Mountain champion, in the 145-pound class.

The result of the deadlock with Temple was a distinct shock to all persons connected with Villanova. Many of the spectators were of the opinion that the Wildcat Mittmen should have returned with a victory. There were three forfeits in this match. We were forced to concede the 115-pound class because of the illness of Vince Shugrue. Temple forfeited to Bill Duffy and Captain Sala, two sure winners for us. It was in this meet that Kirk, still smarting from the Army decision, came through with a first round knockout victory. "Sparkie" Jarosik began showing really good form with another first round knockout. However, I must admit, the final results were a big disappointment to me.

BASKETBALL SQUAD WINS 15 CONTESTS UNDER NEW COACH

Alex. G. Severance Appointed to Succeed "Doc" Jacobs as Mentor

SOPHOMORES AID SENIORS IN SUCCESSFUL CAMPAIGN

Victories Over C. C. N. Y., Duquesne, St. John's Feature Court Season

With a new coach at the helm, and an undefeated group of last year's championship yearlings in the lineup, Villanova took a new and decided turn in the basketball world this past season.

Al Severance, '29, successful mentor of the frosh in previous years succeeded George "Doc" Jacobs in the driver's seat. At the first turnout of the candidates, prospects for the coming season looked very, very bright. However, the club ran into various difficulties at the outset, but finished brilliantly in winning 15 of the 22 games.

Noonan and Carrig Out

The squad looked very impressive in the early workout with everything pointing to a successful season. However, the campus rocked when Charlie Noonan was forced to leave school at the apex of his short but brillian career. Charlie was considered the best shot and money player on the entire team.

To add to the new mentor's worries, Joe Carrig was seriously injured in the annual frosh-soph embroglio. He turned up with a crushed shoulder, which forced him to sidelines for the season. A day or so before the opening contest with Seton Hall, Lank Montgomery turned up with a sprained back.

The Wildcats made an auspicious start trouncing a highly-overrated Seton Hall five, 23-21. Coach Severance used a variety of combinations in an effort to secure a winning unit. Montgomery, despite the fact that his back was taped, played a marvelous game at the forward position.

Western Maryland next challenged the onslaught of the Felines, but the Terrors were disappointing in their 51-20 defeat. Hank McNally led the scorers with 16 notches. Dubino was close behind with 14.

Away to New England

The Cats then entrained for the New England States where they faced three adversaries in as many days. St. Anselms fell easily, 37-32. However, Providence put up a stern fight before falling, 40-39. In the last game of the road trip the ephemeral streak of the Wildcats was snapped by a cocky Springfield five. The game was played on a collapsible floor placed over an ice rink in the hockey arena. The visiting team suffered immensely from the cold atmosphere of the Field House. The ultimate winners realized the Felines plight, and took advantage of it. The score was 20-4 at the half, but the Wildcats put on a burst of speed and outplayed their foe in the remaining canto, but this was not enough. The final score was 32-22.

Villanova arrived home in time to absorb their second successive drubbing. This time Indiana did the honors, 43-28. The Big-Ten champs were unstoppable in the opening period, but little Vigilante was the moral hero of the evening. He stopped big Bib Guinning cold when placed on him in the second half.

Villanova showed a reversal of form to upset a highly-favored Duquesne quintet, 32-20. The Dukes were badly battered and only the insertion of substitutes on the part of Severance prevented further humiliation. Krutulis led the scoring with 11 markers.

Temple Again

Dickinson proved an easy victim for the local charges. The Red Devils fell har', 44-28. However, Temple again set Villanova in the defeat column. Howie Black's 14 tallies were too much for the Wildcats to master. Krutulis played a bang-up game before he was forced to retire early in the second half. He tied the score at the outset of the last canto but was benched by the officials before he could do much damage. Temple, 28; Villanova, 23.

George Washington traveled north to hand the Main Liners another pasting. The Colonels, paced by Ben Goldfaden, walked off with another 33-23 win. Villanova jumped back into the winning circle with a 33-27 conquest over Providence. It was their second victory of the present campaign over the Friars.

Geneva Wins

Ursinus gave very little competition, falling hard, 39-14. Lou Wannemacher, reserve utility man, was the individual star of the fray. Geneva turned an almost inevitable defeat into a brilliant victory, when they trounced the Wildcats, 25-21, Villanova's inability to register from the foul marker really cost them the game.

Bucknell was spanked, 37-14, in the annual grudge game. Westminster also fell heavily, 27-14. The Coventers were counted on to be one of the best teams out of the West, but they certainly were disappointing in their appearance here.

Dickinson surprised the overconfident Villanovans when they eked out a 27-26 win. Bull Kintzing, star center, pushed the Red Devils ahead with a field goal in the waning seconds of the dull and dismal affair.

Lafayette's Leopards fell an easy prey to the Wildcat's claws. Villanova forged head at the opening whistle and finished strongly, 41-30. C. C. N. Y. finished the greatest scare for the locals this season. Villanova finally won, 33-32, after the lead had see-sawed back and forth several times. The last of McNally's six foul shots provided the margin.

Six Straight

Albright and Lehigh went down, 39-20, and 34-23, respectively. N. Y. U. stopped the Feline win streak at six, the longest of the season. The game was played in the Garden and the crowd possibly had some influence on the ultimate losers for they never did get going and the New Yorkers finished on top, 37-23.

The Cats scored their fourth upset of the year when they overwhelmed the strong St. John's Indians, 31-25. Brennan played the game of his career in holding the high-scoring Gerry Bush to one point. George Washington tallied their second win of the season in the final game of the campaign. Obie O'Brien paced his mates to a 39-27 runaway.

Graduation will take its toll in the persons of McNally and Brennan, two of the best floor men on the outfit. However, Villanova rooters can smile for all the veterans but one, Walt McKenna, are sophomores this year. A strong freshman club will, without doubt, bolster the varsity considerably next year, and if the spirit, co-operation and good material are any goog indications, the Cats should finish on top against some of the best basketball opposition in the East next season.

of the season was the decisive 6-2 win over Bucknell, Eastern Association Champions for 1937. Shull broke into the winning column by beating Steve Stephano, last year's Eastern Association 115-pound champion. Eddie Kirk soundly trounced Androski, who later won the 135-pound title in the Association Championships at the Penn A. C. Valentine and Quick, 165- and 175-pound title holders in the same Association, were also decisively beaten by Jarosik and Sala. "Sparkie" fought the finest bout of his collegiate career that night. Sala met a tartar in Marty Quick. Tony had only one bout under his belt to date that night, while Quick boasted five straight victories. Sala was almost floored with a wild right in the opening round, but he soon regained his equilibrium and boxed his way through the remainder of the round. He won the second and third round to gain the decision. Some people thought it was very close, but they didn't realize the power of Tony's punches. It was later discovered that Sala cracked three of Quick's ribs in the fight.

After dropping matches to Western Maryland for two straight years, the Wildcats had sweet revenge on the Green Terrors by clubbing out another decisive 6-2 win. Although I had expected a victory, the results exceeded my expectations. The highlight of the evening's activities was the brilliant exhibition put on by Captain Sala in defeating Tony Ortenzi, Western Maryland's stocky light-heavyweight. Sala showed championship form in beating the durable Ortenzi. It was amusing to watch Bill Duffy, a legitimate welterweight take the human beanstalk, Andrews, the visiting 155-pounder. Despite the handicap of reach and height, Bill came through in capable style, easily carrying the judges' decisions.

Intercollegiates Next

Then came the Eastern Intercollegiate Championship matches at Syracuse. Sala again retained his light-heavyweight title the hard way—without a single "bye." His first opponent was Sol Maksik, of Penn. Maksik, who has fought 155, 165 and 175 in this three years of collegiate competition, had yet to meet defeat. There was no doubt but that the Quaker put up a great fight and is a good boxer, but Tony outboxed and outslugged him throughout the entire three rounds. Sala, by another fine show of sportsmanship, carried his semi-final opponent George Regan, of Syracuse, through the third round.

TANKMEN WIND UP SUCCESSFUL SEASON

York Staters Only Team to Defeat Wildcat Swimmers

Villanova's splashers set a new high during the 1937 season in the number of meets scheduled and won in one campaign. Under the direction of Coach Arthur Mathieu, Manager Joseph Dougherty lined up nine meets with teams from Pennsylvania, New York and New Jersey.

The Pennsylvania institutions included St. Joseph's College, Lafayette, Swarthmore, West Chester State Teachers and the Wildcats' traditional rival, Temple University.

York Staters Win

New York State sent St. Francis, of Brooklyn, to meet the mermen, and from the state of New Jersey came Rider College. Incidentially, it was these two above mentioned teams that were responsible for Villanova's two defeats. The fact that the winning teams were from outside the state of Pennsylvania holds no significance with regard to the caliber of swimmers in this state for although St. Francis has a fine team, on the day she met Villanova she was aided by illness which hindered almost all of the Blue and White's first string men from competing.

St. Joseph's College were the first victims of the season. They suffered an overwhelming defeat at the hands of the Natators which defeat was repeated with greater severity two months later in the closing encounter of the season.

Lafayette Swamped

After bowing to St. Francis the mermen received Lafayette in the home pool and proceeded to wash their ears in return for the very severe ducking received at Easton last year.

Another enjoyable victory for Villanova was that over Swarthmore College. In previous years the visitors have caused the meets to be exceptionally close and this year's comfortable win definitely proves that the sport of swimming on the Blue and White campus has taken a decided step forward.

One of the most delectable conquests of the season was the complete picking of the Owl. And similarly, as in the case of St. Joseph's, the second meeting was even more disastrous than the first; of all the teams on the campus this year the swimmers were the only ones capable of making the Owl retreat from the fury of the Wildcat's claws.

West Chester also proved to be a willing subject for the fin-men as they taught the correct method of coming in first in every event.

The second and final defeat of the season which was suffered at the hand of Rider College took quite a bit of wind out of the sails of the Blue and White swimmers who were becoming a bit chesty. Rider possessed some fine swimmers and despite all efforts on the part of Villanova they won a decided victory even though the Wildcat mermen made them fight for every point.

Points scored by the Wildcat finmen for the whole season almost doubled those chalked up against them. In nine meets Villanova scored an average of 18 8-9 points per meet to 27 2-9 points for the opposition.

Greco '38 Captain

Captain-elect for the 1938 season is Toby Greco, who stood fourth this season in the number of points scored with 47.06. Greco, whose specialty is the backstroke will be a senior in the School of Science next year. As a competing member of the Penn Athletic Club Swimming he has earned himself a reputation in this city.

FROSH PROFICIENT IN MAJOR SPORTS

Large Squads Display Talents in First Year Athletics

In reviewing the activities of the freshman football and basketball teams, we find that even though the football men only scrimmaged with the varsity and played no outside games, they together with the basketballmen proved themselves to be the greatest collection of freshmen material that ever entered these portals.

With the basketball season being over for nearly two months and Spring practice well on its way, we can gaze with pride on the splendid record that the freshman basketball team made during the past season. Out of a total of fifteen games the Kittens came back with twelve wins against three losses.

The only two quintets powerful enough to beat them were the Temple Frosh and the Brown Prep courtmen, and after seeing the subsequent record of these two teams, these defeats were nothing to be ashamed of. They reached the peak when they defeated the highly-touted Ursinus quintet by ten points.

Their season was very successful and their Spring practice sessions point to a more successful season in 1937-38 when they join the varsity.

The freshman football squad, composed of thirty-five men, although it has no record to fall back on in college except that of varsity scrimmages, can look back individually to its preparatory school record that ranks with the best in the country. Every man is well-equipped with both brain and brawn and is in the best physical shape possible.

During this Spring practice they have turned out en masse with such a burst of vigor and zest that they have instilled it into the the varsity men. Some freshmen have even threatened to take over several of the varsity berths. "Doc" Jacobs is to be congratulated for the excellent job of scouting that he made last year.

"Clipper" has formed several teams composed of freshmen and these have often pushed the varsity slight off the field. He also formed a pair of fast backfields composed entirely of '40 men and these he plans to use in games as a unit. One is quarterbacked by Harry Mazzei and the other by John Howlett. A pair of skillful and competent ends were discovered in Frank Bukofski and Walt Nowak. It seems that these two boys have all the earmarks of varsity material and will see plenty of action in this coming season.

Tommy Casper, from Wayne, Pa., and Peter Perina show great promise in the guard position and have already been accorded recognition for their capable work. Andy Chisick will probably be the substitute center this year as he has many times in Spring as well as in Fall practice distinguished himself by his consistent work in his position. Andy comes from Newark and played first string center there for two years successively. Among the tackles we have quite a few big boys who show signs of having something on the ball. Vic Cook, Red Kamen, Tom McMahon and Jim McKnight are all battling for a position of the first three teams and doubtless some of them will make it.

In the Columbia scrimmage these frosh showed up remarkably and were complimented both by "Clipper" and Lou Little. Their blocking, tackling and execution of plays was very commendable. Although we are quite certain that this year's freshman team will turn out well, we will, however, have to wait for the first game to actually see it.

For this fine gesture, he received a tremendous ovation. Tony came through in amazing fashion after two close rounds to beat his final opponent, Nestor Kociubinsky, of Penn State, who previously had likewise been undefeated. It was certainly a thrill to hear the announcer at the finish shout—"The winner and still champion, Mr. Anthony Sala, Villanova." Three times intercollegiate champion! It will be a long time before another such record appears on the annals of intercollegiate boxing.

The Wisconsin meet is no longer news. It was admitted by both the spectators and the Wisconsin students that four of the bouts, Kirk, Shull, Duffy and Jarosik, could have been called either way. We started off the match with two strikes on us, having to forfeit the 115 and heavyweight bouts. In our other fights, Mike Rutecky fought in the unlimited class, but it was too much to expect of him to compete with the experienced men he met. College boxing is just like college football or baseball. A coach couldn't expect a man to be a star in football if he hadn't played in high school. Experience is needed just as much if not more in boxing.

We have started compiling a schedule of eight or nine meets with some of the best boxing teams in the East for next season. Because of the large crowds which witnessed our bouts during the past year, I feel certain that boxing will soon become a major sport at Villanova. However, as far as the team goes, things look rather dubious.

MENDEL DAY-HOPS TAKE INTRAMURAL BASKETBALL CROWN

Victories Over Mendel Residents in Play-Offs Decide Title

CLOSE PLAY MARKS COURT GAMES BETWEEN TEAMS

Winners Place Two Men on All Star 'Mural Squad

Intramural basketball experienced one of its greatest seasons on the Villanova campus, both from the point of actual basketball ability displayed and the interest which the students took in the activity.

The Mendel Day-Hops captured the championship for the second year in a row as a result of two clear-cut triumphs over the Mendel Residents in the playoff games. The Day-Hops were consistently brilliant in their efforts and led by a triumverate of stars, Joe Beitenmiller, Dan O'Connor, and Gene Barr, they flashed enough ability to capture the coveted gonfalon.

Only one disappointing note offset the harmony of this year's basketball race. That was the inability of the C. and F. Day-Hops to make an appearance for several of their first half contests. As a result of the indifference which the "Bankers" showed, they were dropped from the league for the second half chase.

Residents Win First Half

The Mendel Residents displayed a fine brand of ball in the first half of the race, and as a result they garnered the pennant. Led by Lloyd Rice, who was later claimed by Al Severance for the freshmen quintet, the "Pent Housers" swept all opposition before them, and in the final game of the first half they rose to their greatest heights and drubbed the Mendel Day-Hops to win the crown. Meanwhile Fedigan seemingly came from nowhere to tie the Day-Hops for second place.

The second half was a different story because the Mendel Residents, without Rice, became just another team. Meanwhile the Day-Hops riddled all their opposition and coasted to the second half championship. The two freshmen halls, Mendel and Alumni, finished in a tie for second place.

The results of the two halves necessitated a playoff between the Mendel Residents and the Mendel Day-Hops. Because of their outstanding play in the second half the Day - Hops were installed as heavy favorites, and in the first contest they justified their selection by handing the Residents an overwhelming defeat.

Day-Hops Win 2d Half

Expectations were that the second contest would be a duplicate of the first match, but while the Day-Hops ultimately did win, they did so only after a terrific battle which was not decided until the final whistle. This victory brought the Day - Hops the championship for the second year in a row.

The Mendel Day-Hops were indubitably the best outfit in the circuit once Rice left the Residents. The Day-Hops were a highly synchronized quintet that knew what to do and when to do it. They played a hard, fast, "digging" brand of ball, and guided by a clever ball handler in Murphy, they had little difficulty in annexing the championship once the first half was over.

The Mendel Residents were the first half champions, and if Rice had been allowed to compete with them they probably would have gone on to win the league pennant. However, such was not the case, and they found their efforts incapable of bringing them to the top. Joe Lochetto carried on admirably in Rice's absence, but he did not receive much help from his mates.

Fedigan Mediocre

Fedigan Hall's type of play was rather mediocre at all times during the campaign. They usually defeated the weaker teams and fell before the strong outfits. To their credit it must be said that they finished in third place, although it is difficult to imagine how they did it. Their outstanding performer was Bud O'Connor, but he alone could do nothing to change the Gigolo's plight.

Alumni Hall was a team of unpredictable quality. Their play ranged from sensational to ridiculous. At times they would flash an attack that would cause one to wonder why they were not leading the race. Then they would slip so far as to become ludicrous. They turned in some well played games, and some very poorly played contests. Theirs was a team of individual stars, but Mike Cuskey was their outstanding performer. It can be truly said that when Alumni played no one would be safe in wagering on the outcome.

Austin Hall was composed mainly of a group of set shot artists. If they were "on," Austin's opponents were in for a difficult evening. If not, it was just another game with Austin usually on the short end of the score. They enjoyed four wins during the first half, but during the second half they fell into the doldrums. In this half they notched up only two wins and strangely enough the teams they defeated were the Mendel Day-Hops and the Mendel Residents, the best quintets in the league. Of a team of long shot artists, Jimmy Dwyer was the outstanding player.

Nothing much can be said for the C. and F. Day-Hops, because they seldom appeared to play. Even when they did play they did not excite much comment for they were really terrible.

All-Stars

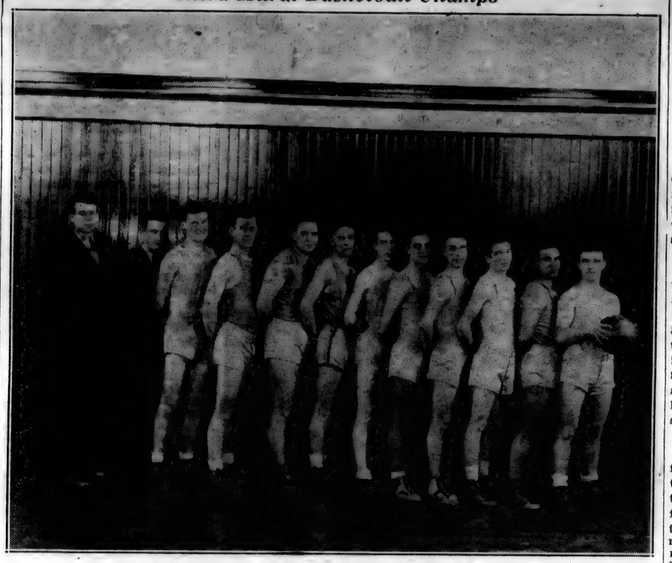
At the close of the Intramural season a poll was conducted among the coaches and officials of the league and the following players were selected as the most outstanding in the league:

Forwards: Joe Beitenmiller, Mendel D. H.; Jim Dwyer, Austin; Vic Sandor, Mendel; Mike Cuskey, Alumni.

Centers: Joe Rochetto, Mendel; Jim Carroll, Fedigan.

Guards: Dan O'Connor, Mendel D. H.; Bud O'Connell, Fedigan; Howie Connors, Alumni; Andy Conte, Austin.

Intra-Mural Basketball Champs



The Mendel Day-Hops, repeating this year, again copped the intra-mural basketball diadem after a long battle. Pressed closely all the way by the Mendel Hall residents, the train and trolley boys managed to eke out a win after a difficult playoff series.

BOYS LABOR ALL YEAR

Athletes Work at Beaches and Amusement Parks

Villanova's athletes have kept in training throughout the Summer months. Andy Stopper usually takes a football home with him to practice up on his punting, and last year was no exception. This is a good explanation of his punting ability, which has made him one of the outstanding players in the East.

"Quack" Escott, Lenny Merullo, Frank Crawley, and Bobby Bond play baseball up around Massachusetts, while Ray Stoviak goes in another direction to do the same.

AWAIT INTRA-MURAL GOLF TOURNEY TO TEST SKILL

Villanova's divot diggers will again have their day when the annual intra-mural golf tournament gets unders way sometime in the very near future. Contrary to the belief of many, this sport excites a great deal of interest on the campus.

It is the one time of the year when the dubbers may convene in perfect safety and be assured of the fact that they are not the only putters on the fairway. The tournament is held on the greens of the Main Line Open Golf Course, about one mile west of Villanova on the Lincoln Highway. Due to the courtesy of the manegement, green fees are waived.

TOUCH FOOTBALL IN COMEBACK

The past year was the first season since its inception into intramural ranks that touch football was not played in inter-dorm competition. In the past much interest was shown in this sport and many teams could be seen playing on Mendel Field during the recreation periods.

No explanation can be given for the evident lack of interest in this sport last Fall but dorm teams just wouldn't compete. The lunch hour found a representative team made up of Engineering Day-Hops meeting all comers. However, the possibility of this sport coming back into prominence next Fall is very great.

Campus Sluggers Compete in Annual Intramural Fisticuff Tournament

This past season's intramural boxing event proved to be the most outstanding of the intra-mural doings. Its drawing power competes with basketball or any other sport for a single night's activity. It is fertile ground for members of the boxing candidates and also for the uncovering of any talent which might be unheralded. Coach Ray Gadsby anticipates this event each year for this sole purpose of finding hidden fighters. Several times he has brought to the followers of Villanova's punchers a boxer who turned out to be quite a find as a result of this great night of amusement.

It is the firm hope of the Wildcat boxing mentor that in the future the winners of each event or bout will receive a prize for their efforts and accomplishments. The contenders would have something to strive for and treasure if this desire of Coach Gadsby's would be put into reality. It certainly would act as an incentive to the fighters and they no doubt would give a much better account of themselves which in turn would benefit this feature of Winter sports. Intra-mural boxing will become a more known event around these parts with the able work of the boxing coach and the ever-enthusistic labors of Father McKee. Besides, intra-mural boxing is considered to be a great opportunity to build up intercollegiate fighting with Villanova being one of the chief centers of attention. In a few years Villanova will be looked upon as the tops in this respect.

The past season's bouts turned out to be an evening of thrills and fun both for the contestants and the public. A crowd estimated between fifteen and eighten hundred witnessed the bouts and went home much satisfied and contented. The individuals did their best and looked good even in losing. The affair was well managed while the fighting was fast and furious as well as clean. Many outsiders viewed the fights. This alone proves the popularity of the sport.

Among those who attended were such celebrities as Connie Mack, manager of the Athletics baseball club, Jerry Nugent, who is an official of the Phillies gaseball aggregation, and Tommy Loughran, Philadelphia's renowned light-heavyweight champion and star heavyweight, classified as one of the greatest boxers who ever climbed into the professional ring.

In the opening fray of the evening, Bobby Daniello (136), outclassed Al Holl (134), with a storm of lefts and rights. Then Pat Vasalluzzo (159) and Joe Carroll (162) stabbed furiously through three rounds with Vassaluzzo winning the decision on the basis of a strong right.

Jerry Holland (179) met Jack Ferron (176) in what was built up as a grudge fight. Holland carried off the bout by his snappy punching. Following this came Claude La Dow (155) and Matt Phelan (175) who put a great scrap on display. Phelan won on flooring DeLow twice. Tony Aleo (121) put up a good fight against Vince Shugrue (120) but it wasn't quite enough and Shugrue carried off the decision.

Dick Gove (142) and Bob O'Brien (140) engaged in a cagey bout with the judges calling it square. Eddie Kirk (125) outclassed Eddie Higgins (132) and showed the form that carried him into the national amateur championships. Joe Tanzola (126) fell before the hard fists of Carl Panatelo (128) in the first round.

Bill Duffy (152) showed great stuff in winning over Pat Rooney (162). To end hostilities for the evining, Jack Jarosik (176) and Pete Rogers (176) engaged in a slugging match which proved to be the thrill of the events. Standing toe to toe these two huskies matchpunch for punch. The bout could be summed up by saying that it was a give and take affair, with one fighter giving a haymaker and taking one in return. At the end of the last round Jarosik came out on top.

TWO TOURNAMENTS FOR MURAL NETMEN

Spring and Fall Inter-Dorm Tennis Matches Prove Popular

Villanova looks after the student's physical and mental well-being. The college has an elaborate intra-mural sport schedule which allows all the popular games that are played by the average fellow.

Tennis is one of the sports that ranks high in popularity. There are two tournaments held at the school annually. One is conducted in the Fall, and the other is held in the Spring. The tennis tournament in the Fall has the honor of ushering in the intra-mural season, and the Spring tournament very appropriately climaxes the student's athletic program at the end of the school year.

Prefects, Matchmakers

The method used here at school for conducting the tournaments is to have those who are interested to hand their names to their prefects. The prefects then draw up the matches for the boys in their respective halls in order to determine the best man in that hall. The winners of the hall matches earn the right to play in the elimination matches that are run off in order to determine the intra-mural tennis champ.

No sooner are the boys back from their Summer vacation than Father McKee, who directs the intra-mural program, has them out on the courts fighting for the championship. This year the Fall tournament began the first week in October and continued until cold weather set in. Due to the large number of contestants this Autumn all the matches could not be held. In order to determine the final standing of the halls, a drawing was held in the office of the VILLANOVAN by Father McKee. The drawing was witnessed by the Sports Editor and several others. Mendel Residents finished first. C. & F. was second, and Fedigan Hall placed third. Lady Luck smiled on Austin in the drawing for they drew fourth place. Alumni and Mendel Day-hops followed in that order.

Rice, New Champion

However, before the advent of cold weather a new champion was crowned in the personage of Lloyd Rice of the Mendel Residents. Lloyd displayed a fine brand of tennis in annexing the title. His net ball and hard driving serves aided him in his successful fight for the championship. Wienfeld, a frosh in the School of Commerce and Finance, finished in the runner-up position. Wienfeld was a dark horse throughout the tournament and he sprang a real surprise when he took into camp Phil Kramer of Fedigan Hall. They met in the semifinals. Their match was one of the best of the tournament. It was a nip and tuck affair and the winner was very much in doubt until the final set.

The defending champ, Jim Dwyer, who represented Alumni Hall last year, was unable to participate this year because he afterwards won a place on the varsity tennis team. It must be some tradition here at Villanova for the winners of the intramural tournament to later star on the varsity. The champ previous to Dwyer was William Thorn, who is the present leader of the tennis squad and No. 1 player.

These tournaments have always aided the tennis team in uncovering talent that has gone on to achieve stardom.

Tourney Date Announced

Father McKee recently announced that the Spring tournament will be held immediately after Junior Week. All matches will be played on college courts which are situated on the Lincoln Highway. The courts were recently put in shape and by the time the tournament starts they should be in excellent condition.

VISITORS TO SCHOOL

Visitors to school during the past year included in their ranks "Link" Lenzi, former catcher, and Artie Mahan, first baseman of last year's diamond aggregation, who is now playing with Hazleton, in the New York-Penna. League.

Another alumnus to return to his old Alma Mater was Nick Kotys, slippery halfback of two years ago, who is at present coaching at Shickshinny High School.

AUSTIN HALL WINS INTRAMURAL SWIM; ALUMNI RUNNER-UP

Five Places in Seven Meets Snares Diadem for McKeemen

KERRIGAN AND BUTLER PACE AUSTIN CHAMPS

Alumni Representatives Press Champs Through Meet; Finally Garner Second Place

Austin Hall's mediocre 'mural season was saved by their strong representation in the Intra-mural swimming meet that placed men in five of the seven events. Ten men rolled up a total of 25 points to capture the 1937 Intra-mural swimming crown.

Stiff competition was offered by Alumni Hall which finished a close second two points behind, while Mendel Residents came in third with ten points and the C&F Day-Hops marked up five to take fourth. Fedigan and the Mendel Day-Hops tied for last place.

Paced by Paul Kerrigan and Jim Butler who each entered three races the Austinites showed themselves far more superior in the swimming pool than on the basketball floor. In the first four events Fr. McKee's team placed six men, two of whom were first place winners.

Seven events made up the program of the meet. The individual sprint events consisted of the 50 and 100 yard freestyle races. Entries were so numerous for these short sprints that heats had to be run and the winners decided on time. For the other individual freestyle event, the 220, the opposite condition was found for the competitors were in no condition to propel themselves over the long course.

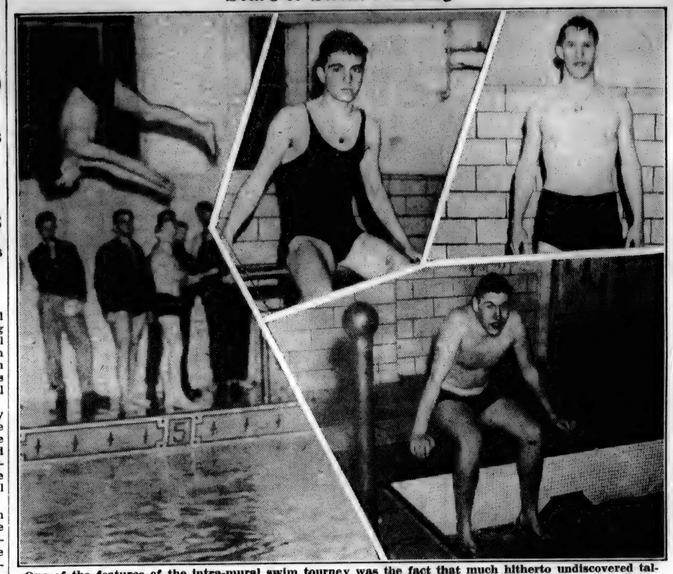
The speciality events of the evening consisted of the breaststroke and backstroke over 150 yards. The skill necessary for the proper execution of these difficult strokes is acquired only after long practice. The fact that this quality was absent is most noticeable in the times for both of these events; 2:46.8 for the dorsal event and 3:40.1 for the breaststroke.

Diving proved to be the most humorous event of the evening with intestinal fortitude taking the place of natural aptitude.

However, the most interesting and exciting event on the program proved to be the 100 yard relay race. This was the keenest race of the day and had the most creditable time of 58 seconds.

Swimming has been on the Intra-mural program for only a few years, but the interest that it receives from the student body as a whole is second only to that most popular of sports, baseball.

Stars of Swim Tourney



One of the features of the intra-mural swim tourney was the fact that much hitherto undiscovered talent was uncovered among the competing mermen. Ed Hanlon, snapped while competing in the diving event, won in this field. Paul Fitzmaurice, upper center, representing Alumni Hall, won the breast stroke and the 50-yard freestyle events. Upper right is Paul Kerrigan, and lower right is Harry J. Burns. Kerrigan won three events and Burns capably represented Mendel Hall.

MURAL BASKETBALL HEADS CHOOSE ALL-STAR TEAM

Various Halls Place Most Promising Athletes on Mythical Court Quintet

An innovation in intra-mural sports was the choice of an all-star basketball team this year. The players were chosen not only for their ability but also for their sportsmanship. The members were chosen for their positions by the intra-mural committee. This board is composed of the prefects of the various halls and the managers of the teams.

It is also necessary that the members so chosen be approved by the faculty of their various schools. It can easily be seen, therefore, that this honor is one that can not be passed over lightly.

The members of the team that were picked this year were: Jim Dwyer, who represented Austin Hall; Bud O'Connell, a Fediganite; Joe Bochetto, Mendal Hall; Joe Beitenmiller, a Day-hop, and Dan O'Connor, also a Day-hop.

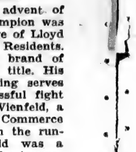
Coaches of Major Sports Had Varied Athletic and Academic Careers

By JOHN B. GERAGHTY, JR.

AL SEVERANCE

Varsity Basketball Coach
Graduate Manager of Athletics

Since Al Severance has taken over the position of Graduate Manager of Athletics, following the death of the beloved Charlie McGeehan in May of 1933, Villanova College has taken amazing strides in national athletic recognition. Mr. Severance stepped into McGeehan's post facing a tremendous task. He had to maintain the universal good will which his successor had built up; he had to keep Villanova on the uphill journey which McGeehan had started. It was a most difficult post for a man just out of Law School.



Al Severance

Cats Gain National Fame

Severance has done all this, and much more. He has sent Villanova to dizzy heights in athletic fame. He has built up the name of Villanova as being synonymous with good sportsmanship, fair play and finished athletic technique.

After graduating from Villanova in 1929 with an A. B. degree, he entered the Law School of Temple University, from which he graduated in 1933 with an LL. B.

During the Fall of 1932, Mr. McGeehan fell ill, and Severance was given the part-time position of Assistant Graduate Manager of Athletics, during McGeehan's illness. On his untimely death, Severance took complete control, and has then kept the name of his preceptor alive with his continued excellence.

Basketball Mentor

In addition to his duties as Graduate Manager, he took over the Freshman basketball team. The Kittens has an unbroken streak of victories, and immediately, Severance's coaching efficiency was noticed.

As his Kittens became better each year, so his knowledge of the intricate nuances of the game increased. Last year, he was given a further honor, by his appointment as varsity coach of basketball. His trust was justified, as Villanova defeated four hitherto unbeaten team and won a great percentage of victories.

RAY GADSBY

Varsity Coach of Boxing
Trainer of Football Team

A list of pugilistic accomplishments that reads like a Horatio Alger story is the ring history of Villanova's boxing coach.

Ray Gadsby

At the age of 15, he began his amateur boxing. In his first bout, he met and defeated a Villanova student in the city championships held at the K. of C. in 1926. He remarked the irony of his first victory, when ten years later, he found himself coaching the Alma Mater of the first fighter he ever defeated in a tournament. He subsequently won the K. of C. city championships at 118 pounds, holding the city bantamweight title.

Following his victory, he continued in a number of amateur bouts and in 1927, he won the Middle Atlantic A. A. U. middleweight title, and repeated his victory in 1928.

Member of '28 Olympics

The same year, he won the middleweight position on the American Olympic team, and went to the quarter-finals. Later, following the Olympics, he was chosen for the middleweight position on the American National team which defeated Canada and Sweden in a series of international bouts held abroad.

In 1929, he turned professional. When he concluded his ring career by defeating Lou Ambers, present lightweight champion of the world, he had fought 55 professional fights and 85 amateur bouts.

He then trained the National American soccer team and is now trainer of the Paseon American League soccer team.

Villanova in 1936

Gadsby accepted the position of boxing coach of Villanova College in January of 1936. Immediately, he established himself in the minds of the students by the impressive record his boxers made, by winning three and losing one match. This year, he surpassed his previous record, and next year, he predicts, will be the most difficult schedule attempted.

GEORGE "DOC" JACOBS

Villanova, '27
Varsity Coach of Baseball
Freshman Football Coach

Among other distinctions, "Doc" Jacobs holds the plaudite of the students for being the best-dressed member of the faculty. Again, he is the paragon of "genial."

After playing four years of outstanding football under the then youthful Harry Stuhldreher, fresh from Notre Dame, he was appointed freshman football coach in recognition of his excellence in all-around play. During his college days, he played every position on the line. Such was his style of play that Stuhldreher, when asked, declared he did not know at which position Jacobs played the best. In addition to his football, Mr. Jacobs set up a criterion to which no baseball catcher in the history of the school has even approached.

"Doc" Jacobs

Coaches Cage and Diamond

Upon the death of Mr. McGeehan, he took up the position of varsity baseball and basketball teams. His standards he set up for his freshmen footballers continued in his management of his baseball and basketball teams.

Inclement Weather Finds Villanovans Snug in Billiard Room

Providing another means for recreation and diveration from the daily routine for the Villanova students is the pool-room, and the bowling alleys, located in the gymnasium.

Here, the fellows generally congregate in the Winter months and sharpen up their eye either on the pool tables or knocking the pins a loop.

In addition to getting to know more of the students and making more contacts an opportunity to display one's skill on the green and the alley is afforded.

Tourney Run

It has been the custom in the past to run a tournament open to all students, and by an elimination process a winner evolves who then possesses the distinction of being the "pool shark" of the campus.

Along with the new "monicker" he also receives the prize which is purchased with the entrance fee that has to be paid by all competitors in the tourney.

Intramural bowling tournaments are usually sponsored and are open to all comers. Likewise the tournament is of an elimination nature and the holder of the ten pen crown is also rewarded with a prize whose expense is defrayed by the entry fee.

First Bowlers Compete

Intra-fraternal bowling tournaments are also managed by the various organizations and give the less experienced bowlers a chance to exhibit their wares.

Every year the alleys are reconditioned and are kept in the best condition possible for the remainder of the bowling season. Necessary repairs are also made on the pool tables and all accessory equipment is provided so that one of the finest pool and bowling departments is stationed on the Villanova campus.

MENDEL DAY-HOPS TAKE INTRAMURAL BASKETBALL CROWN

Victories Over Mendel Residents in Play-Offs Decide Title

CLOSE PLAY MARKS COURT GAMES BETWEEN TEAMS

Winners Place Two Men on All Star 'Mural Squad

Intramural basketball experienced one of its greatest seasons on the Villanova campus, both from the point of actual basketball ability displayed and the interest which the students took in the activity.

The Mendel Day-Hops captured the championship for the second year in a row as a result of two clean-cut triumphs over the Mendel Residents in the playoff games. The Day-Hops were consistently brilliant in their efforts and led by a triumverate of stars, Joe Beitenmiller, Dan O'Connor, and Gene Barr, they flashed enough ability to capture the coveted gonfalon.

Only one disappointing note offset the harmony of this year's basketball race. That was the inability of the C. and F. Day-Hops to make an appearance for several of their first half contests. As a result of the indifference which the "Bankers" showed, they were dropped from the league for the second half chase.

Residents Win First Half

The Mendel Residents displayed a fine brand of ball in the first half of the race, and as a result they garnered the pennant. Led by Lloyd Rice, who was later claimed by Al Severance for the freshmen quintet, the "Pent Housers" swept all opposition before them, and in the final game of the first half they rose to their greatest heights and drubbed the Mendel Day-Hops to win the crown. Meanwhile Fedigan seemingly came from nowhere to tie the Day-Hops for second place.

The second half was a different story because the Mendel Residents, without Rice, became just another team. Meanwhile the Day-Hops riddled all their opposition and coasted to the second half championship. The two freshmen halls, Mendel and Alumni, finished in a tie for second place.

The results of the two halves necessitated a playoff between the Mendel Residents and the Mendel Day-Hops. Because of their outstanding play in the second half the Day - Hops were installed as heavy favorites, and in the first contest they justified their selection by handing the Residents an overwhelming defeat.

Day-Hops Win 2d Half

Expectations were that the second contest would be a duplicate of the first match, but while the Day-Hops ultimately did win, they did so only after a terrific battle which was not decided until the final whistle. This victory brought the Day - Hops the championship for the second year in a row.

The Mendel Day-Hops were indubitably the best outfit in the circuit once Rice left the Residents. The Day-Hops were a highly synchronized quintet that knew what to do and when to do it. They played a hard, fast, "digging" brand of ball and guided by a clever ball handler in Murphy, they had little difficulty in annexing the championship once the first half was over.

The Mendel Residents were the first half champions, and if Rice had been allowed to compete with them they probably would have gone on to win the league pennant. However, such was not the case, and they found their efforts incapable of bringing them to the top. Joe Lochetto carried on admirably in Rice's absence, but he did not receive much help from his mates.

Fedigan Mediocre

Fedigan Hall's type of play was rather mediocre at all times during the campaign. They usually defeated the weaker teams and fell before the strong outfits. To their credit it must be said that they finished in third place, although it is difficult to imagine how they did it. Their outstanding performer was Bud O'Connor, but he alone could do nothing to change the Gigolo's plight.

Alumni Hall was a team of unpredictable quality. Their play ranged from sensational to ridiculous. At times they would flash an attack that would cause one to wonder why they were not leading the race. Then they would slip so far as to become ludicrous. They turned in some well played games, and some very poorly played contests. Theirs was a team of individual stars, but Mike Cuskey was their outstanding performer. It can be truly said that when Alumni played no one would be safe in wagering on the outcome.

Austin Hall was composed mainly of a group of set shot artists. If they were "on," Austin's opponents were in for a difficult evening. If not, it was just another game with Austin usually on the short end of the score. They enjoyed four wins during the first half, but during the second half they fell into the doldrums. In this half they notched up only two wins and strangely enough the teams they defeated were the Mendel Day-Hops and the Mendel Residents, the best quintets in the league. Of a team of long shot artists, Jimmy Dwyer was the outstanding player.

Nothing much can be said for the C. and F. Day-Hops, because they seldom appeared to play. Even when they did play they did not excite much comment for they were really terrible.

All-Stars

At the close of the Intramural season a poll was conducted among the coaches and officials of the league and the following players were selected as the most outstanding in the league:

Forwards: Joe Beitenmiller, Mendel; D. H.; Jim Dwyer, Austin; Vic Sandor, Mendel; Mike Cuskey, Alumni.

Centers: Joe Bochetto, Mendel; Jim Carroll, Fedigan.

Guards: Dan O'Connor, Mendel D. H; Bud O'Connell, Fedigan; Howie Connors, Alumni; Andy Conte, Austin.

Intra-Mural Basketball Champs

The Mendel Day-Hops, repeating this year, again copped the intra-mural basketball diadem after a long battle. Pressed closely all the way by the Mendel Hall residents, the train and trolley boys managed to eke out a win after a difficult playoff series.

BOYS LABOR ALL YEAR

Athletes Work at Beaches and Amusement Parks

Villanova's athletes have kept in training throughout the Summer months. Andy Stopper usually takes a football home with him to practice up on his punting, and last year was no exception. This is a good explanation of his punting ability, which has made him one of the outstanding players in the East.

"Quack" Escott, Lenny Merullo, Frank Crawley, and Bobby Bond play baseball up around Massachusetts, while Ray Stoviak goes in another direction to do the same.

Villanova's divot diggers will again have their day when the annual intra-mural golf tournament gets unders way sometime in the very near future. Contrary to the belief of many, this sport excites a great deal of interest on the campus.

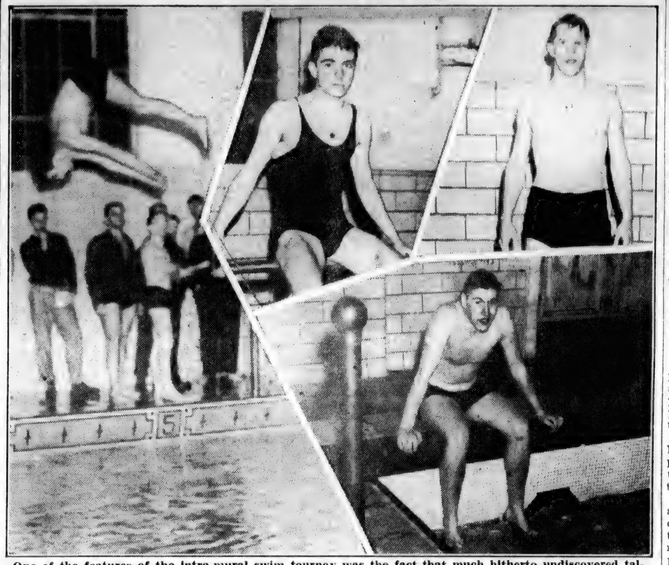
The skill necessary for the perfection of these difficult strokes is acquired only after long practice, the fact that this quality was absent is most noticeable in the times for both of these events; 2:46.8 for the dorsal event and 3:40.1 for the breaststroke.

Diving proved to be the most humorous event of the evening with intestinal fortitude taking the place of natural aptitude.

However, the most interesting and exciting event on the program proved to be the 100 yard relay race. This was the keenest race of the day and had the most creditable time of 58 seconds.

Swimming has been on the Intra-mural program for only a few years, but the interest that it receives from the student body as a whole is second only to that most popular of sports, baseball.

Stars of Swim Tourney



One of the features of the intra-mural swim tourney was the fact that much hitherto undiscovered talent was uncovered among the competing mermen. Ed Hanlon, snapped while competing in the diving event, won in this field. Paul Fitzmaurice, upper center, representing Alumni Hall, won the breast stroke and the 50-yard freestyle events. Upper right is Paul Kerrigan, and lower right is Harry J. Burns. Kerrigan won three events and Burns capably represented Mendel Hall.

MURAL BASKETBALL HEADS CHOOSE ALL-STAR TEAM

Various Halls Place Most Promising Athletes on Mythical Court Quintet

An innovation in intra - mural sports was the choice of an all-star basketball team this year. The players were chosen not only for their ability but also for their sportsmanship. The members were chosen for their positions by the intra-mural committee. This board is composed of the prefects of the various halls and the managers of the teams.

It is also necessary that the members so chosen be approved by the faculty of their various schools. It can easily be seen, therefore, that this honor is one that can not be passed over lightly.

The members of the team that were picked this year were: Jim Dwyer, who represented Austin Hall; Bud O'Connell, a Fediganite; Joe Bochetto, Mendal Hall; Joe Beitenmiller, a Day-hop, and Dan O'Connor, also a Day-hop.

Coaches of Major Sports Had Varied Athletic and Academic Careers

By JOHN B. GERAGHTY, JR.

AL SEVERANCE
Varsity Basketball Coach
Graduate Manager of Athletics

Since Al Severance has taken over the position of Graduate Manager of Athletics, following the death of the beloved Charlie McGeehan in May of 1933, Villanova College has risen amazing ends in national athletic recognition. Mr. Severance stepped into McGeehan's post facing a tremendous task. He had to maintain the universal good will which his successor had built up; he had to keep Villanova on the uphill journey which McGeehan had started. It was a most difficult post for a man just out of Law School.

Al Severance

Cats Gain National Fame

Severance has done all this, and much more. He has sent Villanova to dizzy heights in athletic fame. He has built up the name of Villanova as being synonymous with good sportsmanship, fair play and finished athletic technique.

After graduating from Villanova in 1929 with an A. B. degree, he entered the Law School of Temple University, from which he graduated in 1933 with an LL. B.

During the Fall of 1932, Mr. McGeehan fell ill, and Severance was given the part-time position of Assistant Graduate Manager of Athletics during McGeehan's illness. On his untimely death, Severance took complete control, and has then kept the name of his preceptor alive with his continued excellence.

Basketball Mentor

In addition to his duties as Graduate Manager, he took over the Freshman basketball team. The Kittens has an unbroken streak of victories, and immediately, Severance's coaching efficiency was noticed.

As his Kittens became better each year, so his knowledge of the intricate nuances of the game increased. Last year, he was given a further honor, by his appointment as varsity coach of basketball. His trust was justified, as Villanova defeated four hitherto unbeaten team and won a great percentage of victories.

RAY GADSBY
Varsity Coach of Boxing
Trainer of Football Team

A list of pugilistic accomplishments that reads like a Horatio Alger story is the ring history of Villanova's boxing coach.

Ray Gadsby

At the age of 15, he began his amateur boxing. In his first bout, he met and defeated a Villanova student in the city championships held at the K. of C. in 1926. He remained a hero only a short while, when ten years later, he found himself coaching the Alma Mater of the first fighter he ever defeated in a tournament. He subsequently won the K. of C. city championships at 118 pounds, holding the city bantamweight title.

Following his victory, he continued in a number of amateur bouts and in 1927, he won the Middle Atlantic A. A. U. middleweight title, and repeated his victory in 1928.

Member of '28 Olympics

The same year, he won the middleweight position on the American Olympic team, and went to the quarter-finals. Later, following the Olympics, he was chosen for the middleweight position on the American National team which defeated Canada and Sweden in a series of international bouts held abroad. In 1929 he turned professional. When he concluded his ring career by defeating Lou Ambers, great lightweight champion of the world, he had fought 55 professional fights and 85 amateur bouts.

He then trained the National American soccer team and is now trainer of the Passon American League soccer team.

Villanova in 1936

Gadsby accepted the position of boxing coach of Villanova College in January of 1936. Immediately, he established himself in the minds of the students by the impressive record his boxers made, by winning three and losing one match. This year, he surpassed his previous record, and next year, he predicts, will be the most difficult schedule attempted.

GEORGE "DOC" JACOBS
Villanova, '27
Varsity Coach of Baseball
Freshman Football Coach

Among other distinctions, "Doc" Jacobs holds the plaudits of the students for being the best-dressed member of the faculty. Again, he is the paragon of "genial."

After playing four years of outstanding football under the then youthful Harry Stuhldreher, fresh from Notre Dame, he was appointed freshman football coach in recognition of his excellence in all-around play. During his college days, he played every position on the line. Such was his style of play that Stuhldreher, when asked, declared he did not know at which position Jacobs played the best. In addition to his football, Mr. Jacobs set up a criterion to which no baseball catcher in the history of the school has even approached.

"Doc" Jacobs

Coaches Cage and Diamond

Upon the death of Mr. McGeehan, he took up the position of varsity baseball and basketball teams. His standards he set up for his freshmen footballers continued in his management of his baseball and basketball teams.

THEIRS IS THE DUTY OF TURNING OUT THE NEWS FOR THE STUDENTS

Villanovan Nationally Recognized As Outstanding Collegiate Weekly

With the winning of All-American honors as a culmination, the VILLANOVAN, student weekly publication, now in its ninth year, has reached unprecedented heights in its comparatively short existence.

Many radical changes in format have been tried, and the present handy tabloid style is the result of that evolution. This keeps step with the modern manner of presenting newspaper material.

Revamped Quarters

When the present size of the VILLANOVAN publication office, 119 Mendel Hall, was opened in the Fall of 1935, allowing greatly extended facilities for editing and revising, the students' paper really began its phenomenal rise to a commanding position as a force in intercollegiate journalism. For the past three years highest honors were accorded it, until the present year finds it placed among the outstanding pacemakers in undergraduate competition.

The "man behind the scenes" in the surging rise to leadership of the weekly is the Rev. Edward B. McKee, O.S.A., a popular faculty member and moderator, whose untiring efforts and patience have enabled the various staffs to carry on through many difficulties.

No newspaper can hope to be successful without a well balanced and experienced personnel, and the present staff was one of the best balanced and co-operative groups ever to handle the destinies of the publication.

Outstanding Editorial Board

Heading the Editorial Board in his capacity as editor-in-chief was J. Benedict Maloney, genial member of the Arts School, who brought with him a wide experience in practical journalistic makeup.

Assisting Maloney were Harry Parkin, of the Science School, managing editor; Charles Stahlecker, college editor, and member of the School of Education; Thomas Kennedy, copy editor, and present editor of the Belle Air, attached to the Commerce Department; Norton Paden, sports editor, matriculating in the Science School; and William Cleary, business manager, affiliated with the Business School. This completed an outstanding all senior Editorial Board. Every man of this group is a leader in his school and are ranking campus figures.

Photography work, so necessary to catch pulsating collegiate life, was more than adequately handled by Pasquale Guarini. The somewhat menial but nevertheless arduous task of circulation was capably taken care of by Edward Kelly.

Paper Wins Award

For the third successive year the VILLANOVAN, official weekly newspaper of the college, has received the All-American Award. This rating places the Villanova paper high up on the list of American college newspapers. Most of the few papers gaining higher recognition than the VILLANOVAN were dailies. Of the weeklies, the paper was rated one of the most outstanding in its field.

Not only did this year's volume of the VILLANOVAN merely win the award but it also received the highest number of points ever awarded to this paper. This is due in large part to the capable direction of J. Benedict Maloney, editor of this weekly publication.

This prize was first awarded to the paper under the leadership of Edmond Reilly, editor, in 1934-35 and again under John DiJoseph, who directed its destinies in 1935-36.

TECH. PERIODICAL RANKS HIGH AMONG OTHERS IN FIELD

Villanova Engineer Holds Prominent Position; Yearly Feature

Ranking among the foremost collegiate publications in the field of technology, the Villanova Engineer, student magazine of Villanova College, has enjoyed eleven years of successful endeavor.

Of Great Interest

This student publication, through its varied articles of technical interest, has been an indispensable medium by which the students of been kept in constant contact with outside activities in the profession.

Not to be outmoded by time and tradition, the publication changes its staff yearly, in March, when new men are received to carry on its valuable work. The present staff has reached a new degree of interest due to the capable guidance of its retiring Editor-in-Chief, Edward J. Casey, senior Electrical Engineering student. Casey has left an everlasting memorial in the editions he has printed during his editorship.

Great Leadership

The Villanova Engineer, successor to, and in substance, a new "Owl," has been designed to record the progress of Villanova's School of Technology, as reflected by the activities of its faculty advisor and its staff. Guided by Rev. John J. Vrana, O.S.A., faculty moderator, the staff, under the leadership of its present Editor-in-Chief, Joseph B. Sanborn, began a detailed study of current journals. The initial edition came into circulation as the finest in its field, as a result of this research.

The issues of the present time have featured interviews with some of the leading figures in Engineering as well as many of the foremost industrial leaders in this part of the country. These interviews were accompanied with accounts of interesting alumni activities, entailed in "Alumni Notes," a colum featuring exchanges with publications from Technology schools in the leading colleges and universities, kept the Villanova Engineer in constant contact with other collegiate publications.

Many Topics

Faculty biographies, organization reviews, outlines of the many courses offered by other schools are some of the topics touched upon in each issue. The latest developments in the industrial and technical world were relayed to this publication, and were handled capably by its editors. In keeping with college life, bits of wit and humor were added to its pages to balance the involved content matter.

EDITOR NOW AN ACTOR

Former Belle Air Head Has Leading Role in "Maytime"

Investigation proves that not only editors of the VILLANOVAN have made instant success upon entering into the world but likewise one of the Belle Air's former editors has had considerable success.

Robert G. McGrory, '36, editor of the college annual for that year, starred recently in an amateur production of "Maytime." McGrory played the leading role and his singing voice thrilled those in attendance.

NEW POLICIES ADD COLOR TO JOURNAL

Science School Publication, Mendel Bulletin, Presents Revamped Makeup

Under the guidance of a Board of Editors, the Mendel Bulletin, student publication of the School of Science, has achieved a degree of success in comparison with issues of a similar nature from other institutions. Many points of distinction differentiate the new Mendel Bulletin from the publication of previous years.

Chief among the points of distinction is the fact that the Bulletin has become a quarterly publication, thus allowing for a greater number and variety of theses to be printed. Another distinctive feature of the new Bulletin is the Board of Editors, under the competent leadership of chairman David E. Zion, senior member of the School of Science. Each member of the Board is directly responsible for theses in specific scientific subjects such as embryology, immunology, anatomy, histology, physics, chemistry, biology, genetics, and physiology.

New Format Offered

The Board of Editors is composed of the following individuals: Harry Parkin, John Bruno, Mario Troncelliti, Manrico Troncelliti, Paschal Linguiti, Edmund Virusky, Jose Licha, Gerald Piserchia, Lawrence Stead, Pasquale Guarini, Vincent Ciacci, and Louis Santamaria.

Another feature of the new Bulletin lies in the construction of its contents; modern styles of printing formation were employed in the make-up of the magazine. Also, special consideration and praise should be accorded to photography editor Pasquale Guarini. Several pictures developed by the latter individual have been lauded by individuals who are accepted authorities in the field of photography.

The last issue of the Mendel Bulletin will be published during the last week of May. This issue will be especially characterized by an increase in the number of subjects over those published in former issues.

BELLE AIR ANNUAL AMONG LEADERS OF YEARLY PERIODICALS

Presents Vivid and Realistic Conception of Life at Villanova

This year the Belle Air will feature a new and more informal style of presentation in pictures and reading material. Living up to the high standards that have been established in the past, the staff has blended their efforts in every department to give the students of Villanova a vivid and realistic conception of life at the college not only during the past four years, but also the present year.

The staff under the guidance of Editor-in-Chief, Thomas F. Kennedy, Jr., began work in November on the annual. Charles Stahlecker, College Editor, took care of all the assignments along the editorial line, while John Burke handled the Sports problems. William Mink scanned the dots and dashes of every article to give the yearbook an exact and grammatical rating second to none.

Photographers Active

Pasquale Guarini and Charles Betz along with Edward "Moose" Donovan roamed the campus to get the delights to the way of pictorial information. Thomas J. Flaherty covered surrounding territory to get all possible ads in order that the senior class might give to the student body a finer type of layout. Edward "Powerhouse" Kelly prepared numerous schedules to handle the rush when distribution time rolled around. Working with each of these various heads were from five to six members respectively, thus enabling each department to centralize their work and produced a more effective and personal type of write-up. Rev. Daniel Falvey, O.S.A., faculty moderator has added his personal touch to guide the staff through various problems.

The underlying theme throughout the Belle Air is that the pictures and copy will refresh the minds of the students the exact events which took place this year. Football, basketball, baseball, boxing, and track have been featured with outstanding pictures gathered from time to time, recalling contests that have made history. The Intra-Mural section will also be presented in a more vivid style featuring all phases of activities that have taken place throughout the year. The social program will be entirely different to that of formr years with unique pictures and write-ups. The senior write-ups will also be touching along a more impersonal point of view.

Edmond Reilly, Harold Keating Now Employed by Prominent Papers

Two former members of the VILLANOVAN have continued their journalistic success after acquiring invaluable experience working on the college publication.

Reilly On Bulletin

Edmond Reilly, who was editor-in-chief during his last year, is now employed by the Philadelphia Bulletin working as a re-write man. According to reports emanating from there, he is destined to reach great heights in the newspaper world.

Harold Keating, formerly feature editor of the VILLANOVAN, has recently been named Assistant Sports Editor of the Main Line Daily-Times.

RISE OF VILLANOVAN HAS BEEN PHENOMENAL

Formerly Four Pages, Published At Sporadic Intervals On Hand Press

Since its inception at Villanova College, eight years ago, the rise of the VILLANOVAN as a college publication has been phenomenal.

Starting off as a four-page paper with sporadic publication dates, compiled by a skeleton staff and printed on a hand press under great difficulty the college weekly has graduated to one of the finest eight-page student publications of its type.

Trained Staff

With a staff numbering close to 60 members and a trained editorial board, the paper has steadily climbed until today it is published in the same manner as the larger local papers.

Opportunities Afforded For Oratory, Dramatics

WAR BACKGROUND IS THEME OF DRAMATIC CLUB'S OFFERING

"Journey's End" Production of Belle Masque After 4 Years' Inactivity

PUBLICITY CAMPAIGN IS VIGOROUSLY PUSHED HERE

Highly Emotional Play Is Forerunner of Junior Week Activities

Belle Masque, leading dramatic organization of Villanova College, has finally readied J. C. Sheriff's "Journey's End" for production, after being inactive for a period of four years.

Mr. Anthony J. Frayne, M.A., professor of public speaking, has, through his untiring efforts in coaching the various neophyte thespians, finally succeeded in arousing quite a bit of interest in this, the most recent attempt of the organization.

Commerce Men Enthusiastic

Some trouble was incurred at tht beginning of this school year in launching the group's activity. This difficulty consisted chiefly in securing the aid of men on the campus who had sufficient talent to handle the leading parts. This matter was one of importance in that the organization has a perfect and outstanding record of fine performances.

Most of the support given to this venture was secured from the members of the Commerce and Finance School. In fact so many of those men reported that not all could be used in active participation in the various plays planned by Mr. Frayne.

After the organization began to hold meetings difficulty was encountered in securing a play suitable to the talent and taste of the members.

It was decided, after much discussion, that a short play would be readied for presentation shortly after the Christmas holiday. This, however, was not done.

R. C. Sheriff's "Journey's End" was then selected to be the vehicle of the dramatic society's re-organization attempt at the stage.

Barret Heads Cast

Professor Frayne then secured a tight grip on all the regular members of the organization, selected a cast, and proceeded to whip it into top form.

Robert Barret, sophomore Arts, was selected to act the character of Captain Stanhope; John Donahue, junior C and F., became Lieutenant Osbourne; Maurice McDonald, soph Arts, Captain Hardy; Joseph O'Loughlin, junior Arts, Sergeant Major, and Henry Sliewicz, frosh Science, German prisoner.

With the selection of the cast actual work was begun. Rehearsals were held almost daily so that the finished product would be flawless.

It was understood that the production of such a nature would necessitate the use of a number of committees to handle the economic end.

Committees Chosen

Accordingly a committee on tickets, program, poster, and publicity was formed. The members of these various bodies are respectively: Vince La Brasca, George Oesterle, Jake Jolly, Louis Biester, Charles O'Connor, Peter McManus, Wm. Bailey, James McAndrews, and Dominic Pascucci.

It has been finally decided that the play shall be presented from May 1 to May 4 inclusive. From all appearances the production will be a success and will insure the continuance of the organization.

ELOCUTION CONTEST HELD ANNUALLY BY VILLANOVA COLLEGE

Students Vie for Honors; Winner Receives Gold Medal

CARROLL WILL COMPETE

In keeping with an annual custom, Villanova College is conducting an oratorical contest, the finals of which are to be held on May 12. This contest is under the direction of Professor Anthony J. Frayne, M. A., instructor of English.

Last year's contest was won by Joseph Carroll, senior Artsman, who is vying for honors this year.

Awarded Gold Medal

As a reward or token of victory the victor is presented with a gold medal at the graduation exercises. This medal was dedicated by the Very Rev. Edward J. Murtaugh, O. S. A.

Chairman Charles Bruno, senior arts, and Professor Frayne have selected as this year's topic the Constitution of the United States. This was the topic of last year's contest also, but it has been changed to include any part of the Constitution which the aspiring orator may care to develop.

Only six men are selected for the finals and they must limit their discussion to fifteen minutes.

Arrangements Committee

All arrangements for the event this year are being handled by Albert Mayell, Harry McNally, John Hosey, John McManus, John Burke, and J. Benedict Maloney, who comprise the arrangement committee.

This year's contest proves to be of great interest in that the scope for discussion is so broad and unlimited.

Another feature which makes it interesting is the matter of Joseph Carroll participating again and having strong chances of winning the award for the second time in succession. The other contestants, however, are certain that he shall not win, and are conscientiously preparing to cross verbal foils.

ATHLETES PERFORM

From time to time Villanova College gives its athletes a chance to show that they are not so tough as they appear on the field of sport when she allows them to produce a musical comedy of their own. Although this practice has been discontinued for two years the Turf and Tinsel show is promising to again grasp the dramatic epotlight at Villanova. These shows put on by the athletes were always very good and very popular on the campus.

INSTRUCTOR IS BUSY

Anthony Frayne, instructor of English at Villanova, is a very busy man. Besides his regular duties as instructor in English, Mr. Frayne is moderator of the Beta Gamma debating group, moderator of the Belle Masque Dramatic Society, and is also director of all elocution contests at the college.

AMATEUR NIGHT SCORES BIG HIT

Novel Idea Outstanding Success, Students Agree; Annual Feature

Among this year's student activities on the Campus was an Amateur night, a totally new feature of student affairs.

General approvement of the performance was so great that this fete has been incorporated in the list of general student activities.

Separate Units

Members of the various dormitories on the Campus, and also those of the various schools each acted as a separate unit and presented individual features.

Each group elected a master of ceremonies who held away while his fellow-members went through with their performance.

Individuality and uniquity of ideas was so outstanding, and such talent uncovered for the dramatic society of the school that it was a foregone conclusion for such a performance to be made a permanent feature of student activities.

MISERICORDIA DEFEATED

Villanova's Beta Gamma debating society was the first debating team to defeat the Misericordia College debates this season. For several years the girls' college enjoyed successful debating easons until met by the Villanova group.

COURSE FAVORS STUDENT DEBATE

Inter-class Forensic Activities Form Large Part of Courses

Interclass debates are held every year by the members of Villanova College's Public Speaking classes.

These debates are governed by the usual rules applied to formal intercollegiate debates, with the only exception being that the time length for each speech and rebuttal is shortened.

Keeping With Aim

Members of the public speaking classes are the only ones to participate in these debates, in that such activity is considered as a side-issue of the course and is further in keeping with its aim.

These debates have proved to be of such interest to the members of the classes that it is expected to continue with them as a regular feature of the course.

Individual speeches are also a part of this course. Various individuals are selected from time to time to present a short talk before the assembled group of students in the Mendel Hall amphitheatre.

ABILITY RECOGNIZED

Mr. Anthony J. Frayne's abilities are recognized by others than his faculty superiors here at the college. In his spare time the instructor is employed in the research department of the Poe House in Philadelphia.

BETA GAMMA ENDS GREATEST YEAR IN HISTORY OF GROUP

Debating Society Successfully Met Over 30 Opponents in Varied Schedule

ENGAGEMENT VIA RADIO PROVED POPULAR FEATURE

Senior Members, Anthony Differ, Joseph Carroll, Bear Brunt of Work

Beta Gamma, forsenic society of Villanova College, has closed another successful season under the able direction of Anthony J. Frayne, M.A., by having participated in about 30 engagements, the largest number of debates scheduled by the organization in the past five years.

This year's group composed largely of sophomore members, was sparked by Anthony L. Differ, senior in the Arts School and president of the organization, and Joseph Carroll, senior Artsman.

Five Teams Selected

At the induction of the debating season this year, five teams were selected to prepare briefs for the various engagements. A senior member of the group headed each team. These men were: Anthony L. Differ, senior Arts; Victor J. Ashe, senior Arts; John Chapple, senior C. and F.; Joseph Carroll, senior Arts, and Edward McDevitt, senior C. and F.

Many of this year's members had debated last year with the freshman debating squad. It is interesting to note that that group closed a successful season without suffering a single defeat. The material thus furnished Mr. Frayne, was of choice and championship quality.

It was expected this year, therefore, that with such material and with the aid of the senior members of the organization to guide the varsity neophytes that Villanova would again have little trouble in winning decisions.

Largest Membership

Other members of the organization are: John Hosey, Thomas O'Brien, Edward Shovlin, Frederick Waters, John McManus, Pershing Calabro, James Quigley, Joseph O'Loughlin, William Corkill, John Dimon, Maurice McDonnell, John Simons, Charles S. Bruno, Joseph Alessandroni, Hugh Ferguson, John Stahman, Joseph McCabe, Joseph Hopkins, Thomas Delate, and Pio Goggi.

Waters, Calabro, McManus, Alessandroni, and Delate participated in many of the debates.

An interesting feature of this year's activity was the innovation of debates presented via radio. The organization made arrangements with Philadelphia station WIP to broadcast a varsity debate every Monday afternoon. This practice proved to be quite interesting to many college men interested in debating.

All the engagements were arranged on a home and home basis. This practice increased the number of debates scheduled by the organization, to about 50 engagements. However, several of the institutions scheduled for debate cancelled their engagements and so decreased the nmber of debates to about 30.

Many Institutions Met

Forensics engaged in the past year by the Villanova aggregation were with the following institutions: Swarthmore College, University of Pennsylvania, St. Joseph's College, Temple University, and Fordham University.

Organizations which were met in formal debates were:

Manhattan College, Albright College, Catholic University, Nassau College, Bucknell University, Upsala College, Shippensburg State Teachers College, Misericordia, Geneva College, Haverford College, Rutgers University, New York University, University of Maryland, and St. Joseph's College in Wilmington.

All told the forsenic members engaged in 29 debates and emerged victorious in almost all of the engagements.

EDITOR NOW AN ACTOR

Former Belle Air Head Has Leading Role in "Maytime"

Investigation proves that not only editors of the VILLANOVAN have made instant success upon entering into the world but likewise one of the Belle Air's former editors has had considerable success.

Robert G. McGrory, '36, editor of the college annual for that year, starred recently in an amateur production of "Maytime." McGrory played the leading role and his singing voice thrilled those in attendance.

NEW POLICIES ADD COLOR TO JOURNAL

Under the guidance of a Board of Editors, the Mendel Bulletin, student publication of the School of Science, has achieved a degree of success in comparison with issues of a similar nature from other institutions. Many points of distinction differentiate the new Mendel Bulletin from the publication of previous years.

Chief among the points of distinction is the fact that the Bulletin has become a quarterly publication, thus allowing for a greater number and variety of theses to be printed. Another distinctive feature of the new Bulletin is the Board of Editors, under the competent leadership of chairman David E. Zion, senior member of the School of Science. Each member of the Board is directly responsible for theses in specific scientific subjects such as embryology, immunology, anatomy, histology, physics, chemistry, biology, genetics, and physiology.

New Format Offered

The Board of Editors is composed of the following individuals: Harry Parkin, John Bruno, Mario Troncelliti, Manrico Troncelliti, Paschal Linguiti, Edmund Virusky, Jose Licha, Gerald Piserchia, Lawrence Stead, Pasquale Guarini, Vincent Ciacci, and Louis Santamaria.

Another feature of the new Bulletin lies in the construction of its contents; modern styles of printing formation were employed in the make-up of the magazine. Also, special consideration and praise should be accorded to photography editor Pasquale Guarini. Several pictures developed by the latter individual have been lauded by individuals who are accepted authorities in the field of photography.

The last issue of the Mendel Bulletin will be published during the last week of May. This issue will be especially characterized by an increase in the number of subjects over those published in former issues.

BELLE AIR ANNUAL AMONG LEADERS OF YEARLY PERIODICALS

Presents Vivid and Realistic Conception of Life at Villanova

This year the Belle Air will feature a new and more informal style of presentation in pictures and reading material. Living up to the high standards that have been established in the past, the staff has blended their efforts in every department to give the students of Villanova a vivid and realistic conception of life at the college not only during the past four years, but also the present year.

The staff under the guidance of Editor-in-Chief, Thomas F. Kennedy, Jr., began work in November on the annual. Charles Stahlecker, College Editor, took care of all the assignments along the editorial line, while John Burke handled the Sports problems. William Mink scanned the dots and dashes of every article to give the yearbook an exact and grammatical rating second to none.

Photographers Active

Pasquale Guarini and Charles Betz along with Edward "Moose" Donovan roamed the campus to get all the sidelights in the way of pictorial information. Thomas J. Flaherty covered surrounding territory to get all possible ads in order that the senior class might give to the student body a finer type of layout. Edward "Powerhouse" Kelly prepared numerous schedules to handle the rush when distribution time rolled around. Working with each of these various heads were from five to six members respectively, thus enabling each department to centralize their work and produced a more effective and personal type of write-up. Rev. Daniel Falvey, O.S.A., faculty moderator has added his personal touch to guide the staff through various problems.

The underlying theme throughout the Belle Air is that the pictures and copy will refresh the minds of the students the exact events which took place this year. Football, basketball, baseball, boxing, and track have been featured with outstanding pictures gathered from time to time, recalling contests that have made history. The Intra-Mural section will also be presented in a more vivid style featuring all phases of activities that have taken place throughout the year. The social program will be entirely different to that of formr years with unique pictures and write-ups. The senior write-ups will also be touching along a more impersonal point of view.

Opportunities Afforded For Oratory, Dramatics

WAR BACKGROUND IS THEME OF DRAMATIC CLUB'S OFFERING

"Journey's End" Production of Belle Masque After 4 Years' Inactivity

PUBLICITY CAMPAIGN IS VIGOROUSLY PUSHED HERE

Highly Emotional Play Is Forerunner of Junior Week Activities

Belle Masque, leading dramatic organization of Villanova College, has finally readied J. C. Sheriff's "Journey's End" for production, after being inactive for a period of four years.

Mr. Anthony J. Frayne, M.A., professor of public apeaking, has, through his untiring efforts in coaching the various neophyte thespians, finally succeeded in arousing quite a bit of interest in this, the most recent attempt of the organization.

Commerce Men Enthusiastic

Some trouble was incurred at tht beginning of this school year in launching the group's activity. This difficulty consisted chiefly in securing the aid of men on the campus who had sufficient talent to handle the leading parts. This matter was one of importance in that the organization has a perfect and outstanding record of fine performances.

Most of the support given to this venture was secured from the members of the Commerce and Finance School. In fact so many of those men reported that not all could be used in active participation in the various plays planned by Mr. Frayne.

After the organization began to hold meetings difficulty was encountered in securing a play suitable to the talent and taste of the members.

It was decided, after much discussion, that a short play would be readied for presentation shortly after the Christmas holiday. This, however, was not done.

R. C. Sheriff's "Journey's End" was then selected to be the vehicle of the dramatic society's re-organization attempt at the stage.

Barret Heads Cast

Professor Frayne then secured a tight grip on all the regular members of the organization, selected a cast, and proceeded to whip it into top form.

Robert Barret, sophomore Arts, was selected to act the character of Captain Stanhope; John Donahue, junior C and F., became Lieutenant Osbourne; Maurice McDonald, soph Arts, Captain Hardy; Joseph O'Loughlin, junior Arts, Sergeant Major, and Henry Silewicz, frosh Science, German prisoner.

With the selection of the cast actual work was begun. Rehearsals were held almost daily so that the finished product would be flawless.

It was understood that the production of such a nature would necessitate the use of a number of committees to handle the economic end.

Committees Chosen

Accordingly a committee on tickets, program, poster, and publicity was formed. The members of these various bodies are respectively: Vince La Brasca, George Oosterle, Jake Jolly, Louis Biester, Charles O'Connor, Peter McManus, Wm. Bailey, James McAndrews, and Dominic Pascucci.

It has been finally decided that the play shall be presented from May 1 to May 4 inclusive. From all appearances the production will be a success and will insure the continuance of the organization.

ATHLETES PERFORM

From time to time Villanova College gives its athletes a chance to show that they are not so tough as they appear on the field of sport when she allows them to produce a musical comedy of their own. Although this practice has been discontinued for two years the Turf and Tinsel show is promising to again grasp the dramatic epotlight at Villanova. These shows put on by the athletes were always very good and very popular on the campus.

ELOCUTION CONTEST HELD ANNUALLY BY VILLANOVA COLLEGE

Students Vie for Honors; Winner Receives Gold Medal

CARROLL WILL COMPETE

In keeping with an annual custom, Villanova College is conducting an oratorical contest, the finals of which are to be held on May 12. This contest is under the direction of Professor Anthony J. Frayne, M. A., instructor of English.

Last year's contest was won by Joseph Carroll, senior Artsman, who is vying for honors this year.

Awarded Gold Medal

As a reward or token of victory the victor is presented with a gold medal at the graduation exercises. This medal was dedicated by the Very Rev. Edward J. Murtaugh, O. S. A.

Chairman Charles Bruno, senior arts, and Professor Frayne have selected as this year's topic the Constitution of the United States. This was the topic of last year's contest also, but it has been changed to include any part of the Constitution which the aspiring orator may care to develop.

Only six men are selected for the finals and they must limit their discussion to fifteen minutes.

Arrangements Committee

All arrangements for the event this year are being handled by Albert Mayell, Harry McNally, John Hoscy, John McManus, John Burke, and J. Benedict Maloney, who comprise the arrangement committee.

This year's contest proves to be of great interest in that the scope for discussion is so broad and unlimited.

Another feature which makes it interesting is the matter of Joseph Carroll participating again and having strong chances of winning the award for the second time in succession. The other contestants, however, are certain that he shall not win, and are conscientiously preparing to cross verbal foils.

INSTRUCTOR IS BUSY

Anthony Frayne, instructor of English at Villanova, is a very busy man. Besides his regular duties as instructor in English, Mr. Frayne is moderator of the Beta Gamma debating group, moderator of the Belle Masque Dramatic Society, and is also director of all elocution contests at the college.

AMATEUR NIGHT SCORES BIG HIT

Novel Idea Outstanding Success, Students Agree; Annual Feature

Among this year's student activities on the Campus was an Amateur night, a totally new feature of student affairs.

General approvement of the performance was so great that this fete has been incorporated in the list of general student activities.

Separate Units

Members of the various dormitories on the Campus, and also those of the various schools each acted as a separate unit and presented individual features.

Each group elected a master of ceremonies who held sway while his fellow-members went through with their performance.

Individuality and uniquity of ideas was so outstanding, and such talent uncovered for the dramatic society of the school that it was a foregone conclusion for such a performance to be made a permanent feature of student activities.

MISERICORDIA DEFEATED

Villanova's Beta Gamma debating society was the first debating team to defeat the Misericordia College debates this season. For several years the girls' college enjoyed successful debating easons until met by the Villanova group.

COURSE FAVORS STUDENT DEBATE

Inter-class Forensic Activities Form Large Part of Courses

Interclass debates are held every year by the members of Villanova College's Public Speaking classes.

These debates are governed by the usual rules applied to formal intercollegiate debates, with the only exception being that the time length for each speech and rebuttal is shortened.

Keeping With Aim

Members of the public speaking classes are the only ones to participate in these debates, in that such activity is considered as a side-issue of the course and is further in keeping with its aim.

These debates have proved to be of such interest to the members of the classes that it is expected to continue with them as a regular feature of the course.

Individual speeches are also a part of this course. Various individuals are selected from time to time to present a short talk before the assembled group of students in the Mendel Hall amphitheatre.

ABILITY RECOGNIZED

Mr. Anthony J. Frayne's abilities are recognized by others than his faculty superiors here at the college. In his spare time the instructor is employed in the research department of the Poe House in Philadelphia.

BETA GAMMA ENDS GREATEST YEAR IN HISTORY OF GROUP

Debating Society Successfully Met Over 30 Opponents in Varied Schedule

ENGAGEMENT VIA RADIO PROVED POPULAR FEATURE

Senior Members, Anthony Differ, Joseph Carroll, Bear Brunt of Work

Beta Gamma, forsenic society of Villanova College, has closed another successful season under the able direction of Anthony J. Frayne, M.A., by having participated in about 30 engagements, the largest number of debates scheduled by the organization in the past five years.

This year's group composed largely of sophomore members, was sparked by Anthony L. Differ, senior in the Arts School and president of the organization, and Joseph Carroll, senior Artsman.

Five Teams Selected

At the induction of the debating season this year, five teams were selected to prepare briefs for the various engagements. A senior member of the group headed each team. These men were: Anthony L. Differ, senior Arts; Victor J. Aslin, senior Arts; John Chapple, senior C. and F.; Joseph Carroll, senior Arts, and Edward McDevitt, senior C. and F.

Many of this year's members had debated last year with the freshman debating squad. It is interesting to note that that group closed a successful season without suffering a single defeat. The material thus furnished Mr. Frayne, was of choice and championship quality.

It was expected this year, therefore, that with such material and with the aid of the senior members of the organization to guide the varsity neophytes that Villanova would again have little trouble in winning decisions.

Largest Membership

Other members of the organization are: John Hosey, Thomas O'Brien, Edward Shovlin, Frederick Waters, John McManus, Pershing Calabro, James Quigley, Joseph O'Loughlin, William Corkill, John Dimon, Maurice McDonnell, John Simons, Charles Bruno, Joseph Alesandroni, Hugh Ferguson, John Stahman, Joseph McCabe, Joseph Hopkins, Thomas Delate, and Pio Goggi.

Waters, Calabro, McManus, Alessandroni, and Delate participated in many of the debates.

An interesting feature of this year's activity was the innovation of debates presented via radio. The organization made arrangements with Philadelphia station WIP to broadcast a varsity debate every Monday afternoon. This practice proved to be quite interesting to many college men interested in debating.

All the engagements were arranged on a home and home basis. This practice increased the number of debates scheduled by the organization, to about 50 engagements. However, several of the institutions scheduled for debate cancelled their engagements and so decreased the nmber of debates to about 30.

Many Institutions Met

Forensics engaged in the past year by the Villanova aggregation were with the following institutions: Swarthmore College, University of Pennsylvania, St. Joseph's College, Temple University, and Fordham University.

Organizations which were met in formal debates were:

Manhattan College, Albright College, Catholic University, Nassau College, Bucknell University, Upsala College, Shippensburg State Teachers College, Misericordia, Geneva College, Haverford College, Rutgers University, New York University, University of Maryland, and St. Joseph's College in Wilmington.

All told the forsenic members engaged in 29 debates and emerged victorious in almost all of the engagements.

SOCIAL FUNCTIONS FORM JOVIAL PART OF COLLEGE LIFE

FRATERNITY DANCES GIVE AFFAIRS INFORMAL TOUCH

Well Spaced Active Program Reduces Hazards of Over-Strain

Villanova College presents a well-diversified program of social activities during the scholastic year. The functions presented this year have been unprecedented in success in the history of the college, and not only provided a fine evening's entertainment, but also were instrumental in creating a more ideal fellowship.

Of the many memories which will remain with the student body one of the most impressive will be that of the Sophomore Cotillion. In true style the Sophomore Class upheld an annual tradition which ushers in the social season at Villanova. Rhythms for this gala affair were supplied by the "Villanovans," college dance band. This aggregation was received with much acclaim by the attending throng, and presented novelty arrangements for the dancers.

Owl Hop In 21st Year

Following closely on the heels of this dance was the 21st annual Owl Hop, sponsored by Phi Kappa Pi, the engineering fraternity of the college. Enthusiasm hit a new peak for this social activity, which proved to be one of the most successful of the fraternity dances. As this dance immediately precedes the annual Villanova-Temple football fray, the student body took advantage of this opportunity and made it the celebration of a pre-victory dance. Again the "Villanovans" occupied the stand placed on the east side of the dance floor.

Time marched quickly on and then came the announcement of the Lambda Kappa Delta Dance, given annually by the School of Science. This hop marks the last social function before the appearance of Lent. For the third successive time, the "Villanovans" were obtained to furnish the melodious harmonies for the attending audience. The proceeds of this affair went toward a fund to be known as "The Lambda Kappa Delta Scholarship Fund.' While such a fund had been previously instituted, this was the first time that such great strides had been taken to insure its success.

Seniors Present Russ Morgan

After a few months of comparatively quiet social activity came the startling and sensational announcement that the Senior Class had secured Russ Morgan and his "Music in the Morgan Manner" for the traditional Belle Air Ball. With this affair, the seniors concluded their social activities at Villanova.

The Ball was acclaimed as the most successful of Ball presentations and exceeded the most optimistic predictions.

The ballroom was majestically decorated in soft and mellow tones paralleling the vivacious laughter which was present and mingling with the music of the versatile maestro. Highlights of the dance were the amazing renditions of Russ Morgan and his trombone, as well as his melodious rhythms. It can truthfully be said that the Belle Air Ball of 1937 surpassed its predecessors in both harmony and splendor. The Senior dinner-dance also proved to be successful and everyone enjoyed a gay evening's entertainment.

The VILLANOVAN dinner-dance given annually to the retiring members of the publication, and for the induction of the new editors, was held at the exclusive Green Hill Farms and once more the music was rendered by the ever-popular "Villanovans."

"Sultan of Swing" Signed

The colorful Junior Promenade will take place on May 8 and the music for this brilliant social function will be rendered by the "Sultan of Swing," Tommy Dorsey. Establishing an envious following, Dorsey has been literally catapulated to the pinnacle of dancedland stardom. This affair proves to be the most memorable moment in the life of a college student. On his first appearance on the campus, the greenest freshman looks forward to the eventful day of the Junior Prom. It proves to be an unforgettable evening.

Following this, the juniors present the Blazer Ball. It is at this affair that the third-year men are resplendent in their blue and white blazers. The "Villanovans" have already been secured for the Blazer Ball Committee to entertain the dancers.

Wide Social Program Here

The social activities of the college will be brought to a fitting conclusion with the Junior dinner-dance. This is the last time during the scholastic year that the students will be able to "trip the light fantastic."

With such an array of dance presentations at Villanova College, it can readily be seen that the social life of the college is not neglected in the slightest. Though burdened with a heavy scholastic load, the students will find that the social functions are well divided so as to prevent an over-taxation on the mental strain of the students. These functions not only provide an evening's entertainment, but also acquaint the student body with many individuals and acquire a good social standing.

THEY DON'T HAVE A CARE IN THE WORLD

Local Home Town Clubs Keep Good Fellowship Spirit High On Campus

Prominent among the campus organizations are the four clubs representing students from Wilkes-Barre, North Jersey, Connecticut, and Massachusetts. Limited to students living in these localities, the organizations foster a spirit of neighborly co - operation between them.

Under the leadership of William Cleary, the School of Commerce and Finance, the Wilkes - Barre club enjoyed its most successful year. On Christmas Eve the group held an open dance at the Hotel Mallow-Sterling in Wilkes-Barre and conducted a closed dinner dance during the Easter holidays at the Hotel Tareton in Drums, Pennsylvania. Chief among the features of this meeting was the presentation of keys by Rev. Bernard F. McConville, O. S. A., moderator of the group, to the outgoing senior members, William Cleary, Charles Betz, Edmund Virusky and John Noll.

Selected to guide the destinies of the Wilkes-Barre club for the coming school year were Wytold Krzywicki, president; John Wysocki, vice president; William Devers, treasurer, and Gilbert Noll, secretary.

Cronin Heads N. J. Club

Students from the North Jersey section banded together under John Cronin, senior in the School of Technology, and ran two highly successful dances. The first was held at The Brook in Summit, New Jersey, and the second in the Manhattan Room of the Hotel Pennsylvania in New York City. Music for the occasion was furnished by Benny Goodman. At present elections for next year's officers have not been held.

After a lapse of several years, the Connecticut Club this year experienced a reorganization. J. Benedict Maloney, editor of the VILLANOVAN, was elected president of the group at its first meeting after its reorganization.

Society Active

Although consisting of only 20 members, the cub was one of the most active groups on the campus. Only one social activity was attempted during the year. This affair, a dance held during the Easter holidays at the Pavilion Royale in West Haven, Connecticut, was a great success.

Athletically, the Connecticut club participated in basketball and intends to be represented by a softball combination on the diamond. The basketball team had a very successful season, having emerged undefeated from a stiff campaign.

Mass. Group Elects Donovan

Also undergoing reorganization this year was the Massachusetts club. This group, an outgrowth of the old Lawrence Club, did not hold any social affairs, but left meetings open to discussion of home news and home affairs. John Donovan, senior in the School of Commerce and Finance, and member of the Belle Air staff, was president. Assisting him were John Burke, as vice president; John McKenna as secretary, and Frank Sweeney as treasurer.

This group, the largest on the campus, consisted of thirty-five members from all parts of the state. The great distances between the homes of many of the members was one of the chief reasons why no social function was attempted by the organization.

VARSITY "V" CLUB CAMPUS FEATURE

Lettermen Compete Against One Another in Off Seasons

Among the various societies on the Campus is the Varsity club, which is honorary in its membership.

Only those athletes who have earned their Varsity letter in one or more of the major sports are eligible for membership in this organization.

Its members participate in intramural activities throughout the year but restrict competition to contests among themselves.

Keeps Them Fit

In such a fashion harmony is kept among the players while they are not participating in their major sports and at the same time the men are enabled to keep in physical trim.

This organization has been in effect on the Campus for some time and has listed in its ranks most of the outstanding athletes of Villanova College for the past years and will be kept as a permanent and distinguished feature of Villanova organizations.

CHEMICALS, BABIES

The "Baby" society of the campus is none other than the Chemical Society. Organized under the guidance of Dr. E. L. Haenisch, the group got under way late in 1936.

Humorously, the society inducted itself into the prestige of a major unit by making an inspection tour. The tour was made to the John T. Lewis Paint Company. Unfortunately, due to the illness of Faculty Adviser, Dr. Haenisch, the interest in the society suffered a slight lag early in the new year.

ENGINEERING DEP'T HAS BUSY PART IN EXTRA CURRICULARS

School Has Four Technical Societies, Three Being National Groups

P. K. P. FRATERNITY HEADS LIST OF ORGANIZATIONS

Inspection Tours Feature Activities of Groups; Socials Held

Villanova College's School of Engineering student body is noted on the campus for its great interest in all of the extra-curricular activities, current on the campus. The engineers have many societies of their own of which they can well be proud.

The four technical societies, three of them being college chapters of major organizations, are: A. S. M. E., A. I. E. E, A. S. C. E., and the Chemical Society. The center of all engineering interest is, however, the engineering fraternity, Phi Kappa Pi. Originally organized to create friendships and fraternal spirit among the students, the fraternity has carried on, following its birthright to the highest pinnacle of campus popularity.

P. K. P. Heads List

Phi Kappa Pi assumed the upper hand in business and events before all had much time to accustom ourselves to the fact that the school year had begun all over again — way back in September, the 28th day to be specific. President Eugene A. Barr, '37, stirred up enough interest to have a presentable majority to hear Rev. John O'Leary, O. S. A., faculty adviser, address the first meeting.

At this meeting, Gene Barr stood right up and christened the season with the appointment of the many necessary committees, the two most important ones being the Smoker Committee, chairmanned by Frank Winterer, '37, and the Owl Hop Committee, with Joseph Duffy, '37, at the all-important seat.

Helmed by Joseph Delaney, the A. S. M. E. was another society to enjoy a year of activity of the enjoyable type. Inspection tours seemed to be the main dish on the menu, for it successfully completed several to the outstanding plants in and about the vicinity. Included on the list are the Sun Ship Building Company (Chester), the Autocar Company (Ardmore), the Stetson Hat Company, Baldwin's Locomotive Works, Luken's Steel Company, and the Jacobs' Aircraft Company (Pottstown).

A. S. C. E. ACTIVE

Mario Menocal, '37, and his officers of the A. S. C. E., were not slow in getting started, for early in the year the chapter had completed a few inspection tours arranged for by the trip committee, of which Paul Skelly is chairman.

The civil engineering group is outstanding for its informal meetings; meetings that seem to bubble over with interest. One could easily detect this fact by reading their write-ups throughout the year. Every member at one time or another was called upon, or volunteered, to give a talk on some pertinent civil engineering project.

The trips taken by the chapter were many and interesting. Among the several plants and projects were the Sun Shipbuilding and Drydock Company, the Schmidt Brewing Company and the Allentown Portland Cement Company.

The A. S. C. E. this year were hosts to the representatives of some nine local colleges at the Third Annual Convention of the District Student Chapters on April 19 on the campus.

Casey President

Villanova's chapter of the A. I. E. E. were particularly active this year with Edward J. Casey, '37, former editor of the VILLANOVA ENGINEER, as president. Assisted by his subordinates, Casey came close to leading the other technical chapters in the number of lectures and demonstrations given this year.

Among the most important inspection trips made by the chapter this year were Bell Telephone Company, Conowingo Dam, Generating Plant, and the Wright Aeronautical Corporation in Paterson, N. J.

Extra-Curricular Activities Many, Varied

EXTRA-CURRICULAR SPIRITUAL FIELD HIGHLY ORGANIZED

Holy Name Society is College Affiliate of National Association

CAMPUS SPIRITUAL WORK

Extra-curricular activities play an important part in the development of a college student. Their purpose is to teach men how to be sociable, become leaders and organizers in the various functions which that particular organization presents during the academic year.

These activities are not only present in the form of clubs, athletic organizations and the such, but also exist in a spiritual form. The Holy Name Society of Villanova College under the guidance of Rev. Charles P. Brown, O. S. A., as it moderator is one of these.

Communion Breakfasts

Throughout the year on every second Sunday of the month, as is the custom at our home parishes, the society hold its Communion Breakfast and invites some prominent speaker in the Catholic world to address the members. Here at Villanova, the Holy Name Society numbers about 150 men and elects its officers from this body each year.

Prominent Speakers Contacted

The speakers which are secured are truly leaders. They are exemplary men in the Catholic action and knowledge of the struggle that life presents is told in an instructive and entertaining manner. The officers for the society are elected for one year, the president being a senior; the treasurer, a junior, and secretary, a sophomore.

Have Sanctuary Society

Villanova College gives to every student the opportunity of assisting in the holy sacrifice of the Mass and other religious ceremonies by membership in the Sanctuary Society. It is the purpose of this organization to enlist the services of as many students as possible in the conducting of Chapel services and to encourage a knowledge of the symbolism and ceremonies in the Mass.

Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., founded the society on June 2, 1931, when he was college chaplain. Since 1932 the Rev. John J. Vrana, O. S. A., has been moderator. Though inconspicuous by the very nature of its purpose, the Sanctuary Society has been active since its beginning.

Each members is obliged to serve at the Altar on the appointed times and is also expected to offer to serve Mass whenever and wherever he sees a priest without a server. The secretary draws up a list of those who are to serve and posts it a month in advance so that the members may have plenty of time to notify the secretary of any inability to fulfill appointments or to arrange for a qualified substitute.

Press Apostolate

Villanova College has on its campus an organization, the Catholic Press Apostolate, whose purpose is to encourage among the students the reading of current Catholic literature, especially Catholic news papers and periodicals.

This organization, founded by Rev. Edward V. Sanford, O. S. A., president of Villanova College in 1931 has as its present faculty moderator Rev. Charles P. Brown, O. S. A. Fr. Brown has been active in working with the members of this organization so that it might serve the students in their pursuit of education and Catholic philosophy. As it is one of the main purposes of the college to develop the spiritual as well as cultural side of life, this society has an important function.

Pamphlet Racks Maintained

As an integral part of the extensive extra - curricular program, this organization has distributed among the students. From time to time the Catholic Press Apostolate has posted on the numerous bulletin boards throughout the college clippings on topics of Catholic interest from the secular press.

The Catholic Press Apostolate also undertakes to supply the Catholic press with news reports of religious activities at Villanova. However, this is a secondary function of the organization.

FELLOWSHIP AMONG ALL STUDENTS IS STATED LKD AIM

Science School Fraternity Combines Social, Cultural and Athletic Aspects

Villanova College can be well proud of the Lambda Kappa Delta Fraternity, Pre-medical School organization. In corporated within its constitution is a statement that one of the ideals of the fraternity is to foster a common fellowship among its members and other students of the School of Science.

The ideals of the fraternity were taken from those set as standards by three great Catholic doctors, Luke, Cosmos and Damian, from whose initials the fraternity draws its name. It is a distinct tribute to the fraternity that there does exist in the School of Science a comaraderie unrivaled by any of the other branches of the college.

Change In Policy Made

This year, the fraternity has been increasingly activated. Spurred by its president, Gerald Piserchia, the L. K. D. has undergone a change and revision in policy. Thursday evening meetings twice monthly with prominent speakers in the medical profession to address the members was one of the new and important inovations.

The organization does not only conduct its activities on an academic fashion but also instituted an athletic committee which placed the fraternity in the front and established another way of producing fellowship and sportsmanship. Each year there is presented a very colorful dance, a traditional and well received function on the campus. This year, to the melodious interpretations of the Villanovans, the L. K. D. dance proved to be a social success.

Functioning under the personal interest and guidance of Rev. Joseph M. Dougherty, O.S.A., the fraternity has been fortunate in having a competent and industrious moderator.

STUDENTS MAKE RETREATS

Time Taken from October and January Work for Exercises

In keeping with her policy of Catholic education, Villanova College pauses twice every year to allow its students to refresh their souls by making a retreat.

The first of these comes upon the occasion of the feast of Saint Thomas of Villanova, patron saint of the college. This date usually falls in the middle of October and one of the Augustinian mission band gives the retreat.

During the three days following the strenuous mid-year examinations, the scholastic labor of the college is again suspended and two Augustinian fathers conduct the annual three day ret eat.

Gaily Bedizened Band Adds Color To Grid Battles

Capable Musical Organization Executes Snappy Arrangements With Finesse

The spectacle of a gaily dressed and snappy band on a cold Fall afternoon certainly is the one factor which adds the color and spontaneity to a collegiate gridiron battle. This the Villanova Band has done for its team and student body at home and on foreign soil. The drum major blows a whistle and the members of the band automatically fall into a letter formation of their school and amid the cheers of the crowd, the student body in all sincerity sings out in youthful unison their Alma Mater.

Much Work Behind Each Task

Needless to say, these things have been witnessed by many of us. Yet, it may be well to look inside and see how the band prepares for a Saturday show. Under the capable direction of Mr. Paul Teel, and Pio Goggi, their drum-major, the band members go through a routine practice twice a week of the formations and colorful arrangements that are to be presented. At night, the musical end is given due consideration wherein the boys patiently correct their errors.

This extra-curricular activity has enjoyed much success for the past three years. New and distinct uniforms were given to the members which certainly is an attribute in favor of our college band. As each year goes by, the membership increases and it is with great anticipation that the student body awaits an even larger organization to represent them next year on the gridiron.

Informal Talks Encouraged Here By Study Club

Organization Supplements Religious Program By Discussing Modern Social Problems

One of the most popular academic clubs on the campus is the Study Club. This organization was started last September in conjunction with the religion course presented at Villanova College to afford the students an opportunity to discuss current events with reference to the Catholic teachings and in many cases to the encyclicals of Popes Leo XIII and Pius XI.

The club meets every Wednesday evening in the Day Students Room in Mendel Hall. Each week a member presents a paper on the topic under consideration. These papers are usually short, and they are then followed by a lively yet informal discussion in which all members take part.

Popular Woman Professor Speaks

Turning to political topics, Miss Melanie Staerck, of Rosemont College, delivered a paper on Fascism, while Richard Deverall spoke on the Evils of Capitalism, and Doctor Hartman, professor of history, delivered a thesis on the Development of Modern Capitalism.

Following this, Robert Strong spoke on Communism. Rev. Lorenzo, O. S. A., gave a vivid account of the war in Spain. Other speakers included James Quigley, who spoke on the Organized Catholic Endeavor in the Field of Sociology; William Corkill on The Cooperative System; Thomas Delate on the Proposed Changes in the Supreme Court, and Joseph Bongiovanni on the Morality of the Sit-Down Strikes.

PLANS MADE FOR FUTURE

One of the musical features of the leadership of Rev. Charles P. Brown, O. S A., Moderator, Mr. Paul Teel, the director, and Mr. Robert Whelan, the accompanist. The club has 35 members who have spent much time in rehearsing for their sparkling performances.

Speaking of the work of the year, Fr. Brown stated that the present Glee Club is without a doubt the finest in the history of the school. Besides featuring John Chapple as soloist, the club has also inaugurated a quartet composed of the latter, Frank Cullina, Richard Foote and Joseph Tanzola.

This Year's Club Finest

"Although this has been our finest Glee Club," Fr. Brown added, "I expect next year's club to be at least on a par with the present one. We are fortunate in losing only six members by graduation. In addition to the entire quartet which is composed entirely of seniors, we will also lose Paul Williams and Charles Betz. The majority of the members are now freshmen and juniors."

Next year, the moderator plans to organize earlier in order to be able to render more concerts. He also hopes to btain a business manager to make contacts for the schedule.

Five Concerts Presented

This year the Glee Club has presented five concerts. Two of these have been given on Station WCAU in Philadelphia and have been widely complimented by the studio officials and others. A recital was also given at the parish hall of Our Lady of Mt. Carmel's Church in Philadelphia on St. Patrick's Night. Tomorrow night the club will sing at Immaculata College, while the Villanovans furnish the dance music.

The final concert will be given on Mothers' Day, May 4, for the benefit of the mothers of the students.

Music Club Other Cultural Group

The Music Club of Villanova will terminate its first season on May 13. This club is the youngest on the campus, having been started on February 25. Rev. John Vrana, O. S. A., moderator of the club, stated, "Despite the recent organization, the club has been well received by a large number of students. Every time the attendance exceeded thirty - five members, a fact which bespeaks well of the appreciation of classical music among the students."

The club has been meeting every Thursday evening in the day students' room in Mendel Hall. Speaking on the purpose of music in the club, Fr. Vrana said, "It has been said that the capacity to listen to music properly is better proof of musical appreciation than ability to sing or to play an instrument. It is just as necessary to train our ears as our fingers, and this may be accomplished only through repeated hearings of the greatest musical compositions.

Listener Must Be Trained

"The object of these short talks accompanying the music is to train the listeners to distinguish between fundamental principles of music, and the differences in their expression, through the medium of voices and instruments."

In the past three meetings Fr. Vrana has spoken on the fundamental principles illustrated in instrumental and vocal music; the tonal qualities of men's and of women's voices; the combination of both; also the combinations of instruments in symphonic orchestras and how nationality is expressed in music.

National Music to Be Classified

At the final meetings of the club Fr. Vrana intends to discuss simple elements of form in music; classification of national music; finally the opera and the oratorio.

Student Enjoys Extensive Social Program

SOCIAL FUNCTIONS FORM JOVIAL PART OF COLLEGE LIFE

Senior Ball and Junior Promenade are Time-Hallowed Formal Events

FRATERNITY DANCES GIVE AFFAIRS INFORMAL TOUCH

Well Spaced Active Program Reduces Hazards of Over-Strain

Villanova College presents a well-diversified program of social activities during the scholastic year. The functions presented this year have been unprecedented in success in the history of the college, and not only provided a fine evening's entertainment, but also were instrumental in creating a more ideal fellowship.

Of the many memories which will remain with the student body one of the most impressive will be that of the Sophomore Cotillion. In true style the Sophomore Class upheld an annual tradition which ushers in the social season at Villanova. Rhythms for this gala affair were supplied by the "Villanovans," college dance band. This aggregation was received with much acclaim by the attending throng, and presented novelty arrangements for the dancers.

Owl Hop In 21st Year

Following closely on the heels of this dance was the 21st annual Owl Hop, sponsored by Phi Kappa Pi, the engineering fraternity of the college. Enthusiasm hit a new peak for this social activity, which proved to be one of the most successful of the fraternity dances. As this dance immediately precedes the annual Villanova-Temple football fray, the student body took advantage of this opportunity and made it the celebration of a pre-victory dance. Again the "Villanovans" occupied the stand placed on the east side of the dance floor.

Time marched quickly on and then came the announcement of the Lambda Kappa Delta Dance, given annually by the School of Science. This hop marks the last social function before the appearance of Lent. For the third successive time, the "Villanovans" were obtained to furnish the melodious harmonies for the attending audience. The proceeds of this affair went toward a fund to be known as "The Lambda Kappa Delta Scholarship Fund. While such a fund had been previously instituted, this was the first time that such great strides had been taken to insure its success.

Seniors Present Russ Morgan

After a few months of comparatively quiet social activity came the startling and sensational announcement that the Senior Class had secured Russ Morgan and his "Music in the Morgan Manner" for the traditional Belle Air Ball. With this affair, the seniors concluded their social activities at Villanova.

The Ball was acclaimed as the most successful of Ball presentations, and exceeded the most optimistic predictions.

The ballroom was majestically decorated in soft and mellow tones paralleling the vivacious laughter which was present and mingling with the music of the versatile maestro. Highlights of the dance were the amazing renditions of Russ Morgan and his trombone, as well as his melodious rhythms. It can truthfully be said that the Belle Air Ball of 1937 surpassed its predecessors in both harmony and splendor. The Senior dinner-dance also proved to be successful and everyone enjoyed a gay evening's entertainment.

The VILLANOVAN dinner-dance given annually to the retiring members of the publication, and for the induction of the new editors, was held at the exclusive Green Hill Farms and once more the music was rendered by the ever-popular "Villanovans."

"Sultan of Swing" Signed

The colorful Junior Promenade will take place on May 5 and the music for this brilliant social function will be rendered by the "Sultan of Swing," Tommy Dorsey. Establishing an envious following, Dorsey has been literally catapulted to the pinnacle of danceland stardom. This affair proves to be the most memorable moment in the life of a college student. On his first appearance on the campus, the greenest freshman looks forward to the eventful day of the Junior Prom. It proves to be an unforgettable evening.

Following this, the juniors present the Blazer Ball. It is at this affair that the third-year men are resplendent in their blue and white blazers. The "Villanovans" have already been secured for the Blazer Ball Committee to entertain the dancers.

Wide Social Program Here

The social activities of the college will be brought to a fitting conclusion with the Junior dinner-dance. This is the last time during the scholastic year that the students will be able to "trip the light fantastic."

With such an array of dance presentations at Villanova College, it can readily be seen that the social life of the college is not neglected in the slightest. Though burdened with a heavy scholastic load, the students will find that the social functions are well divided so as to prevent an over-taxation on the mental strain of the students. These functions not only provide an evening's entertainment, but also acquaint the student body with many individuals and acquire a good social standing.

THEY DON'T HAVE A CARE IN THE WORLD

Local Home Town Clubs Keep Good Fellowship Spirit High On Campus

Prominent among the campus organizations are the four clubs representing students from Wilkes-Barre, North Jersey, Connecticut, and Massachusetts. Limited to students living in these localities, the organizations foster a spirit of neighborly co - operation between them.

Under the leadership of William Cleary, the School of Commerce and Finance, the Wilkes - Barre club enjoyed its most successful year. On Christmas Eve the group held an open dance at the Hotel Mallow-Sterling in Wilkes-Barre and conducted a closed dinner dance during the Easter holidays at the Hotel Tareton in Drums, Pennsylvania. Chief among the features of this meeting was the presentation of keys by Rev. Bernard F. McConville, O. S. A., moderator of the group, to the outgoing senior members, William Cleary, Charles Betz, Edmund Virusky and John Noll.

Selected to guide the destinies of the Wilkes-Barre club for the coming school year were Wytold Krzywicki, president; John Wysocki, vice president; William Devers, treasurer, and Gilbert Noll, secretary.

Cronin Heads N. J. Club

Students from the North Jersey section banded together under John Cronin, senior in the School of Technology, and ran two highly successful dances. The first was held at The Brook in Summit, New Jersey, and the second in the Manhattan Room of the Hotel Pennsylvania in New York City. Music for the occasion was furnished by Benny Goodman. At present elections for next year's officers have not been held.

After a lapse of several years, the Connecticut Club this year experienced a reorganization. J. Benedict Maloney, editor of the VILLANOVAN, was elected president of the group at its first meeting after its reorganization.

Society Active

Although consisting of only 20 members, the cub was one of the most active groups on the campus. Only one social activity was attempted during the year. This affair, a dance held during the Easter holidays at the Pavillon Royale in West Haven, Connecticut, was a great success.

Athletically, the Connecticut club participated in basketball and intends to be represented by a softball combination on the diamond. The basketball team had a very successful season, having emerged undefeated from a stiff campaign.

Mass. Group Elects Donovan

Also undergoing reorganization this year was the Massachusetts club. This group, an outgrowth of the old Lawrence Club, did not hold any social affairs, but left meetings open to discussion of home news and home affairs. John Donovan, senior in the School of Commerce and Finance, and member of the Belle Aire staff, was president. Assisting him were John Burke, as vice president; John McKenna as secretary, and Frank Sweeney as treasurer.

This group, the largest on the campus, consisted of thirty-five members from all parts of the state. The great distances between the homes of many of the members was one of the chief reasons why no social function was attempted by the organization.

VARSITY "V" CLUB CAMPUS FEATURE

Lettermen Compete Against One Another in Off Seasons

Among the various societies on the Campus is the Varsity club, which is honorary in its membership.

Only those athletes who have earned their Varsity letter in one or more of the major sports are eligible for membership in this organization.

Its members participate in intramural activities throughout the year but restrict competition to contests among themselves.

Keeps Them Fit

In such a fashion harmony is kept among the players while they are not participating in their major sports and at the same time the men are enabled to keep in physical trim.

This organization has been in effect on the Campus for some time and has listed in its ranks most of the outstanding athletes of Villanova College for the past years and will be kept as a permanent and distinguished feature of Villanova organizations.

CHEMICALS, BABIES

The "Baby" society of the campus is none other than the Chemical Society. Organized under the guidance of Dr. E. L. Haenisch, the group got under way late in 1936.

Humorously, the society inducted itself into the prestige of a major unit by making an inspection tour. The tour was made to the John T. Lewis Paint Company. Unfortunately, due to the illness of Faculty Adviser, Dr. Haenisch, the interest in the society suffered a slight lag early in the new year.

ENGINEERING DEP'T HAS BUSY PART IN EXTRA CURRICULARS

School Has Four Technical Societies, Three Being National Groups

P. K. P. FRATERNITY HEADS LIST OF ORGANIZATIONS

Inspection Tours Feature Activities of Groups; Socials Held

Villanova College's School of Engineering student body is noted on the campus for its great interest in all of the extra-curricular activities, current on the campus. The engineers have many societies of their own of which they can well be proud.

The four technical societies, three of them being college chapters of major organizations, are: A. S. M. E., A. I. E. E. A. S. C. E., and the Chemical Society. The center of all engineering interest is, however, the engineering fraternity, Phi Kappa Pi. Originally organized to create friendships and fraternal spirit among the students, the fraternity has carried on, folliwing its birthright to the highest pinnacle of campus popularity.

P. K. P. Heads List

Phi Kappa Pi assumed the upper hand in business and events before all had much time to accustom ourselves to the act that the school year had begun all over again — way back in September, the 28th day to be specific. President Eugene A. Barr, '37, stirred up enough interest to have a presentable majority to hear Rev. John O'Leary, O. S. A., faculty adviser, address the first meeting.

At this meeting, Gene Barr stood right up and christened the season with the appointment of the many necessary committees, the two most important ones being the Smoker Committee, chairmanned by Frank Winterer, '37, and the Owl Hop Committee, with Joseph Duffy, '37, at the all-important seat.

Helmed by Joseph Delaney, the A. S. M. E. was another society to enjoy a year of activity of the enjoyable type. Inspection tours seemed to be the main dish on the menu, for it successfully completed several to the outstanding plants in and about the vicinity. Included on the list are the Sun Ship Building Company (Chester), the Autocar Company (Ardmore), the Stetson Hat Company, Baldwin's Locomotive Works, Luken's Steel Company, and the Jacobs' Aircraft Company (Pottstown).

A. S. C. E. ACTIVE

Mario Menocal, '37, and his officers of the A. S. C. E., were not slow in getting started, for early in the year the chapter had completed a few inspection tours arranged for by the trip committee, of which Paul Skelly is chairman.

The civil engineering group is outstanding for its informal meetings; meetings that seem to bubble over with interest. One could easily detect this fact by reading their write-ups throughout the year. Every member at one time or another was called upon, or volunteered, to give a talk on some pertinent civil engineering project.

The trips taken by the chapter were many and interesting. Among the several plants and projects were the Sun Shipbuilding and Drydock Company, the Schmidt Brewing Company and the Allentown Portland Cement Company.

The A. S. C. E. this year were hosts to the representatives of some nine local colleges at the Third Annual Convention of the District Student Chapters on April 19 on the campus.

Casey President

Villanova's chapter of the A. I. E. E. were particularly active this year with Edward J. Casey, '37, former editor of the VILLANOVA ENGINEER, as president. Assisted by his subordinates, Casey came close to leading the other technical chapters in the number of lectures and demonstrations given this year.

Among the most important inspection trips made by the chapter this year were Bell Telephone Company, Conowingo Dam, Generating Plant, and the Wright Aeronautical Corporation in Paterson, N. J.

Extra-Curricular Activities Many, Varied

EXTRA-CURRICULAR SPIRITUAL FIELD HIGHLY ORGANIZED

Holy Name Society is College Affiliate of National Association

CAMPUS SPIRITUAL WORK

Extra-curricular activities play an important part in the development of a college student. Their purpose is to teach men how to be sociable, become leaders and organizers in the various functions which that particular organization presents during the academic year.

These activities are not only present in the form of clubs, athletic organizations and the such, but also exist in a spiritual form. The Holy Name Society of Villanova College under the guidance of Rev. Charles P. Brown, O. S. A., as it moderator is one of these.

Communion Breakfasts

Throughout the year on every second Sunday of the month, as is the custom at our home parishes, the society hold its Communion Breakfast and invites some prominent speaker in the Catholic world to address the members. Here at Villanova, the Holy Name Society numbers about 150 men and elects its officers from this body each year.

Prominent Speakers Contacted

The speakers which are secured are truly leaders. They are exemplary men in the Catholic action and knowledge of the struggle that life presents is told in an instructive and entertaining manner. The officers for the society are elected for one year, the president being a senior; the treasurer, a junior, and secretary, a sophomore.

Have Sanctuary Society

Villanova College gives to every student the opportunity of assisting in the holy sacrifice of the Mass and other religious ceremonies by membership in the Sanctuary Society. It is the purpose of this organization to enlist the services of as many students as possible in the conducting of Chapel services and to encourage a knowledge of the symbolism and ceremonies in the Mass.

Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., founded the society on June 2, 1931, when he was college chaplain. Since 1932 the Rev. John J. Vrana, O. S. A., has been moderator. Though inconspicuous by the very nature of its purpose, the Sanctuary Society has been active since its beginning.

Each members is obliged to serve at the Altar on the appointed times and is also expected to offer to serve Mass whenever and wherever he sees a priest without a server. The secretary draws up a list of those who are to serve and posts it a month in advance so that the members may have plenty of time to notify the secretary of any inability to fulfill appointments or to arrange for a qualified substitute.

Press Apostolate

Villanova College has on its campus an organization, the Catholic Press Apostolate, whose purpose is to encourage among the students the reading of current Catholic literature, especially Catholic news papers and periodicals.

This organization, founded by Rev. Edward V. Sanford, O. S. A., president of Villanova College in 1931 has as its present faculty moderator Rev. Charles P. Brown, O. S. A. Fr. Brown has been active in working with the members of this organization so that it might serve the students in their pursuit of education and Catholic philosophy. As it is one of the main purposes of the college to develop the spiritual as well as cultural side of life, this society has an important function.

Pamphlet Racks Maintained

As an integral part of the extensive extra - curricular program, this organization has distributed among the students. From time to time the Catholic Press Apostolate has posted on the numerous bulletin boards throughout the college clippings on topics of Catholic interest from the secular press. The Catholic Press Apostolate also undertakes to supply the Catholic press with news reports of religious activities at Villanova. However, this is a secondary function of the organization.

FELLOWSHIP AMONG ALL STUDENTS IS STATED LKD AIM

Science School Fraternity Combines Social, Cultural and Athletic Aspects

Villanova College can be well proud of the Lambda Kappa Delta Fraternity, Pre-medical School organization. In corporated within its constitution is a statement that one of the ideals of the fraternity is to foster a common fellowship among its members and other students of the School of Science.

The ideals of the fraternity were taken from those set as standards by three great Catholic doctors, Luke, Cosmos and Damian, from whose initials the fraternity draws its name. It is a distinct tribute to the fraternity that there does exist in the School of Science a comaraderie unrivaled by any of the other branches of the college.

Change In Policy Made

This year, the fraternity has been increasingly activated. Spurred by its president, Gerald Piserchia, the L. K. D. has undergone a change and revision in policy. Thursday evening meetings twice monthly with prominent speakers in the medical profession to address the members was one of the new and important inovations.

The organization does not only conduct its activities on an academic fashion but also instituted an athletic committee which placed the fraternity in the front and established another way of producing fellowship and sportsmanship. Each year there is presented a very colorful dance, a traditional and well received function on the campus. This year, to the melodious interpretations of the Villanovans, the L. K. D. dance proved to be a social success.

Functioning under the personal interest and guidance of Rev. Joseph M. Dougherty, O.S.A., the fraternity has been fortunate in having a competent and industrious moderator.

STUDENTS MAKE RETREATS

Time Taken from October and January Work for Exercises

In keeping with her policy of Catholic education, Villanova College pauses twice every year to allow its students to refresh their souls by making a retreat.

The first of these comes upon the occasion of the feast of Saint Thomas of Villanova, patron saint of the college. This date usually falls in the middle of October and one of the Augustinian mission band gives the retreat.

During the three days following the strenuous mid-year examinations, the scholastic labor of the college is again suspended and two Augustinian fathers conduct the annual three day ret eat.

Gaily Bedizened Band Adds Color To Grid Battles

Capable Musical Organization Executes Snappy Arrangements With Finesse

The spectacle of a gaily dressed and snappy band on a cold Fall afternoon certainly is the one factor which adds the color and spontaneity to a collegiate gridiron battle. This the Villanova Band has done for its team and student body at home and on foreign soil. The drum major blows a whistle and the members of the band automatically fall into a letter formation of their school and amid the cheers of the crowd, the student body in all sincerity sings out in youthful unison their Alma Mater.

Much Work Behind Each Task

Needless to say, these things have been witnessed by many of us. Yet, it may be well to look inside and see how the band prepares for a Saturday show. Under the capable direction of Mr. Paul Teel, and Pio Goggi, their drum-major, the band members go through a routine practice twice a week of the formations and colorful arrangements that are to be presented. At night, the musical end is given due consideration wherein the boys patiently correct their errors.

This extra-curricular activity has enjoyed much success for the past three years. New and distinct uniforms were given to the members which certainly is an attribute in favor of our college band. As each year goes by, the membership increases and it is with great anticipation that the student body awaits an even larger organization to represent them next year on the gridiron.

Informal Talks Encouraged Here By Study Club

Organization Supplements Religious Program By Discussing Modern Social Problems

One of the most popular academic clubs on the campus is the Study Club. This organization was started last September in conjunction with the religion course presented at Villanova College to afford the students an opportunity to discuss current events with reference to the Catholic teachings and in many cases to the encyclicals of Popes Leo XIII and Pius XI.

The club meets every Wednesday evening in the Day Students Room in Mendel Hall. Each week a member presents a paper on the topic under consideration. These papers are usually short, and they are then followed by a lively yet informal discussion in which all members take part.

Popular Woman Professor Speaks

Turning to political topics, Miss Melanie Staerck, of Rosemont College, delivered a paper on Fascism, while Richard Deverall spoke on the Evils of Capitalism, and Doctor Hartman, professor of history, delivered a thesis on the Development of Modern Capitalism.

Following this, Robert Strong spoke on Communism. Rev. Lorenzo, O. S. A., gave a vivid account of the war in Spain. Other speakers included James Quigley, who spoke on the Organized Catholic Endeavor in the Field of Sociology; William Corkill on The Co-operative System; Thomas Delate on the Proposed Changes in the Supreme Court, and Joseph Bongiovanni on the Morality of the Sit-Down Strikes.

Regular round trip fare from the terminal to the college station costs 50 cents, while special rates may be had for students commuting daily. These tickets may be bought from the ticket agent at the college station for $4.99 and $7.75. The former book consists of 26 tickets good for three months, while the latter includes 50 trips and is good for one month.

This service is convenient for students having good connections with the railroad at its terminus in the city. Students bent in research will find Philadelphia's best libraries close to the Broad St. Station, while shoppers find the Quaker city department stores only a few squares from their station.

Philadelphia and Western Railway Offers Convenient Transportation

With its eastern terminus at the 69th Street end of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit's Market Street subway elevated lines the Philadelphia and Western Railroad high speed cars bring students to Villanova College in about 30 minutes running time from Philadelphia's City Hall.

Villanova Has Specials

In the morning before school several special Villanova cars leave the terminus at ten minute intervals and rush the students to the P. and W. station on the college grounds in less than ten minutes. These high speed cars are streamlined and present the latest in comfort and convenience.

Special commuters rates are available for college students and may be purchased from the company's agent at the college bookstore. This special offer consists of a single card having 25 rides on it and good for three months. This special ticket is regularly priced at $1.50. This really amounts to about six cents a ride; a total saving of more than 35 percent on regular rides.

Regular round trip tickets between the college station and the 69th Street terminal sell for 35 cents.

New Terminal Erected

At the eastern end of the line the Philadelphia and Western and the Aronimink Transportation Company have recently erected a new million dollar terminal. Here it is possible to connect with all bus routes for the south as well as those for New England and New York. Here also transportation facilities to points within a radius of 30 miles are available. Since the building of the new terminal 69th Street has become a hub of local transportation.

Close to the new terminal building is the western end of the Market Street Elevated-Subway Line which carries students into Philadelphia. Here, too, bus connections may be made to Germantown.

For students living in the West, South or Northeast sections of Philadelphia, as well as those living in Upper Darby, Lansdowne and Media sections, the Philadelphia and Western provides swift and economical transportation.

ARONIMINK TRANS. ANSWERS DEMAND OF BUSY STUDENT

Convenient Transportation to All Main Line from 63rd and Lancaster Ave.

In order to better serve its patrons in the small towns along the great Main Line suburban district of Philadelphia, the Aronimink Transportation Company of Upper Darby years ago decided to run buses between Philadelphia and Strafford.

Leaving 63rd Street and Lancaster Ave. these buses pass through the Narberth and Wynnewood districts and enter Lancaster Ave. a short distance west of City Line.

Passing through Ardmore and Bryn Mawr they continue on Lancaster Ave. past Villanova College and proceed westward to Strafford.

This entire run from the 63rd Street terminal to Villanova College only takes a total running time of 25 minutes. Reduced prices especially arranged for Villanova College students include special five cent rides purchasable only at the college bookstore.

For running in to Bryn Mawr or Ardmore or up to Wayne to attend a movie, to make a purchase, or to meet the crowd at one of the college rendezvous, these buses supply very convenient transportation. For the student living in the 63rd Street section of Philadelphia the Aronimink buses answer the demand for a quick, easy way to school.

DEBATING SOCIETY SEEKS NEW SYSTEM

Beta Gamma to Aim at Variety in Forensic Contests

Audience appeal through variety is the aim this year of Beta Gamma Debating Society. Plans were made at the initial meeting last week to alternate topics, types of debate, and opponents during the current season.

Beside the traditional type of debate, Villanova students will be given the opportunity to see some improved styles. The Society will use the Oxford system, a sort of round table conference, the Oregon system, similar to court procedure, and the Split-team debate in which speakers from different schools change places, thus producing mixed teams. This last style stresses debating per se rather than school partisanship and mere desire to win. In addition, original arrangements are being devised for use in radio debates.

Retreat Master Presents Enlightening Discussions at Annual Exercises

"Wisdom glorifieth her nobility by being conversant with God"—Wisd. 8:3.

It was to provide just such an opportunity for a closer intimacy with God at the commencement of the present school year that Villanova College held its annual day of retreat last Thursday, the final day of September. Since all classes were suspended, the entire day was devoted to religious exercises. Following Mass, conferences were convened at regular intervals throughout the day while in the afternoon the Stations of the Cross and Benediction signaled the close of the retreat. On the following day, October 1, the school as a unified group attended the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass, partook of the Holy Eucharist, and then was given the Papal Blessing.

Transportation facilities for the Villanova—Auburn football game on Saturday at Shibe Park have been arranged for the student body.

The Greyhound Transportation Company will supply the buses to take the students to and from the contest, which is to be held at Shibe Park. Registration Figures Show Gain In Enrollment Over Past School Year

Freshmen Class Shows 12% Increase; Commerce and Finance School Leads All Other Departments With 276 Students

With regular yearly increase of student enrollment Villanova College is rapidly approaching the thousand mark. This year's total has reached eight-hundred and ninety pupils and shows a ten percent increase over last year's registration. The Freshman group, Class of 1941, reaches a new high with three hundred and forty-two students; a 12 percent increase.

A comparison of the upper-class registrations clearly shows the upward trend of increasing numbers with a definite ratio. The Sophomore class at present contains 234 students, which is more than 100 less than the first year class, but shows an increase of almost 100 over their preceding class which has a total of 168. Here the ratio loses definiteness but even at that shows a slight increase from the years 1934 to 1935; the Senior class being smallest with 143 men.

For the present year the resident students almost double non-residents, the latter consisting of 346 commuters and the former numbering 544. This number seems to indicate that Villanova is attracting a larger number of Philadelphia high school graduates than it has in past years.

The individual department statistics finds the Commerce and Finance leading with 276 and followed closely by the Science School which boasts of 218 members. There are 210 engineers matriculating, with the Arts School completing the total enrollment with their group of 193.

COLLEGE YEARBOOK ACHIEVES COVETED ASSOCIATION AWARD

Becomes Third Campus Publication to Win 'All-American'; Staff Announced

Not to be outdone by the VILLANOVAN and the "Mendel Bulletin" the "Belle Air" Yearbook of Villanova College also won the "All-American" award of the National Scholastic Press Association.

The announcement came to the yearbook staff only a few days ago from the offices of the above association. Of particular note is the fact that the "Belle Air" was one of two winners in the entire contest with 203 other colleges. Sharing this singular honor with the Villanova publication is the "Metate" of Pamona College. Out of a possible perfect score of 1000 percent the "Belle Air" gained the unusually high score of 850 points.

Kennedy Responsible

Thomas F. Kennedy, '37, editor of the prizewinning yearbook, is directly responsible for the attainment of the award. It was due to his untiring efforts and carefulness that the book was able to gain the high position of honor it now holds. It will be remembered that Kennedy was the most active man on the campus last year and was awarded the prize for that singular honor upon his graduation in June.

Yearling Debaters Hold Initial Meeting Today; Plan Outside Contests

Villanova's Freshmen Debating Society will hold its first meeting tomorrow to elect officers for the coming year. Topics for debate will be discussed and a tentative schedule arranged.

The Freshman debators last year met with singular success in all of their formal forensic encounters and we hope that a great number of the class of '41 will take advantage of the opportunity offered to engage in friendly discussion with classmates as well as with opponents from other schools.

All Freshmen will have an equal opportunity if they report to Room 205, Mendel Hall.

Traditional in Villanova history, the Sophomore Cotillion marks the opening of the college social season. This dance is presented annually as a form of welcome to the Freshman Class members and as their formal introduction to the upperclassmen. Tentative plans for the two annual dances—Christmas and Easter—were made. As customary, the dances will be held in some metropolitan center. These convocations of alumni and undergraduates have been extremely successful in the past.

Auburn Guests At Homecoming Dinner

Connelly, Class of '27, and recognized everywhere as Villanova's Number One rooter. Chairman Connelly has promised that this homecoming will eclipse all previous affairs of this nature.

The Alumni will witness a bitter struggle between the participants of the Bacardi Bowl contest, which ended in a 7-7 stalemate last New Year's Day at Havana, Cuba. This game is of special significance inasmuch as the winner of the game will receive permanent possession of the cup and will be extended an invitation to play in Cuba's Bowl classic next New Year's Day.

The Cuban Government, which became actively interested in football since the memorable clash last year, has passed a law which makes it imperative that Cuban newspapers send sports writers to cover the battle, which gives every evidence of being one of best intersectional games of the current year.

The Alumni received auto-stickers, picture of the head of a Wildcat, which was designed by an alumnus. The graduates will have a reserved section at the game, as is customary.

LAMBDA KAPPA DELTA ELECTS BATTAFARANO

Senior Science Student Represents Pre-Med Fraternity In Student Council

At a special meeting of the Lambda Kappa Delta fraternity held last Monday, Leonard Battafarano, Senior science student, was nominated as Student Council representative for the organization.

This action was taken to fill the vacancy for that position created by the absence of Jose Gonzales, elected at the close of school last year.

There has been no definite date set for the first official meeting of the group for this semester. In all probability it will be held this week.

GIVES SERMON

VERY REV. JOSEPH A. HICKEY

College Formally Opened By Annual Solemn High Mass

Very Rev. Joseph A. Hickey, Augustinian Assistant General, Delivers Sermon

With the celebration of Solemn High Mass, Villanova College formally opened its 95th year as a Catholic educational institution. Rev Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., president of the college, was the celebrant. He was assisted by the Rev. Bernard M. Albers, O. S. A., who served as deacon, and Rev. Francis Ludwig, O. S. A., subdeacon. The mass was attended by the entire student body including the the largest Freshman class ever to be enrolled.

Very Rev. Dr. Joseph Hickey, O. S. A., former president of the college, who is now serving as Assistant General of the Augustinian Order, with headquarters in Rome, in his address, tried to impress the students with the all-importance of individual effort. Dr. Hickey pointed out that each student could achieve success in his college career only by constant perseverance. "This, and this alone," he said, "is the one positive assurance of attaining the end for which he has come to Villanova." Father Hickey closed his discourse by giving a brief resume of the life of St. Thomas of Villanova.

It was evident, at the close of the services, that the new students were deeply impressed not only by the words of Dr. Hickey but also by the great display of faith made by the average Villanova student.

EVENING SCHOOL GROWTH CALLED UNUSUALLY FAST

Opens Its Ninth Successive Season Under Rev. Joseph C. Bartley, O. S. A.

Villanova College announced the opening of its evening school for the ninth successive year under the guidance of Rev. Joseph C. Bartley, O. S. A., at the Hallahan Catholic Girls' High School, 19th and Wood Sts.

The evening session was added to the part - time sessions in 1928 and has since achieved rapid growth. A remarkable thing about its growth is the fact that very little has been spent in advertising, the session progressing on its merits. The competency of its staff, the quality of its instruction, and the low cost to the student have established the conviction in the minds of many that its prime purpose is to be of servce to as many Catholic men and women as the facilities can provide.

Registration for the evening session will be held each evening from 6:20 to 9:00 P. M until October 18, at the Hallahan Catholic Girls' High School Registration may also be made by letter or telephone to Villanova College. The courses of instruction include Business Administration, English, Public Speaking, Italian, Journalism, Psychology, History, Social Science, Sociology, and Music.

Local Publication Wins High Honors

for men in this area which has received the award this year.

Honored Many Times

Even though this is the first time the VILLANOVAN has secured All-Catholic rating, it has received national rating for the past four years. National recognition was given this newspaper in 1934, while in 1935-36-37 the Associated Collegiate Press All-American award was received. This All-American rating is the highest award to be given a school publication in this country. Only eleven institutions were granted it, while national recognition is given to a larger number of schools.

The rating in the Associate Collegiate Press organization is done in competition with not only Catholic institutions, as is done in the National Catholic Press Association, but with all the universities and colleges in the country which publish newspapers, periodicals, annuals, and the like.

CHEMICAL SOCIETY SELECTS OFFICERS FOR COMING YEAR

Joseph Beittenmiller Chosen President; O'Connor, Cierkowski Also Victorious

Joseph W. Beittenmiller, senior chemical engineer, was elected president of the year-old Villanova Chemical Society at the group's first meeting, held yesterday at 11:30 A. M. Beittenmiller assumed his office immediately.

The group elected Daniel J. O'Connor, Jr., also a senior, vice president of the society and Edward Cierkowski, a sophomore, as secretary-treasurer.

Dr. Edward L. Haenisch, Assistant Professor of Chemistry, conducted the meeting at the beginning and made several announcements concerning the intended activities for the coming year. Among Dr. Haenisch's proposals was suggestion that the group make inspection tours to chemical plants. He has already planned for a trip to the Kimble Glass Works in Vineland, N. J., and, through the efforts of Alfred N. Hoffman, a senior, a trip to the Du Pont Dye Works. A third probable trip named was one to the Franklin Sugar Refinery. The first trip will be made probably in November, while the others will be deferred until the new year.

Committees Appointed

Upon assumption of his new office, Beittenmiller appointed two committees: the research committee and the trip committee. It will be the function of the former to compile data for meeting discussions and to act as an aid to new students in acquainting them with the course at Villanova. This committee is composed of C. Joseph Rosbert, Alan Brown, Edward Conneen, and Joseph B. Sanborn. The second committee, composed of Frederick Welty and Alfred Hoffman, will prepare the log of the trips planned and investigate the possibility of other trips.

P. M. C. GAME MARKS FIRST PERFORMANCE OF REVAMPED BAND

New Marches and Changed Style Improve Campus Musical Group

FR. BOYLE MODERATOR

Saturday opened the initial performance of the Villanova College band. Fifty-seven strong in bright uniforms, they offered a striking sight that would inspire school spirit into anyone that heard them.

This number included 54 pieces, two flag bearers, and that sensational new drum major, Melvin Bricker. The rapid stick work of his chronium plated baton was spectacular to see and dazzling to the eyes. With three years high school experience behind him, he is a treat and a threat to all opposing drum majors.

Several new musical arrangements were heard and enjoyed by all. An old favorite missed by the older students was the New Colonial. There are hopes that it will be returned to the repertoire of Rev. J. Boyle, O. S. A., who is the new moderator of the band who succeeds Rev. B. Albers, O. S. A., vice president of the college, moderator of the past year. Father Boyle has taken over the band and the other musical organizations of the college.

There has been an increase in the number of instruments and the amount of equipment possessed by the band. All this which has greatly added to the success of the band has been made possible through the efforts of Rev. Charles Melchoir, O. S. A., procurator of the college.

The larger portion of the work that has been done in rehearsing and practicing the players into precision is chiefly due to the efforts of Paul D. Teel. Mr. Teel has been associated with the band for several years, and his service this year can be appreciated by the reception given the band last Saturday.

The North Jersey Club had its inception in 1932, when Daniel Jarvis, now a Northwestern University senior in medicine, decided to foster a unit for the propogation of interest in Villanova in Northern New Jersey. The club's first dance was held in the East Orange Mountain Country Club and was presided over by the first president, William O'Brien.

Game in Jersey

Present members, desiring to fulfill the intentions of those who founded the club, are attempting to arrange a major athletic contest for Jersey City's new million-dollar stadium, or its new armory. Campus rumors last Spring had Villanova playing Marquettte in Jersey City in 1933.

The Villanova Club of Jersey City, co-operating with the North North Jersey Club, is attempting to arrange a basketball game for this coming season.

The acoustic curtains adopted last Spring will be used to the same advantage at the dance. Refreshments will be on sale under the direction of J. Beatty Schemerhorn, Commerce and Finance student.

A committee of 30 sophomore class members has been chosen to assist Chairman O'Brien in the presentation of the Cotillion. The committee members are as follows: School of Technology—Anthony Aleo, Charles Barrett, Joseph Gallagher, and Joseph Seeiaus; Science School—Andrew Armatrudo, Daniel D'Alesio, William Duffy, Richard Gove, Alfred Bongiovanni, Francis Masse, Marvin Mones, Arthur Sanitelli, and Harry Taylor; School of Arts and Philosophy — Paul Fitzmaurice, Joseph McNamara, and Robert Wilderotter; School of Commerce and Finance —Philip Dunn, George Haggerty, Joseph York, Robert Keeler, Francis Pimpinella, Clement Lavin, William Neel, Charles Cavanaugh, John Rinfret, J. Professor Morehouse will be assisted on the Advisory Committee by Harry S. Beuche, head of the Department of Electrical Engineering; Thomas J. McCormick, Department of Civil Engineering, and Edward L. Haenish, assistant professor of Chemistry and Chemical Engineering.

Other revisions will be determined by the Advisory Committee affecting the other laboratory department in the Technology School.

SOPHOMORES CHOOSE CHAS. CAVANAUGH IN SPECIAL ELECTION

Commerce and Finance Student Ascends to Secretary Position

Charles Cavanaugh, student in the School of Commerce and Finance, was overwhelmingly elected to the position of secretary of the sophomore class, succeeding Robert Wilson, who withdrew from college the past year.

Cavanaugh was far out in front and his closest opponent was Anthony Petrli, of the Science Department. Other aspirants to the office included Edward Cierkowski and Joseph Gallagher, both of the Technology School.

Few Votes Cast

Contrary to last year's large ballot, there were very few votes cast at this special election, held yesterday afternoon in the rear of Mendel Hall.

Cavanaugh assumed his duties immediately upon election as the traditional sophomore cotillion will be held this Friday and it was necessary that the position be filled before the dance.

Other class officers include William Leon, of the Science School, president; Eugene Ertle, Arts School, vice president; Bernard Bellew, Science Department treasurer; and Peter Hanlon, also of the Pre-Medical School, student council representative.

Joseph Beittenmiller Chosen President; O'Connor, Cierkowski Also Victorious

Joseph W. Beittenmiller, senior chemical engineer, was elected president of the year-old Villanova Chemical Society at the group's first meeting, held yesterday at 11:30 A. M. Beittenmiller assumed his office immediately.

The group elected Daniel J. O'Connor, Jr., also a senior, vice president of the society and Edward Cierkowski, a sophomore, as secretary-treasurer.

Dr. Edward L. Haenisch, Assistant Professor of Chemistry, conducted the meeting at the beginning and made several announcements concerning the intended activities for the coming year. Among Dr. Haenisch's proposals was suggestion that the group make inspection tours to chemical plants. He has already planned for a trip to the Kimble Glass Works in Vineland, N. J., and, through the efforts of Alfred N. Hoffman, a senior, a trip to the Du Pont Dye Works. A third probable trip named was one to the Franklin Sugar Refinery. The first trip will be made probably in November, while the others will be deferred until the new year.

Committees Appointed

Upon assumption of his new office, Beittenmiller appointed two committees: the research committee and the trip committee. It will be the function of the former to compile data for meeting discussions and to act as an aid to new students in acquainting them with the course at Villanova. This committee is composed of C. Joseph Rosbert, Alan Brown, Edward Conneen, and Joseph B. Sanborn. The second committee, composed of Frederick Welty and Alfred Hoffman, will prepare the log of the trips planned and investigate the possibility of other trips.

EVENING SCHOOL GROWTH CALLED UNUSUALLY FAST

Opens Its Ninth Successive Season Under Rev. Joseph C. Bartley, O. S. A.

Villanova College announced the opening of its evening school for the ninth successive year under the guidance of Rev. Joseph C. Bartley, O. S. A., at the Hallahan Catholic Girls' High School, 19th and Wood Sts.

The evening session was added to the part - time sessions in 1928 and has since achieved rapid growth. A remarkable thing about its growth is the fact that very little has been spent in advertising, the session progressing on its merits. The competency of its staff, the quality of its instruction, and the low cost to the student have established the conviction in the minds of many that its prime purpose is to be of service to as many Catholic men and women as the facilities can provide.

Registration for the evening session will be held each evening from 6:30 to 9:00 P. M until October 18, at the Hallahan Catholic Girls' High School Registration may also be made by letter or telephone to Villanova College. The courses of instruction include Business Administration, English, Public Speaking, Italian, Journalism, Psychology, History, Social Science, Sociology, and Music.

Local Publication Wins High Honors

for men in this area which has received the award this year.

Honored Many Times

Even though this is the first time the VILLANOVAN has secured All-Catholic rating, it has received national rating for the past four years. National recognition was given this newspaper in 1934, while in 1935-36-37 the Associated Collegiate Press All-American award was received. This All-American rating is the highest award to be given a school publication in this country. Only eleven institutions were granted it, while national recognition is given to a larger number of schools.

The rating in the Associate Collegiate Press organization is done in competition with not only Catholic institutions, as is done in the National Catholic Press Association, but with all the universities and colleges in the country which publish newspapers, periodicals, annuals, and the like.

Connelly, Class of '27, and recognized everywhere as Villanova's Number One rooter. Chairman Connelly has promised that this homecoming will eclipse all previous affairs of this nature.

The Alumni will witness a bitter struggle between the participants of the Bacardi Bowl contest, which ended in a 7-7 stalemate last New Year's Day at Havana, Cuba. This game is of special significance inasmuch as the winner of the game will receive permanent possession of the cup and will be extended an invitation to play in Cuba's Bowl classic next New Year's Day.

The Cuban Government, which became actively interested in football since the memorable clash last year, has passed a law which makes it imperative that Cuban newspapers send sports writers to cover the battle, which gives every evidence of being one of best intersectional games of the current year.

The Alumni received auto - stickers, picture of the head of a Wildcat, which was designed by an alumnus. The graduates will have a reserved section at the game, as is customary.

Senior Science Student Represents Pre-Med Fraternity In Student Council

At a special meeting of the Lambda Kappa Delta fraternity held last Monday, Leonard Battafarano, Senior science student, was nominated as Student Council representative for the organization.

This action was taken to fill the vacancy for that position created by the absence of Jose Gonzales, elected at the close of school last year.

There has been no definite date set for the first official meeting of the group for this semester. In all probability it will be held this week.

P. M. C. GAME MARKS FIRST PERFORMANCE OF REVAMPED BAND

New Marches and Changed Style Improve Campus Musical Group

FR. BOYLE MODERATOR

Saturday opened the initial performance of the Villanova College band. Fifty-seven strong in bright uniforms, they offered a striking sight that would inspire school spirit into anyone that heard them.

This number included 54 pieces, two flag bearers, and that sensational new drum major, Melvin Bricker. The rapid stick work of his chromium plated baton was spectacular to see and dazzling to the eyes. With three years high school experience behind him, he is a treat and a threat to all opposing drum majors.

Several new musical arrangements were heard and enjoyed by all. An old favorite missed by the older students was the New Colonial. There are hopes that it will be returned to the repertoire of Rev. J. Boyle, O. S. A., who is the new moderator of the band who succeeds Rev. B. Albers, O. S. A., vice president of the college, moderator of the past year. Father Boyle has taken over the band and the other musical organizations of the college.

There has been an increase in the number of instruments and the amount of equipment possessed by the band. All this which has greatly added to the success of the band has been made possible through the efforts of Rev. Charles Melchoir, O. S. A., procurator of the college.

The larger portion of the work that has been done in rehearsing and practicing the players into precision is chiefly due to the efforts of Paul D. Teel. Mr. Teel has been associated with the band for several years, and his service this year can be appreciated by the reception given the band last Saturday.

collections in this year's program.

The North Jersey Club had its inception in 1932, when Daniel Jarvis, now a Northwestern University senior in medicine, decided to foster a unit for the propogation of interest in Villanova in Northern New Jersey. The club's first dance was held in the East Orange Mountain Country Club and was presided over by the first president, William O'Brien.

Game in Jersey

Present members, desiring to fulfill the intentions of those who founded the club, are attempting to arrange a major athletic contest for Jersey City's new million-dollar stadium, or its new armory. Campus rumors last Spring had Villanova playing Marquette in Jersey City in 1938.

The Villanova Club of Jersey City, co-operating with the North North Jersey Club, is attempting to arrange a basketball game for this coming season.

popular collegiate orchestra, will be featured at the dance from 9 until 1 o'clock. Improving rapidly during the past few years, the Villanovans have acquired a distinctive style of presentation and give indication of improving in popularity on the campus.

Admission to the affair has been set at $1.50 per couple. Tickets are already being sold by members of the Dance Committee. George Haggerty, School of Science, has been appointed in charge of the sale of tickets. In order to prevent complications at the dance it is urged by committee members that tickets for the affair be purchased before Friday, October 8.

Decorations Are Elaborate

Preparations for the dance are well underway, with the advance sale of tickets giving indication of a successful presentation. This year's Cotillion will be presented in a manner similar to those of former years. The college gymnasium will be elaborately decorated with the customary blue and white ceiling. The acoustic curtains adopted last Spring will be used to the same advantage at the dance. Refreshments will be on sale under the direction of J. Beatty Schemerhorn, Commerce and Finance student.

A committee of 30 sophomore class members has been chosen to assist Chairman O'Brien in the presentation of the Cotillion. The committee members are as follows: School of Technology — Anthony Alco, Charles Barrett, Joseph Gallagher, and Joseph Seelaus; Science School—Andrew Armatrudo, Daniel D'Alesio, William Duffy, Richard Gove, Alfred Bongiovanni, Francis Masse, Marvin Mones, Arthur Sanitelli, and Harry Taylor; School of Arts and Philosophy — Paul Fitzmaurice, Joseph McNamara, and Robert Wilderotter; School of Commerce and Finance —Philip Dunn, George Haggerty, Joseph York, Robert Keeler, Francis Pimpinella, Clement Lavin, William Neel, Charles Cavanaugh, John Rinfret, J. B. Schemerhorn, William Sinnott, John Widman, John Cassidy, and Bradley McManus.

Committee Includes Officers

Included in the committee membership are the four officers of the Class of 1940: William Leon, president; Eugene Ertle, vice president; Bernard Bellew, treasurer, and Peter E. Hanlon, Student Council representative. The position of secretary, which was vacated by the withdrawal of Robert Wilson from college, was filled in a special election yesterday.

Technology Heads Plan Improvement For Laboratories

J. Stanley Morehouse Appointed Chairman of Advisory Committee

New laboratory equipment will be installed in Villanova's School of Technology, it has been disclosed recently. J. Stanley Morehouse, head of the Department of Mechanical Engineering, has been appointed chairman of the Advisory Committee in charge of its installation.

Professor Morehouse will be assisted on the Advisory Committee by Harry S. Beuche, head of the Department of Electrical Engineering; Thomas J. McCormick, Department of Civil Engineering, and Edward L. Haenish, assistant professor of Chemistry and Chemical Engineering.

The new Technology improvements will be centered about the formation of a laboratory for a chemical unit of operations for engineering. Specialized equipment will also be added to the Strength of Materials apparatus in the Mechanical Engineering laboratories. Other revisions will be determined by the Advisory Committee affecting the other laboratory department in the Technology School.

SOPHOMORES CHOOSE CHAS. CAVANAUGH IN SPECIAL ELECTION

Commerce and Finance Student Ascends to Secretary Position

Charles Cavanaugh, student in the School of Commerce and Finance, was overwhelmingly elected to the position of secretary of the sophomore class, succeeding Robert Wilson, who withdrew from college the past year.

Cavanaugh was far out in front and his closest opponent was Anthony Petril, of the Science Department. Other aspirants to the office included Edward Cierkowski and Joseph Gallagher, both of the Technology School.

Few Votes Cast

Contrary to last year's large ballot, there were very few votes cast at this special election, held yesterday afternoon in the rear of Mendel Hall.

Cavanaugh assumed his duties immediately upon election as the traditional sophomore cotillion will be held this Friday and it was necessary that the position be filled before the dance.

Other class officers include William Leon, of the Science School, president; Eugene Ertle, Arts School, vice president; Bernard Bellew, Science Department treasurer; and Peter Hanlon, also of the Pre-Medical School, student council representative.

HELLO!

THE Traditional Freshman Regulations addressed to the Class of 1941 contain the following injunction: "That Frosh must at all times audibly greet upperclassmen and other Frosh (Get the 'Hello' habit)."

To those old-timers on the campus, it is quite evident that the incoming group of Frosh have, for some reason, failed to comply with this regulation. While it is true that a few of the Frosh mutter a not-so-hearty "Hello" to upperclassmen, they only set in sharper contrast the behavior of the majority of Frosh who maintain a quiet reserve.

Bashfulness can hardly be the cause of this strange behavior on the part of the Frosh, for observations made in the Freshman Dorms reveal anything but bashfulness. Charity forbids our ascribing this campaign of silence to a deliberate intention to break down a grand old Villanova tradition.

Apparently, it is just one of those things which everyone has sort of overlooked, and now, with the passing of time, no one has noticed the passing of one of our great, democratic traditions.

It is not too late. But action must be taken to secure compliance — immediate compliance. We urge that all Frosh at once get the "Hello" habit. We urge that all upperclassmen see to it that the Frosh receive a hearty and welcome response.

Villanova College has always been noted, among other things, for the air of friendliness and good fellowship. Let us see that this tradition is maintained. It is too precious to lose!

JAPANESE BARBARITY

THE world stands aghast at the recent outrageous attack by the Imperial Japanese government on the Chinese people. It is an attack almost unparalleled in recent times for its brutality and its barbarity. Significant are the headlines which tell us of "Suicide Squads," "The Japanese take no prisoners," and "No mercy shown."

Yet while we stand aghast at this atrocious barbarity, we must remember that Western Europe, with its so-called culture, is largely responsible for what is now going on in Asia today.

It was an American battleship that first entered Japan's waters and forced the feudalistic Japanese to come to terms with modern civilization. It was American capital which rushed to Japan, and, in the mad rush for profit, put in the hands of Japanese people all of the horrible weapons of modern warfare. And it was also American capital which, to a large extent, helped to "civilize" China.

THE SHADOW OF THE KLAN

ONLY a few months ago, when Senator Black was nominated by President Roosevelt for a seat on the Supreme Court bench, many persons advanced the idea that his former membership in the Ku Klux Klan disqualified him from sitting in as a member of that august member of justices. Administration henchmen, quick to feel the lash from the White House, rushed to the defense of the Southern Senator, and announced all too loudly that Senator Black had nothing to do with the Ku Klux Klan.

The argument presented by Administration spokesmen was so strong, apparently, that even Catholic Senators voted for his appointment.

Today, the nation is shocked by recent revelations which indicate clearly that Senator Black was for some time, if not yet, an active sympathizer with the ideals (if we may term them such) of that pernicious, un-American institution known as the Ku Klux Klan.

The Ku Klux Klan is an organization which dedicated itself to the destruction of true religion and justice: it fought the Catholic Church, it tried to rule religion out of politics, and it suppressed civil liberties ruthlessly in its mad scramble for political power.

Pope Leo XIII, in his Encyclical letter Humanum Genus, said of the Masonic Order: ". . . to bind men like slaves in the very tightest bonds, and without giving any sufficient reason; to make use of men enslaved to the will of another any arbitrary act; to arm men's right hands for bloodshed after securing impunity for the crime—all this is an enormity from which nature recoils. Wherefore reason and truth itself make it plain that the society of which we are speaking is in antagonism with justice and natural uprightness."

Such a society was and is the Ku Klux Klan. It is a secret, un-American, subversive, un-Constitutional organization of brigands and cut-throats.

And a man who swore to uphold the perverted ideals of that hideous spawn of diseased minds has been appointed to a body whose function it is to preserve in its pristine form the Constitution of the United States, the guardian of the civil and religious liberties which the Klan has so ruthlessly supressed.

This is an outrage.

We repeat, it is utterly outrageous that such an individual be appointed to the Supreme Court of the United States.

It is outrageous because it is a contradiction: no man sworn to subvert the Constitution can defend it.

It is outrageous because no man who is the sworn enemy of holy religion can be relied upon to love truth and hate iniquity.

And it is outrageous because of the deceptive tactics employed in rushing through the appointment of Senator Black, with the consequent confirmation of his appointment.

We urge that President Roosevelt declare in no uncertain terms his displeasure with Senator Black. We urge that such displeasure be said in such manner that Senator Black can do nothing but resign the bench which he now soils.

College Chatter

By Joe Alessandroni

FOR the benefit of our freshmen; this is an exchange column receiving more than 135 papers from universities and colleges scattered over the United States. Anyone is welcome to inspect the paper of localities in which he may have friends or connections, providing of course, he first asks permission.

Since this is our first issue, the freshmen might well take heed of the advice of Hamilton Holt, President of Rollins College. He says of the well educated man:

"The well-educated man should know something about everything and everything about something, he should have a broad general knowledge and have mastered some particular branch of it."

The trouble seems to be that college students know very little something about everything and nothing about most things. (Oh, if we were but frosh again.)

According to movie versions of college life we must be living in a Utopia which would make an expensive country club a cheap imitation. These pictures should increase college registration if they effect young Americans like other pictures of supposedly realistic life that has no earthly existence.

Registration in almost every college has increased this year with many reporting the largest enrollment since the World War. It is estimated that 1,000,000 students have enrolled in colleges and universities for the 1937-38 season. (Perhaps the movie influence is working.)

"I am not the happiest person in the world, but I am next to the happiest," murmured the supreme egotist as he took the sweet young thing in his arms. (P. H.)

The Philadelphia Guided Escort business for college men (with personality) seems to be flourishing according to the "Temple Owl." The Escort must be a college graduate, must have a desirable background with references. He must be able to converse readily in any one of a number of foreign languages, know the deaf and dumb sign language, be efficient and able to juggle trunks. (Prospects must be taken unseen—are you disillusioned?)

ODDS and ENDS

By Tom O'Mahoney

THIS, our public is another year. You may have noticed it without our saying so, but we did run into an upperclassman who was found wandering around muttering about the beauties of the campus in the Springtime.

So we decided to settle the matter. This is another year.

This year is different in many ways, too. '39 prexy Don Mackowski is already talking the Junior Prom, and candidates for next year's Junior class offices are already being chosen by the sophomore biggies on Austin's second floor, Enterprising, if a bit previous. And room 119 Austin, which was occupied by 'Mac" MacDonnel last year, now houses "Pop" Moynihan and his boy Joe McHugh. But then again, some things are the same. Take for instance, (if you feel like it) Ted Goumy. He's still customer number one down in the Greeks.

There seems to be great indigation among the upperclassmen concerning the way the frosh pass them by with nary a saiute. One senior came in to tell us that he was thinking of reading Dale Carnegie's "How To Win Friends And Influence People." He said he feels like an intruder whenever he steps onto the campus. Come to think of it, the class of 1941 is rather an imposing one. North Carolina, California and Kentucky are among the states sending native sons to the school on the Lancaster Pike.

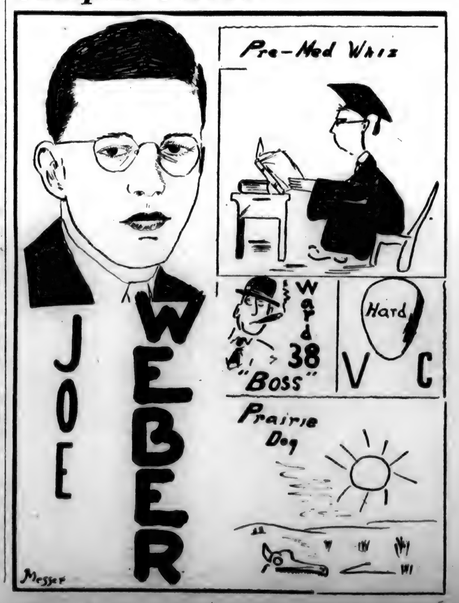
ON THE CAMPUS

Hearts and Flowers Note: Tommy Carbine solemnly assures us that the present Rosemont freshmen are by far the nicest ever. Stahmann won't care, but somebody else may. Olfactory Note: Ask Jack Dunnigan or Hal Murphy about that skunk they had in their rooms last week. Or ask any Fedigan Hall inmate about it—he'll tell you, in between beefs about the mentality of engineers. Of course, that story which claimed the Gigolos were adopting said skunk as a mascot is a rank libel. We hope. Hurried Reconsideration: Ed Tirrell, while talking about an unpopular figure, said,"I wouldn't change places with him for all the money in the world! "But then, quickly, "Well, not for half the money in it."

COMMUNITY NOTES

Lou Dubino will be going over to Rosemont to-morrow. A lift will be appreciated, fellers.

Campus Celebs - - - By MESSER



THE OBSERVER

WE arrived back at Villanova a week or so ago to find the same friendly Augustinian Fathers, the same friendly chapel, and the same beautiful buildings and grounds. And we found here a host of new Frosh. They seem younger. . .and wiser. They'll learn.

Wandering through Fedigan Hall, we chanced to enter the new abode of "Uncle" John Donahue. There was old Uncle John stretched out on the bed. . .just like the old days. We nominated Uncle John for the Presidency of the 1937-38 Villanova Horizontal Club. John accepted at once. He was too busy sleeping to decline.

A NOTE TO THE FROSH: Before the first football game, be sure to look up John "Barrymore" Mc-Kenna—Gentleman John with the manly, masterful nose. After every game, John is usually besieged by a host of female admirers, and if you know John you'll get a chance to meet some mighty fine gals. So Frosh, take the tip. Get to know Gentleman John and get yourself a date.

Villanova men have the reputation of being enterprising, aggressive, and resourceful. In John "Capitalist" Wysocki we find the flowering of Villanova's A. No. 1 business man. We would recommend that the business men of the campus look into John's business methods.

"Say Frosh, have you a chapel seat?"

"Why, no sir. Do you have to have a chapel seat?"

"Sure kid," replies genial John. "You know they run a lot of special ceremonies here. If you don't have a front seat you'll miss everything."

"Say, that sounds interesting. How d'ye get a chapel seat? Don't they give them out?"

"Yes, they give them out. But you'll be taking a chance if you don't get a reserved seat. Say, kid, I like your looks. I'll tell you what I'll do. I've been here for a couple of years, and have a front seat. You can see everything from my seat. I'll sell it to you for fifty cents."

"Gosh, you're a swell fellow. But what are you going to do?"

"Oh," replies genial John, "I can fix that up. If you pay me now, kid, I'll let you have it for a quarter."

And they send bankers to jail!

Last week we were chatting with one of the men whose duty it is to keep the halls clean. A young fellow, he expressed during the course of his conversation a wish to amass enough money, some day, to go somewhere where "the people aren't always leaning out of the window." We were peculiarly impressed at the time by the whole philosophy expressed in those few words, but it was not until we saw the photoplay DEAD END that we had brought home to us what it means to live "where the people are always leaning out of the window."

DEAD END is a talkie that every boy in this college, if he can, should see. It is a magnificent production, well staged, well acted, and it has a plot that is a masterpiece.

This scene is laid in New York City. All of the action takes place within the area of a one-block street that fronts on the East River. The picture opens with a view from the end of the street across the water. In the center of the scene we see the sign DEAD END.

Everything is dead in DEAD END. There are dead listless people. There are dead futures for children who, born into DEAD END, are doomed to spend their lives in the miserable surroundings of the slums of New York. At the end of the street is a millionaire apartment house which is just as dead and empty as the slums over which it towers, for the people in those giddy spires are utterly dead to Truth, to Beauty, and to Goodness.

We were deeply stirred by the thought conveyed by this photo. Perhaps you might not react the same way, but we know we did. In fact, when the end of the play came, we were rooted in our chair . . . transfixed with the horror of human beings who, because of their foul environment, are denied the joys of the world which God made for them.

For the Villanova College man there is something about DEAD END that is important. We have in mind especially the freshman. When a man comes to Villanova, there is no dead end before him. The world is before him. With the help of Christ, almost any boy that comes to Villanova can make himself a Saint and a leader in this world. But too many of us surround ourselves with bad companions—the tenements in DEAD END. We spend our time with idle pursuits—just as the kids in DEAD END while away their time scrapping and gambling. We envy the rich and powerful, and forget about God—just as the poor devils in DEAD END envy and hate their rich neighbors for their wealth.

But there is a sub-plot in DEAD END. The pure love of a good man for a noble, virtuous woman. Of course, the moving picture, coming from Hollywood, stops at this love. But it suggests the way out of any and all dead ends—a love for God that carries the soul away from tenements, from slums, from moral and mental pollution.

FROSH TAKE ANNUAL LACING FROM SOPHS

Stadium a Center of Bedlam as Greensters Meekly Protest

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This entire item taken from Oct. 28 edition of 1930 VILLANOVAN.)

Hampered by the loss of the auditorium, the Sophomore Class held the annual Freshman initiation in Villanova Stadium. After being feasted by the Vigilants, under the leadership of Ed. Hookey, the Frosh were entertained (?) by being escorted into Bryn Mawr, where they were exhibited to the populace. The affair was well conducted, but the consensus of opinion was that the Frosh were treated too tenderly.

The First Year men were assembled at 7 P. M. They rehearsed the college songs and cheers and were led to the various dormitories to cheer individual members of the football team. They were then taken to the stadium "fireworks."

At the stadium, Sophomores had been making a frantic search for 300 oysters that had mysteriously disappeared; sawdust and feathers were also absent. Investigation brought to light that several Frosh had been seen acting suspiciously near the stadium. It is reported that no action will be taken until definite evidence has been secured, then justice will be swift and severe.

It was at 9:30 that the Frosh, mudspattered, blindfolded, and clinging to a heavy rope, commenced their march to Bryn Mawr. Numerous flares lighted the skies and clouds of smoke collected beneath the arched trees of Lancaster Pike. Traffic was at a standstill. Automobile horns were drowned by the Frosh singing, "Hail, Hail, The Gang's All Here." A bystander asked why the Frosh were so good-natured, which drew a big hand.

Thousands filled the streets of Bryn Mawr, waiting for the big event of the year, and they weren't disappointed. More than once, the Frosh "hobble-gobbled" to the delight of the crowd. Finally the long line formed in a vacant lot across from the Seville Theater. Then—but who didn't see the initiation? According to Will Rogers, "They just ain't human."

College Official Attends Meetings Of State Leaders

Vice-President Guest at Educational Sessions in Harrisburg and Altoona

Rev. Bernard M. Albers, O. S. A., vice president of Villanova College, was in attendance at meetings of two important State educational associations during the past week.

The National Youth Administration conference of the Pennsylvania Educational Committee held its session at the State Capitol in Harrisburg. Following the N. Y. A. conference, the vice president journeyed to Altoona to attend a session of the Catholic Educational Association of Pennsylvania. This latter conference was attended by members of the Department of Superiors of the Association, of which group Father Albers is a member.

In attendance at these two conferences were prominent leaders in State education, delegates from many educational institutions throughout the State of Pennsylvania. Both Villanova's president, the Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., and Father Albers have shown vital interest in all functions having the aim of furthering higher education.

RADIO AND THE THEATER

By LEN FLINKMAN.

THE curtain rises. The show is on. Both the radio and the theatre come thru again with more variety and splendor in their productions. New faces, old faces, all appear before the critical gaze of the public, some to rise into prominence, others to disappear into oblivion. It's an endless chain, but this year promises to be a grand one.

By now we have all heard of that new dance craze, "The Big Apple." Whether or not it will affect college dancing, no one can say. Anyway, they can say that this dance originated with the Gullah negroes around Charlestown, S. C.

In order to use this dance for commercial purposes, Sammy Kaye and Richard Himber sent scouts down there to investigate this intriguing dance. One of their scouts came back and told them that in order to dance it correctly you must be in your bare feet.

Attention, Fred Astaire! Speaking of Fred, remember him last year with the Packard program? The tumult and the shouting are only memories now, and this year's Packard program is running smoothly with Lanny Ross, Charlie Butterworth, Don Wilson and Raymond Paige's orchestra. The dancing feet of Fred Astaire, so much a part of last year's program, are absent. As a matter of fact, you may not see Fred in the movies many more times, either. His contract with RKO calls for one more picture and after that, it is possible he may retire.

Benny Goodman is using all his persuasive powers to get the Camel script writers to give him some speaking lines during his air time, but they don't think he has the personality to do much talking. And neither do I. A fellow who is as good as he is at swing should let it go at that.

Lend an ear this Fall to Elaine and John Barrymore performing in that clever piece, "The Animal Kingdom." Then bend an eye to the press and see the fun the caption writers and newsmen have in reporting that stage engagement.

Noel Coward sang for the first time on the air last Wednesday night when he appeared as a guest artist on the "Hit Parade." Mr. Coward can always be depended upon to give an excellent account of himself, whether he be on the radio, stage or the cinema. He proved his calibre last Wednesday night. Anyhow, the Sophomore Arts students will have a real chance to appreciate his versatility in their English course this year. The text book for the course is by Jay C. Hubbell, and ends with a biography of Coward. It also includes a choice few of his literary works.

There's some pretty stiff competition for Jeanette MacDonald Raymond against Jack Benny. But Jeanette's sponsors figured that everybody didn't like Benny and so she'll garner an audience. Well, Jeannette gave a good account of herself last Sunday. She now has at least two steady listeners, her husband and me—once in a while.

The Summer has also added a new character to the radio, that of plays. . . .

Sherwood Anderson has finished one act of a play which George Jean Nathan considers the finest ever written. It was scheduled for release late this season. But Nathan can't get him to finish because Anderson feels that the subject—the Negro problem—is too stale for the drama.

The lighting for the new Kaufman-Hart show, "I'd Rather Be Right," will be done by a man named Feder, who was employed by the Federal Theatre. He was given the assignment because of the excellent lighting effects he achieved in a number of WPA

CAMPUS POET

SUMMER FLIRTATION

I sat and thought of you, my love
On a bright green hill, 'neath a bright blue sky,
When a fat white cloud, floating up above,
Beckoned to me as it passed by.

It called to me to come away,
To elope with it to a far-off land—
To a mellow land of eternal day—
To a deep blue sea by a golden sand.

I shook my head and turned deaf ears,
But called again and entreated me
And with honey words tried to sooth my fears
And cajole my mind from its thoughts of thee.

It spoke to me of ancient Spain,
Of mantilla-ed girls waving jewelled fans;
Of Italian skies over golden grain;
Of Venetian nights filled with sweet romance.

And, oh, the things it had to tell
Of courageous knights, and of handsome kings,
Of enchanted maids, of a wishing well,
Of a fairyland — and a million things.

I wavered then and near was lost
But a skylark burst into sudden song,
And it broke the spell that cloud had cast
To ensnare me deep, to retain me long.

I sat and thought of you, my love
On a bright green hill, 'neath a bright blue sky,
And a fat white cloud, floating up above,
Disappointed, sighed as it passed me by.

Many Distant Lands Send Students To Swell Number Of Large Freshman Class

Cuba, Panama, Puerto Rico, Among Countries Represented; Neophytes Well Pleased With Surroundings

VENEZUELA FURTHERMOST COUNTRY

To Villanova come students from all parts of the United States as well as South America, Cuba, Panama, Puerto Rico and Venezuela.

Among the far traveling freshmen is one Cash Haggerty, a hillbilly lad with an eagle eye for pretty girls. He hails from Rocky Mount, N. C., and says he likes the scenery around the college. Above all he says, "Ah just loves to look at the pretty gals. Ah also think the food heah is very good. Ah've been to foah prep schools and ah consider this food the best ah have eaten in any of them."

Suburbs Noisy

Another frosh, John Egan, from the famous baseball bat town, Louisville, Ky., thinks the city and the suburbs are a little too crowded and rushed. Quote, "Everything here seems to be in a hub-bub. I guess it's because I come from a small town. We only have about 350,000 people in our town. (One of the larger small towns no doubt.)

Another interesting frosh is Joseph Cruse, who comes all the way from sunny San Diego, Cal. He thinks Villanova is worth all the distance he came. "Villanova is a beautiful college. A buddy of mine in prep school came here. Upon his recommendation, I came East this year, and now I'm teamed up with him again." Friendship sometimes goes a long way. Joe prefers Villanova as it is non co-ed.

Never Saw Snow

Colon Arcia, coming from Colon, Panama, seems to fit into his environment very well. He likes to dance and goes for American slang in a big way. He has never seen snow and therefore is a little dubious as to how the weather will agree with him. However, he admits that one of his ambitions is to get into one of the famous Villanova snow fights.

From Venezuela comes Virgilia Luzardo, a nephew of one of the presidents there. Virgilia is a quiet fellow but he likes swing music. The atmosphere around Villanova seems to please him for it gives him a chance to study. He is taking up engineering and expects to leave Villanova with an education that will help carry him to be the leading petroleum engineer and chemist in Venezuela. He would like to make a permanent home in the United States.

STUDENT SAVES GIRL FROM PERIL

Boston Globe Reports Heroic Act of Villanova Sophomore

The courage of Frank J. Hiney, sophomore chemical engineer, saved the life of a Massachusetts girl this Summer in the frigid waters off Sand Hills, Scituate, in the midst of a raging southwester.

The following account of the rescue appeared in the Boston Globe:

Rescue at Scituate

"The courage of Frank Hiney, 19, Villanova College, who battled for close to an hour in the chilly waters three-quarters of a mile off shore at Sand Hills, Scituate, saved the life of Gertrude Kendall, 18, of Otis St., Somerville, yesterday afternoon after their dory was swamped by waves kicked up by the south-wester.

Exhausted as he neared shore with his helpless burden, Hiney himself was saved from possible drowning by the heroism of four Sand Hills lads, two of whom leaped from their crowded boat to make room for the tired couple.

Hiney took Miss Kendall into his dory after she and Doris Hensbach of Reed St., Arlington, had drifted far from shore in a disabled rowboat from which they had lost oars and oarlocks. With James May, Hinney went to aid the girls. So that May could tow the disabled boat, Hiney took Miss Kendall into his dory. They had gone but a short distance when the dory was swamped, three-quarters of a mile from shore.

Disregarding Hiney's advice to cling to the boat, the girl, a poor swimmer, struck out for shore. Hiney followed and seized her as she was about to sink. He battled the waves, whipped by an off-shore wind, and was but 200 yards from shore when he found himself close to exhaustion.

House Legislature," will be supplemented by numerous issues of local, political, social, and cultural concern. These will include both reanimated and new questions. Suggestions, especially of a collegiate nature, are solicited. Correspondence should be addressed either to Professor Frayne or Thomas Delate, the recently appointed business manager, at 120 Mendel Hall.

Membership Open

The membership of the society has in no way been restricted. The hours of practice have not been absolutely set, although a working schedule has been devised. The personnel for debates at home and away will depend upon the ability and interest of the men coming out for the team. Mr. Anthony Frayne, moderator of the society, stated that in every way those concerned have attempted to give the maximum of opportunity, variety, and life to the society and its activities and expressed the wish that the students will respond to the efforts spent in their behalf by appearing at debates.

HISTORY, MUSIC SEMINARS HERE

German Also Included In Proposed Special Study Gatherings

Three new seminars will be functioning on the college campus for the first time this year. The newcomers are the music, German, and History seminars, Rev. William Lunney, O. S. A., professor of languages, and Rev. Edward Dwyer, O. S. A., will be in charge of the German, while the History Seminar will be under the able supervision of Rev. John Dunn, O. S. A., and Harold Hartman.

This announcement follows on the heels of the success enjoyed by the other seminars on the campus. Not only are such meetings instructive, but very interesting as well, as attested by some notable speakers secured to address the seminars last year.

LAW PROFESSOR WED SEPT. 14

William Henry and Miss Elizabeth Chapman United in Marriage

Mr. William Henry, professor of business law in the School of Commerce and Finance, and Miss Elizabeth Chapman were united in marriage on September 14. The former Miss Chapman was a resident of Philadelphia. The colorful wedding ceremony was performed by the Rev. Joseph C. Bartley, O. S. A., dean of the Business School.

Another pretty wedding was solemnized last Wednesday morning in the College Chapel when John Meyer, Villanova College, '30, was married to Miss Helen Scott.

STUDY GROUP WILL HOLD CONFERENCES WITH OTHER CLUBS

International Relations Club to Meet Society for Bi-Weekly Discussion

Last Spring, under the moderatorship of Rev. John Vrana, O.S.A., there was inaugurated a study group interested in relating the Encyclicals, Catholic Action, and related topics to the political, social and economic trends of the day. This year the group resumes its activities under the title of the Villanova College Social Study Seminar.

The first meeting of the Social Study Seminar is to be held this evening at 7:30 P. M., in Room 102, Mendel Hall.

When reached last evening for a statement, Father Vrana observed: "I wish to make it plain that every man in this college interested in social, political, economic, or religious topics is welcome at this seminar. We urge Freshmen, especially, to become associated with this most important extra-curricular activity. It offers innumerable opportunities for character development, the training of leadership, and general cultural enrichment. The men who attended meetings regularly last year found it of great value, not to mention its social aspects. I hope that a greater number of men will this year obtain even greater advantages through our Social Study Seminar."

On alternate Tuesday evenings, it is planned to discuss subjects relating to International Relations. These meetings are to be sponsored by the International Relations Club. Rev. William Lunney, O.S.A., moderator of this group, made it known that due to the similarity and purpose and content, as well as the fact that many students are interested in both groups, he deems it advisable to hold joint meetings.

Initial Meeting Of Year Held By Popular Campus Music Organization

Last Friday evening, a group of Villanova students attended the first meeting of the Music Appreciation Group founded last Spring by Rev. John Vrana, O. S. A. This year the group is to be known as the "Music Seminar."

The first selections on the program played on the RCA-Victor high fidelity radio-victrola were from the Italian Opera "Rigoletto," by Verdi. Five records were then played from the works of the Viennese Waltz King, Johann Strauss. It was quite evident that the richness and splendor of the Strauss waltzes attracted the admiration of those present.

Finally, the Unfinished Symphony of Franz Schubert was played; perhaps one of the most delicate pieces of music ever composed. The group enjoyed it thoroughly.

Appropriate mimeographed notes, intended to help the listener in obtaining a fuller appreciation and more intimate knowledge of the program numbers, were distributed among those present.

At the close of the Music Seminar, Father Vrana announced that the next meeting of the Seminar is to be held this coming Thursday evening, at 7:30, in the Day Students' Room, Room 102, Mendel Hall. Students interested in hearing and learning to appreciate the music classics of past and present masters are welcome. This year, as last, it is planned to hold the Music Seminar as a regular feature of campus life.

This week's program will include Anton Dvorak's famous "New World Symphony," excerpts from "Lucia," and Tschaikowski's rollicking "Nut Cracker Suite." All are invited to attend.

This group was one of the most popular campus cultural organizations after its organization last year and many students were attracted by the cultural background it offered. It is hoped that even more students will take advantage of their opportunities presented by the Music Club this year.

Hitchcock and Fenton Backfield Aces of Strong Plainsmen Team

SOUTHERNERS' SQUAD LED BY ANTLEY, CRACK CENTER

George Kenmore, Bill Mims Soph Stars of Invading Eleven

By JOHN L. SIMONS

Saturday afternoon on the Shibe Park gridiron in Philadelphia, Villanova and Auburn will clash in the second game of their series, which was begun last New Year's Day at Havana. The game looms as an early season classic between two up and coming ball clubs, both of which are expected to make strong bids for national honors this year.

The Plainsmen of Auburn haven't had much opportunity to show their stuff so far, but they look every bit as strong as the eleven that tied the 'Cats in the Bacardi Bowl game on January 1. Despite the loss of thirteen lettermen, including Walt Gilbert and Wilton Kilgore, All-Southern at center and fullback respectively, Coach Jack Meagher is able to field a mighty team.

Hitchcock Back

Billy Hitchcock, who scored the touchdown against Villanova last year, and Jimmy Fenton, the sweet punter, are back at the two halfback posts. Hitchcock is the Plainsmen's climax runner, and he is a touchdown threat every time he totes the pigskin. Fenton, who like

KYW, WIP FEATURE GRIDIRON CONTESTS

Eight of Club's Nine Games Will Be Broadcast Over Radio

For the first time in its football history Villanova was enabled to bring its initial contest to the followers of the Blue, both far and near, by means of radio. The opportunity to follow the Wildcats through their the season will be possible for the first eight games on the schedule. The game on the Pacific coast with Loyola, who will help the 'Cats close their season, will not be broadcast.

Oil Company Sponsor

This initial airing of Villanova athletics was made possible by the Atlantic Refining Co., who in conjunction with their annual football contest, is sponsoring the play description of one hundred and fifty-eight important college games throughout the country.

All the Wildcat games with the exception of those with Boston University and Temple will be carried by the Westinghouse station KYW in Philadelphia, whose dialing is 1020 kilocycles. KYW is affiliated with the National Broadcasting Company carrying Red network programs from New York, Chicago, Cleveland, Los Angeles, and Washington, as well as originating its own presentations for the air lanes. SPORTORIAL

By BILL BOWKER, Sports Editor

IT SEEMS that it is customary to welcome the Freshman Class in the first issue of the paper, and we are not one to defy such an honored rite. However, we will welcome especially those frosh who participate in athletics, and long may your banners wave. Live up to the regulations and you will find the life here at Villanova very congenial.

—V—

Continuing on the freshman theme, we wish to point out to the members of the class of '41, that the authorities of this institution have provided for a sound body as well as a sound mind. Reference is made to the Intra-mural program, mention of which is made elsewhere in these columns. Don't be afraid to enter into the sports as they come along. They are primarily intended for the benefit of all students not able to participate in varsity sports. The authorities of inter-hall activities have labored diligently to prepare a program for your betterment and it is your obligation to take advantage of the opportunities offered to you. You can have a lot of fun, too.

—V—

An innovation in the basketball picture has been made recently in the announcement of the season ticket for all home basketball games. There are quite a few home contests this year and for the meager sum of a dollar the student can bring the light of his life to all the home games at the Villanova Field House. The tickets are transferable, so if the one and only cannot make it, use the same ticket on somebody else. If large enough crowds come to the court contests, perhaps dancing after the games will be re-introduced. Who can tell?

—V—

Delving into the realm of football, we find the 150 pound team is hard at work on Mendel field. So far the boys seem very enthusiastic and the possibilities of the first victory in many a year looms on the distant horizon. Some of the lads are complaining about the somewhat antiquated equipment which is issued to them at the beginning of the season. They suggest that more modern equipment would be helpful in their battles in the 150 pound circuit.

—V—

Our best wishes to Don Bangert, coach of the one-fifties. He has some good material to work with, and if the boys give him any sort of co-operation, he will turn out a winning team, which would be a novelty in these parts. Wishes for success are hereby issued also to Paul Kerrigan, the energetic and conscientious captain of the lightweights.

—V—

For the first time in quite a few years, the Freshman grid team will meet outside opposition. Until this year, there had been some talk, but little action, about having the yearlings meet competition outside the home grounds, all their gridiron activities having been confined to scrimmaging the varsity. But now "Doc" Jacobs takes his charges afield to face Dickinson Seminary, and also the traditional rival, Temple. This latter foe will be met in an encounter under the arc lights. As far as we know, that is another innovation in the athletic activities of the Blue athletes.

—V—

Football is rapidly coming to the fore in the spotlight of sports, but baseball has yet to make its last stand, which, as you all know, or should know by now, is the World Series, to be contested between those two New York teams, the Yankees and Giants. Despite the fact that our good friend Chuck Voorhis, publicity director, and

BASKETEERS MEET IMPRESSIVE RIVALS ON LONG SCHEDULE

Fordham, St. John's, Westminster, N. Y. U. Among Leaders of 28 - Game Card

Twelve newcomers, among them the highly regarded Fordham Rams, will appear on the Villanova basketball team's 1937-38 schedule. The 28-game program arranged by the athletic office is a corker. Besides Fordham, the Wildcat five will meet Duquesne, Temple, N. Y. U., C. C. N. Y., St. John's of Brooklyn, and many other topnotchers.

"Villanova's basketball schedule for the coming season," says Graduate Manager Severance, "is the longest, toughest schedule of any Wildcat quintet. In the course of the campaign we will face 14 class A teams, teams that rate with the best in the country."

Tour New England

Coach Severance's minions, who started their pre-season drills yesterday, open the season on the home floor with the speedy Rider College quintet furnishing the opposition. Then later in December, the 'Cats swing around New England on their annual trip. Springfield, Massachusett's best, and Assumption College are the headliners of this tour. Assumption, a new team on the schedule, is little known in these parts, but has always been rated as one of the best in the Bay State.

Still later in the campaign Villanova invades the two toughest basketball sections of the country, New York City and the Pittsburgh area. Geneva, Westminster, and Duquesne face the Wildcats in Pittsburgh, and N. Y. U., C. C. N. Y., and St Francis, topnotchers all,

Losers Beaten by 42-0 Count in Opening Fray of Season

SECOND HALF ONSLAUGHT CRUSHES P. M. C. ELEVEN

Stoviak, Howlett, Mazzei, Nowak, Monaco and Gogolinski Tally

History is repeating itself in a three-year cycle at Villanova for it is only that number of years ago that Sophomores were then also dominating the headlines. Then, too, they were the sparks that moved the Wildcats to unleash their great scoring power.

P. M. C. felt that irresistible punch last Saturday at the Main Line Stadium when the Blue were led by second-year men to a 42-0 victory.

Sophs Finish

When the opening whistle blew there were eleven experienced men representing Villanova on the gridiron, but in the final moments they were all forgotten as a brilliant band of speedy Sophomores completely captured the attention of all.

Gaining mainly by tackle plays and passes, the Wildcats covered 358 yards while the P. M. C. eleven

FUTURE OPPONENTS WIN OPENING GAMES

Detroit, Bucknell, Boston University Go Well as '37 Season Starts

By JACK RHOADS

While the Wildcats were making a rather unimpressive debut by wearing down the battered P. M. C. Cadets, 42-0, most of their future opponents fared well in their own grid wars.

Most of the teams launched their campaigns last week. All were successful but little can be drawn from the results as all the games were the usual opening breathers. However, there were several exceptions.

Ripon Scares Marquette

A plucky eleven representing Ripon gave mighty Marquette quite a few uneasy moments before dropping a 14-0 decision. Likewise, the Big Green of Manhattan opened its season with a sluggish victory over a small but game St. Bonaventure's eleven. The Jaspers, who are heralded as the best ever in the Bronx school's history, had to come from behind twice in order to eke out a 21-12 win. It was another case of a highly-touted group of muscle-men believing all the nice things said about them.

Our arch rival, Temple, also had a hard time beating down the V. M. I. boys. The lads from Virginia really meant business, but there were not enough of them to match the power of the Owls. So

Frosh Open Gridiron Season On October 9th

Freshman Football Team Meets Temple Yearlings

Basca Outstanding Back on Jacobs' Squad; Collins, Sokolis Loom as Starters for Opener With Dickinson Seminary

SCHEDULE FIRST PLAYED SINCE 1932

With the prospect of intercollegiate competition for the first time in five years, Villanova's Frosh gridders have begun the final drive for positions in the lineup for the season's opener with Dickinson Seminary, October 9.

It is still a bit early to make predictions, but many of the Frosh have demonstrated something in the scrimmages against the varsity. Outstanding among the first year men is a lad who goes by the name of Basca. He is a good, hard-running halfback and an accurate forward passer and has bothered the big boys more that a little in the practice sessions.

Shader Shines

Gordon Shader, a North Bergen, N. J., product, has shown himself a triplethreat contender for the quarterback post. Al Ferris, hailing from New York City, is another flashy halfback. Al, an All-New York City back in his high school days, has done some good ball carrying against the varsity in the drills.

Lawrence, Massachusetts, sends a six foot, 175 pound end in the person of Ed Collins, an All-Scholastic selection in the Bay State last year. Len Kolenda, of Nanticoke, Pa., looms as Collins' running mate as Kitten wingman.

Three guards have been standouts. Ed Ryan, from nearby Chester, and versatile Court Hallkman, of Asbury Park, N. J., seem to have the call at present. This pair is being pressed by "Moon" Andrewlevicz. "Moon" is perhaps the best blocking lineman on the squad, and his speed enables him to pull out on plays requiring running guards.

Philly Represented

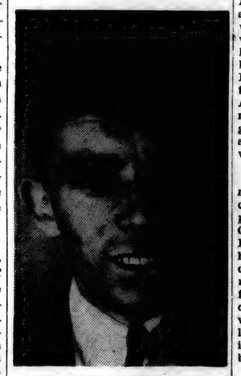
Philadelphia is represented by John Nujunis, Bob McCoy, and Henry Sokolis, brother of Stan Sokolis, ex-Penn captain. Nujunis is a flashy back from Central High, McCoy an All-Catholic center from West Catholic, and Sokolis a tackle who formerly knocked down ball carriers for the glory of Massanutten Military Academy.

Also on the freshman squad is a boy who has the unique distinction of having gained state Scholastic football honors in two different states. He is George Pucci, who won All-State awards at Perth Amboy High School in New Jersey and at Staunton Military Academy in Virginia.

Many others have given standout performances during the Fall training session. "Doc" Jacobs, astute mentor of the Kittens, while not exactly pleased with the showing of his boys to date, has hopes of putting on the field a team equal to great freshman teams of the past.

Besides Dickinson Seminary, the Wildcats yearlings are scheduled to meet the Temple frosh. Games with the Franklin and Marshall freshmen and Wyoming Seminary are pending.

Links Leader



JIM DWYER
C. & F. junior, who was recently elected captain of the Wildcat golf squad for 1937-38.

LINKSMEN SELECT DWYER AS LEADER

Varsity Captain Has Enviable Record in Strong Collegiate Competition

At a meeting last Wednesday, Jimmy Dwyer, Junior Commerce and Finance student, was elected captain of the "Wildcat" linksmen in their coming season.

In every respect the election of Jimmy was warranted and justified. For his behavior, coolheadness, sportsmanship and ability has surpassed that of his teammates. Jimmy's free-going manner has earned him quite a number of friends and he will undoubtedly fulfill the duties of the captaincy quite capably.

His Impressive Record

As a yearling Jim qualified for the golf squad and later found himself alternating with Bob Stockton at the number one and two positions. Impressive in his match-play, Jimmy turned in several decisive wins.

In last season's golf meets Jimmy really came to the fore playing a brand of golf that carried him through an undefeated schedule. The newly elected captain won six matches and was tied in one by Ed Workman, ace-man of the Temple squad. Incidentally, Ed Workman likewise experienced an undefeated season last spring for the "Owls."

Can Stand Pressure

Proving himself a golfer who can stand pressure, when the going gets tough, Jimmy has come from behind to win more than one match while playing for Villanova College. One of Jimmy's outstanding feats was to breeze around the Radnor Country Club in even par seventy last spring.

After having elected a formidable captain Manager Jimmy Lyons revealed to the squad that one of the most ambitious golf schedules ever attempted in the history of Villanova College is in the making.

Cox, '35, Leads Norristown Eleven To 6-0 Win

Led by Charley Cox, former Villanova gridater, and coached by George (Doc) Jacobs, the Norristown Professionals tripped the Olney Yellow Jackets on Roosevelt Field, Norristown, Wednesday night. The final was 6 to 0.

This is the second year that Coach Jacobs has been the head tutor of the Norristown eleven. Previously he had tutored the L. A. M., of Norristown, one of the leading independent aggregations in the East.

Cox, who was a tackle under Harry Stuhldreher from 1932 to 1935, is now playing end and was selected captain of the Norristown eleven. He is also a member of the New York Yankees professional team.

ATHLETICS GROUP CONVENES IN N. Y.

Discusses Election of Okeson's Successor; Severance Represents Villanova

NEW YORK, N. Y.—At a closed meeting in the Harvard Club of New York last, Thursday, plans for a complete revision of intercollegiate athletic administration were drawn up by five Graduate Managers of prominent Eastern schools. Attending the session, which was closed to reporters, were James Lynah, who has slowly been rebuilding Cornell's football fortunes; George Little, of Rutgers; Captain E. W. McKee, of the United States Naval Academy; Alexander G. Severance, of Villanova, and William (Bill) Bingham, genial boss of Harvard's athletic set-up, who acted as host to the visiting potentates.

Czar Under Discussion

In all probability, one of the more important matters under discussion was the problem of appointing a successor to Walter Okeson, retired Commissioner of Football. The new official will have greatly amplified powers and duties, and will handle officials and rulings for all sports, not only for football, as in the past. The new czar will head an association which will include practically all the colleges on the Atlantic seaboard, and its headquarters will most probably be located in this city.

All conferences and leagues which desire to enter their football, basketball, boxing and track teams in this organization, the National Intercollegiate Athletic Association, must incorporate with its central bureau. It will work for the betterment and uniformity of college athletics and standards, thus remedying some of the chaotic conditions prevalent today.

When pressed for particulars of the meeting, the delegates refused to discuss the appointment of Mr. Okeson's successor, merely saying that there were would be a subsequent caucus, indicating perhaps that no decision had been reached, or that the nominee selected has yet to be approached for formal acceptance.

Tom O'Mahoney favor the Giants to take the championship, we hereby go on record as favoring the American Leaguers. The power they have in the bats of Gehrig, DiMaggio and Dickey, not to mention Henrich, Powell, Selkirk, and others, is enough to crush even such fine opposition as offered by Carl Hubbell and Cliff Melton.

Experts claimed last year that the Giants had all the pitching, but this season they will have to admit that Gomez and Ruffing are in much better form than last year. So with a team that can manufacture more runs than they have hits—as the Yanks did on several occasions during the Summer—and two hurlers of Gomez's and Ruffing's abilities goes our prediction of a world's championship.

Last Saturday's P. M. C. game went off as expected, but it was not until the second half that the boys began to operate as most of us had been led to expect. Strangely enough, it was when sophomores, supposedly inexperienced, were in that the machine began to roll. This presages well for the games to come this year as well as for the next two years' campaigns. With 25 able replacements, the Wildcats cannot fail to go places this year. However, Auburn, Marquette, Bucknell—Remember last year, boys?—and Temple will have something to say about that.

CLIPPER COMMENTS

on P. M. C. Game

VILLANOVA defeated P. M. C. by a score of 42-0, and to outsiders that is very impressive, but to those on the inside an entirely different story presents itself. The Cadets had a good defense, but were tired from the two beatings they received prior to meeting us, and we should have done better. Most disappointing was the play of the seniors, who seemed somewhat lackadaisical, and unsure of their offensive play. In fact, after watching the first few plays, I began to fear that the boys would make mechanical mistakes, an unforgivable offense.

Seniors Unimpressive

On the whole, the senior members of the squad were unimpressive, the result, no doubt, of an attitude that the Chester boys were just in there to give them a Saturday afternoon's exercise. Standouts among the veterans were Andy Stopper and Ray Stoviak in the backfield, and Jordan Olivar, Johnny Mellus, and Joe Missar. In the line steadiness marked the play of these boys.

The soothing balm for the day's wounds was the performance of the sophomores. These boys showed a lot of football skill, and this, mingled with the enthusiasm and fight they had, will make it necessary for the upper classmen to keep up on their toes if they expect to represent Villanova in the games to come. If the sophs continue to show as they did Saturday, they will see a lot of action this season. Enthusiasm is necessary to play high-class football, and that is what these boys have.

Of the sophomore backfields that saw action, the smoothest working group seemed to me to be the one consisting of "Buzz" Howlett, Paul Verbitsky, John Gogolinski, and Art Murphy. On the line, Lou Dymond displayed a peppy brand of ball, and while he was in there he fired the lads with enthusiasm. He led them out of the huddle up to the ball quickly, and, on the whole, played a good all-round game, especially on the defense. Periera also showed up well in the line at guard, and performed his duties in a workman-like manner. Bukofski gave notice that he has plenty of potentialities as an end.

Punting Disappointing

Our punting was rather poor throughout the game, although two individual efforts stand out, namely the coffin corner kicks of Stopper and Verbitsky. This punt - placing ability is the result of intense practice, and shows what a little determination can do.

Auburn comes to town next week, and if we are to make a good showing against the Southerners, which means sending them back to Dixie on the short end of the score, we must improve substantially over our last week's showing. Auburn is a "front page" team, and Villanova's football prestige depends a lot upon the outcome of this contest. By the time Jack Meagher's boys arrive in town they will have had two games under their belts, and that means a lot in the gridiron game nowadays. Last Saturday about 43 of our boys saw action, which didn't give any one of them a fraction of the game experience that the Engineers will have by Saturday afternoon. Another factor in the result of the contest will be the fact that unless a miracle happens Franny Nye will not see action. His knee is pretty well banged up and will not be in shape for the Shibe Park encounter. This means another inexpeienced man in the line-up, as all the sub quarterbacks are sophomores.

If we are to take the measure of Jack Meagher's boys our all-round offensive play must improve a hundredfold. Especially in the punting department must we better ourselves. Saturday we averaged only about 32 yards from the line of scrimmage, and though the fact that the two coffin corner kicks pulled the average down slightly, such an average in this department of play leaves a great deal to be desired.

BOWLERS' ACTIVITY REACHES NEW PEAK

Freshman Patronage Raises Hopes of Intercollegiate Competition

If the ambitions of William Slaughter, manager of the bowling and billiard departments, come true, Villanova will be in for one of the busiest indoor sport seasons in the history of the school.

Hopes for League

Slaughter dreams of intercollegiate bowling competition for the cream of the school's keglers this Winter. With some co-operation from the colleges in the vicinity, he hopes to see the formation of a Philadelphia Intercollegiate Bowling Association.

At present some forty odd have been tossing the big wooden apple down the alley, aiming for strikes, but content with a spare. Of these, the majority are freshmen.

Prizes for weekly high score have been offered to the various contestants in the hopes that it will bring out more of the student body to participate in the pastime of pin spilling.

The schedule gives the students more of a break this year, 12 of the games being slated for the home gym. St. John's, Rider, Catholic U., and Muhlenberg are the cream of the teams to appear in the Villanova Field House.

Fordham's five, rated the best Ram quintet in the past ten years, and tops in the Metropolitan area, will be met at the Arena, February 4 in the feature game. The traditional Temple fray is scheduled for the same place on a late January date.

Not until the second week in March will the 'Cat basketeers hang up their shoes. St. John's is the feature game for the season's wind-up.

Jack Meagher Brings Strong Club to Face Blue Eleven

Hitchcock, is beginning his third year as a regular, is one of the best triple threat men in Dixie.

Leading the hard-charging line from the key center position is Captain Lester Antley, a rugged 196-pound six-footer. Antley, for the past two years has been understudying Auburn's great Walter Gilbert, and last season he saw enough action to earn his letter. His crack defensive play, expert diagnosing of plays, and accurate passing are the evidence of his being ranked with the best pivotmen in the South. He is a very popular and inspiring leader as is shown by the fact that his mates took him from the substitute ranks and named him their captain for the present campaign.

Burford Stars

Only one regular remains of the Auburn forward wall that opposed Villanova in Havana. The lone returning starter is Oscar Burford, junior end. Burford, at the beginning of the '36 season, had a seat on the bench, but by the time the campaign was well under way he had clinched a starting berth. He is six feet tall, tips the beam at 185, and loves to play football.

Bo Russell, a junior, saw a lot of action at the tackle position in 1936, and is rated by the Auburn coaches as one of the two or three best in the Plainsmen's history. He has had an interesting football career. When he entered Auburn in 1935, he was a complete unknown. In two years under the capable handling of Line Coach Dell Morgan, he has developed into a potential All-American.

Ralph "Happy" Sivell, guard, Freddie Holman, tackle, and "Dutch" Heath, fullback, are three senior lettermen. Heath is a fullback built along the lines of Villanova's Art Raimo. He is a powerful little fellow, who hits very hard for his 166 pounds.

Sophs Good

A crack group of sophomores is available to Coach Jack Meagher. George Kenmore and Bill Mims, a pair of halfbacks, are the most notable of these. Kenmore, who is only five feet, eight inches off the ground, and weighs but 160 pounds, is the leading back up from last year's frosh. Despite his size, or lack of it, he is a highly effective performer in every form of backfield duty. Mims, a superb passer and classy runner, is not far behind Kenmore.

Walter Chandler, guard, and Max "Goon" Harrison, end, are outstanding soph stalwarts on the line. Chandler is the best all-round sophomore guard Auburn has ever had. This six-foot husky is the youngest man on the Plainsmen's roster, being only 18 years old. But he knows a lot of football for his 18 years. Harrison, a converted quarterback, is a speed merchant and a glue-fingered pass snagger.

The Gomez Cup, for which the teams battled in Havana, will be at stake. The winner of Saturday's game will gain possession of it and the invitation to return to defend it.

$1 SEASON TICKETS TO COURT CONTESTS AVAILABLE IN GYM

Purchaser May Attend Twelve Basketball Games at Field House

IDEA NEW TO ENTHUSIASTS

Dollar season tickets entitling the holder to admission to all basketball games at the Villanova Gym during the 1937-1938 court season are now available at the gym, according to Coach Al Severance.

Stirs Interest

The idea behind the new ticket, announced at the close of last June, is to stir more interest among outsiders and to bring larger crowds to the contests staged in the Field House. Attendance in the past few years was not what it could be, and it is hoped that this innovation will remedy the situation. The card will be transferable, enabling any number of persons to use it.

Villanova's court schedule has 28 contests lined up, and of these 16 will be played either away or at the Arena in Philadelphia. This leaves 12 games for the gym, and at a dollar ticket for 12 frays, the cost per contest is less than a dime, a very reasonable price for basket-

Frosh Open Gridiron Season On October 9th

Freshman Football Team Meets Temple Yearlings

SCHEDULE FIRST PLAYED SINCE 1932

With the prospect of intercollegiate competition for the first time in five years, Villanova's Frosh gridders have begun the final drive for positions in the lineup for the season's opener with Dickinson Seminary, October 9.

It is still a bit early to make predictions, but many of the Frosh have demonstrated something in the scrimmages against the varsity. Outstanding among the first year men is a lad who goes by the name of Basca. He is a good, hard-running halfback and an accurate forward passer and has bothered the big boys more that a little in the practice sessions.

Shader Shines

Gordon Shader, a North Bergen, N. J., product, has shown himself a triplethreat contender for the quarterback post. Al Ferris, hailing from New York City, is another flashy halfback. Al, an All-New York City back in his high school days, has done some good ball carrying against the varsity in the drills.

Lawrence, Massachusetts, sends a six foot, 175 pound end in the person of Ed Collins, an All-Scholastic selection in the Bay State last year. Len Kolenda, of Nanticoke, Pa., looms as Collins' running mate as Kitten wingman.

Three guards have been standouts. Ed Ryan, from nearby Chester, and versatile Court Hallkman, of Asbury Park, N. J., seem to have the call at present. This pair is being pressed by "Moon" Andrewlevicz. "Moon" is perhaps the best blocking lineman on the squad, and his speed enables him to pull out on plays requiring running guards.

Philly Represented

Philadelphia is represented by John Nujunis, Bob McCoy, and Henry Sokolis, brother of Stan Sokolis, ex-Penn captain. Nujunis is a flashy back from Central High. McCoy an All Catholic center from West Catholic, and Sokolis a tackle who formerly knocked down ball carriers for the glory of Massanutten Military Academy.

Also on the freshman squad is a boy who has the unique distinction of having gained state Scholastic football honors in two different states. He is George Pucci, who won All State awards at Perth Amboy High School in New Jersey and at Staunton Military Academy in Virginia.

Many others have given standout performances during the Fall training session. "Doc" Jacobs, astute mentor of the Kittens, while not exactly pleased with the showing of his boys to date, has hopes of putting on the field a team equal to great freshman teams of the past.

Besides Dickinson Seminary, the Wildcats yearlings are scheduled to meet the Temple frosh. Games with the Franklin and Marshall freshmen and Wyoming Seminary are pending.

Links Leader

JIM DWYER
C. & F. junior, who was recently elected captain of the Wildcat golf squad for 1937-38.

LINKSMEN SELECT DWYER AS LEADER

Varsity Captain Has Enviable Record in Strong Collegiate Competition

At a meeting last Wednesday, Jimmy Dwyer, Junior Commerce and Finance student, was elected captain of the "Wildcat" linksmen in their coming season.

In every respect the election of Jimmy was warranted and justified. For his behavior, coolheadness, sportsmanship and ability has surpassed that of his teammates. Jimmy's free-going manner has earned him quite a number of friends and he will undoubtedly fulfill the duties of the captaincy quite capably.

Has Impressive Record

As a yearling Jim qualified for the golf squad and later found himself alternating with Bob Stockton at the number one and two positions. Impressive in his match-play, Jimmy turned in several decisive wins.

In last season's golf meets Jimmy really came to the fore playing a brand of golf that carried him through an undefeated schedule. The newly elected captain won six matches and was tied in one by Ed Workman, ace-man of the Temple squad. Incidentally, Ed Workman likewise experienced an undefeated season last spring for the "Owls."

Can Stand Pressure

Proving himself a golfer who can stand pressure, when the going gets tough, Jimmy has come from behind to win more than one match while playing for Villanova College. One of Jimmy's outstanding feats was to breeze around the Radnor Country Club in even par seventy last spring.

After having elected a formidable captain Manager Jimmy Lyons revealed to the squad that one of the most ambitious golf schedules ever attempted in the history of Villanova College is in the making.

Cox, '35, Leads Norristown Eleven To 6-0 Win

Led by Charley Cox, former Villanova gridster, and coached by George (Doc) Jacobs, the Norristown Professionals tripped the Olney Yellow Jackets on Roosevelt Field, Norristown, Wednesday night. The final was 6 to 0.

This is the second year that Coach Jacobs has been the head tutor of the Norristown eleven. Previously he had tutored the L. A. M., of Norristown, one of the leading independent aggregations in the East.

Cox, who was a tackle under Harry Stuhldreher from 1932 to 1935, is now playing end and was selected captain of the Norristown eleven. He is also a member of the New York Yankees professional team.

ATHLETICS GROUP CONVENES IN N. Y.

Discusses Election of Okeson's Successor; Severance Represents Villanova

NEW YORK, N. Y.—At a closed meeting in the Harvard Club of New York last Thursday, plans for a complete revision of intercollegiate athletic administration were drawn up by five Graduate Managers of prominent Eastern schools. Attending the session, which was closed to reporters, were James Lynah, who has slowly been rebuilding Cornell's football fortunes; George Little, of Rutgers; Captain E. W. McKee, of the United States Naval Academy; Alexander G. Severance, of Villanova, and William (Bill) Bingham, genial boss of Harvard's athletic set-up, who acted as host to the visiting potentates.

Czar Under Discussion

In all probability, one of the more important matters under discussion was the problem of appointing a successor to Walter Okeson, retired Commissioner of Football. The new official will have greatly amplified powers and duties, and will handle officials and rulings for all sports, not only for football, as in the past. The new czar will head an association which will include practically all the colleges on the Atlantic seaboard, and its headquarters will most probably be located in this city.

All conferences and leagues which desire to enter their football, basketball, boxing and track teams in this organization, the National Intercollegiate Athletic Association, must incorporate with its central bureau. It will work for the betterment and uniformity of college athletics and standards, thus remedying some of the chaotic conditions prevalent today.

When pressed for particulars of the meeting, the delegates refused to discuss the appointment of Mr. Okeson's successor, merely saying that there were would be a subsequent caucus, indicating perhaps that no decision had been reached, or that the nominee selected has yet to be approached for formal acceptance.

IDEA NEW TO ENTHUSIASTS

Dollar season tickets entitling the holder to admission to all basketball games at the Villanova Gym during the 1937-1938 court season are now available at the gym, according to Coach Al Severance.

IN THE hustle and bustle of getting ready for a year at college it's hard to think of everything — that letter you should have written—the engagement you can't keep—family matters — needed clothing. Whatever it is — a swift, personal telephone conversation with someone back home will fix things in a jiffy. It's economical, too. Rates on calls of 42 miles or more are reduced after 7 every night and all day Sunday.

In the Sportlight

By JOHN L. SIMONS

HERE WE ARE AGAIN back at the old post, but this time with a new name. And first on the list of outstanding senior athletes we present Alex Bell, the pride of New Kensington, which, in case you're interested, is a town situated some 15 miles northeast of Pittsburgh.

Alex is a rangy, rugged lad who loves the game of football and play it for all he is worth. He's a rip-snorting, smashing end of the old school, the type that would rather throw a good, hard block than snag a touchdown pass. It was a fitting tribute to four years of hard play and tough breaks that Alex was named captain to lead his mates in their initial triumph of the '37 season.

The hero of our little story was born just a bit more than 22 years ago, on August 12, 1915, to be exact, in New Kensington. Within a short time he was dubbed Alexander E. That was his start.

He Loves Football

Alex was, I his younger days, and still is, strictly a football man. Football is the only sport that attracts his athletic abilities. In high school he played four years of the gridiron game. New Kensington High School was his alma mater, and the alma mater was shown how the end position should be played. During these high school days Alex began to develop as a punter. His advance was rapid, and in his last years he did all the punting for the New Kensington team.

Alex's kicking ability led his coach to convert him into a backfield man in his senior year. During that season Alex played in the backfield on the offense and his normal position on the defense. His skill as a ball carrier was discovered somewhat accidentally. He was accustomed to drop back to punt, and occasionally, to cross up the opposition, he was called on to carry the ball. To make a long story short, Alex got away a few times for good gains, and presto! he was a back.

Lou Sent Him Here

In 1934, Alex was graduated from New Kensington and began to look around for a college. Fortunately for Villanova, Lou Pessalona, captain and tackle of the Wildcats' great 1928 team, was at the time a resident of New Kensington. He influenced Alex to come to Villanova.

So in the Fall of 1934, Alexander E. Bell enrolled at the Main Line institution. Although the frosh football squad that year numbered over fifty, Alex soon made himself noticeable. Before the season was half through he was rated as the outstanding end on the squad.

During the following year Alex saw plenty of action at the right flank, splitting the duties of that post with the veteran George Fox. Last season Alex was coming along fast as an end and a kicker, when an unfortunate ankle injury put him on the shelf for the greater part of the campaign.

Broke Ankle

Just a couple of days before the Boston U. fray last year the Clipper had the ends running down kicks. Alex tore down the field to grab his man and in tackling him he broke his own ankle. Running down punts is Alex's "hoodoo." Twice during his high school career he was seriously injured that way, once a broken arm and another time that same right ankle. Maybe that's why he took up kicking.

But Alex hasn't let the memory of that mishap daunt him. He has come back this Fall stronger than ever and is smashing interferers with the old gusto and some to spare. Alex is looking forward to a good year. Speaking about it he comments, "If everything goes right I expect to have a good year . . . if bad luck stays away from me. I get a bigger kick out of putting on a good block than I do out of catching a pass."

Led Team to Win

Alex has led the team to its first victory and has started the boys off on the right foot. But he looks cautiously at the rest of the campaign. "The team," he says, "should go places because the material is there, a bunch of good boys. I was sorry that Val Rizzo got hurt as he will be missed a lot. Besides it breaks the all-Italian trio on the right side of the line, Rizzo, Olivar, and myself."

The School of Education is the particular scene of his classroom activities. His aim is football coaching. He also hopes to play pro football as he likes the game a lot and doesn't see how he can keep away from it.

VARSITY COURT SQUAD REPORTS FOR PRACTICE

Two Months' Preparation Deemed Necessary for Strenuous 28 Game Card

Villanova's court squad reported for practice yesterday to Coach Al Severance. The boys are to go through a two month's training period before opening the season with Rider College. The purpose of the long session is to prepare the boys for the strenuous 28 game campaign which faces them.

Among the veterans returning were Lou Dubino, center, Art Vigilante, guard, Johnny Krutulis, guard and forward, and Lou Wannemacher, guard. Severance must replace Don Brennan and Harry McNally, both lost by graduation. These men will be hard to replace, but with the promising group of freshmen, Severance will have little trouble replacing the two graduates.

Intra-Mural Athletic Card Presents Number Of Sports

Basketball, Tennis, Boxing, Swimming Among Contests Offered Resident and Commuting Students; Rivalry Keen Among Competitors

Sports to suit all tastes are available to the student at Villanova College, and the activities furnishing recreation are already under way, with the annual Fall Intramural tennis tourney inaugurating the proceedings. Preliminaries were held last week and the action will continue until a champ is crowned. Last year's net contests ended in a stalemate with the Commerce and Finance Day - hops and Mendel Residents sharing honors.

Basketball Popular

October 19 will see the basketeers don their togs and attempt to lift the crown from the Mendel Day-hops, who nosed out the Mendel Residents in a torrid play-off. This year's race will find Austin a strong contender for honors, as many of the 'mural court luminaries are residing in that building. The Day-hops will still present a powerful aggregation, as they are practically intact, with the exception of Gene Barr. The Train and Trolley boys still have Dan O'Connor, the leading scorer of the league. Unless the Class of '41 puts some new life into the C. & F. combine, the businessmen will be out in the cold again.

Fisticuffs will hold sway for one short night, when Ray Gadsby's annual boxing show takes place, this year on January 17. All participants must train intensively from the first of December. Pointers will be given from time to time by any of the varsity boxers. For the benefit of the Freshmen, many of the varsity sluggers graduated from the ranks of the Intra-mural resin sniffers. It is expected that January 17 will find a new champion to displace the co - holders, Mendel Day-hops and Alumni Hall.

Drama Calls

Next on the list of Intra - mural activities is an event not exactly athletic in nature. An innovation last year, Amateur Night instantly caught on, and Alumni Hall, in part through the efforts of those three part chorines, "Jake" Jacobowski, "Reds" Kamen, and Paul Costello, were returned the winners by vote of three judges experienced in the terpsichorean and histrionic fields. December 15 is the day when Hamlets will run rampant o'er our fair campus.

Swimmers also have their day in the Inter-dorm program which will in all probability take place in late March, and Austin Hall is out to retain its championship among the water babies, gained only after a tense struggle with the powerful Alumni Hall crew.

One of the most Impromptu affairs of the campus sports schedule is the golf tourney. Arrangements are made to allow the divot-diggers to have a full day at the Radnor Country Club, and par is attacked, but usually unsuccessfully, and a fine time is had by all. No returns from the past tourney have been found at the present, but it is hoped that the winner will be known before the next tournament begins.

Gigolos Seek Crown

Fedigan Hall's Gigolos are out to repeat their conquest of the hardball crown, despite the fact that they lost the services of Ben "Not-Hit" Pawlowski, and Frank Sweeney, the two outstanding firebrallers in the circuit. However, they still have Johnny Costello and Lloyd Rice to toss them up, and they have no fears along pitching lines. For those who have no like for hardball, but like baseball, soft ball is scheduled after the annual change to Daylight Saving Time is effected. Mendel easily snared the soft ball crown, but will have to work diligently to keep the diadem. New to the Intra-mural program will be Field Day, which will replace the annual track and field events run off in the Spring. Details of the events included in this phase of sports will be released at a later date.

All Invited

For those who wish to get in trim, all types of athletic equipment are available in each hall, and any student desiring use of this equipment may do so providing responsibility and proper care is assumed in their use. Intra-mural counsellors of the various halls are conducting the campaign and have done their best in helping organize a formidable schedule so that each student may have an opportunity to participate. It is now left up to the student body to put it across. Everybody not on a varsity squad is eligible, and all are invited to participate.

SPORTS STAFF

There will be a meeting of the sports staff of the VILLANOVAN at 1 P. M. today, Tuesday, October 5, 1937, in the office, 119 Mendel Hall. All members must be present or drastic action will be taken. All Freshman and Sophomore candidates will also be present for comment on stories turned in.

SPORT SLANTS

By T. O'M.

We're not saying much, but we're thinking hard. After the first shock of hearing the Cornell-Colgate score we've managed to develop a neighborly compassion for the University of Pennsylvania. Last year, as a crude sophomore team, the Big Red held Penn to a one-touchdown victory. This, however, is hailed as the Year of the Great Awakening by the old settlers of Ithaca who watched Ezra Cornell drive into town and haven't had much to cheer about since. On the other hand, we can picture the gloom and consternation which at this moment must be running rampant in the Chenango. Colgate teams have a way of bouncing back, but we fear greatly that Tulane and Duke will run wild on successive Saturdays against the Razzle D.'s.

The picture here on the Main Line is rather a hazy one. An undeniably strong team of juniors and seniors looked sluggish and mechanical; an equally undeniably green team of sophomores made errors as well as touchdowns. P. M. C. had no attack to speak of, but hustled on defense. Clipper unveiled some very promising sophomores and some very nice plays. Strangely enough, this combination produced no flareback; the sophs were nervous but well-drilled. The end play was uniformly fine, the middle of the line held, but did not open up too many cavities in the Cadet's wall when on the offense. Defensively, the Blue backs were there, but on offense the blocking was noticeable only by its absence.

We see by the papers that two '37 gridders are furthering their pigskin careers with the Wilmington Crows. Both Tony Sala, end who'll always be "captain" to us, and peppery Bill Christopher, cocky 'Cat quarterback, are trying their luck with the play for keeps boys. If past performance means a thing, these boys will go.

In no means a scoop, the news that George Fox is end coach at Wisconsin is still of interest to Villanovans. His appointment demonstrates the high regard Harry Stuhldreher holds for his former pupil. We predict a good wing play for the Badgers from now on, and don't find it necessary to dust off the familiar old limb in anticipation of a changed perch in the near future.

PREDICTIONS

The pigskin menu here in the East this week is a thing of joy to the sports fan. Here in Philadelphia, Villanova meets Auburn, with the 'Cats favored by this observer. Up at Palmer Stadium, the afore-mentioned Cornell team will receive a further test when it tackles Princeton. Now we will crawl energetically out upon that limb and pick Princeton. Our dearest friends and severest critics, Penn, clash with Yale at New Haven. We like the Red and Blue here. Army and Columbia re-enact the Battle of the Plains up on the Hudson shores in a high-scoring team with the Lions emerging on top. Maybe. Temple should take Florida easily Friday night, but if they don't do not, we beg of you, say we todl you so.

We wanted to pick Moon over Miami, but the Ed. said no. Perhaps it is just as well at that.

HERE and THERE

By Tom Carbine

Villanova's schedule makers took a big, healthy bite when they selected the opponents for this year's Varsity. However, it doesn't seem as though there will be any choking (causing reddened faces and that sheepish look) because this year's squad looks strong and capable with much talent all along the line.

There was a time when Villanova had only one, and at the most, two good punters. When we find four or five that can consistently place the elongated apple with some degree of accuracy, then a coach feels free to take out his star and give him a breathing spell on the sidelines without the fear that the team will get into some sort of a tight hole and that there will be no one to kick them out of it.

Not to be overlooked either is the fact that two of the expert punters are also ball carriers, which makes the quick-kick an ace in the hole that the opposition won't always have on their mind.

This year's Freshman class seems to be tops so far in the post depression era. It has been quite a while since Villanova has had to board more than two men in a room except in one or two instances. And it is also quite a while since the Freshman class was not dominated by the football men. With this, one of the largest Frosh classes of recent years, we find only a comparatively few interested in chasing the pigskin.

While we are discussing football, we would like to state that we agree with the Loyola student paper that rates Villanova's capabilities with Pitt's. Just because we have a closer view of the Panthers than the Californians, is no reason to let their size dazzle us. Another small school, possibly smaller than Villanova, caused Ohio State to step high and fast a couple of Saturdays ago, namely, Texas Christian. Here in the East, we think T. C. U. has a football reputation to be feared. Perhaps, too, the West has a better perspective on the scene because of its distance from the larger and bigger colleges and universities, that are publicized into their reputations. The Westerners aren't forced to read the press releases building up football into a paying business for some of the Eastern schools that Saturday after Saturday send a club out on the field that bucks the line for two or three downs, with an occasional pass thrown in for seasoning, and then punts.

Football, as played in the South, mid West and far West is more open and entertaining and has a style that is found in few Eastern teams. So we say again perhaps the Westerners can truly see Villanova's potentialities, that the people of the East would also realize if it weren't for the publicity smoke screen laid down by the Eastern ivy clad institutions.

Without wasting a minute, Fr. McKee has begun his Intra-mural program for the year 1937-38. The first show on the program, tennis, has brought back in the star role, that able master of the court game, Lloyd Rice, now representing Fedigan Hall. So far Rice has paraded through the opposition in his hall and is now ready to meet the rest of the campus champions.

For those who appreciate humorous incidents, we have saved this little bit of news for the piece-de-resistance. One day followed another last week without anything happening until a little band led by Ray Stoviak approached Bob Whelan's athletic office in search of cards that were supposedly to be punched by a time clock before and after practice sessions. We're not commenting on the incident but rather we shall let it connote what it may.

LIGHTWEIGHT CLUB SHOWS ENTHUSIASM

Interest in Drills Promises Successful Season; Bangert to Coach

Coached by Don Bangert, former tackle on the Villanova Frosh, the Blue 150 pound team is looking forward to one of its most successful seasons. A wealth of material is at the call of the lightweight mentor.

Enthusiasm marks the practice of the squad as they go into the second week of training, causing Bangert to have hopes of his charges breaking into the win column for the first time in several years. Led by Captain Paul Kerrigan, the youngsters are entering into the spirit of the play with the excitement of a child with its first toy.

Many Show Promise

Promising men among the candidates are, in addition to Kerrigan, Don Mackowski, Tommy Carbine, Joe Pagano, Joe McDade, Harold Murphy, Bert Cousart, Brad McManus, Carl Pantelo, and Frank Fortunato.

McManus is new to the squad this year, but is tentatively slated to call signals. Kerrigan, one of the best fullbacks in the 150 lb. league, is again occupying that position. Other backfield men fighting for positions are Carbine, Cousart, the left footed kicker and flashy halfback "Doc" Daniello, Massachusetts flash, is pressing the boys, as are Murphy and Jimmy Lyons.

Linesmen reporting for practice are Joe Alessandroni, veteran from last year's club, Dick Gove, another veteran, Ed Hanlon, McDade, and Vic Dominick. Some of these are new to this game, but all show signs of promise and Bangert has plenty of replacements this year, an important factor in the lack of success of the 1936 squad.

The entire squad is eagerly looking forward to the encounter with Lafayette's Leopards at Easton on the 16th of this month. This game will be an entirely different story from last year's contest, which the little Blues dropped by an overwhelming score.

P. M. C. STAR HURT

One of the reasons why the Penn Military Cadets lost to the Blue by such a large score was the absence of Joe Spang star halfback. Joe was out with an injured ankle.

Future Opponents Show Much Power

the Cadets from the Virginia hills had to be content with an 18-7 set-back, but they returned to their guns knowing that they added a few more gray hairs to "Pop" Warner's thatch.

Opponents Win

The other teams on the schedule hung up easy victories in their opening contests. Detroit held a track meet with Hilidale. Winning by a mere 60-0 score. Hilidale is a fine name for a college, but pretty names don't make good football teams except in the movies. The Bucknell Bisons trampled one of Villanova's neighbor's, Ursinus, in the mire to the tune of 20-0.

This week all the teams swung into the tough end of their schedule with the exception of Detroit who warmed up a second week by disposing of Western State Teachers rather easily 20-7. Bucknell continued its winning ways by turning back the Dutchmen of Lebanon Valley by the margin of two touchdowns. Boston U. issued a warning to all its future rivals in the form of a very impressive victory over Lehigh. They drubbed the Engineers 33-7. B. U. exhibited a varied attack that is destined to carry the Beaneaters a long way this season. It was a consensus of opinion that it was the most impressive opening game ever staged by a B. U. eleven.

Temple Ties Ole Miss.

Temple tackeld the Rebels from old Mississippi in a night game last Friday. The Owls were a greatly improved team over the previous week, but they lacked scoring punch so they had to be satisfied with a 0-0 stalemate. Their line was strong on defense, but they couldn't dent the Southerners' forward wall so their speedy backs could get through. A little more polishing and they will be mighty hard to defeat.

The success of Wildcat foes ends there for now comes the sad part. Marquette ran ino the big bad Badgers of Wisconsin. The Golden Avalanche wanted that state title for the third straight year, but Coach Harry Stuhldreher had taught his Wisconsin boys too well. Marquette's attack was completely smothered and the Badgers sent their foes home nursing a 12-0 loss.

The Texas Aggies traveled over 1000 miles to hang a 14-7 defeat on the Jaspers of Manhattan.

SOPHOMORES STAR AS BLUE TRIUMPHS WITH SIX TALLIES

finished the game 28 yards in the hole. Villanova's first downs totaled 12, to the Cadets two, one of which came as the result of two successive offside penalties.

Scoring consistently in each chapter and three times in the final, the 'Cats displayed to good advantage their passing and open field running. Toward the end of the first quarter Andy Stopper neatly passed 21 yards to Ray Stoviak, who had cleverly eluded the two men assigned to cover him, for the first score of the day.

Howlett Tallies

Stepping into the stage at this point for their first appearance in Blue, the Sophomores had the spectators on their feet as their flashy playing rolled up score after score. First "Buzz" Howlett got away with a Cadet punt on a 55 yard romp through the entire Chester club. Then Howlett lined a 10-yard pass to Sammy Monaco in the end zone. But this was only the beginning.

In the final period, John Gogolinski carried the ball across the line after the Main Liners had brought it 42 yards down the field. For variety Villanova now took to the air for a short exhibition that featured a 50 yard pass and run. Paul Verbitsky tossed to Walt Nowak for another counter. Then just to make it harder to decide who was the best quarterback, Harry Mazzei plucked a P. M. C. punt on the run and dashed 44 yards down the side lines for the final six points.

In all the pigskin crossed the goal line six times, each time it was followed by a perfect kick from placement that showed that Coach "Clipper" Smith is out to make every motion count. John Wysocki and Harry Mazzei each kicked two points and Periera and Buckley each contributed one to the general fund.

Seniors Slovenly

When the first string backfield of Nye Stopper, Earl and Buck began to fumble the pigskin on the spinners that require so much timing for their operation, it seemed that Villanova had lost its punch and that a score would be long in coming. But when that same backfield, with the exception of Nye, came in at the opening of the second half, and began to click off first down after first down on the same sort of plays that had failed to work at the beginning, it was easy to realize that the inspiring leadership of "Clipper" Smith was taking effect.

Alex Bell's work also showed inspiration as he blocked and tackled with an All-American technique. On the other end John Wysocki complemented Bell's fine playing with his own special brand of blocking which if continued will undoubtedly make him outstanding in this section of the country.

The finds of the days were "Buzz" Howlett and Harry Mazzei, but not to be overlooked is the fine work of Lou Dymond who made good when he got his first chance to perform in competition.

Fedigan, C & F Day - Hops Select Participants for Tennis Competition

RICE REPRESENTS GIGOLOS

Under the guidance of Rev. Edward B. McKee, O. S. A., the Intramural tennis tournament has been inaugurated. Eliminations are under way in Mendel and Austin Halls, while Fedigan has already crowned its champ. The draw has been completed in Austin, but no matches have been played.

Rice Represents Fedigan

Pinned on the shoulders of Lloyd Rice are the hopes of the lads from Fedigan. Wielding his racket with deadly accuracy, he has reached the finals without dropping a set. His first encounter was awarded him by forfeiture and he contianued by triumphing over Marco Jones in straight sets. In a hard fought battle, he vanquished Freddie Rappleyea to the tune of 6-3, 8-6, 7-5, to walk away with the title.

Actual competition has not begun in Austin Hall although all entries are in and the pairings announced. The McKeemen may be looked upon as keen competition with designs on the school title. Many hard-fought rounds of good tennis are anticipated before a victor will be decided.

C. & F. Has Star

To give everyone a chance, day students are urged to enter a team under the name of their school. The Commerce and Finance students are represented in the tennis fracas by Beatty Schermerhorn, who was given his berth in the finals unmolested. He was the only C. & F. day-hop to enter the tourney.

The rising young "Tildens" from Mendel and Alumni have organized their schedule and have finished first round matches. They promise to finish well up in the standings since abundant material is available. Mendel is under a mental handicap since they are one of the defending co-champions.

Coach Severance feels that this is a new step in basketball history at Villanova, and is certain of the successful outcome of the idea.

WPA COMMITTEE DRAMATIC CONTEST PROLONGS COLLEGE

Federal Theatre Sponsors Extend Deadline on Entries to Nov. 1

Announcement of the postponement of the closing date of the College Playwriting Contest to November 1 has more than doubled the number of scripts entered, according to the joint sponsors, the WPA Federal Theatre Project and its National Collegiate Advisory Committee.

Entries received thus far indicate a preference for "poetic drama" of the type of the Maxwell Anderson has recently brought into prominence. Plays dealing with social problems, both on the campus and off, seem to predominate. Scripts from every region of the country and from colleges of all types are being read by the judges.

Originally sheduled to close on September 1, the contest period was extended two months to enable student playwrights to rework their scripts on the advice of their drama professors after the opening of college this fall.

Any regularly enrolled student in an American college may submit an original full-length script. There is no restriction of theme but the direct observation of contempory American life will be preferred.

"A contestant can show what is happening to people—all sorts of people, in America today," Hallie Flanagan, national director of the project, said in discussing the possibilities of play material on the observation of contemporary American life.

"Not that the plays should be restricted to a study of the one third of our nation which is ill-housed, ill-clad, ill-nourished, though these millions are so inescapably a part of America today, that they are subjects for drama.

"Even more potently," Mrs. Flanagan continued, "the plays can concern themselves with conditions in back of the conditions that have lead to the denial of the lowest standards of living to millions of people."

The WPA Federal Theatre guarantees a production of the prize winning play for at least one week. However, if attendance warrants, the run will be extended. The usual WPA Federal Theatre rental rate of fifty dollars a week will be paid the winning playwright.

SUN IS WEAKER

Cambridge, Mass.—(ACP)—The sun is a weakling when compared to stars of its own type, research at Harvard Observatory has disclosed.

Dr. William A. Calder's work gives the first indication scientists have had that the sun is "under par." Very accurate measurement of the sun's stellar brightness is important, it seems, since the sun is used by astronomers as a unit for measuring the energy and brightness of more distant bodies.

The moon, on the other hand, was found to be slightly brighter than had hitherto been believed.

NATIONAL SOCIETY PLANS COLLEGIATE PRESS CONVENTION

Large Meeting of Undergraduate Publishers Sponsored by A.C.P. in Chicago

Chicago, Ill.—(ACP)—Plans for the largest convention of college and university undergraduate publications workers ever to be held in the U. S. are now being formulated by officers of the Associated Collegiate Press, national association of college publications' editors and business managers. The convention will be held here October 14 to 16.

With a program headlined by Henry Goddard Leach, eminent editor of The Forum magazine, and Howard Vincent O'Brien, news-making editorial columnist for the Chicago Daily News, delegates will attend a real short course in newspaper, magazine, and yearbook business and editorial management.

Some of the famed journalists to appear on the program include Curtis MacDougall, editor of the National Almanac and Yearbook; George Brandenburg, Editor and Publisher staff writer; John E. Drewry, director of the University of Georgia School of Journalism; Kenneth E. Olsen, director of the Northwestern University School of Journalism; O. Fred Wittner, New York publicist; James N. Krohne, Chicago advertising writer; G. D. Crain, publisher of Advertising Age; Grant Olsen, advertising manager of the Sheaffer Pen Co.; Harry C. Baldwin, of National Advertising Service, and many others.

Delegates to the convention will be entertained by Dusty Miller, famed Indiana publisher, and the music of Al Diem and his broadcasting orchestra. Chicago radio artists will also appear on the program. Delegates will also make tours of the up-to-date Chicago newspaper, printing, engraving and cover-making plants, each personally conducted by an expert in one of these fields of publication work.

Special roundtable meetings for the discussion of current editorial and business management problems are being arranged, with experts in each field leading each discussion.

Last year more than 375 students from colleges and universities in 33 states attended the meeting in Louisville. This year's is the 16th annual meeting of the Associated Collegiate Press.

RULE DIET IMPORTANT

Cambridge, Mass.—(ACP)—A good part of the world's war jitters can be blamed on faulty diet, the International food conference at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology was told.

Lewis W. Waters, food technician, foresaw doom for the "wallflower" and a race of healthier, less jittery people as a result of food technology.

Declaring surveys showed American college boys and girls today were taller and stronger than were their parents at similar ages, Waters said it must be attributed at least in part to "better and more varied foods."

New York College Installs Modern Academic System

New York, N. Y.—(ACP)—A new college curricum to which the experience of sixteen major colleges and universities has contributed, goes into effect this fall at Hofstra College, according to Provost Rufus D. Smith of New York University.

At Hofstra, which is the University's Long Island affiliate, to a greater extent, perhaps than in any other college, ordinary academic departments will be scrapped. For example, there will be merely a division of social science, in which six basic courses running in sequence from freshman to senior year will correlate all three of the conventional "departments."

Comprehensive examinations covering two years' work are planned for upper classes and there will be provision for independent work under tutorial guidance.

The new system, according to Prevost Smith, follows the newer trend toward the broad English type of training as opposed to the highly specialized German type popular in pre-war days.

Prominent Newspapermen, Educators To Address International Editors

Canadian - American College Journalists to Discuss Current Problems in Chicago, November 26 - 28

Preparations for a Canadian-American college editors' conference are now being made by International Student Service, according to its secretary, Robert G. Spivack. Three day sessions will be held at International House, University of Chicago, Thanksgiving week-end, November 26-28.

Three major problems will be taken up at this meeting: Campus problems, covering fraternities, N. Y. A., student government; Off-campus problems, including college editors' relation to community, city government, labor unions, health insurance, international affairs, and peace activities; Technical problems of news-gathering, printing, and advertising.

This conference marks the first attempt to bring students of Canada and the United States together to discuss their common and particular problems, according to Spivack. The Chicago meeting will be the second sponsored by International Student Service. The first was held in New York, November 1935, and was sponsored jointly with the National Student Federation.

Prominent newspapermen and educators will address the meeting. Efforts are being made to obtain Col. Frank Knox, publisher of the Chicago Daily News; Heywood Broun, president of the American Newspaper Guild, and Professor Quincy Wright, Department of Political Science, University of Chicago.

This conference differs from all others in that is being called early in the year to help editors orientate themselves. Other conferences are usually called in the Spring, when the editors are ready to leave their work.

SCIENCE GATHERING HEARS DISCUSSION OF NEGRO QUESTION

Rev. William J. Walsh Addresses Seminar on Important Situation

DECLARES RACE REFUSED CHANCE OF ADVANCEMENT

Catholic Church Attempting to Equalize Creeds; Speaker Denounces Communism

Rev. William J. Walsh, pastor of St. Ignatius Catholic Church in Philadelphia, addressed the first meeting of the science seminar last Tuesday on the question of racial controversy, and followed his discourse with an informal forum.

Refused Chance

"The question of negro repression is a delicate and important situation that is taking uncontrollable proportion, and unless radical change takes place, will affect future politics in the United States," Fr. Walsh said. As he further implied, the American negro is being refused any chance of advancement in the white cycle and unjustly so, as the average negro has the same intellectual potentialities as the white man.

In the United States at present there are approximately ten million negroes, of which fifty thousand are educated. These men, because of their color, are being refused the advancement allotted to their intellectually equal or inferior white man.

Church Is Leader

As an attempt to correct this situation, Fr. Walsh told the gathering that the Catholic Church is starting a campaign to equalize the races and creeds. At present, the only apparent action has been the formulating of open debates and discussions between white and black representatives of colleges.

The "Red Menace" is also a complication entering into the situation which is undoubtedly the reason for such an aggressive at-

WILKES-BARRE CLUB PLANS ANNIVERSARY

Popular Campus Organization to Celebrate Fifteenth Birthday

The large turnout at the opening meeting of the Wilkes-Barre Club indicated that this group will again be a powerful campus organization.

While there are only about twenty-five members enrolled in the club, nevertheless it is active and has many diversified activities. Membership is open to all students residing in Wilkes-Barre and Luzerne County.

The club annually conducts dances during the holiday seasons of Christmas and Easter. The Christmas dance, an open formal affair, will be held at the Hotel Sterling in Wilkes-Barre. A committee has been selected to contact several regional orchestras and their selection will be announced shortly. The other social event in the club program is the annual Easter dance, which is open only to students and alumni.

Secretary Gilbert Noll has announced that in connection with the club's 15th anniversary celebration it will hold a smoker for all Villanova alumni, students and friends in the Wilkes-Barre locality. This affair will also be held during the Christmas holidays and

Lambda Kappa Delta Selects Troncelliti to Head Annual Fall Dance

At a special meeting of the Lambda Kappa Delta fraternity, held last Friday, President Alan F. Dowling discussed plans for the fraternity's annual Fall dance, to be held Friday, November 5, the night before the Marquette game.

Chairman Edward Troncelliti, whose appointment was announced to the VILLANOVAN Sunday by the president, has taken an active part in all class and fraternity activities since enrolling at Villanova. In choosing him to head the committee, the pre-meds have insured themselves of a leader with a background of valuable experience and one who will work whole-heartedly with the committee to make this dance a success.

At the same meeting it was decided by the fraternity to make this year's Fall dance an informal reunion for those former members who are residing in the vicinity and those who are attending medical schools in Philadelphia. To aid Chairman Troncelliti a committee representing members from all three years was chosen. These committeemen chosen for their interest in past activities of the Farternity are as follows: seniors — Andrew Conti, Vincent Ciacci; juniors—Rene Caillet, Benedict Cusani, Augustan Giorando, Robert Howe, Edward Lucenti, Philip Messer, Charles Skowron, Albert Zogby;

Joseph W. Beittenmiller Chosen Director of Phi Kappa Pi "Owl Hop"

Joseph W. Beittenmiller, recently elected President of the Villanova Society of Chemical Engineers, has been appointed to head the committee during the annual Owl Hop, according to J. Paul Skelly, '38, fraternity president.

Chairman Beittenmiller has already appointed his several committees to carry out the plans for the dance. The decorations for the Villanova Field House, in which the dance will be held on October 22, will be done by Paul Quinn, '38, William Durkin, '38, Thomas Schoedler, '39, Charles Barrett, '39, and J. Bieckner, '39.

The ticket committee is formed of Jerry Agnes, and Samuel Brown. The program committee, headed by John L. Simons, '38, is composed of Edward Conneen, '39, J. Scully, '40, and Edward Gornowski, '38. A fourth committee has been appointed by Beittenmiller to publicize the affair. Heading this committee is Daniel J. O'Connor, '38, and under him are Frank Carroll, '39, and Edward Hennessey, '40. The final committee is the refreshment committee composed of Ward Scanlon, '38, and John Leary, '40.

During the past week the several committees lead by Beittenmiller have made considerable progress in the various departments. Tickets for the affair are now being printed and will be distributed during this week. Posters for the affair will be hand-made by the publicity committee which has asked

CLIPPER SMITH WARNS GRIDDERS

Mentor and College Band Are Heard in Radio Rally

Villanova's "Clipper" Smith and the school band collaborated in a Thursday night radio rally in anticipation of the Auburn game Saturday.

"Clipper" spoke briefly on the comparative strength of the two teams. He warned the Villanova rooters and gridders to beware the "psychologizing" attempts of opposing coaches, including Jack Meagher, Auburn mentor, who has bemoaned the loss of many of the members of last year's varsity, "Clipper" opined that many of the varsity men of last year will be in there for Auburn this year.

Members of the Class of 1941 are invited to attend the third annual smoker being conducted by the Phi Kappa Pi Fraternity this evening at 8 o'clock in the Commerce and Finance auditorium.

COLLEGE YEARBOOK SPONSORS AMATEUR SNAPSHOT CONTEST

Senior Photos to be Taken for Belle Air, Oct. 18 - 21

Appointment cards are to be given to each senior, on which will be the time he is to appear for the sitting. It is imperative that seniors appear on their appointed times, as this will be their only opportunity to have photos taken for the book.

It is advisable for seniors to wear a dark coat, a white shirt, and a dark tie in order to obtain the best possible picture. There will be a nominal charge of one dollar, which will be payabe at the time of sitting.

It was also announced that a Snapshot Contest, open to all students of the College, will be conducted by the Belle Air. Any picture of student life, any activity of the College, or campus views may be entered. The following prizes will be awarded:

1. Three dollars in cash, an invitation to the Belle Air dinner, and the name of the winner engraved in gold on his year book.

2. One dollar in cash and the winner's name engraved on his year book.

3. The winner's name engraved on his year book.

The contest will close February 15, and all pictures are to be submitted to Joseph H. Deber, photography editor, or to Charles P. O'Connor. It is to be understood that all entries will become the property of the Belle Air.

It was only last week that the Belle Air received notice of being All - American calibre and Editor O'Connor has aspirations to winning the award for the second successive. This snapshot contest, he believes, will help considerably in that attainment.

Freshman Debaters Select Donovan As Acting Secretary

Arts Student to Contact Prospective Opponents For Coming Season

At the initial meeting of the Freshman Debating Society held last Wednesday, James Donovan, Freshman Arts School student, was appointed temporary secretary.

Donovan will begin at once to contact prospective opponents for the coming forensic season. Among these will be included many colleges met in former years: Princeton, Temple, St. Joseph's, Georgian Court, Fordham and the University of Pennsylvania.

Although Wednesday's meeting was well attended, Rev. Jerome A. Mahoney, O.S.A., moderator of the society, would like to see even more freshmen take advantage of the many opportunities offered to members.

The next meeting will be held tomorrow at one o'clock in Room 214, Mendel Hall. All freshmen are invited to attend.

This club has been active in class affairs for many years and it is hoped that it may continue to do so. This desired result can only be obtained with proper co-operation of the class.

CLASS TREASURER BEGINS DUES DRIVE

William L. Leahy, student in the School of Commerce and Finance, was appointed chairman of the Junior Ring Committee, it was announced today by Donald Mackowski, president of the Class of 1939.

Committee Released

Assisting Leahy in this venture, the first of the many important committees to be released in the imminent future, are: John D'Ippolito, also of the Business School; Pershing Calabro, Edward Tirrell, School of Arts and Philosophy; John Sherman, Thomas Schaedler, Technology Department; Rene Calliet, Carl Pantaleo, School of Science.

This marks the first time that a ring committee has been announced at such an early date, but this is attributable to the fact that both President Mackowski and Chairman Leahy wish to get plans underway immediately in an attempt to have the rings available to the class members at the earliest date possible, some time before Christmas.

As can readily be seen from the above, the committee members are equally distributed among the four schools on the campus. This policy was inaugurated by the juniors last year and met with a great deal of success.

Bids Being Considered

The initial meeting will be called in the early part of the week, and the committee will make preparations for contracting firms who will bid for the ring. Informal bids have already been placed by several firms, but the actual bids will be made in the near future, probably this week.

Both Mackowski and Leahy have expressed confidence and are of the opinion that the rings will surpass all others and will meet with the whole-hearted approval of

THE SPANISH QUESTION

ONE hundred and fifty Protestant clergymen, educators, and Protestant laymen last week addressed an imprudent letter to the Catholics of America representing that the recent Pastoral Letter of the Spanish Hierarchy is a medieval, un-democratic, fascistic document.

To read the list of the persons signing this open letter is to read the register of so-called Liberals who have been so busy defending Liberalism that they have never thought out a seasoned, universal philosophy of society.

Our separated brethren abhor the justification of armed rebellion on the part of the Spanish people; they resist the idea that Church and State should not be separated; they resent the apparent un-democratic attitude of the Spanish Hierarchy; and finally they deplore the rejection by the Spanish Hierarchy of the 1931 Constitution.

Armed rebellion is lawful and legitimate when all other means of redressing rights have been exhausted. It is a fact (though few will admit it) that the 1936 election was a fradulent election which employed an improved Tammany Hall technique. The highest appeal to authority met with a stern rebuff. The only course open to the Spanish people was the one they chose to follow: armed rebellion against unlawfully constituted authority.

As for the separation of Church and State, the Bishops are utterly in keeping with the Catholic tradition on this point. As the immortal Leo XIII has said in the Encyclical Immortale Dei, "To exclude the Church, founded by God Himself, from the business of life, from the power of making laws, from the training of youth, from domestic society, is a grave and fatal error. A State from which religion is banished can never be well regulated; and already perhaps more than is desirable is known of the nature and tendency of the so-called civil philosophy of life and morals."

No Catholic can ever accept the principle that Church and State should be separated. Such a philosophy is part and parcel of the Modernism roundly condemned by Pope after Pope since the time of Pius IX. Separation of Church and State is merely tolerated because of its de facto position.

The Spanish Constitution of 1931, which accepted in principle this false philosophy of Church and State, had to be resisted by the people. Leo XIII, in an Encyclical letter addressed to the Clergy and Faithful of France on February 16, 1892, declared that: ". . . such points in legislation as are hostile to religion and to God should never be approved; to the contrary, it is a duty to disapprove them."

There are times when it is "treason" to serve God, but God comes first. It such cases, it is only apparent treason. The fault lies with the State, not with the subject.

The Protestant clergymen seem to think that Democracy is the only form of government. For those hoary Liberals who still think that education (as we have it in America) is the answer to all social problems, that might be true. But to Catholics, it is clear that any form of government is sound, so long as the authority of the Church and of holy religion is accorded its proper due. The Protestant clergymen also deplore the fact that Spain is backward industrially, and point their long fingers at the Spanish Hierarchy as having been responsible for these conditions. Have our separated brethren drifted so far from the source of Christianity that they deem prosperity of more import than a saved soul?

The Spanish Constitution ruled aside God. Those who by fair and foul means sought to betray the Republic over to the hands of the Communists stand condemned by all men of right reason and good will. All Catholics support the position of the Spanish Hierarchy, for it is a reasonable one.

Perhaps our Protestant brethren do not subscribe to this philosophy, but, we, with the medieval Ivo of Chartres, believe that, "When kingdom and priesthood are at one, in complete accord, the world is well ruled, and the Church flourishes, and brings forth abundant fruit. But when they are at variance, not only smaller interests prosper not, but even things of greatest moment fall into deplorable decay."

Therefore, it is not Catholics who are the enemies of Democracy and Americanism, but those who, by removing God from the State, would destroy the only basis for justice, truth, and charity. There are no better citizens than Catholics, for Catholics worship Him who is all Goodness, all Truth, and all Beauty.

WELL DONE

IT is our extreme pleasure to be able to congratulate the Villanova student body for the marvelous support given the fighting pack of Wildcats last Saturday afternoon. In the eyes of many critics the cheering and singing was the best accorded a Villanova team in many years. Even the Alumni, usually the first to condemn, were beside themselves with joy at expression of spirit shown by the student body.

This sudden burst of loyalty shows that our students are all behind the team. It also indicates that our students can cheer. Let us hope that you will continue to gladden the hearts of the alumni and will do your bit to put pep into our team. Congratulations, students, may you continue your efforts.

College Chatter

THE PERISCOPE," an exchange received from the United States Northeastern Penitentiary, is dedicated "To our loved ones—the innocent sufferers of our transgressions." This publication is well written, and shows that these men, to whom time becomes an obsession, are vitally interested in the life they have forfeited.

"The St. Bona Venture" suggests a return to the ruffled night shirts of yore in place of our trick pajamas with their buttons, elastic cords, and trouble causing intricacies. (It would be interesting to see our football team wearing these in a fire drill.)

League forming in colleges has become sensible at last. An Anti-Corsage League was formed at a Southern college. (But I suppose we males must continue to match corsage with dress; endure the sweet aroma next to our nostrils all night; carry them patiently; wait while they are pinned on, and of course, pay for them—Roses, by the name some fellows would call them on corsages, could never be sweet.)

Tongue-Twisters are now in good taste. Read this rapidly.

Now if Theophilus, the successful thistle-sifter, in sifting a sieve full of unsifted thistles thrust three thousand thistles through the thick of his thumb, see that thou in sifting a sieve full of unsifted thistles, thrust not three thousand thistles through the thick of thy thumb. ODDS and ENDS

By Tom O'Mahoney

AS we heard it, it seems that there were two sophomores. Good friends, and all that, but each knew, and presumably admired, the same young lady. This, in itself, would not necessarily cause hardship to anyone, if it were not for the fact that they both decided to call on her on one and the same evening. But, alas, that is exactly what happened.

Our heroes dashed for the P & W (commercial) and landed in opposite seats. Still fine; but when the car stopped at Overbrook and both '40s got out on the platform, even an innocent bystander could feel a certain charge in the atmosphere. Then ensued a long and strained evening, in which the said young lady wished devoutly that one or the other collegian would go home. Finally, her hints took effect. One soph very ungallantly accepted carfare home from the other, and proceeded on his way with the bribe in his pocket. A way out, but not a very dignified one.

Come to think of it, though, what would YOU have done?

ON THE CAMPUS

From the Society Page: Pete Mackin and Matt Phelan seen frequently on the Bryn Mawr campus. Or so our information runs. Ballots and Bullets: As exclusively revealed in these pages last week, the political sessions of the class of 1940 are being held on Austin's second floor amid great excitement. They now bar the doors to outsiders. Must be getting hot, boys.

Athletics in print: Jim Montgomery is wondering if the VILLANOVAN sports department knows how to spell his name. Be patient, James. All things come, etc., you know. By the way, Jim, tell chum Dwyer that he doesn't have to bathe in our room-mate's Vitalis.

We overheard two jokesters at the P. M. C. game debating whether the frosh were cheering or gargling. It wasn't that bad, but it certainly wasn't up to past years' standards. HOW about it?

COMMUNITY NOTES:

Joe McHugh will teach the Big Apple to those interested. Joe is a pupil of Gib Kolb, ex-'39 C&F.

Bob O'Brien will hold the first meeting of his now famous "Ugly Club" to-night on the wall in front of Austin Hall. Gather 'round, frosh. YOU may be pledged.

THE OBSERVER

WE HAVE BEEN told a story that is very interesting because of the campus personalities it involves.

It seems that a certain football player has been seen quite frequently journeying to the home of a nearby belle. Our cautious nformant has learned that this certain football player takes with him to the home of this fair belle other certain football players. When the boys arrive there is a great whispering.

"D'ya think Clipper suspects us," says one to another.

"Naw. He'd never guess that we get it here."

"Boy," sighs another, "here's where you have to come to get the real stuff. The real McCoy, that's what I calls it."

Suddenly all the gentlemen arise as the fair belle enters the room.

"Hello, boys. I have a big surprise for you tonight. I've some homemade stuff. You'll have to come out to the kitchen to get it."

There is a rush to get into the kitchen.

The "stuff" is cake. Yes, we said cake.

And the name of the football hero who takes his cake from the beautiful belle is none other than——you guess.

Dear me! What have things come to? La, La!

The genial gentleman who is guardian of the destinies of the cosmopolitan Pie Shoppe, Louie to you, pulled a fast one on the boys the other day.

At twelve-thirty, while things were moving fast, Louis moved from behind his counter and went around amongst the tables.

"Fellows," shouted Louie to the wild-eyed argumentators at the tables, "if you have finished your lunch please move on. There are plenty of other people here who want seats and who are buying my goods."

The increase in enrollment has hit Louie a bit too hard. We hope he doesn't wear out the cash register.

Speaking of Roosevelt reminds us of another wise observation made by a certain party some time ago. Again, we do not take a stand but merely bring this up. If you've read the President's speeches of late, especially those made on his recent "swing around the West," you'll note the predominance of the "I," and less of the "we." In fact, if you make a careful study, you'll note, as that party pointed out, that the President seems to stress the value of his personal leadership. While that is perfectly good in itself, it nevertheless reveals a tendency on the part of the President to overemphasize his importance. Perhaps this is only a coincidence. But if you read of the rise of Napoleon, of Louis XIV, or Benito Mussolini, and of Adolf Hitler, you find the story all over again: a great man who wants to serve his country. The only fly in the ointment is that most of these men have been utterly convinced of their own great genius, and consequently, although they have served their respective countries, their ego carried them to extremes. Let us pray that nothing like that happens in America.

Gentlemen, we have shadows of the great amongst us. The Most Rev. Hugh Boyle is the Bishop of Pittsburgh. And Guy Lombardo is a great crooner, as you doubtlessly know. Well, amongst the Frosh enrolled this year we find a Hugh Boyle and a Guy Lombardo.

Welcome, Bishop Boyle!

Welcome, Crooner Lombardo!

Ed Casey graduated last June. But this year we find another Ed Casey, a new Freshman. We lost a Dolan; and we gained a Dolan. We have another Shovlin amongst us. Moe Dimon left here last June, and his brother is now with us. . . . a perfect picture of Moe. Prize "Moniker" is that possessed by George Haluszyka. Joe Light is a Freshman. And he would be an engineer! Finally, there is John Looney.

They tell us the story about the old German who wrote a letter to his friend in America. Moritz was a Jew, and of course not well liked by the Nazi.

"My dear Moe," wrote Moritz, "Everything over here is swell by us. Uncle Reuben, who yesterday publicly said he didn't think the regime was a success, was buried this morning."

Do you think that funny? Well, the editor of a local campus magazine told me that one and nearly died laughing at his own joke. I'm still trying to figure it out.

A word should be coming from all the students of the College to compliment Father Boyle and his band for their marvelous accomplishments. For those of us who have been here for a few years, the band this year is almost a revelation. Boy, what snap. And as for the drum major: Villanova is proud to have a man at the head of its blue clad students, a man who can "twirl it" with the best of them. I'll bet Pio Goggi is green with envy. What do you think?

Well, it is about time we signed off. It is now twelve o'clock and your correspondent is tired. But don't you think mention should be made of the dandy amongst us, Mike Hanna. But watch out for wooden money.

tempt at equalization, although such was not directly claimed by the speaker. It is a known fact that the communistic parties in America are befriending the negro and offering them future recognition as a means of converting them to their ways of thinking and also of voting. This is the fact that will undoubtedly affect future government in the United States, Fr. Walsh explained.

The fact that negro reproduction is three times as great as the white seems to raise consternation among the student listeners but was dismissed by the speaker as a matter of doubtful importance.

PRE-MED SOCIETY SEEKS CANDIDATES

Lambda Kappa Delta Will Begin Admission Program in December

(Editor's Note: This entire item taken from Oct. 30 edition of 1928 VILLANOVAN.)

Thursday, October 18, prospective candidates for the Lambda Kappa Delta Fraternity were addressed by Frank Kelly. In his address Mr. Kelly clearly stated that the fraternity provides the means for men of similar tastes and personalities to become intimately acquainted with one another through close contact and association.

The Lambda Kappa Delta is the pre-medical fraternity on the campus. Men taking a pre-medical course with a high standing and of good moral character are eligible for election.

It functions socially, athletically and scholastically. It stimulates through competition and interest in the college which is helpful and beneficial to the spirit of Villanova, as well as the fraternity itself. It also urges its capable men to participate in campus activities, to which they are adapted, in order that they may serve the college and bring credit to the organization.

The social activities of the fraternity are varied. There are several regular parties during the year in which all of the fraternity men participate. These include the annual banquet and the annual St. Patrick's dance. Private dances are held from time to time during the year, and all entertain faculty members and other friends at various times.

Membership is awarded in the fraternity on the basis of personal recognition by the Board of Admissions. This Board, composed of 12 members, five seniors, four juniors and three sophomores, controls admissions to the Society. It will consider all applications during the early part of December.

In the near future James Lyons, the president of the fraternity will have something of importance to say to all of the prospective candidates.

for volunteers to do the art work. This procedure will cut down the expense somewhat and will permit a better display of decorations for the Field House. The general admission will be $1.50.

RADIO AND THE THEATER

By LEN FLINKMAN.

Swing-Out? The Soph Cotillion, as expected, was a success. The Villanovans were tops. Their melodic emanations last Friday eve however, bear out my previous convictions—that swing was a fad. Died-in-the-wool "Shaggers" and "Black Appiers" may resent this, but a survey taken by one of Collegiana's favorite bandmasters among thirty college editors last spring reveals that "Swing" has dropped to third in favor of the college crew. Slow music of the smooth variety still rates tops. The majority of folks polled thought that swing was just a fad. It is interesting to note that the three favorite standard tunes, "Star Dust," "Night and Day" and "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes" are all of the sweet variety.

Stooge. Latest quip is that Edgar Bergen couldn't find Charlie McCarthy the first day he went to work for Sam Goldwyn. So they asked Sid Sokolsky to stand in for him.

UNCERTAIN. Don't look for W. C. Fields on the Chase & Sanborn program in the future. W. C., it is reported from reliable sources, is quitting radio for several reasons. He claims he is unable to get good script material and anyway he wants a rest. Mr. Fields must have read "Gone With the Wind," for there goes $5000 per.

HERE'S HOPING. United Artists sent out a card to which was affixed a nickel and a request to read current page in the Saturday Evening Post. Boys are hoping that U. A.'s next item of interest will be in Esquire which will call for half a buck.

Reviewing. Jack Benny returned with both the old gang and old gas and probably the old following. Abe Lyman has proven to be a big gun, in oral volume and dramatic effectiveness. Kenny Baker has given evidences of a decidedly improved voice and style, while the larynx of Andy Devine showed that it was more capable than ever of producing static.

When Chesterfield cigarettes went semi-Diamond Horseshoe last Spring by using Andre Kostelanetz's 45 piece orchestra and Lily Pons, the program clicked. Miss Pons is not with them this year because of other engagements; instead there are guest artists. The orchestra will again claim the strain-eared interest of listeners of both classical and jazz music. Kastelanetz can wield a mean baton.

Prediction: Chesterfield is stoutly entrenched for the year. Especially so with Hal Kemp and Alice Faye on Friday over C. B. S.

Ego. Sophie Tucker is to have her life bioged in a book by Jack Yellen which will be published shortly. She is digging up data from the time she started as a coon shouter. Art embellishments will be poses with royalty and other titled English friends. It'll be a good book.

Tunin'. Tonight Helen Menken appears in "Second Husband" at 7:30, C. B. S. At 9, N. B. C., is Ben Bernie. Had the pleasure of meeting him personally last year at the Arcadia. A swell guy, funny on or off the podium. At 9:30, C. B. S., painless education by Prof. Jack Oakie is continued, with Goodman as lab instructor in swingology. For a true case of nightmare, Gen. Hugh S. Johnson at 10:30, N. B. C.

Wednesday the 13th. It's Town Hall tonight with Walter O'Keefe, at 9 N. B. C. At 10—the "Hit Parade."

Thursday the 14th. At 8 Rudy Vallee, and he has with him Henny Youngman. Henny's face reminds somewhat of a college course in Latin — but his humor. . . .well, listen to him. At 10:30 if the Frosh are still up they can listen to the "March of Time."

Friday the 15th. I just happened to think of it: Milt Gross now writes the gags and script for Jack Oakie. By no means cut lab this afternoon, but if by some accident you don't happen to be in one, and you are near a radio, then listen to Walter Damrosch at 2, N. B. C. The Varsity Show, from S. M. U., at 8. . .Hal Kemp and Alice Faye at 8:30, N. B. C.

Sunday the 17th. You'll be talking about the game and how bad we defeated them—so no go for anything else. . . .except that it is high time that you were listening to Sheila Barrett in "The Time of Your Life," at 5:30, N. B. C., and every Sunday.

SINNOT APPOINTED PUBLICITY MANAGER OF CAMPUS SOCIETY

North Jersey Club Selects Commerce Student for New Office

FR. BROWN GIVES ADDRESS

Rev. Charles P. Brown, O. S. A., moderator, will give a welcoming address to the new members at the meeting of the North Jersey Club, to be held this evening.

Louis J. Dubino, president of the club, stated that he has been pleased with the large number of members in attendance at the last meeting and that he further expects a large number of new members from the freshman class. At the present time the club consists of twenty-five members whose homes are in the North Jersey area.

Sinnot Appointed

Dubino announced that he has chosen William Sinnot, a sophomore in the school of Commerce and Finance, to fill the role of publicity manager for the club. The purpose of this new office is to make the club more widely known, not only on the campus, but also among the members of the alumni. It is also expected to bring the members of the alumni into closer contact with one another by means of the social activities.

In discussing the plans of the organization for the year, Dubino also stated that other means for raising revenue are being considered instead of collecting dues. In addition to the official welcoming of the freshmen into the club, elaborate plans are being made for the social events.

Will Hold Dances

Each year the club traditionally holds two dances, one during the Christmas season and the other at Easter. This year the club is endeavoring to inaugurate another festive occasion during the Thanksgiving vacation. This is possible for the first time in a number of years due to a change in the school calendar. As yet, the plans for this dance as well as for the others is only tentative. Final arrangements will be considered at later meetings.

WILL ATTEND MEETINGS

College President Represents Villanova At Muhlenberg and St. Mary's Celebrations

Very Rev. V. Stanford, O. S. A., president of the college, is to attend several meetings within the next month, it was announced today.

The first of these will be at Muhlenburg College, Allentown, Pa. The year 1937 marks the centennial of the founding of Muhlenburg.

In honor of this collegiate celebration, the Association of College Presidents will hold a dinner at the Lancaster Country Club on Thursday, October 14. Father Stanford, the President of this Association, will attend the dinner.

Following this meeting, Father Stanford will participate in the inauguration of the Very Rev. John L. Sheridan as the new president of Mount St. Mary's College in Emittsburg, Maryland. The Villanova President will represent the Association of American Colleges and Villanova College at this ceremony.

CLUBS' REPORTS OVERDUE

Organizations Urged To Give Statements As Soon As Possible

All organizations on the campus are required to file annual reports with the Dean of Men. This year these reports were due on September 22, but many are overdue. The secretaries or responsible members of the organizations should return the report slips to Edward Shovelin, chairman of the Student Council, as soon as possible. Co-operation on the part of the members of the clubs will result in better relationships between the organizations and the authorities. Reports should include financial standing and a list of the members, except in the case of classes.

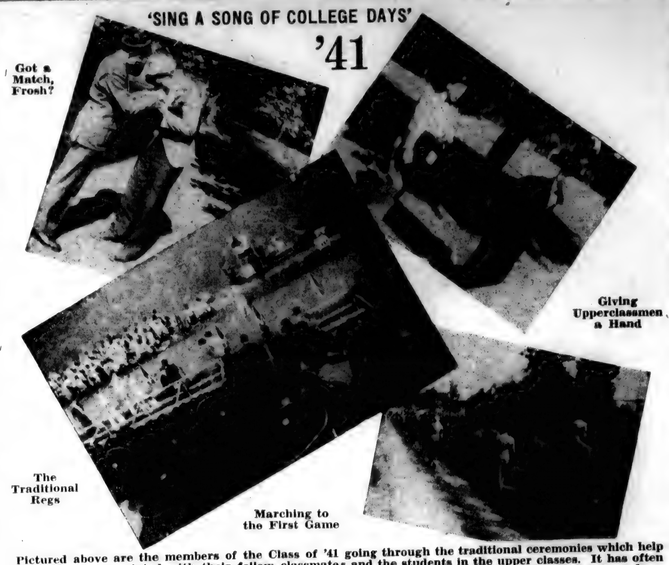
'SING A SONG OF COLLEGE DAYS' '41



Pictured above are the members of the Class of '41 going through the traditional ceremonies which help them to get acquainted with their fellow classmates and the students in the upper classes. It has often been said that the traditional "regs" period is remembered better than any other phase of college days. It is the period when the neophyte is made acquainted with his new surroundings and is made an integral part of the college of his choice.

Sophomore Cotillion Surpasses All Precedents; Villanovans Improved

Record Attendance Marks Gigantic Success of Initial Social; Freshman Dedication Highlights Evening's Entertainment

Surpassing all revious Cotillion presentations in its individual brilliancy and success, the Sophomore Class frolic of last Friday evening established a new standard in informal socials at Villanova.

Studded with a harmonious blend of gaiety and sophistication, this initial collegiate function proved of supreme enjoyment to the largest attendance ever present at a Sophomore Cotillion at Villanova College. Over 500 couples danced and frolicked to the music of a highly improved Villanovan orchestra.

Sheftic Sings

The jovial atmosphere surrounding the function received interpretation in the gay attitude of those present. Well selected musical arrangements by the Villanovans orchestra were instrumental in the unprecedented success of the Cotillion. Vocalizations by Walter Sheftic met with multitudnous approval from the scintillating couples on the dance floor. His rendition of that popular tune "So Rare" was of particular note.

Outstanding at the dance was the large number of upperclassmen and alumni present. The Sophomore Cotillion has been offered annually as a welcome to the members of the Freshman Class, and when it receives the co-operation of a large group of alumni and upperclassmen, inevitable success is the result. The Class of '40 presentation owes its remarkable outcome to this source.

Chairman Robert O'Brien and his dance committee are to be commended for the manner in which this social was presented. Complete harmony was prevalent from all aspects at the Cotillion.

Dance for Freshmen

After the Cotillion had gotten well under way, the Freshmen and their guests were invited to participate in an individual dance set which was dedicated to them by the Class of '40. The Freshman took advantage of this opportunity, nd after taking complete possession of the dance floor, performed admirably for their congenial hosts. "Harbor Lights," "Twilight in Turkey," and "Stardust" composed the selection of tunes dedicated to the new students.

"Whispers in the Dark," and "Caravan," represented the renditions offered by the Villanovans to the Class of '40. The unusually large number of second-year men in attendance during this set indicated the complete co-operation of that class in its functions, and speaks remarkably in favor of the members of that collegiate group.

Masculine attire at this social was in the most part informal, however one or two individuals presented themselves in formal attire. Formal dresses were in the minority among the fairer guests, indicating a definite trend toward a strictly informal attitude in Cotillion presentations.

This year's Cotillion definitely refuted the record established last year by the Class of 1939. The Sophomore Cotillion, directed by Chairman Hugh F. Ferguson last year, was one of the most successful presentations up to that period. From all indications, the Class of 1940 has undertaken the assignment of substantiating itself among the leading Classes at Villanova College.

Chairman O'Brien wishes to take this opportunity to express appreciation in behalf of the Dance Committee and the Class of 1940 as a whole, for the wholehearted co-operation given them by the entire student body and alumni, in making this, their firs' social at Villanova College, the grand success that it was.

BRINGS TOTAL TO TWENTY

Two outstanding figures in Philadelphia enterprise, Hon. Harry S. McDevitt and Dr. Edward A. McCloskey, have been entered into membership in the General Advisory Council of Villanova College, it has recently been announced.

At a dinner meeting of the General Advisory Council, held at Villanova College on last Tuesday evening, J. Stanley Smith, Esq., presided. The following members were present: Col. Vincent A. Carroll, William T. Connor, Esq., Frank Rogers Donahue, Esq., Dr. Walter F. Drueding, Mr. Furey Ellis, Ignatius J. Horstmann, Hon. Martin J. McLaughlin, W. W. Montgomery, Jr., Esq., Gerald Ronon, Esq., Edgar Scott, William Simpson, J. Stanley Smith, Esq., Hon. David J. Smyth.

The following members, unavoidably prevented from attending by conflicting engagements, sent regards: Hon. Harry S. McDevitt, John F. Macklin, William R. Mooney, Dr. Edward A. McCloskey, Matthew H. McCloskey, Jr., Martha P. Quinn, and O. Howard Wolfe.

President Explains System

Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., president of Villanova College, spoke on the Accrediting Agencies, their origin and function. The question was raised as to whether or not there was a tendency on the part of Federal and State Governments to step into the accrediting field by reason of the detailed information which they now seek from the colleges. Lively discussion on the subject of the main address was participated in by nearly everyone present. Very Rev. Dr. Joseph A. Hickey, O. S. A., was a guest at the meeting, and spoke very briefly, commenting on the necessity of the work of the Accrediting Associations.

The following sub - committees were appointed by Chairman Smith, at the suggestion of Father Stanford: Planning Committee—Furey Ellis, Aloysius L. Fitzpatrick, Ignatius J. Horstmann, Murtha P. Quinn; Legal Committee — Frank Rogers Donahue, Esq., Hon. Harry S. McDevitt, and Hon. David J. Smyth; Public Relations Committee—Col. Vincent A. Carroll, William T. Connor, Esq., Edward A. McCloskey, M. D., Gerald Ronon, Esq.; Investment Committee — Wm. R. Mooney, Edgar Scott, O. Howard Wolfe; Legislative Committee—Walter F. Dreuding, John F. Mackin, Matthew H. McCloskey, Jr., Hon. Martin J. McLaughlin.

It was explained that there was no intention to impose specific duties on these various committees, but rather to constitute them as consultative or advisory boards, in order that they might meet with the president of the college, or with members of the Board of Trustees as problems present themselves in various fields.

AUBURN GAME ENDS IN STALEMATE

Sportorial

By BILL BOWKER
Sports Editor

AS IN THE opener against P. M. C. two Saturdays ago, punting was the outstanding feature of the Auburn tussle. Andy Stopper, acting captain for the Tiger fray, again showed the opposition what good kicking can do. Billy Hitchcock's lucky catch of that quick kick deprived Andy of a punt ending up around the two yard line. Fans who notice things well remember that the Auburn safety played back a little bit further after that incident. Andy also emulated his long kick against Boston U. last year with that long 80-yard boot in the second half.

Baseball has finally shut up shop with the Yanks taking the uninteresting World's Series by four games to one. The final game, which ended in a 4-2 count, seemed to hold more interest than the others, probably because the teams were more evenly matched. The Giants' famed defense was pitiful in the first three games, and until Hubbell's six hit victory in the fourth fray, the pitching was not up to advance notices. The Yankee slugging, however, left little to be desired.

—V—

Stanley Woodward, New York Herald-Tribune football commentator, writing about teams and players from here and there, passed a remark concerning the possibilities of the newspaper writers of Philly ever awakening to the fact that we have got a great team out here at Villanova. It does seem a shame that we have to go a hundred miles away to get Some sort of recognition While the team did not show too many signs of greatness last Saturday, it still is much superior to anything the local journals want to print. A vote of thanks to Mr. Woodward.

We see by the papers that our neighboring school on the Main Line came through with its first win since 1935. The school of which we speak is Haverford, and the game their 13-0 victory over Allegheny. And may that be the first of a long string of victories.

Two of the Ivy League clubs fell in battle over the week-end, Princeton's Tigers taking a lacing from Cornell's potent eleven, and the mighty Penn outfit meeting and bowing to Clink Frank and ten other men from Yale. If Schuenemen hadn't scored that last period touchdown, the Philadelphia papers wouldn't have been able to report the game.

—V—

Commendation is due Mayer Brandschain, Record sports scribe, for his fair and unprejudiced handling of last Sunday's LaSalle vs. Catholic University tilt.

Opportunity for the Wildcat enthusiast to attend the Manhattan fray is offered in a low price excursion which includes a one - night stay in a prominent metropolitan hotel. Elsewhere in this issue, on the front age, no less, details will be found concerning the trip. This opportunity should not be passed up, as this year's Wildcat-Jasper battle is bound to be packed full of interest to all concerned.

Intra-mural activity will get into full sway with the opening of the basketball season a week from tonight. This form of inter-dorm sport is the most popular, and it is to the advantage of all to participate. Games will be played in the Alumni Hall gym, and will be held twice weekly.

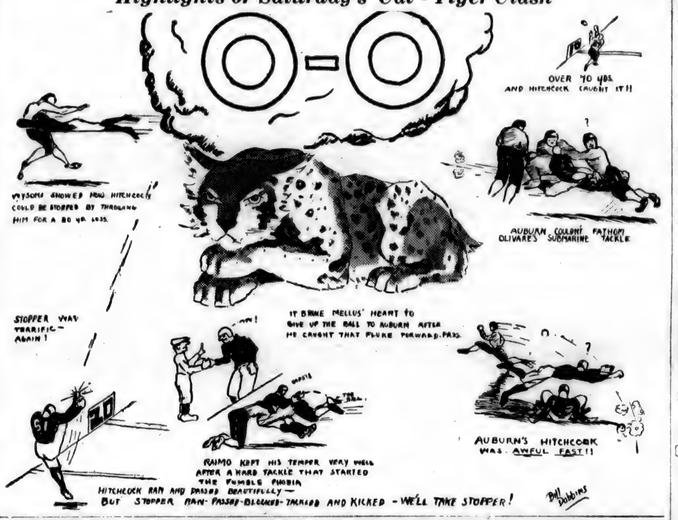
Highlights of Saturday's 'Cat - Tiger Clash



Manhattan Eleven Eagerly Awaits Wildcats; Freshman Eleven Wins

Jaspers Defeat Michigan State on Kringle's Field Goal

By JOSEPH McDADE

What promises to be one of the most spectacular and outstanding games in the East takes place this Saturday, October 16, at Ebbetts Field, Brooklyn, when Villanova clashes with Manhattan in their annual grudge battle.

Pre - season interest has been built up to an all-time high by Jasper coach, Chick Meehan's statement that, "we will beat Villanova by two touchdowns." The statement is not attributable to over-confidence but is made in view of the fact that he has a veteran team.

Teams Met in 1897

An added feature is that it will mark the 40th anniversary since the teams first clashed on the gridiron. Way back in 1897, the 'Cats came off on the short side of an 8-0 score. Since then the teams met thrice with Blue and White victories being chalked up by overwhelming scores in the first two, and a two - touchdown vantage in last year's fray.

As a result of Saturday's games, wherein the Main Liners were held to a scoreless deadlock by Auburn, and Manhattan eked out a thrilling 3-0 victory over a powerful Michigan State team, the Blue will enter the game on the short end of odds.

Chick Meehan's boys got off to a shaky start when they were extended greatly in winning from little St. Bonaventure's. Their stock took a further drop when the Texas Aggies pinned their initial defeat on them by virtue of a last minute rally. Entering the Michigan State game, however, despite the fact they were rated the underdogs, they proceeded to show their real strength and racked up their major win of the season.

Develop Aerial Attack

In preparing for Villanova's visit, Meehan is exerting all his efforts in developing a potent aerial attack with Vic Fusia, halfback, tossing short, fast passes to Capt. Jack Daly and Bill Dorsey, veteran ends. He also intends to use Jerry Fall,

BASKETBALL SQUAD CONTINUES DRILLS

Seven Veterans of Last Year's Club Augmented by Talented Sophs

Facing a hard 30-game schedule minus the services of such outstanding stars as Don Brennan, 1936 court leader, and Harry McNally, high scoring guard, isn't any coach's idea of smooth sailing. Probably there is not man on the Villanova campus who realizes this fact more than Alexander Severance, varsity basketball mentor, under whose direction 15 dribblers completed the initial week of pre-season training, late Friday afternoon.

Seven Vets Return

Of the eleven-man squad who waded through a 23-game schedule, and won 15 of the tilts last year, seven have been working out in the Alumni Hall Gymnasium since last Monday afternoon, when drills began. They have been augmented by a group of sophomore players, the majority of whom saw action on the freshman team of last season, which was victorious in all but four games.

Led by veterans Lou Dubino, Jim Montgomery, John Krutulis, Art Vigilante, Jim Burlington, Jimmy Wannemacher, and Mike Toten, Severance has been giving the boys a taste of actual competition in informal scrimmages, on the frosh floor. Wild passing on the part of most of the candidates is prevalent, but as the sessions continue the lads are expected to get the "feel" of the ball with the result being better control of the leather in the defect.

Sophs Pushing Vets

Pushing Vigilante and Wannemacher for the vacant positions are sophomores "Duke" Duzminski and

Jacobsmen Score 27-0 Win Over Dickinson Seminary Club

BY JOSEPH PAGANO

Demonstrating a fine offensive attack, "Doc" Jacobs' Villanova Frosh hung up their first victory of a five-game schedule by trouncing Dickinson Seminary by a 27-0 score.

Pre-eminent on the offense and living up to expectations was "Nickels" Basca who threw two passes that were completed for two touchdowns and later scored one himself when he raced around end for 25 yards.

Kolenda snared two of Basca's well-directed aerials and with only 15 seconds in the first half the Yearling wingman grabbed a pass and went over for a six-pointer. Basca also threw a pass to Jancusqus who sprinted thirty yards for a touchdown.

Providing the final marker for the "Kittens" was a blocked kick in which the whole Frosh forward wall played an instrumental part. Heading the Frosh onslaught was Shader, a field general who mixed his plays in such a way that the opponents were kept guessing all afternoon.

Outstanding among the backfield men were Morkum and Johnny Nujunis who had much to do with helping to turn in a victory for the Frosh. Morkum turned in a swell blocking job and cleared the way for several long end runs and off-tackle thrusts.

Johnny Nujunis, product of Central High, showed that he has the potentialities of a hard running back. Alternating in carrying the mail with "Nickels" Basca, Johnny got off on several runs which placed the pigskin down in paydirt several times during the contest.

A great deal of credit for the victory must be given to the linemen for the performance they turned in. Although a tendency to play too high was shown by the guards and tackles their play for the most part was of the average type. Offensively the blocking assignments were carried out quite well by the forward wall.

MEAGHERMEN HOLD STRONG BLUE TEAM TO SCORELESS TIE

Andy Stopper's All - Round Work Features Main Liners' Play

By TOM O'MAHONEY

Since neither Villanova nor Auburn could push over the clincher in their renewal of the Bacardi Bowl game of last New Year's Day, the city of Havana is without a football champion tonight and the Gomez Cup is presumably without a permanent home mantelpiece.

A fast - charging Auburn line completely smothered the Cat offensive, and the Blue retaliated by boring through the Tiger attack, breaking it up viciously. All of which explains the 0-0 Cuban standoff staged at Shibe Park last Saturday before 15,000 astonished witnesses.

As you no doubt have inferred, the game was one in which the rival lines covered themselves with glory, interference, and ball carriers. Even backs like Billy

WILDCAT NATATORS FACE HARD SEASON

Penn, Fordham, Rider, and St. Francis Squads Headline Schedule

Villanova's swimming team, not to be outdone by the varsity gridders, will tackle the strongest opposition ever scheduled since the inauguration of the sport six years ago. After a most successful season last year, the natators were anxious to step out in classier competition. Joseph Dougherty, manager, obliged by arranging meets with everybody but Yale. The water-minded Bulldogs will have to wait a few years.

Open with Penn

The boys don't have to wait long to taste some real competition for they will splash with Penn in the opener on December 18. The meet will be held in foreign waters, and Villanova stock will soar if the colors of the Red and Blue should be lowered. That is only the beginning for next comes the swimming Rams of Fordham. They will be met in the Main Line pool on January 29.

February will be a very busy month. As the schedule stands now, the swimming Wildcats will line up against eight opponents in the short space of 25 days. Such strong tank squads as Rider, St. Francis, Swarthmore and probably F. & M. and Lehigh will be met.

Temple, St. Joseph's and Delaware round out the roster. The team will do a little traveling this season for six of the meets will be held in foreign tanks. The local followers will get only a few chances to view the mermen for they will play hosts on only four occasions.

Over 500 couples danced and frolicked to the music of a highly improved Villanovan orchestra.

Sheffie Sings

The jovial atmosphere surrounding the fun on received interpretation in the gay attitude of those present. Well selected musical arrangements by the Villanovans orchestra were instrumental in the unprecedented success of the Cotillion. Vocalizations by Walter Sheffie met with multitudinous approval from the scintillating couples on the dance floor. His rendition of that popular tune "So Rare" was of particular note.

Outstanding at the dance was the large number of upperclassmen and alumni present. The Sophomore Cotillion has been offered annually as a welcome to the members of the Freshman Class, and when it receives the co-operation of a large group of alumni and upperclassmen, inevitable success is the result. The Class of '40 presentation owes its remarkable outcome to this source.

Chairman Robert O'Brien and his dance committee are to be commended for the manner in which this social was presented. Complete harmony was prevalent from all aspects at the Cotillion.

Dance for Freshmen

After the Cotillion had gotten well under way, the Freshmen and their guests were invited to participate in an individual dance set which was dedicated to them by the Class of '40. The Freshman took advantage of this opportunity, and after taking complete possession of the dance floor, performed admirably for their congenial hosts. "Harbor Lights," "Twilight in Turkey," and "Stardust" composed the selection of tunes dedicated to the new students.

"Whispers in the Dark," and "Caravan," represented the renditions offered by the Villanovans to the Class of '40. The unusually large number of second-year men in attendance during this set indicated the complete co-operation of that class in its functions, and speaks remarkably in favor of the members of that collegiate group.

Masculine attire at this social was in the most part informal, however one or two individuals presented themselves in formal attire. Formal dresses were in the minority among the fairer guests, indicating a definite trend toward a strictly informal attitude in Cotillion presentations.

This year's Cotillion definitely refuted the record established last year by the Class of 1939. The Sophomore Cotillion, directed by Chairman Hugh F. Ferguson last year, was one of the most successful presentations up to that period. From all indications, the Class of 1940 has undertaken the assignment of substantiating itself among the leading Classes at Villanova College.

Chairman O'Brien wishes to take this opportunity to express appreciation in behalf of the Dance Committee and the Class of 1940 as a whole, for the wholehearted co-operation given them by the entire student body and alumni, in making this, their first social at Villanova College, the grand success that it was.

At a dinner meeting of the General Advisory Council, held at Villanova College on last Tuesday evening, J. Stanley Smith, Esq., presided. The following members were present: Col. Vincent A. Carroll, William T. Connor, Esq., Frank Rogers Donahue, Esq., Dr. Walter F. Drueding, Mr. Furey Ellis, Ignatius J. Horstmann, Hon. Martin J. McLaughlin, W. W. Montgomery, Jr., Esq., Gerald Ronon, Esq., Edgar Scott, William Simpson, J. Stanley Smith, Esq., Hon. David J. Smyth.

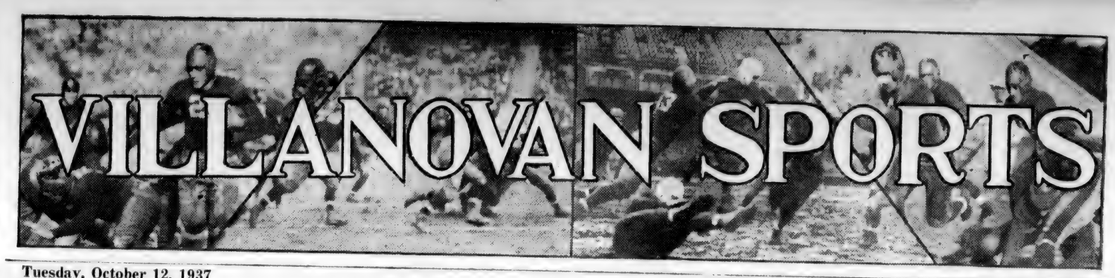
President Explains System

Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., president of Villanova College, spoke on the Accrediting Agencies, their origin and function. The question was raised as to whether or not there was a tendency on the part of Federal and State Governments to step into the accrediting field by reason of the detailed information which they now seek from the colleges. Lively discussion on the subject of the main address was participated in by nearly everyone present. Very Rev. Dr. Joseph A. Hickey, O. S. A., was a guest at the meeting, and spoke very briefly, commenting on the necessity of the work of the Accrediting Associations.

The following sub - committees were appointed by Chairman Smith, at the suggestion of Father Stanford: Planning Committee — Furey Ellis, Aloysius L. Fitzpatrick, Ignatius J. Horstmann, Martha P. Quinn; Legal Committee — Frank Rogers Donahue, Esq., Hon. Harry S. McDevitt, and Hon. David J. Smyth; Public Relations Committee — Col. Vincent A. Carroll, William T. Connor, Esq., Edward A. McCloskey, M. D., Gerald Ronon, Esq.; Investment Committee — Wm. R. Mooney, Edgar Scott, O. Howard Wolfe; Legislative Committee — Walter F. Dreuding, John F. Mackin, Matthew H. McCloskey, Jr., Hon. Martin J. McLaughlin.

It was explained that there was no intention to impose specific duties on these various committees, but rather to constitute them as consultative or advisory boards, in order that they might meet with the president of the college, or with members of the Board of Trustees as problems present themselves in various fields.



AUBURN GAME ENDS IN STALEMATE

Sportorial

AS IN THE opener against P. M. C. two Saturdays ago, punting was the outstanding feature of the Auburn tussle. Andy Stopper, acting captain for the Tiger fray, again showed the opposition what good kicking can do. Billy Hitchcock's lucky catch of that quick kick deprived Andy of a punt ending up around the two yard line. Fans who notice things well remember that the Auburn safety played back a little bit further after that incident. Andy also emulated his long kick against Boston U. last year with that long 80-yard boot in the second half.

Baseball has finally shut up shop with the Yanks taking the uninteresting World's Series by four games to one. The final game, which ended in a 4-2 count, seemed to hold more interest than the others, probably because the teams were more evenly matched. The Giants' famed defense was pitiful in the first three games, and until Hubbell's six hit victory in the fourth fray, the pitching was not up to advance notices. The Yankee slugging, however, left little to be desired.

—V—

Stanley Woodward, New York Herald-Tribune football commentator, writing about teams and players from here and there, passed a remark concerning the possibilities of the newspaper writers of Philly ever awakening to the fact that we have got a great team out here at Villanova. It does seem a shame that we have to go a hundred miles away to get Some sort of recognition While the team did not show too many signs of greatness last Saturday, it still is much superior to anything the local journals want to print. A vote of thanks to Mr. Woodward.

We see by the papers that our neighboring school on the Main Line came through with its first win since 1935. The school of which we speak is Haverford, and the game their 13-0 victory over Allegheny. And may that be the first of a long string of victories.

Two of the Ivy League clubs fell in battle over the week-end, Princeton's Tigers taking a lacing from Cornell's potent eleven, and the mighty Penn outfit meeting and bowing to Clink Frank and ten other men from Yale. If Schuenemen hadn't scored that last period touchdown, the Philadelphia papers wouldn't have been able to report the game.

Commendation is due Mayer Brandschain, Record sports scribe, for his fair and unprejudiced handling of last Sunday's LaSalle vs. Catholic University tilt.

Opportunity for the Wildcat enthusiast to attend the Manhattan fray is offered in a low price excursion which includes a one - night stay in a prominent metropolitan hotel. Elsewhere in this issue, on the front age, no less, details will be found concerning the trip. This opportunity should not be passed up, as this year's Wildcat-Jasper battle is bound to be packed full of interest to all concerned.

Intra-mural activity will get into full sway with the opening of the basketball season a week from tonight. This form of inter-dorm sport is the most popular, and it is to the advantage of all to participate. Games will be played in the Alumni Hall gym, and will be held twice weekly.

Jaspers Defeat Michigan State on Kringle's Field Goal

By JOSEPH McDADE

What promises to be one of the most spectacular and outstanding games in the East takes place this Saturday, October 16, at Ebbetts Field, Brooklyn, when Villanova clashes with Manhattan in their annual grudge battle.

Pre - season interest has been built up to an all-time high by Jasper coach, Chick Meehan's statement that, "we will beat Villanova by two touchdowns." The statement is not attributable to over-confidence but is made in view of the fact that he has a veteran team.

Teams Met in 1897

An added feature is that it will mark the 40th anniversary since the teams first clashed on the gridiron. Way back in 1897, the 'Cats came off on the short side of an 8-0 score. Since then the teams met thrice with Blue and White victories being chalked up by overwhelming scores in the first two, and a two - touchdown vantage in last year's fray.

As a result of Saturday's games, wherein the Main Liners were held to a scoreless deadlock by Auburn, and Manhattan eked out a thrilling 3-0 victory over a powerful Michigan State team, the Blue will enter the game on the short end of odds.

Chick Meehan's boys got off to a shaky start when they were extended greatly in winning from little St. Bonaventure's. Their stock took a further drop when the Texas Aggies pinned their initial defeat on them by virtue of a last minute rally. Entering the Michigan State game, however, despite the fact they were rated the underdogs, they proceeded to show their real strength and racked up their major win of the season.

Develop Aerial Attack

In preparing for Villanova's visit, Meehan is exerting all his efforts in developing a potent aerial attack with Vic Fusia, halfback, tossing short, fast passes to Capt. Jack Daly and Bill Dorsey, veteran ends. He also intends to use Jerry Fall,

BASKETBALL SQUAD CONTINUES DRILLS

Seven Veterans of Last Year's Club Augmented by Talented Sophs

Facing a hard 30-game schedule minus the services of such outstanding stars as Don Brennan, 1936 court leader, and Harry McNally, high scoring guard, isn't any coach's idea of smooth sailing. Probably there is not man on the Villanova campus who realizes this fact more than Alexander Severance, varsity basketball mentor, under whose direction 15 dribblers completed the initial week of pre-season training, late Friday afternoon.

Seven Vets Return

Of the eleven-man squad who waded through a 23-game schedule, and won 15 of the tilts last year, seven have been working out in the Alumni Hall Gymnasium since last Monday afternoon, when drills began. They have been augmented by a group of sophomore players, the majority of whom saw action on the freshman team of last season, which was victorious in all but four games.

Led by veterans Lou Dubino, Jim Montgomery, John Krutulis, Art Vigilante, Jim Burlington, Jimmy Wannemacher, and Mike Toten, Severance has been giving the boys a taste of actual competition in informal scrimmages on the frosh floor. Wild passing on the part of most of the candidates is prevalent, but as the sessions continue the lads are expected to get the "feel" of the ball with the result being better control of the leather in the defect.

Jacobsmen Score 27-0 Win Over Dickinson Seminary Club

BY JOSEPH FAGANO

Demonstrating a fine offensive attack "Doc" Jacobs' Villanova Frosh hung up their first victory of a five-game schedule by trouncing Dickinson Seminary by a 27-0 score.

Pre-eminent on the offense and living up to expectations was "Nickels" Basca who threw two passes that were completed for two touchdowns and later scored one himself when he raced around end for 25 yards.

Kolenda snared two of Basca's well-directed aerials and with only 15 seconds in the first half the Yearling wingman grabbed a pass and went over for a six-pointer. Basca also threw a pass to Jancusqus who sprinted thirty yards for a touchdown.

Providing the final marker for the "Kittens" was a blocked kick in which the whole Frosh forward wall played an instrumental part. Heading the Frosh onslaught was Shader, a field general who mixed his plays in such a way that the opponents were kept guessing all afternoon.

Outstanding among the backfield men were Morkum and Johnny Nujunis who had much to do with helping to turn in a victory for the Frosh. Morkum turned in a swell blocking job and cleared the way for several long end runs and off-tackle thrusts.

Johnny Nujunis, product of Central High, showed that he has the potentialities of a head running back. Alternating in carrying the mail with "Nickels" Basca, Johnny got off on several runs which placed the pigskin down in paydirt several times during the contest.

A great deal of credit for the victory must be given to the linemen for the performance they turned in. Although a tendency to play too high was shown by the guards and tackles their play for the most part was of the average type. Offensively the blocking assignments were carried out quite well by the forward wall.

Andy Stopper's All - Round Work Features Main Liners' Play

By TOM O'MAHONEY

Since neither Villanova nor Auburn could push over the clincher in their renewal of the Bacardi Bowl game of last New Year's Day, the city of Havana is without a football champion tonight and the Gomez Cup is presumably without a permanent home mantelpiece.

A fast - charging Auburn line completely smothered the 'Cat offensive, and the Blue retaliated by boring through the Tiger attack, breaking it up viciously. All of which explains the 0-0 Cuban stand-off staged at Shibe Park last Saturday before 15,000 astonished witnesses.

As you no doubt have inferred, the game was one in which the rival lines covered themselves with glory, interference, and ball carriers. Even backs like Billy

WILDCAT NATATORS FACE HARD SEASON

Penn, Fordham, Rider, and St. Francis Squads Head-line Schedule

Villanova's swimming team, not to be outdone by the varsity gridders, will tackle the strongest opposition ever scheduled since the inauguration of the sport six years ago. After a most successful season last year, the natators were anxious to step out in classier competition. Joseph Dougherty, manager, obliged by arranging meets with everybody but Yale. The water-minded Bulldogs will have to wait a few years.

Open with Penn

The boys don't have to wait long to taste some real competition for they will splash with Penn in the opener on December 18. The meet will be held in foreign waters, and Villanova stock will soar if the colors of the Red and Blue should be lowered. That is only the beginning for next comes the swimming Rams of Fordham. They will be met in the Main Line pool on January 29.

February will be a very busy month. As the schedule stands now, the swimming Wildcats will line up against eight opponents in the short space of 25 days. Such strong tank squads as Rider, St. Francis, Swarthmore and probably F. & M. and Lehigh will be met.

Temple, St. Joseph's and Delaware round out the roster. The team will do a little traveling this season for six of the meets will be held in foreign tanks. The local followers will get only a few chances to view the mermen for they will play hosts on only four occasions.

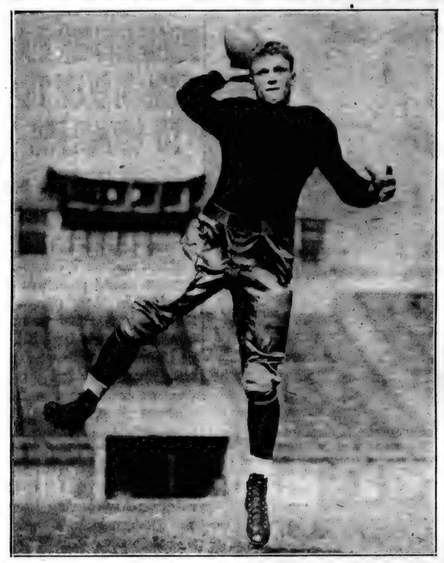
In the Sportlight

By JOHN L. SIMONS

Once again the eyes of the readers of this column are directed to the life history of a young man from Pennsylvania. But this time we move east to the city of Williamsport, which is located in the middle of the Keystone State. There we come upon the trail of the early life of Andy Stopper, who has for the past few seasons thrilled Villanova football followers with his fancy playing.

Andy, or Anthony P., to give him his complete Christian name, was born some 20 odd years ago in the little town of Baatress, one of the suburbs of Williamsport. Soon, who is well acquainted with anyone worth knowing in the sports world, had a lot to do with Andy's coming to Villanova.

So it came to pass that in the month of September in the year of the Lord, 1934, Mr. Anthony P. Stopper signed in at Villanova College along with more than 200 other frosh. However, it wasn't long until he became a figure on the campus. He was the standout performer in the freshman squad of 60 men, a freshman squad that was rated the strongest Villanova has had.



His Greatest Thrill

The following Fall found our hero however, the Stopper family moved into the city and have lived there since.

Starred at St. Mary's

In the normal course of events our Wildcat-to-be entered grammar school, starting at St. Boniface's. After spending eight years there, he graduated to St. Mary's High School, also in Williamsport. From his first year he played regularly on the football team, alternating between halfback and fullback, but favoring the former position. Andy was also quite a basketball guard for St. Mary's.

Andy spent only two years at that high school and at the beginning of his junior year transferred to Williamsport High. It was at the latter school that he really achieved athletic prominence which finally resulted in his enrolling at Villanova.

Mr. Stopper's favorite son started in with a bang at his new Alma Mater. He immediately swung in as a regular allback on the city's best gridiron club. His play during that Fall campaign was outstanding enough to earn for him the captaincy for his senior year.

Versatile Athlete

The scholastic year of 1933-34 was Andy's last in high school, and it was a banner year. During the course of the few months he displayed an amazing versatility in the line of sports activity. He was a guard on the basketball team, heavyweight champion wrestler, a dash man and captain of the mile relay team on the track, and to save his greatest triumph for last, he was captain and halfback of an undefeated football team. What a way to wind up a scholastic career! It was a tribute to a great athlete and a grand fellow.

Not only that, but in addition his great work attracted the attention of Harry Stuhldreher, then coach of Villanova's gridiron activities. Tommy Richardson, the most important figure in Williamsport's world of sports became interested in Andy. Mr. Richardson, owner of the Williamsport Grays and a man at left half on a great ball club. The greatest thrill Andy got out of that sensation-packed campaign was a 66-yard touchdown run he made against Western Maryland, which team was the ruggedest the 'Cats faced. "I came through the middle of the line on a spinner," says Andy "and then I ran. I believe that was the fastest I ever ran in my life." Another spine tickler was the pass he threw to Tony Sala in the last minute to defeat Detroit. But this latter occurrence had its other side. On the play following the ensuing kick-off, Andy intercepted a pass and for his trouble got a black eye and a bloody nose. And that on the last play of the game.

Last year's highlight for Andy came when he scored two touchdowns up at State College with his neighbors and friends from Williamsport looking him over. The old home town sent a delegation of more than 500 to see him personally trounce the Nittany Lions.

In the past two seasons Andy has shown himself to be close to the hardest driving back Villanova has ever had. Also he is a brilliant long range punter and an accurate forward passer. This season is his last, and he has high hopes of making it his best.

When he graduates from the School of Education in June, Andy is hoping to land a coaching position somewhere. For the past two years he has helped his old high school mentor get his new Reading High charges in shape. Maybe the fact that Reading has its best team in history is due in some measure to Andy. He's a swell player and will make a competent coach. And we can't let this column end without a formal salute to one of the best halfbacks in the country.

LIGHTWEIGHT CLUB TO FACE LEOPARDS IN SEASON OPENER

Practice Reveals Wealth of Backfield Material; Team Lacks Line Reserves

Villanova's lightweights went through their first scrimmage last Thursday on Mendel Field with their opening game looming up only four days from today.

Enthusiasm ran high and the lightweights put plenty of spirit in their fight for berths on the first team. The offense was very ragged and Coach Don Bangert has plenty of rough spots which he hopes to have ironed out by Saturday's opener.

Kerrigan Shines

Particularly outstanding was Captain Paul Kerrigan, who smashed the line for consistent gains and tackled with his usual viciousness. Jim Cousart, veteran halfback; Brad McManus, "Reds" Brown, and Ed Hennesy, former North Catholic star, showed up very well as backfield performers.

"Whitey" Coughlin and Don Mackowski stood out with Vic Dominic, Joe McDade and Joe Murphy on the line. Veteran Joe Alessandroni and Charlie Timmins, a newcomer to the squad, have developed a feud for the center position.

Coach Bangert has a wealth of backfield material, but with the exception of the ends, he has few good replacements along the line. He has switched Joe Angelozzi from halfback to guard to help strengthen that position.

Scrimmage Daily

Lack of equipment has delayed Bangert in calling for actual scrimmage and bodily contact. But now he is making up for lost time, stressing blocking and tackling practice, and rounding off each day with a snappy scrimmage.

This Saturday the "dollar and a halfers" travel to Easton to play Lafayette's lightweights. The Leopards boast of a decisive victory over both the University of Pennsylvania and Villanova last year and the outcome should prove a good example of what to expect of the "fifties" for the remainder of the season.

Following Lafayette, Coach Bangert will take his team to New Brunswick to tackle the "Little Red" of Rutgers. Yale's championship team is scheduled to play the light Blues in the Main Line Stadium, Saturday, November 6, for the first home game.

Basketball Squad Continues Drill

Bill Sinnot high scoring defense men of the 1936 Freshman team.

Rounding out the present squad are Mike Lazorchecki, a forward; Lloyd Rice, center; Gene Ertle, candidate for a guard post, and two newcomers of no mean ability, Frank Conners and Jerry Cassidy, who have teamed at the forward positions in the scrimmages with Bob Pash. All are members of the class of 1940.

Many things may happen by the 23rd of December, when Rider College invades the Main Line gymnasium, but the most interesting thing to note will be the number of sophomores who will crash Al Severance's second edition of the Villanova College basketball team, if any.

on Auburn Game

NATURALLY we were disappointed in not beating Auburn, as we figured that a win over Jack Meagher's club would do much towards national recognition. From the size of the crowd which attended the game Saturday, it is evident that Philadelphia football fans do not know the calibre of the Auburn club. Jack Meagher himself says that the team's own rooters do not realize the strength of the squad, due to the fact that the line this year is composed of last year's reserves, who were good enough to win letters.

Despite the many mechanical errors, our all-around defensive play was good, especially on the line, and the coverage of punts was all that a coach could desire. Mellus, in particular, covered punts well, as well, in fact, as I have ever seen him do it. Stopper played well defensively and did as good a job acting as game captain as it has been my pleasure to see. His punting, as everyone knows, was nothing short of sensational.

Wysocki's defense play in the second half was good. The playing of Di Fillipo and Periera was commendable, also. Jordan Olivar gave us his usual steady performance, which is very comforting to a coach.

Upon looking over the squad after the game, we found Joe Misar with a hip injury which may or may not keep him on the sidelines Saturday. It is hoped that Franny Nye will be able to lend us his blocking technique and his quarterbacking. His three years' experience on the varsity squad will serve us in good stead.

Tackling and blocking throughout the game was sharp enough to give us a bit of encouragement, but in certain positions, especially the fullback post, it will have to improve if we are to shake men away on end around runs.

Jack Meagher brought up three men in the persons of Hitchcock, Fenton and Heath who could find places in any coach's backfield. Heath and Fenton were overshadowed a little by Hitchcock's sensational playing. Hitchcock was nothing short of phenomenal. He is as dangerous a man as will be seen on any football field this year. The sureness and poise of his actions are a treat to the eye.

On the Auburn forward wall, Russell at left tackle and Sivell at guard showed themselves to be good men by constantly annoying our backfield by their presence therein. Another southerner who spent too much time in our backfield was Harrison. He milled around behind our forward wall more than was necessary for our enjoyment of the game.

This game, however, should be a good seasoner for the boys. There is nothing like a stiff contest to perk the boys up to mid-season form, which is just where they will need to be next Saturday. "Chick" Meehan's boys are hot, as they showed in the tussle with Michigan State. If we are to continue our winning streak against them we will have to improve mightily. Those boys have faced two major opponents on the past two weekends, and as a result they are right in form. They have been pointing for us and nothing would suit them better than to set us back on our heels. You Villanova fans are prone to judge the Jaspers on their showing against us in the past three years; this is a very serious mistake, as you will realize when the two clubs take the field.

Turning back to Auburn for the moment, a good suggestion I am giving you is to watch the Plainsmen. They have an outstanding club and, despite the fact that they face such teams as Louisiana State and George Tech, they will conclude their campaign with a very good record. A win over them would have meant much to us, but there is no sense in weeping over spilled milk. What has happened is past, and we are pointing for each game as it comes up, and not worrying about the games two weeks ahead.

After seeing our small squad on the field last season it is truly a heart warming sight to look at more than four teams prance out onto the turf looking cool and confident in their blue and gold. And when we further realize that all the men on the team are willing and able we can imagine that Coach Smith must feel just a bit easier with all this reserve strength.

Now that Rizzo and Nye are incapacitated for the time being we all have an opportunity to convince ourselves whether or not these Sophomores really are good, for they are the only ones on hand to occupy the vacant spots. Our guess is that Dave DiFillipo will fit right handily into that guard position and that some day he may be compared to the great Eddie Michaels.

Franny Nye's position at quarterback will be always ready for him, but until he is able to step back in harness, Harry Mazzei and Buzz Howlett can still make the team look good. For the benefit of those who are not able to place Mazzei when he is on the field we instruct them to keep their eyes peeled for the "Short Stuff" that knocks over the opposition by blocking them around the ankles.

While the Varsity travels to New York on Saturday to show their talents to the Men of Manhattan, there will be a smaller, but none the less conspicuous (they hope) band of Villanovans in the vicinity of Easton. Under the able direction of Don Bangert and his assistant Brad McManus, the 150 - pound football team will play their first Intercollegiate League game of the 1937 season against Lafayette. The lightweights have high hopes for this season and if they win only one game they will be doing 100 percent better than last year.

Without a doubt the hardest hitting player on the 150 squad is Captain Paul Kerrigan. It was mainly due to his great defensive playing that last season was not more disastrous than it actually might have been. He used to hit the ball-carriers so hard that they couldn't straighten up for hours. According to Bangert, however, no one man will have to bear the brunt of the work because the Sophomore material is the best in years.

Although we are making the sports pages of the Philadelphia papers with a little more regularity lately, Villanova still doesn't seem to be getting the play that she deserves. There is quite a bit of difference between the news printed that is written by a newspaper's own reporters and the routine news handed out by all publicity offices. So we say that we heartily echo our contemporary columnist of the New York Herald - Tribune, Stanley Woodward, who inquires, "when will the Philadelphia sports writers wake up to the fact that Villanova has a great team."

Maybe we need a little more ivy on the walls or some old grads that will offer us the use of a few shillings.

With the completion of the World Series, baseball bows out, none too gracefully. Many will say that the overwhelming victory scored by the Yankees was the feature of the series. Maybe so, but to us the sight of old King Carl Hubbell stepping out there in front of Murderers Row in the fourth game and winning supplied the big drama of the classic. Old Square Pants showed once more that he deserves to be called great as he shook off defeat and came back to keep the Giants in the battle.

Auburn - Wildcats Battle to 0 - 0 Tie

Hitchcock, Andy Stopper, and "Jeep" Raimo could make little impression on those hard-clashing forward walls, and when they did, they were as likely to fumble as not when finding themselves in the clear. In all, ten bobbles were made by the two teams, nine charged against the Main Liners, with one figuring prominently as Walt Nowak caught, then dropped, a 20-yard heave from Stopper on the visitor's seven in the last stanza, ending the final Wildcat threat.

Kicking Duel

The first period saw a kicking duel between Stopper and Jimmy Fenton, with our own Andy outbooting his rival and keeping the Plainsmen on their 20-yard line through practically the entire quarter.

Auburn reached Blue territory briefly in this period when Art Raimo fumbled going out around end, but lost the ball on downs on the Villanova 30. Again, early in the second, the Orange and Blue took the ball in 'Catdom when "Buzz" Howlett juggled a punt return on his own 36, but Hitchcock & Co. could go no further than the 27. Later in this session Villanova's attack carried into Auburn territory, but found the going too tough and lost the ball on the invaders' 45.

With seconds to go in the first half, Fenton punted to Harry Mazzei, who started all by fumbling the catch on the 30, the pigskin bouncing rapidly goalward with three eager Tigers in pursuit. When the pile was explored, "Bo" Russell, Auburn tackle, was found in possession on the one-foot mark. However, before a play could be run off, the half ended, much to the relief of the shaken 'Cats.

Penalties Predominate

The third period was one of penalties, with a total of 40 yards being lost by the two teams as punishment. The opening quarter punting duel was renewed, and Stopper repeatedly put Auburn in the hole with kicks of 70 and 75 yards. Finally the Plainsmen were forced to kick from behind their goal line when Jordan Olivar, who played plenty of tackle all afternoon, downed one of Stopper's slege gun boots on the Tiger's two-yard marker. This time Fenton, hurried, only reached the 37, and the Wildcats were on the move at last. But not for long. Stopper and Ray Stoviak hurled passes, which, with a nice five-yard gain by Howlett, soph quarterback, put the ball on Auburn's 16. But then a fumble in the Blue backfield, and an incomplete pass ended the Villanova threat on the 26, when Auburn took over and rattled off a first down on the 37 as the chapter closed.

A poor kick by Fenton on the third play of the last period gave the Blue another chance on its own 40, but the Southerners' line refused to crack, and Stopper was again forced to punt. Auburn was penalized 15 yards for clipping on the return, and immediately kicked from its 15. After one play, Stopper fired one from the midfield stripe to Nowak on the visitors' seven, where the sophomore end made a nice catch, only to fumble as he was hit by Ralph Sivell, Tiger tackle. Again Auburn elected to punt on first down, and Howlett returned the ball to the 32. One play made six yards, but Captain Les Antley, whose superb defensive work was a thorn in the Blue wall all day, intercepted a pass to end all hopes of a score.

Auburn could never again reach Wildcat pay dirt, but managed to prevent Villanova from passing into scoring position, and, aided by two penalties in a row totaling 20 yards reached the 'Cats 45, where, with seconds left, the Blue missed a pass and plunged up to the 49 as the whistle blew.

If Hitchcock, Antley, Fenton and Harrison are typical of Southern football there are many Northern fans who'll wonder just how Lee lost the Civil War. And wish that he hadn't.

When the P. A. announcer called out Fordham 98, Waynesburgh 0 late in the final period, the touchdown-starved crowd gasped and the players jumped guiltily. Even the fact that the announcement was incorrect brings home to us the startling difference between last week's harvest of 42 points and Saturday's famine. The 'Cat offense will be tested severely next week by a sturdy Manhattan line. However, with Franny Nye back in harness, the old-time razzle-dazzle may assert itself once more. We hope.

Manhattan Awaits Villanova Eleven

170-pound sophomore in the guard position held by 200-pound Art Jocher, in order to develop added speed.

In last Saturday's game Manhattan exhibited an admirable defense by intercepting no less than five enemy passes, one of which placed the ball in scoring position for their only points. The linemen yielded yardage grudgingly as evidenced by the slim total of 36 yards which the Michigan State backs were able to garner.

On the other hand, their offense was just as strong. They completed three out of nine heaves for considerable yardage, and out-rushed the visitors by a margin of four to one. Their speed and stamina are further attested to by the fact that they took the ball on downs on their own five, and with minutes to play, proceeded to march to the opposition's one-yard line before relinquishing the ball in a similar manner.

Have Good Blocking

The Jaspers proved themselves good blockers and vicious tacklers. The backfield executed spinners, complicated reverses, and laterals to prefection reverses, and laterals curate and nazy a slip resulted—a factor which played a dominant part in the "Wildcats" not winning their game.

When Clipper Smith takes the boys to the big city, there will be no one certain man to watch; there will be eleven men, with just as capable reserves, who will command all their attention. The backfield will probably find Caruso, a fast man for his 175 pounds, and an exceptionally capable signal caller at the quarter post. At the halfback positions, Vic Fusia, whose passing and running leaves nothing to be desired, and Eddie Kringle, the man with the educated toe, are ready for action. In Tubby Savage, the Jaspers have a fullback, who crashes the line like a human bullet.

Outstanding on the line are Capt. Jack Daly, five feet, ten inches and weighing 175 pounds, at one terminal, and Bill Dorsey, six feet, 185 pounds, at the other.

KRZYWICKI PLACES IN TENNIS TOURNEY

Represents Austin Hall In Murals by Defeating Connors Easily

With the selection of the finalists from Austin and Fedigan Halls and the C. & F. Day Hops, the tennis tourney under the guidance of Rev. Edward B. McKee, O. S. A., is drawing into the last round. The final matches will be played as soon as possible if the weather permits.

Krzywicki, Austin Hope

Resting squarely on the shoulders of Wytold Krzywicki is the future of the McKeemen. Driving accurately from the baseline and with machine-like exactness at the net, he vanquished all his opposition. In the first round he was victorious over Don Hudson by a 6-3; 6-3 count. Wytold drew a second round bye into the last round, opposing Jack Connors. Due largely to booming baseline drives, he emerged the victor.

In Fedigan, victory was grasped by Lloyd Rice. He played through all his matches without dropping a single set. In the final fracas Rice defeated Freddie Rappleyea in a hard fought battle to the score of 6-3, 8-6, 7-5.

Alumni Underway

Alumni Hall is well on its way to completion of its schedule and the finals are expected to be played in the near future. So far, the contestants have reached the quarter-final matches. George Haluszka is scheduled to play "Jiggs" McGrath, while Art Somers is to be engaged by "Bub" Banagan. Hard fought contests are anticipated before the final man is choosen.

Commerce and Finance students are to be represented in the tourney by Beatty Schermerhorn. His ability was untried by other students as he was the only C. & F. man to be entered.

Mendel Residents and Mendel Day Hops have not finished their matches although a schedule is in effect.

SMOKER TONIGHT BY PHI KAPPA PI FRAT

Engineers Welcome Freshmen at Annual Affair in Commerce Auditorium

Tuesday evening at 8:00 P. M. in the auditorium of the Commerce and Finance building, Villanova's leading fraternity, Phi Kappa Pi, will introduce the freshman engineers to the upperclassmen at its third annual smoker.

Inaugurated three years ago as an effective means of bringing together fraternity brothers and prospective freshman members, the Smoker serves as an enjoyable form of social contact between the engineering students. Besides the opportunity of hearing such speakers as the Dean of the School of Engineering, Carl T. Humphrey, Professor of Mathematics, Rev. John S. O'Leary, O. S. A., and several other top-notch speakers, the convention enjoys informal entertainment afforded by campus talent.

This evening's smoker is under the general chairmanship of Joseph O'Brien, senior civil engineer. O'Brien has formed several committees whose work in the past few weeks has guaranteed a successful affair. The Publicity Committee is composed of John P. Kelly, Edward Cierkowski and Robert Heck. A second committee, that pertaining to entertainment, is formed by Joseph Quinn, Paul Mellan, Alfredo Mellan, Cyril Daly and Walter Kauffman. The refreshment committee is composed of Edward Carroll as chairman, John Burke and John McPike.

Admission to the smoker, which is free, will be limited to fraternity members, freshmar engineers, and faculty members.

sophomores—Charles Martin, Joseph Rossi, Francis Massey, Andrew McKane.

This year a new idea as far as the committee is concerned is being tried. Instead of dividing the committee into sub-committees as in the past, the committee as a whole will act on all angles of the dance.

A meeting of the committee will be held today in Room 210 Mendel Hall for the purpose of formulating an extensive advertising plan which must be gotten under way in the near future.

RELIGIOUS SOCIETY HOLDS BREAKFAST

Dr. Joseph Hickey, O. S. A., and 'Clipper' Smith Address Holy Name

The monthly Communion breakfast of the Villanova Holy Name Society was held on Sunday, October 10.

The members received Holy Communion at the 8:30 o'clock Mass and then held a short meeting in Mendel Hall. From there the members proceeded to the dining hall where breakfast was served.

The speakers on this occasion were Coach Maurice "Clipper" Smith and Rev. Joseph A. Hickey, O. S. A., assistant general of the Augustinian Order.

Smith addressed the gathering first. In his usual, informal style, he dwelt upon his collegiate life at Notre Dame University. The dining hall resounded with laughter as he related anecdotes of the Notre Dame of his day. As one who knew him, Clipper spoke of the late Knute Rockne. He told how Knute, though a non-Catholic at the time, used to see to it that every member of the Irish squad went to chapel before a game. Though not of the Catholic faith, Rockne realized that religion had a place in the scheme of life. Soon he, too, was able to kneel beside the boys and received Holy Communion before an important game. Clipper closed by reiterating two principles of the beloved coach, who won the hearts of all men, "live before God as before men," said the Villanova coach, "for manliness and religion go hand in hand."

Washington, D. C.—(ACP)—Alcoholic exhibitionists are in for a squelching this Fall if plans of the nation's big-time football colleges materialize.

Colleges in the Big Ten conference are distributing to patrons programs stating that those who insist on "bringing their own liquor" will be distinctly unwelcome.

Ushers are being instructed to stop drinking in the stadium and refuse admission to holders of tickets who are intoxicated and to throw out anyone violating drinking restrictions.

At West Point officers insist "there is no drinking problem here, because that would be bad manners and it just isn't being done by cadets or officers at the Military Academy."

Queries about drinking at football games at Annapolis shocked the Naval Academy officers. They said, "Midshipmen are prohibited from drinking on the academy grounds and it would be in very bad taste for officers to drink at football games. Spectators found drinking are promptly ejected. The Marines have the situation in hand."

The American Football Coaches Association, together with college presidents and other officials, in a secret study of drinking at football games, found more intoxicated persons attend Eastern football games.

Barrett Appointed Leader Of Furtherance Committee

Belle Masque Sub-Group Will Act to Promote College Interest in Dramatics; Ten Student Members Form Nucleus

JOHN M. DONAHUE MAKES APPOINTMENT

In lieu of the various activities which Belle Masque intends to promulgate for the ensuing scholastic year, Robert Barrett, junior in the School of Arts and Philosophy, has been appointed chairman of a committee for the promotion of activity in the dramatic society.

This announcement was made yesterday by John M. Donahue, senior in the School of Commerce and Finance, who was elected president of the organization at the close of the school term last May.

Played in "Journey's End"

Both Barrett and Donahue will be remembered for the brilliant performances they gave in R. C. Sheriff's "Journey's End," poignant drama of war in the trenches. Barrett splendidly portrayed the difficult role of Captain Stanhope, while Donahue gave an equally sterling characterization of Lieutenant Osborn.

To aid Barrett in this innovation, the following men have been appointed by President Donahue; James Lyons, senior in the Commerce School; William Baily, Joseph Higgins, juniors in the same school; Bradley McManus, also of the Business Department; Charles Cooke, Joseph O'Loughlin, senior in the Arts School; Joseph McNamara, sophomore in the same department. All of the above committeemen participated in the Belle Masque's undertakings of last year.

After years of inactivity, the Belle Masque was revived last term under the able guidance of Anthony Frayne, instructor in Oral English, and proceeded to become one of the most active and popular organizations on the campus.

SCIENCE STUDENTS ORGANIZE ADVANCED RESEARCH SEMINAR

Rev. James A. Donnellon, O. S. A. Presides at Meeting; Seventy Students Attend

GROUP WILL MEET MONDAY

Rev. James A. Donnellon, O.S.A., assistant professor of Biology, presided at the initial meeting of the newly organized Science Seminar last Tuesday. This seminar has been instigated at Villanova College as a means of aiding Pre-Medical students in the realization of the advances in modern scientific research.

Approximately seventy students of the School of Science applied for membership at this meeting. Fr. Donnellon was very gratified to see the large number of aspirants to this newly formed group, and from all indications student interest in this particular field has been highly stimulated in the Science School.

Individual Projects

During the course of the meeting, it was made clear that the seminar was to be run on a strictly informal basis. Individual research, especially in fields hitherto untouched, will be stressed, under the guidance of the faculty of the School of Science.

Several of the members have begun individual projects, the results of which will be announced at the next meeting of the research seminar. The individual problems will be open to discussion of the other members of the group. Some of the better works will be published in the Mendel Bulletin, journal of the School of Science. Fr. Donnellon also stated that perhaps some of the projects and their results may succeed in being accepted for publication in national scientific journals. It is believed that this possibility will stimulate greater student interest.

The meeting of the research seminar will be held weekly, on Monday evenings in the Mendel amphitheatre from 7 until 8 o'clock. The next meeting is scheduled for Monday evening, October 18. All those interested should attend.

BE ON TIME FOR BELLE AIR PHOTOS

Photographs for the Class of '38 Belle Air will be taken on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday in the Reception Room of Mendel Hall. Every Senior is urged to be present in the proper attire. A dark suit and white shirt is the most desirable.

These pictures are to be published in the year book and it is of utmost importance that they be taken on the assigned days, as the photographer will not be here at any other time. There will be a slight fee of $1.00 which is payable at the time of the sitting.

It is advisable to be prompt in appearing for the sitting, otherwise it will be necesary to go to the Zamsky Studio at 912 Chestnut St. in Philadelphia.

ALUMNI TO MEET

The second meeting of the Philadelphia Club of the National Villanova Alumni will be held on Thursday, October 21, at the Philopatrian Club, 1923 Walnut Street. The time for meeting is 8 P. M.

Phi Kappa Pi Frat Holds Annual "Owl Hop" Friday

Chairman Joseph W. Beittenmiller Announces Completion of Plans for Dance; Music, Decorations Improved to Give Added Touch to Affair

SMOKER ENLIVENED BY MANY SPEAKERS

Following a successful smoker held last Tuesday in the Commerce and Finance auditorium, the Phi Kappa Pi fraternity will climax their activities by presenting their annual Owl Hop this coming Friday, October 22, in the Villanova gym and feature the distinctive music of the Villanovans dance orchestra.

Each year the Hop attains the distinction of being one of the outstanding social events on the school's activities calendar, and according to present reports from Chairman Joseph W. Beittenmiller, this year's affair will top all previous successes.

Plans Exclusive Decorations

To add to the atmosphere as well as to the music, the dance floor will be encased by the new sound curtains and bi-colored ceiling that gives subdued lighting effect as well as blending the music of the Villianovans into a danceable harmonious rhythm. The lighting itself, since the acquisition of these new curtains, has been largely experimental in previous affairs. For this Friday's dance the engineers are blending their ability with the experience received at the expense of other organizations and promise to give an effect that will not only flatter the fairer sex's complexion but will create an atmosphere suitable for enjoyable dancing.

The music of the Villanovan dance orchestra, now under the energetic direction of Bert Passanante, and comprised of the "cream of the crop" of the campus musicians, proved the outstanding factor in the success of the Sophomore dance and now that they are in the "groove" of the season, should really provide distinctive

STUDY CLUB HEARS BONGIOVANNI TALK ON MARTIN LUTHER

Arts Student Reads Paper Before Third Meeting of Campus Group

ENCYCLICALS ARE STUDIED

The Social Study Seminar of Villanova College commenced its discussion of social topics last Tuesday evening in the Day Students room. A well outlined course of study has been laid down which will be followed in the meetings.

In order to have a more intelligent understanding of the conditions which exist in the world today, a plan tracing in outline the development of the social problems of the present to the time of the Protestant Revolution was set before the present. Along with the rise of social changes, the club will consider the principles laid down in the papal encyclicals of Leo XI. In this way, Rev. John J. Vrana, O. S. A., moderator, hopes that the students will be informed as to the causes of our modern social problems and will also know the teachings of the Church, so that they will be able to determine the solution.

Luther is Discussed

The first paper of the year was presented last Tuesday by Joseph Bongiovanni, Sophmore Arts student. Bongiovanni spoke on Martin Luther and the causes of the Protestant revolution. He pointed out that the most significant act was the breaking away from the duly constituted authority of the Pope. It was this fact which resulted in the widespread breakdown among all the Protestant sects. Furthermore it was not confined to religion alone, but the abanonment of moral principles spread into business life and produced universal disorder in social life.

At the meeting tomorrow evening, the seminar will consider international relations. The discussion on this phase of Catholic Action will be led by Rev. William J. Lunney, O. S. A. This field of study is intimately related to social problems. The difference be-

ANNUAL FIELD DAY COMMITTEE CHOSEN

Event to be Held November 13; George Haen Appointed Chairman

One of the oldest events on the Villanova campus is the Sophomore-Freshman Field Day. This colorful pageant is to be enacted on November 13, and many events have been planned to test the mettle of the respective classes.

Arrangements for the annual affair are being made by a committee of Sophomores. Entrusted in their hands is the responsibility of procuring the necessary equipment and publicising of the event among the rest of the class.

This year is the first that such a committee has been appointed. In previous years the Field Day was taken care of by the Orientation Committee. Due to the high interest shown by the two classes, this year promises to set a new high in the annals of the Field Days.

On the committee are representatives from all the various schools of the college. From the Arts Department Joseph Bongiovanni and Alfred Wood have been selected, while the Commerce and Finance students are represented by Estiban Caciedo, Victor Dominick, William Guiteras and Richard Handly. The Engineers have chosen Joseph Angelozzi, George Bourus, Melchor Gaston, Francis Melgrana, and John Raney; while

Connecticut Club Discusses Christmas, Easter Affairs; Nominations Held

Regular weekly meetings of the Connecticut Club have resumed for the current school year. The meetings are held every Tuesday evening in Mendel Hall. An important meeting was held last Tuesday during which nominations were held for all officers. The nominations were run off very regularly and the results were pleasing. The names of the nominees are being passed through the necessary aprobation of the college authorities.

Dance Plans Made

The business discussed at the meeting concerned the Christmas and Easter dances. It was decided that this should be brought up at the next meeting and discussed further.

The new members were introduced and were given a hearty welcome. Their number swelled the club to a total membership of twenty-five.

New members were enlightened as to the object of the club at Villanova. It was explained that the close relationship of the members would give a more fraternal spirit around the campus. Also that the idea of the club is to enable a

History, German Seminars To Function On Campus For First Time; Successful Year Looms For Music Group

Historical Investigation of Definite Topic Aim of New Organization

Though its organization has not as yet been definitely planned, a History Seminar is being formed on the campus of Villanova College.

Instrumental in the founding of this seminar is Dr. Harold Hartman, assistant professor of history. Rev. John R. Dunne, O. S. A., and Rev. Edwin T. Grimes, O. S. A., both new members of the faculty, are associated with Dr. Hartman in this organization.

The purpose of this History Seminar is to conduct an original historical investigation on a definite topic and by this means teach its members the methods of Historical investigation.

From the student body of the college a limited number have received invitations to attend the meetings.

Verdi, Traviata Among Selections Heard Last Thursday at Weekly Meeting

The music seminar, one of the most popular groups in the college will, on Thursday, give another concert of recordings. The club, under the direction of Rev. John J. Vrana, O. S. A., has in its collection many complete operas which have been played at the meetings. He also possesses some of the more popular recordings of the Metropolitan Opera stars.

The past Thursday's offerings included Beethoven's Symphony No. 6. An aria from the second act of Verdi, sung by John Charles Thomas. Tannhauser, by Wagner and a selection sung by Lily Pons completed the evening's program.

A selection of musical masterpieces will be on the program of the Thursday coming. These selections are contributed by the leading opera and radio stars of the day.

Rev. William J. Lunney, O. S. A., Plans Gathering of Interested Students

The present trend in Villanova College to create new organizations for the purpose of advanced study of practical subjects took another step this week when the Rev. William Lunney, O.S.A., announced the possibility of a German seminar. This idea of individual seminar has already been promulgated in the Science School by Father Donnellon.

The general discourse at one of these meetings will concern primarily German conversation. By means of the use of German language there will be introductions to German life, customs, and letters. It was also inferred that Father Dwyer may add his valuable assistance to the furthering of interest in this proposed organiza-

This seminar has been instigated at Villanova College as a means of aiding Pre-Medical students in the realization of the advances in modern scientific research.

Approximately seventy students of the School of Science applied for membership at this meeting. Fr. Donnellon was very gratified to see the large number of aspirants to this newly formed group, and from all indications student interest in this particular field has been highly stimulated in the Science School.

Individual Projects

During the course of the meeting, it was made clear that the seminar was to be run on a strictly informal basis. Individual research, especially in fields hitherto untouched, will be stressed, under the guidance of the faculty of the School of Science.

Several of the members have begun individual projects, the results of which will be announced at the next meeting of the research seminar. The individual problems will be open to discussion of the other members of the group. Some of the better works will be published in the Mendel Bulletin, journal of the School of Science. Fr. Donnellon also stated that perhaps some of the projects and their results may succeed in being accepted for publication in national scientific journals. It is believed that this possibility will stimulate greater student interest.

The meeting of the research seminar will be held weekly, on Monday evenings in the Mendel amphitheatre from 7 until 8 o'clock. The next meeting is scheduled for Monday evening, October 18. All those interested should attend.

Phi Kappa Pi Frat Holds Annual "Owl Hop" Friday

Chairman Joseph W. Beittenmiller Announces Completion of Plans for Dance; Music, Decorations Improved to Give Added Touch to Affair

SMOKER ENLIVENED BY MANY SPEAKERS

Following a successful smoker held last Tuesday in the Commerce and Finance auditorium, the Phi Kappa Pi fraternity will climax their activities by presenting their annual Owl Hop this coming Friday, October 22, in the Villanova gym and feature the distinctive music of the Villanovans dance orchestra.

Each year the Hop attains the distinction of being one of the outstanding social events on the school's activities calendar, and according to present reports from Chairman Joseph W. Beittenmiller, this year's affair will top all previous successes.

Plans Exclusive Decorations

To add to the atmosphere as well as to the music, the dance floor will be encased by the new sound curtains and bi-colored ceiling that gives subdued lighting effect as well as blending the music of the Villanovans into a danceable harmonious rhythm. The lighting itself, since the acquisition of these new curtains, has been largely experimental in previous affairs. For this Friday's dance the engineers are blending their ability with the experience received at the expense of other organizations and promise to give an effect that will not only flatter the fairer sex's complexion but will create an atmosphere suitable for enjoyable dancing.

The music of the Villanovan dance orchestra, now under the energetic direction of Bert Passannante, and comprised of the "cream of the crop" of the campus musicians, proved the outstanding factor in the success of the Sophomore dance and now that they are in the "groove" of the season, should really provide distinctive

Arts Student Reads Paper Before Third Meeting of Campus Group

ENCYCLICALS ARE STUDIED

The Social Study Seminar of Villanova College commenced its discussion of social topics last Tuesday evening in the Day Students room. A well outlined course of study has been laid down which will be followed in the meetings.

In order to have a more intelligent understanding of the conditions which exist in the world today, a plan tracing in outline the development of the social problems of the present to the time of the Protestant Revolution was set before the present. Along with the rise of social changes, the club will consider the principles laid down in the papal encyclical of Leo XI. In this way, Rev. John J. Vrana, O. S. A., moderator, hopes that the students will be informed as to the causes of our modern social problems and will also know the teachings of the Church, so that they will be able to determine the solution.

Luther Is Discussed

The first paper of the year was presented last Tuesday by Joseph Bongiovanni, Sophmore Arts student. Bongiovanni spoke on Martin Luther and the causes of the Protestant revolution. He pointed out that the most significant act was the breaking away from the only [illegible] authority of the times. It was this fact which resulted in the widespread breakdown among all the Protestant sects. Furthermore, it was not confined to religious ideas, but the observance of moral principles spread to every phase of life and produced an [illegible] order in social life.

At the next meeting, [illegible] ing, the social [illegible] ment [illegible] ment in [illegible] ment in moral relations. The discussion on this phase of Catholic Action will be led by Rev. William J. Lunney, O. S. A. This field of study is intimately related to social problems. The difference be-

ANNUAL FIELD DAY COMMITTEE CHOSEN

Event to be Held November 13; George Haen Appointed Chairman

One of the oldest events on the Villanova campus is the Sophomore-Freshman Field Day. This colorful pageant is to be enacted on November 13, and many events have been planned to test the mettle of the respective classes.

Arrangements for the annual affair are being made by a committee of Sophomores. Entrusted in their hands is the responsibility of procuring the necessary equipment and publicising of the event among the rest of the class.

This year is the first that such a committee has been appointed. In previous years the Field Day was taken care of by the Orientation Committee. Due to the high interest shown by the two classes, this year promises to set a new high in the annals of the Field Days.

On the committee are representatives from all the various schools of the college. From the Arts Department Joseph Bongiovanni and Alfred Wood have been selected, while the Commerce and Finance students are represented by Estiban Caciedo, Victor Dominick, William Guiteras and Richard Handly. The Engineers have chosen Joseph Angelozzi, George Bourus, Melchor Gaston, Francis Melgrana, and John Raney; while

DANCE PLANS MADE BY CAMPUS GROUP

Connecticut Club Discusses Christmas, Easter Affairs; Nominations Held

Regular weekly meetings of the Connecticut Club have resumed for the current school year. The meetings are held every Tuesday evening in Mendel Hall. An important meeting was held last Tuesday during which nominations were held for all officers. The nominations were run off very regularly and the results were pleasing. The names of the nominees are being passed through the necessary aprobation of the college authorities.

Dance Plans Made

The business discussed at the meeting concerned the Christmas and Easter dances. It was decided that this should be brought up at the next meeting and discussed further.

The new members were introduced and were given a hearty welcome. Their number swelled the club to a total membership of twenty-five.

New members were enlightened as to the object of the club at Villanova. It was explained that the close relationship of the members would give a more fraternal spirit around the campus. Also that the idea of the club is to enable a

History, German Seminars To Function On Campus For First Time; Successful Year Looms For Music Group

Historical Investigation of Definite Topic Aim of New Organization

Though its organization has not as yet been definitely planned, a History Seminar is being formed on the campus of Villanova College.

Instrumental in the founding of this seminar is Dr. Harold Hartman, assistant professor of history. Rev. John R. Dunne, O. S. A., and Rev. Edwin T. Grimes, O. S. A., both new members of the faculty, are associated with Dr. Hartman in this organization.

The purpose of this History Seminar is to conduct an original historical investigation on a definite topic and by this means teach its members the methods of Historical investigation.

From the student body of the college a limited number have received invitations to attend the meetings.

Verdi, Traviata Among Selections Heard Last Thursday at Weekly Meeting

The music seminar, one of the most popular groups in the college will, on Thursday, give another concert of recordings. The club, under the direction of Rev. John J. Vrana, O. S. A., has in its collection many complete operas which have been played at the meetings. He also possesses some of the more popular recordings of the Metropolitan Opera stars.

The past Thursday's offerings included Beethoven's Symphony No. 6. An aria from the second act of Verdi, sung by John Charles Thomas, Tannhauser, by Wagner and a selection sung by Lily Pons completed the evening's program.

A selection of musical masterpieces will be on the program of the Thursday coming. These selections are contributed by the leading opera and radio stars of the day.

Rev. William J. Lunney, O. S. A., Plans Gathering of Interested Students

The present trend in Villanova College to create new organizations for the purpose of advanced study of practical subjects took another step this week when the Rev. William Lunney, O.S.A., announced the possibility of a German seminar. This idea of individual seminar has already been promulgated in the Science School by Father Donnellon.

The general discourse at one of these meetings will concern primarily German conversation. By means of the use of German language there will be introductions to German life, customs, and letters. It was also inferred that Father Dwyer may add his valuable assistance to the furthering of interest in this proposed organiza-

SUDDEN DEATH!

THE practice of crossing the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks instead of using the underpass provided by the Railroad must come to an end at once.

It is difficult to comprehend the logic that argues that a few split seconds saved are worth endangering the life of many individuals. Sudden death awaits those who match their legs with the spinning wheels of the railroad trains.

Human legs fail frequently; railroad wheels have an uncomfortable habit of doing their duty without failure.

Some years ago, there was a disastrous accident down at the Pennsylvania tracks. A certain party was injured horribly because that individual crossed the tracks instead of using the bridge. Because the bridge was inconvenient, the Pennsylvania Railroad installed the underpass. There is absolutely no reason why that underpass is not being used by every student in the college who finds it necessary to get to the other side of the tracks.

Are we to believe that reasonable young Catholic gentlemen prefer to disregard safeguards and risk their lives in order to save a second or two?

Perhaps no one will be hurt this year. No one was hurt last year. But why take the chance?

The chance is not worth it. Use the underpass and even if you don't care much for your own life, remember that there are others at home who want you to return sound and whole!

ROOSEVELT LEADS THE WAY

IN one of the most significant "Fireside Addresses" ever to come to the people from the Fireside of President Roosevelt, the President made it clear that the United States of America no longer considers itself an isolated, exalted nation. The President has recognized what the Papacy has taught for many years: that every nation should be vitally interested in the foreign affairs of all other nations. As the President so eloquently said: "An injury to one is an injury to all." This is merely a restatement of the social implications deriving from the Doctrine of the Mystical Body of Christ.

President Roosevelt spoke of "certain fundamental decencies" amongst nations. During the past two years, we have witnessed one of the smaller nations of Europe plunder and despoil a neighbor nation disregarding all laws human and Divine. A nation in the Far East attempts to plunder China . . . and attempts to sanctify its bloody course with references to certain high and holy aims. And even more recently, certain European nations have meddled with a civil war and have perpetuated a terrible conflict to such an extent that the people of that nation are today decimated and prostrate.

The age of international anarchy must come to an end. If the principles of the Prince of Peace are to mean anything, such unlawful and immoral conduct must cease. Principles not applied are sterile.

President Roosevelt has pointed the way to world peace: a federation of the nations, a Christian league of nations founded not on a balance of power but on the observation of "certain fundamental decencies."

Truly, Benedict XV, the unfortunate Pontiff of the World War, must have thrilled to hear the President of our country give utterance to the thoughts which Benedict expressed so vainly during the First World War.

THE MUSIC CLUB

FOREMOST among the Augustinian principles of education is the one which advocates the development of character and initiative as well as the acquisition of culture through extra-curricular activities. Scientific and technical educations are all well and good. No one can deny the present day necessity for them. Nothing is more true. It is true also that too much concentration upon specialized topics causes a student to become narrow minded and eccentric. In order to become a truly educated man, therefore, it is necessary for the student of scientific and technological pursuits to come out of his shell, to seek diversion and culture in the activities outside his chosen field.

Here at Villanova you students have ample opportunities of joining several organizations which are apart from their fields and which may help you to be come broadminded, cultured gentlemen rather than narrow, fanatical scientific crack-pots. Chief among these is the Music Club which holds its meetings weekly upon the campus. Those who have been in attendance have been surprised at the real wealth of enjoyment and satisfaction that can be had by listening to the marvelous music of the masters. Immediately music becomes as an old friend and we are overwhelmed by the genius of the artists. As each meeting progresses we are appalled by our complete lack of knowledge of real music and realize that almost too late we have come to know the meaning of beauty. The members of the fast growing Music Club realize that here lies an opportunity which won't be within their grasp after leaving Villanova. The golden opportunity is knocking for a place on your weekly schedule. Don't refuse it admittance.

One person in three million made a million dollars in the U. S. in 1935. Still the land of opportunity.

Chestnut season is here again. Whole question is, whose will we be pulling out of the fire this year?

ODDS and ENDS

By Tom O'Mahoney

WE have been approached by several people who asked us the name of the little bird who whispers in the ears of the VILLANOVAN staff. Sorry. We promised to keep our awful secrets to ourselves.

Looking here and there, we note with great interest that we were not alone in picking the Giants. It appears that Lloyd Rice also went down with all hands on board. Too bad, Lloyd. We'll get 'em next year. While on the subject of sports, we flinch every time we remember that we picked Penn over Yale and Princeton over Cornell. That's enough "we" for this week.

College Ed. Tofani has inherited Nort Paden's chair as Chief Shadow Boxer of the VILLANOVAN office. Ask him about that straight left sometime if you have an hour to kill.

ON THE CAMPUS

It happened in class: Bob Barret announced that he intends to send his son to Villanova. Villanovations Dept. To the sophomor. for a swell dance last weekend. Nice work. To the junior class moguls for their prompt action in appointing Ring Committee. Likewise. Is Our Face Red Page: Our crack about the cheering at the football games. The spirit at the Auburn game was the McCoy. Paging Talent Scouts: "Pop" Moynihan holds forth at Hampton Beach in the Summer time. He admits that he'd go in Hollywood. But Lenny Merullo claims that his brother Manny is tops in that line. Well, now. Power of Modern Advertising: It IS rumored that Abe Hobson has taken up White Owls as a substitute for cigarettes. Do you think it will help, Abe?

College Chatter

By Joe Alessandroni

ONE unrowned King rules colleges;
His phantom figure holds no silks.
His face of pigskin, his muscles of steel;
His goal, victory, spirit and sportsmanship.
His best seasons are Winter and early Fall.
Yes, we know him—King football.

Judge Landis, high commissioner of organized baseball, was speaking to Bucknell students at the dedication of their new gymnasium. He described Christy Mathewson, famous Bucknell athlete, as one of the greatest players of all time—"a credit to the college that trained him." A slight smile might have been seen on the faces of a few as they saw in the situation, irony—for Bucknell is now a college without a baseball team.

Things We Learn in College:

1. How to sleep with your eyes open in classroom.
2. How to turn questions back on professors.
3. How long to stutter, until someone gives the right answer.
4. How loud to laugh at each professor's jokes.
5. How dumb a freshman looks; how silly a sophisticated sophomore acts; how mighty a junior thinks he is; how little the serious senior finally realizes he knows.
6. How the phrase "home sweet home" can have real meaning.
7. How to replace a blank stare with an intelligent look that takes in nothing.
8. How much there is in the world to know, how little time is four years in which to learn.
9. How students forget that their professors once were students, or how professors forget they were undergraduates.
10. How a college columnist can write so many words that mean so little.

"Behind the eight ball" is the name of a column in the Michigan state paper (many columnists feel the same way but few give the fact such publicity.)

The Southern California Trojan wants the administration to do sometimes are a bit too expansive It describes the situation: "Pasty mud oozing up—to plaster brogans and oxfords—grimy puddles that sometimes are a bit to expansive for a delicate young coed to jump—lawns transformed into marshes (more sunny California weather?)

THE OBSERVER

SHREWD observers of the news of the day must suspect more than coincidence in the Black incident, the Chicago speech of the President on the Japanese question, and the visit of the President to the Archbishop of Chicago.

As you know, the Black Supreme Court question, only a week ago, was rocking the press of the nation. Catholic newspapers, aware of the anti-Catholic sentiments of Senator Black and his Klu Klux Klan, were howling for the blood of the Southern Justice. In a twinkling, the President whisked away all opposition. Read the current Catholic newspapers: they are replete with accounts of the President's visit to the Cardinal of Chicago, devoid of material on Senator Black. Read the daily newspapers and see how Japan occupies the front page — and how the Black issue has been shoved completely out of the papers.

The Black incident is gone and forgotten.

Whether President Roosevelt did this deliberately or no we cannot judge. Only God and President Roosevelt know that.

But let us point out that such a technique was employed by Napoleon I, self-appointed Emperor of the French. A worthy member of the same family, Louis Napoleon, pulled the same strategy.

We wandered through some of the halls last Sunday evening during the period when the General Motors and the Ford Concerts are on the air. We were delighted to note that in nearly every room the boys had their radios tuned to these programs: symphonic music, and arias from the Operas. The Music Seminar seems to be having a very salutary effect on the music habits of the boys.

Today, if ever, is a day of propaganda. On all sides the battle for public opinion is being fought for by many persons. The Ford Company and the General Motors Company present Sunday evening symphony concerts in order to win public opinion. The labor unions deluge the press of the country with "press releases" in order to win the public to their side. Even the consumers have a league to help them win protection of opinion against the persons who try to push prices up.

In the fight for public opinion, Catholics too often fall by the wayside. As a group, Catholics too frequently accept the opinions and sentiments current in their world. If this is a pagan world, as many assert, it is absolutely imperative that Catholics get their news, their comments, and their opinions from pure sources, that is, from Catholic sources.

College boys as a group are not noted for their reading of serious books, magazines, and newspapers. Indeed, on this campus many dollars are poured out every week to the purveyors of un-Christian books, magazines, and newspapers. We think that it is only the loyal thing to do to patronize the Catholic press. They are fighting your battle. If, someday, Catholics in America are in the same position as their unfortunate brethern in certain European countries, the fault is not with the Catholic press but with Catholic laymen . . . especially Catholic college laymen.

A man, as a local campus sage has wisely observed, is largely what he reads. If he reads secular, pagan literature, is it any wonder that Catholic ideas and ideals are foreign to him?

Opinions are made, not born. Just because a man is "born" a Catholic is no guarantee that he is a Catholic in thought, word, and deed. In this modern world, one has to fight to be a Catholic. One does not fight for his Catholicism by merely wishing to be a Catholic. One must be an activist. That is, one must take up the Faith and defend it in earnest.

If you must buy Esquire, at least have the common decency to spend the same amount each month on some Catholic magazine or newspaper.

Common loyalty demands that you give your own Faith the break that you give to creeds other than Catholicism.

As the good book says, no man knows the hour of his Master's coming. Death is always sudden, even when you expect it. It is not a bit out of order, therefore, to ask you this question: when you are reading, what would you rather have the Master find when He visits you—a pagan, immoral magazine, or a magazine that actively upholds the principles for which He died upon His cross to defend?

That is straight goods, fellows. Think it over.

Before we sign off, we might as well continue the same vein and observe that not many fellows are attending daily mass. The Freshman class is to be commended, for most of the chaps that daily come to the Eucharistic Feast are Freshmen. They shame the upper classmen by their loyalty to the Holy Eucharist.

If a Catholic gets his opinion from the Catholic press, how much more important is it that he gets his life from the source of all life: Christ.

"I am the Way, the Truth, and the Life," Christ told us.

Don't you think it possible for you to get to bed a bit earlier and be on hand when Christ comes to earth in the morning? Don't you think it only decent that you be on hand to welcome Him, to mourn with Him, to rejoice with Him?

Actions speak louder than words, brother.

And so we say, as any observer should, that we'd like to observe more fellows at daily Mass. It is, of course, none of our business . . . as many would say. But we think that all would be a lot better off if they put first things first and attended Daily Mass.

If we "loved, served, and knew" our God as well as we "love, serve and know" the less important things of life we'd be a lot better off.

What do you think?

To hear some of the fellows talk, you'd think that the footballers laid down on the job last week. Believe you me, those football men sweat and strain every muscle to win those games for Villanova. It is very easy to criticize the football boys. But this Monday Quarterback stuff is soft stuff. Next time you start to take the boys over the coals, just ask yourself: "Could I have done better?"

There is among us a man who is sorely dissatisfied with the etiquette—or lack of it, if you will—displayed by the students of our dear Villanova College. This gentleman—if we may call him such—is so concerned with the table manners and social indiscretions of Villanovans that he saw fit to send a missive about it to our good editor-in-chief. In this letter he offers his most valuable and needed—we take him at his own valuation—services for the proper instruction of the animals—again we are inferring from the tone of his letter—which prowl the campus.

Our good friend, loath to reveal his true identity unless he be given a column—I think that is what he wants—in the VILLANOVAN for the purpose of saving the students of this institution of higher learning from social ostracism. Mr. Blackstone, Jr., for it is such that he chooses to call himself, is willing to step in ahead of deserving members of the staff who might be better equipped to handle a column, and who certainly have worked hard enough to be rewarded with a column, and save the students socially. Unless he is already a member of the staff I fear that our good savior must be content to send letters to the editor.

AUGUSTINIANS' FATE IN WAR-TORN SPAIN RELATED BY PRIEST

Rev. Lorenzo Lozano, O. S. A. Receives Letter Describing Horrible Experiences

An authentic account of the horrible experiences of Augustinian religious in war-torn Spain is given in a letter received by Rev. Lorenzo Lozano, O. S. A., instructor of Spanish at Villanova College. The letter reads as follows:

Portugalete, Spain,
July 27, 1937.

"My dear Lorenzo:

"Undoubtedly it may have happened to you, as it has to many of our Brothers living abroad, that you are anxious indeed to know the real situation of our Province, but have been without any chance of finding out the true facts. Well, to tell you the truth I did not have any chance to write you since the out-break of the civil war in Spain. But now, thank God, I am able to do it because conditions are improving favorably, and everything is gradually returning to normal, with all guarantees of security, at least in those places under Franco's control.

Trouble Overnight

"About the middle of July, our Provincial Chapter was in progress and many of the Fathers were engaged in the election of new Superiors, and then . . . overnight, the whole trouble started. Needless to say, panic and confusion overtook them. Soon they were forced to disband and look for protection. But, alas! whatever became of them, as well as of our large Community of El Escorial (about 150 members including Priests, Seminarians and Brothers), we are still at a loss to tell. We would like to know their whereabouts, the truth being that we never heard of them with the exception of a few, namely: Fathers Menendez, Urguilo, Izaguirre, La Hoz and Feodoro, with six more students who succeeded in escaping. We are also glad to mention among them the living the following: Fathers Serra, Monjas, Wencellao, Tomeu, Claudio Martin, and Regino, and two Brothers from Mallorca (Balearic Isles); Fathers Auturo, Inocencio, Crespo, Isaac, Valeriano and Maurino and a Brother from Trujillo (Caceres); and myself and four Brothers from Jarandilla (Caceres); Fathers Noriega and Llordeu from Sevilla; Fathers Norberto, Blanco, Forrozo, Vicuna and Victor, and a Brother from Portugalete and Guernica. All these Priests and Brothers, although fortunately alive, found themselves entirely destitute because their Convents in which they lived and worked for so many years were confisticated by the Red Hordes. And so, dear Father, the Augustinian Province of El Escorial counts at present no more than 30 Priests and seven Brothers. That is to say, it amounts to almost nothing. God help us!

Record of Dead

"As for our deceased members, I am sending to you the record we are keeping up to date. It cannot be a complete one for the main reason that nobody knows the fate of many of our Priests and whether or not they are still alive or dead.

"The first information came from Father Isaac Sahagun after he had been sent to Malaga shortly after its capture by the Nationalists. He found that Fathers Formigo and two Brothers had been assassinated by the Reds and our church and convent seriously damaged and in bad shape.

"Rev. F. C. Vicuna in official notification sent to Argentine and from there to Rome, states that up to the last day of May, the number of Augustinian Religious either killed or who died a natural death, amounts to 86, among whom are the Fathers Steban, Garcia, Matias, Espeso, Andreu, Conrado, Rodriguez, Nemesio . . . to mention but a few of those who were certainly executed by the Reds.

20 Killed in Madrid

"In addition to this account, we obtained the following one from Father Millau who states that Father Eulogio, Valentin, Magnica, Esnaola, Canas and about 20 more Religious from our college in Madrid also found a tragic death at the hands of the Communists. You can count, dear Father, on the correctness of this information I am giving you, which, by the way, it took us a long time of painful investigation before we could get

RADIO AND THE THEATER

By LEN FLINKMAN.

SWING GOES ACADEMIC: Swing has been a campus institution for some two odd years, but this Fall it will invade an Eastern lecture hall for the first time, cloaked in the scholarly robes of university curriculum. New York University had added to its faculty Vincent Lopez, popular baton-slinger who titles his brand of dancipation, "sophisticated swing." Professor Lopez begins his lectures on popular music next month and his band will lay it down in the groove at the University Chapel.

THE LIGHTER SIDE: Benny Davis, Tin Pan Alley graduate, on his Sunday M.B.S. show, offers to write new songs, sans charge, for any college that requests same . . . Benny says he has already turned out songs for Marquette, Temple, Northwestern, Ohio, Wayne, Ohio Wesleyan and Renssalaer. Maybe we could use Benny, another good song wouldn't do any harm. While mentioning bandsmiths, Horace Heidt comes from California U, Glen Gray from Ohio Wesleyan, Ozzie Nelson of Rutgers and of course, our own Bert Passanante from Villanova.

AND NO STAGE WAITS: Lew Miller and his educated police dogs, Pal and King, are playing the Broadway sidewalk circuit. Pooches give auditions for passers-by, after which Miller hands out his card for bookings. Maybe we passed him last Saturday night while on the Great White Way.

DEANNA AND LEOPOLD: Saw that picture "100 Men and a Girl" . . . expected to see Peggy Joyce in it, but Deanna did okay. Thought the finish was kinda cute, where Stokowski asked her what she wanted to sing and she said, "Traviata" then he turns to his 100 symphony men and says, "Traviata boys" and then hops into it.

STOPPED: While in New York we stopped to get a bite to eat . . . saw a sign Ginsburg's . . . Kosher Dining and Dancing . . . food was alright but from where we sat the dancing wasn't strictly kosher.

PLAYING IT SAFE: Mildred Brown, Cathay Circle usherette, was spotted by a Warner talent scout, given tests and urged to quit her job for a film career. "Heck, no, nothing doing," she retorted. "I should give up $18 a week that I'm sure of."

EXCITING: Walter Winchell will be back on the air Nov. 14 . . . Lou Little, Columbia football coach will air a little dope (football, of course!) for the American Chicle Co. on Friday nights over M.B.S. for the duration of the football season . . . Night of Nov. 10 is the last for Walter O'Keefe, he leaves immediately after for a European vacation . . . Edmund Lowe, Bob Burns and Mary Carlisle will be guests of Bing Crosby for Kraft Music Hall on Oct. 21. Look for a "Czar of Radio" in the near future.

MAGIC KEY: Several weeks ago the RCA Magic Key program presented Danielle Darrieux, French cinematic importation, enroute to Hollywood, in her initial performance here. If this performance is any gauge of what is to be expected in her film chores on this side, then her chances of clicking are in the proverbial bag. She has an extremely light and pleasing voice. Sight unseen, she's plenty oke, and if her phiz matches her voice she's a gem.

RADIO DAFFODILS: Rev. C. E. Harley, of Memphis, advertises as follows:

The Broadcasting station: Heaven.
The Music: God's love for man.
The Audience: Everyone.

It is doubtful if Justice Huge Black will acknowledge the following publicity telegram from Mark Warnow and Harry Salter: "Caught your act. Think you are wonderful, too."

STAR: Judy Starr has been signed by the Shubert's for the next "Ziegfeld Follies." Starting in a hotel at Virginia Beach, Va., at $13 a week with room and board, Miss Starr has climbed into the $650 class. Rudy Vallee gave her the biggest boost on his show. Her sister, Patricia Norman, is a featured vocalist for Eddy Duchin.

IN THE EYE: Allistair Coke, commentator over WEAF, last Wednesday night was discussing the N. Y. Herald Tribune's public affairs forum. "As usual," cracked the spieler, "the story was covered much better in the Times."

NEWS: Edward G. Robinson, famous for his vivid characterizations and hard-boiled roles on stage and screen, will star in a new dramatic series based on newspaper life to be heard over the Columbia network every Tuesday from 8.00 to 8.30 P. M., beginning Oct. 19. Robinson will play the role of a crusading managing editor of a tabloid newspaper in a large American city. Each program will be a timely adaptation from the American news front, written by a battery of ace playwrights including Arthur Caesar and Courtney Riley Cooper . . . Elisabeth Rethberg appears as guest artist tomorrow night with Andre Kostelanetz.

THEATRE: Kudos to Charlotte Greenwood for finding Philadelphia again after all these years, for bringing a swell show and for adding a musical epilogue of song and dance entertainment that's a joy in itself.

MURRAY P. ZEALOR ELECTED DEBATING SOCIETY PRESIDENT

Freshman Debating Group Selects Donovan as Secretary for Second Term

DEBATE REQUESTS ISSUED

Murray P. Zealor, Commerce and Finance student, was elected president of the Freshmen Debating Society at a meeting of that group last Wednesday in Room 214 Mendel Hall. James Donovan, Arts School, who had been acting as secretary pro tem, was selected to fill that position permanently. Rev. Jerome A. Mahoney, O.S.A., presided in his capacity as moderator.

Both officers have shown themselves to be fiery speakers, and, being ambitious, will demand a great deal of work from the members. The last meeting ended in a hot debate as to whether the freshmen should have three men represent them in all debates or they should alternate the group.

Contracts requesting debates have been sent out to Princeton, St. John's College of Brooklyn, Charles Morris Price Forum, Yale, Georgian Court, Lafayette, University of Pennsylvania, Swarthmore, Rosemont, Immaculata, Villa Marie, and St. Peter's of Jersey City.

The organization is ready to take either side of the question: "Should the several states adopt a system of unicameral legislature?" They are also willing to accept any other topic that might be proposed to them.

The debates will be informal and will take a round table discussion aspect. They hope in the latter part of the year to engage the varsity in a verbal discussion.

Fr. Mahoney, instructor of Spanish, will aid in the conducting of the meetings. His ready wit will be of valuable assistance to organization. Rev. Edward B. McKee, O.S.A., who lent his assistance last year, has consented to aid the society during the course of the year.

A cordial invitation is issued to all Freshmen to attend the next meeting on Wednesday October 20, in Room 214 Mendel Hall.

Murray Zealor in a statement to the VILLANOVAN said, "I am confident of a successful year for the society. They have already displayed forensic traits that will prove valuable to the group."

the past years, it was practically dormant. Interest lagged and the society was at its lowest ebb. Not until last year when Professor Frayne signified his intention of reorganizing the group in order to present outstanding plays did the student body display any interest in the dramatic society.

After the selection of "Journey's End" for their presentation, Mr. Frayne issued his call for candidates for the various roles and the students responded whole-heartedly and the Belle Masque was on its way to becoming one of the most active organizations in the college.

President Donahue is of the opinion that with co-operation among the members, and also of the student body, the society will continue the successful reign which it enjoyed last year.

Then the ultimate aim of the club was explained. When the members graduate they are eligible to enter into the Connecticut Club of Villanova Alumni. In this club, the Villanova spirit is maintained as in all the alumni groups.

Vincent A. Doyle, member of the Villanova class of 1929, has recently been apointed Assistant Purchaser of the town of Lawrence, Massachusetts.

Five Foreign Countries, Nineteen States Represented In Enrollment

Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York Head List; Spanish Nations Show Increased Enrollment; Many from Mid-West

Five foreign countries, nineteen states, and the District of Columbia are represented in the student enrollment at Villanova College this year.

Pennsylvania, with 495 students on the Villanova enrollments, is the best represented among the states. Second in number is New Jersey, with 158 students emanating from that region. New York State is well represented, with Massachusetts, Connecticut, and Maryland next in order.

Some of the members of the Villanova student body will disseminate the principles they learned during their college life to all parts of the United States. Some, as far South as North Carolina, as far North as Maine, and to the West-Coast in California.

Among the foreign countries, Peurto Rico holds the predominant position. South America, the Philippine Islands, Panama, and Cuba have also sent students to Villanova.

These Spanish-speaking countries have been sending a steady stream of students into colleges and universities of the United States. This number has shown a exceptionally large increase in the past few years.

With the exception of near-by states, the New England States have the maximum registration at Villanova. Massachusetts has 43 students enrolled at Villanova. From the high and preparatory schools of the Nutmeg State, Connecticut, twenty five students matriculated at Villanova College to further their education. One student is representative of the State of Maine.

The states bounding Pennsylvania are represented as follows: New York, 107; New Jersey, 158; Ohio, five; Delaware, 11; and Maryland, one. Two students are registered from California, Indiana, New Hampshire, and Oklahoma. Kentucky, Michigan, Minnesota, North Carolina, and West Virginia are represented with at least one student in the college. Nine students have journeyed from Illinois to attend Villanova College.

This array has been compiled to form a total of 904 students in attendance at Villanova College. These do not include those of the Part Time and Summer Schools.

Villanova Bandsmen Meet With Many Adventures In Trip To Gotham City

Many Interesting Landmarks Viewed by Overawed Members on Long Journey to Ebbets Field; Tired, They Wend Their Way Homeward

By JOSEPH BONGIOVANNI

With excitement and commotion of hurrying around without enough time to finish dessert, yet having two desserts, thanks to Rev. Joseph A. Boyle, O.S.A., band moderator and with the necessity of staggering out of buses at rest stations for want of sleep, the band members should be glad to get back to the humdrum monotony that characterizes every day existence —at least until they catch up on their sleep.

Of course, the girls who, with admiring glances, flocked around, will be missed. Claude Van Hook will miss that little Miss with whom he was—oh well I guess you had better tell about it (?) Fr. Boyle.

No doubt boy scout Paul Teel will miss the opportunity to do his usual good deed. Always being ready to help out, he saw a little old lady trying to cross the street so he gallantly asks, "May I take your arm across the street?" She mildly replied, "All right if you don't forget to bring it back." Remember they don't all know you as well as we do here in Villanova.

Ye professors—if you notice that the band members don't take an active part in recitation it is not only because they do not know the work but because they are hoarse. Their favorite sport was barking at girls (none knew how to howl like a wolf or meow like a wildcat).

Dutch Stahmann — your shiek wouldn't be enticed by a spectator to take his (spectator's) wife out so that he could get a date from the Manhattan Drum Major. Take a tip from your band leader—you know, always willing to do a GOOD deed.

With all its shieks, the band did have one drawback in the form of Besch. After taking one look at Besch the girls, who had gathered around, decided that the best way out was to escort the Manhattan Band members. (Don't take it too hard, Besch. Ask Van Hook how he does it.)

Under the guidance of Fr. Boyle, the band certainly had a swell time but there still remains one mystery to be cleared up. That is, why Sheik wrote his address and phone number for those prettily little things when all they really wanted was his autograph. Will you tell us, Sheik? Well, we CAN guess.

Slowly but surely the band is rounding up into top notch shape even with the prospects of getting to Boston none too bright. CERTAINLY, the band members would object to going to the game against Boston University because they would have to miss classes and you know HOW they like to attend classes.

CLASS '39 RINGS TO BE COMPLETED BY THANKSGIVING

Chairman Formulates Tentative Plans of Design; Committee Meets Today

It was announced yesterday by William L. Leahy, Chairman of the Junior Ring Committee, that the Class Rings will probably be ready by Thanksgiving. This will mark the earliest date in recent years that the rings have been completed, and if this goal is realized, much credit will be due to the energetic efforts of the ring committee, consisting of: Chairman William Leahy, John D'Ippolito, Pershing Calabro, Edward Tirrell, John Sherman, Thomas Schaedler, Rene Calliet, and Carl Pantaleo.

Leahy has already drawn up tentative plans for the design and manufacture of the ring, which plans will be placed before the Committee meeting this afternoon, for deliberation.

These plans call for an approximately thirteen-pennyweight ring, with choice of several finishes, including Antique, Rose, or Military. Choice of stones will also be up to the student. Die-cuts will be used in making the rings, with as large a variety of dies as possible.

The Ring Committee will conduct its initial meeting this afternoon at one o'clock. All members are requested to be present. For the meeting-place, consult the Bulletin board.

the Science School has appointed Joseph Bochetto, John Coffey, Ralph Fioretti, Walter Filipek, John Kolnier, E. Malcolm, C. Martin, and C. Van Hark.

The honor of the chairmanship has fallen to George Haen. He has been appointed to this post by the president of the Sophmore class. It is expected that the committee will make this Field Day the best in the history of Villanova.

NORTH JERSEY CLUB PREPARATIONS MADE FOR HOLIDAY DANCE

Manahan, Callendriello Appointed Co-Chairman for Thanksgiving Event

GROUP HEARS MODERATOR

"A club of this type brings out personality, builds character, aids spiritually, and enhances social connections," said the Rev. Charles P. Brown, O.S.A., moderator of the North Jersey Club, at the club's initial meeting for freshmen last Tuesday.

Fulfilling earlier promises of intense activity, President Louis Dubino announced tentative plans for a Thanksgiving dance. This dance, arranged as an introductory social for freshmen, will also be a get-together for alumni and upperclassmen. This marks the first divergence from past club policies and conforms with the longer holiday period allotted to Thanksgiving.

Raymond Manahan, junior in the School of Commerce and Finance, and Joseph Callendriello, junior in the Arts Department were appointed co-chairmen of the dance committee. Prospective sites were announced by Manahan, who deferred decision until next meeting of the club.

More stringent regulations concerning attendance at meetings was advocated by vice-president John Dunigan in an appeal to the group to retain the compactness and unity for which the organization is well known on the campus. Dunigan deplored the lack of spirit manifested by a small minority of upperclassmen.

Secretary William Bowker concluded the meeting with a financial report that met with the approval of the members.

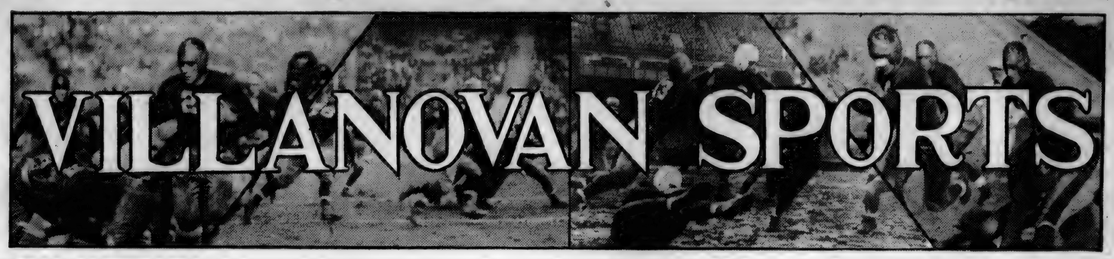
Bucknell Eager To "Get" Villanova Again-



BLUE GRIDDERS TROUNCE JASPERS

Sportorial

By BILL BOWKER
Sports Editor

NEWS CAME TO US, late as usual, that last Friday was the Clipper's birthday. Many happy returns of the day, Clipper. The greetings, though a bit late, are nonetheless sincere.

—V—

Famous last words: "Manhattan will beat Villanova by two touchdowns."

—V—

Statistics are great things to handle. According to the papers, Manhattan gained more ground from rushing than did our lads. It looks as if the figure-jugglers omitted the ground lost when Wysocki tackled some of those would-be passers 15 yards behind the line of scrimmage. We still think that Villanova gained more when the Jaspers had the ball than by any other way.

—V—

If John continues to perform as he did against the metropolitan squad, the All-American Board of strategy will not be erring to consider him as All-America calibre. Incidentally, John Mellus is playing some good ball, too, only nine-tenths of the people miss the work of the linemen.

—V—

Bucknell comes to town again next week, fully determined to repeat their last year's performance. Nothing would suit them better than to shave the Wildcat in his own lair. The Blue will do well to watch its step this coming Saturday. October 2 saw the easy part of the Main Line grid schedule go by the boards. From now on it's tough sledding.

—V—

The Philadelphia newspaper writers could take a few pointers from the New York scribes about writing up the Wildcat football news. We happened to get a couple of metropolitan dailies and to read the write-ups one would think that Villanova was located in the limits of New York City instead of being a hundred miles away. As a matter of fact, upon reading the Philly papers one might think the Main Line school was located in New York, or some equally distant locality.

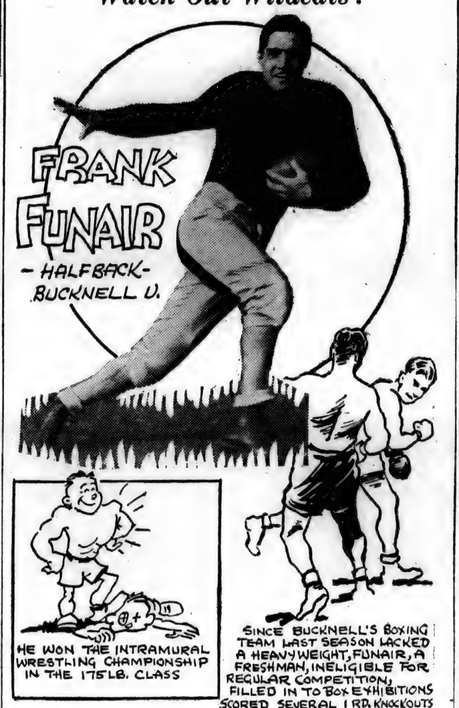
—V—

This week sees the Intra-mural basketball season get underway. Alumni Hall and Mendel Residents will see action and the two upper-class dorms, Fedigan and Austin will face each other in the two games raising the curtain for this year. As yet the complete schedule has not been arranged, due to difficulties encountered in the scholastic schedule of the Mendel Day hops, who are mostly engineers.

—V—

There was a rumor that came to our ears that one of the ticket collectors on one of the gates up at Ebbets Field was playing on the gullibility of Villanova students by causing those who had student tickets to enter by way of the pass gate, necessitating the payment of a twenty cent tax, an entirely unnecessary move. If this is true—and we heard of this from a reliable authority — something should be done about it. Such petty actions on the part of the people in the position of the above-mentioned ticket-seller do much to harm the good name of collegiate football.

Watch Out Wildcats!



Bisons Smart From Miami Battle; Eagerly Await Saturday's Contest

Lewisburg Herd Determined to Repeat Last Year's 6-0 Victory Over Main Liners; Sophomores Star

By TOM O'MAHONEY

Smarting under the sting of a surprising 6-6 tie administered by the University of Miami Hurricanes, the once Thundering Herd of Bucknell invades Shibe Park next Saturday to test the newly-found Villanova attack. This will be the 14th renewal of the series, which began in 1904. To date Bucknell has a wide advantage in the little matter of games won in the set, the Orange and Blue having taken eight, with four going to the 'Cats. Strangely enough, there has been only one tie in the long series.

Bucknell Always Tough

While Bucknell's record has been far from impressive this year, it must be remembered that this is a better Bison team than the '36 copy which was good enough to send the Wildcats down to a 6-0 defeat. Bucknell has always risen to almost impossible heights in Villanova games; one has only to look back along the years to see a long trail of Herd victories in years that the Blue was rated far superior to the team from up-State. However, the young men who make their livelihood by determining odds will probably make the 'Cats heavy favorites once more.

In the Miami game, played last Friday night under the arcs, the Herd smashed down the field to the five early in the game, but failed to score when Frank Funair, sophomore halfback, dropped a fourth-down pass. Not to be denied, however, the Bisons moved downfield again in the third period to the five-yard line. This time Funair took a lateral from Bill Lane, canny field general of the Herd, for the score. Miami came back, however, late in the final period, and, with a bewildering assortment of laterals and reverses, marched 80 yards for the tying touchdown.

Sophomores Shine

Coach Al Humphreys is depending on a sophomore team this year, with several holdovers from the 1936 team. His material is good, and may show to Villanova's chagrin if not over-powered early in the game. Marty Quick, injured in the Penn State contest, has had one season of varsity play at fullback, and is expected to spark the Orange and Blue attack on Saturday. Frank Funair, flashy soph halfback; Sid Conarick, heavy-duty blocker, and Bill Lane's understudy at quarter; and Vic Cannestro, pass-snagger supreme at end, are

Wysocki Leads Villanova To Crushing 20-0 Victory

Left End Scores Three Touchdowns, Plays Sensational Ball on Defense; Mellus and Olivar Stalwarts on Line

MANHATTAN AIR ATTACK SMOTHERED

By JOHN L. SIMONS

"Bonecrusher" John Wysocki gave an exhibition of how the end position should be played in leading his mates to a convincing 20-0 over Manhattan's Jaspers at Ebbets Field last Saturday. He scored all three Wildcat touchdowns and one of the extra points. On defense he was brilliantly aggressive and was a constant source of irritation to the Jasper backfield, repeatedly tossing Chick Meehan's men for huge losses. In the course of the fray this Villanova left end threw Manhattan back for a total loss of close to one hundred yards.

'Cats Start Early

The Wildcats lost no time in letting the Jaspers know they were out to win. On the opening kickoff they recovered a Manhattan fumble on the New Yorkers' 15. But the Green forward wall held, and the 'Cats' threat ended when a field goal attempt went wild.

It wasn't until the end of the opening quarter that the Wildcats crashed through for a score. Then Johnny Mellus and Wysocki ganged up on Ed Kringle as the Jasper back attempted to punt from his 32-yard line. Mellus blocked the punt and Wysocki grabbed up the bobbing oval and galloped across the goal line for a six pointer.

WILDCAT NATATORS CONTINUE PRACTICE UNDER TOBY GRECO

Swimming Captain Acting as Coach Pending Appointment of Mentor

With a tough season ahead the natators are not resting on their laurels. Instead most of them are working out daily in the college's pool. While the practices are still unorganized the mermen are getting plenty of work under the direction of Acting Coach Toby Greco. Last year Toby assisted the head coach and it was largely through his efforts that the season was so successful.

Greco's Last Year

Swimming on the varsity for the four years, he expects to make this his best. Besides being number one breast stroker on the team Toby was chosen by his teammates to lead the Wildcats for the coming season, so he has more than one reason for ending his last season of intercollegiate swimming in a blaze of glory.

The appointment of a coach is expected to be announced within the next two weeks.

In the meantime, Bill Bailey, who specializes in the longer grinds, is lending Toby a hand in whipping the boys into shape.

Season's Prospects Bright

The prospects for the coming season are exceedingly bright. Only two lettermen were lost through graduation and with a veteran aggregation returning the mermen should hang up an enviable record. Bill Leahy, high scorer of the team for the last two seasons, is slated to burn up the water lanes again in the 220- and 440-yard dashes. Bill's younger brother Ed Leahy and the veteran Wilmer Booth will offer the opposition stiff competition in the backstroke, while Burt Coursart and big Charley Barrett will take care of the sprints. Bill Timmins and Will Durkin are again scheduled to perform in the diving. If the promising Sophomore Fitzmaurice has corrected his kicking, he

TO CONTEST FINALS OF MURAL TOURNEY

Netmen Expect to Conclude Fall Tennis Competition Late This Week

Paced by Lloyd Rice, Sophomore champion from Fedigan, and defending tournament co-champion, six group title holders will enter the semi-final and final rounds of the All-College Intra-Mural Tennis Championships this week-end.

Rice, who shared honors last season with Len Weinfeld, Commerce standard bearer, will meet Beatty Schermerhorn, who won the right to qualify by a default from Weinfeld, after he defeated Saul Wallach in straight sets.

Schermerhorn Threatens

Schermerhorn, by his favorable tournament record this Summer, is considered as the dark horse entry. Should the Commerce boy be in form after a two-week lay-off, he will probably extend the champion.

In another important test, Wytold Krzywicki, Austin Hall title holder, is expected to battle Art Sommers, conqueror of Bub Bannigan, for the Alumni crown.

Krzywicki, a veteran of two tournaments, showed splendid form in vanquishing Don Hudson in 6-3 scores. His opponent has yet to meet stiff competition. If scores are taken as a medium of comparison, both boys should go the three set limit.

Blue Lightweights Beaten By Lafayette's Leopards

Bangert Squad Shows Promise Despite 6 - 0 Setback; Kerrigan and McManus Shine in Losing Cause; Winner's Score on Pass

VILLANOVANS POINTING FOR RUTGERS

By BILL SINNOTT

Villanova's inexperienced 150's were unable to cope with the spinners and passes unraveled by the Leopards of Lafayette and went down to defeat by a score of 6-0 after a gallant and desperate attempt to overcome superior odds.

The "Little Wildcats" repulsed every advance the Leopards attempted in the first half and kept them on their own side of the 50-yard line for the entire period. The defensive work of Paul Kerrigan was responsible for the stalling of many of Lafayette's scoring plays. Time after time Kerrigan came in from his backfield position to smash down opposing runners and to bat down passes intended for the enemy.

Lightweights Weaken

The "Dollar and a Halfs" wearied early in the second half and McDevitt, the "Laf's" versatile back, began to sweep the ends and open gaping holes in the line. The Main Liners braced and held and the Eastonites took to the air. Failing in their passing attempts, they punted to Brad McManus who returned the ball 15 yards to the "Leopard's" 45. Our 150's returned the punt after an abortive thrust into the line.

At the end of the third quarter the inexperience of the Villanovans began to show. McDevitt reeled off a number of short gains on spinners and the 'Cat backs moved in to check the drive. Farlnon, the Maroon left half, faded back to the 15-yard line and flipped a pass to McDevitt who took it on the ten and outran the 'Cat secondaries to reach pay dirt standing up. Lafayette attempted a pass for the extra point which was grounded by Brad McManus.

The fourth period opened with Lafayette recovering a Villanova fumble on the Maroon 25. The Junior Wildcats held and the Laf's kicked to the 38 yard line. The 'Cats made a first down and promptly bogged down to lose the ball on downs on their own 18. The game ended with both teams stalemated at mid-field.

Statistics reveal Villanova made two first downs and the Maroon made four. Ed Hennessy, former North Catholic star, contributed much yardage to the Villanova total. His drives resulted in both of the 'Cat's first downs.

Brad McManus, also a former Philadelphia high school star, had a busy day backing up the line. The educated toe of Gene Leahy repulsed the Maroon many times when they had reached scoring positions.

Don Bangert, engaged in his first year as a football tutor, was pleased with the showing of the little 'Cats. He anticipates a successful season and is optimistically looking forward to future games. He intends strengthening the forward wall and striving for more co-ordination in the backfield.

Next week the 'Cats meet Rutgers, a team that has predominated Eastern 150-pound football for a number of years. The first defeat imposed on the New Jersey institution was inflicted last year by the Yale Blues at Paterson, N. J. This game was a highlight of last year's football season and rivaled varsity games in interest.

While the 'Cat juniors are pointing for the Rutgers' game, they are preparing for the most rigorous campaign a Villanova 150 team has faced. Penn, Yale, Harvard and Princeton are on the schedule. Despite the great competition, the outlook is the brightest in a number of years. Villanova has been noticeably weak in the 150 class in the past few years and this year's unit stacks up as one of the strongest in the history of the school.

Wildcats Trounce Manhattan Easily

Wysocki kicked the extra point.

Just a few minutes later the same Wysocki somehow or other got out in the clear on the Manhattan five-yard line and caught a 40-yard pass from lefthander Ray Stoviak. The Jaspers' defense was beautifully decoyed, and there wasn't a Greenie within ten yards of the "Bonecrusher" when he got the ball and ambled across the final stripe.

Green Attack Stopped

In the meantime the Manhattan attack was thrown back by a strong and alert Villanova defense. Vic Fusia, the Meehanmen's ace passer and climax runner, was completely smothered. In desperation the Jaspers resorted to an aerial offense, which proved to be a boomerang. The whole 'Cat forward wall, led by Wysocki and Mellus, time after time threw the Manhattan passer before he could get rid of the ball.

After he took a rest in the third period Wysocki came back in the fourth to pull the most sensational play of the afternoon. Migdal, Greenie back, tried the center of the Villanova line, hit a stone wall, and fumbled. Wysocki, the ball hawk, plucked the ball and set sail for the goal line 70 yards to the south with just one Manhattan in his way. But John did some fancy stepping and reversed his field, giving Johnny McKenna the chance to dispose of the last defender with a super block, to score his third touchdown.

In victory the Villanova team showed its best form of the current season. Besides the ever present Wysocki, John Mellus and Captain Jordan Olivar were standouts on the powerful Blue line. Manhattan had in Ed Kringle one of the best punters in the country, but he was more than equaled by Andy Stopper, who did some elegant punting.

MURAL COURT PLAY TO OPEN THURSDAY

Fedigan-Austin and Mendel-Alumni Contests Raise Season's Curtain

Thursday, October 21, the basketball tourney will begin. This sport is hotly contested every year and ardently awaited by all basketball enthusiasts. A tentative schedule has been drawn up and the campaign will be opened in earnest this Thursday.

All the games are to be played in the Alumni Hall gymnasium with four tilts being staged every week. The floor is expected to be in excellent shape by the time actual competition is started. Due to the discovery of new talent, a much closer race than last year is anticipated.

Austin Hall boasts of Tim Waad, a member of the Mendel Residents team of last year. He, with many other stars, promises to make the McKeemen real competition for the entire school. This hall and Fedigan hold decided advantages because their players have competed in the tourney in their earlier years at Villanova.

Last year's victors, the Mendel Day Hops, will be shooting at retaining the title. They are augmented by a number of stellar freshmen performers and stand a better than even chance of giving the upper classmen plenty of worry. In their playoff game of last year, a "harum-scarum" battle was waged between the Residents and the Day Hops. The travellers were victorious and walked away with the title. This year all the teams are looking at the victor's wreath with hungry eyes and will be fighting every minute of the way to dethrone the champs.

As in other years, there will be four games played weekly, two on every Tuesday and Thursday evening. The schedule is still a problem child with the Day Hops causing the worry. The Residents have been taken care of, but the class schedule of the Day students conflicts seriously with the tournament.

All players who wish to try out for the team should contact the manager in their individual halls. Clem Lavin, in Austin; Bill Dobrowski in Fedigan; Ray Lyman in the C. & F. Day Hops, and Joe Beittenmiller, of Mendel Day Hops, are ready to accept applications.

Basketball is one of the most stubbornly-contested sports on the Intra-mural program and always draws a lot of attention. This year will be no exception as the squads are all on an even footing, except for some individual stars in the various halls. A good season is looked forward to with each club fighting till the bitter end for the glory of its hall. The champs will have a tough time of it defending their laurels.

CLIPPER COMMENTS on Manhattan Game

ALL AROUND individual and team alertness tells the story of our victory over Chick Meehan's strong Manhattan club, rather than any high geared offensive possessed by our boys. Our offense has yet to function in the way it is intended to, and more improvement in that department of play is necessary.

The defense used by the Jaspers, a 5-3-2-1 affair known as the "Butterfly" or "Quicksand" defense, was responsible in part for the failure of our offensive to click as expected. Defensively, Manhattan played stellar ball, showing smartness in their diagnosis of our formations.

Villanova Aggressive

Timely aggressiveness on the part of our tackles and ends made it impossible for the Manhattan attack to get going, standout performances in hurrying the offense being given by Mellus and Olivar at the tackle posts, and Wysocki and Nowak on the ends. Their constant pressure on the Jasper line and backs caused them no end of annoyance, and this play on the part of the forward wall left little opportunity for us to get a line on our pass defense, although when Meehan's boys did get passes off, some one of our lads was covering the receiver.

All the papers wrote up Wysocki as playing a sensational game, which he did, but sight must not be lost to the fact that he had some assistance from other members of the team when he tallied those three touchdowns. On the first score, Mellus blocked the kick; on the second, good protection, allowing Stoviak plenty of time to get off that pass, and on the final count, smart play by McKenna in taking that dangerous Migdal out of the way, showed that more than one takes part in a game.

Andy Stopper and Ray Stoviak played their steady game, with Andy's kicking being sensational again. Buek performed notably in a position new to him, particularly when under pressure on punts. Artie Raimo did some fine work defensively, especially when they threatened with only a few yards to go for a first down. On one occasion in particular he dove over the line of scrimmage and stopped the ball carrier before he had taken a step. One of these days Raimo will break loose offensively and give us something to talk about.

Manhattan Defense Good

Manhattan, despite the fact that the score against them was rather high, showed well defensively and the statistics will bear out this statement. The line, especially, stopped repeated thrusts, and the fullback did a fine job of backing up the line, halting play after play. Standouts on Meehan's club were Daly and Dorsey, ends; Fusia, Kringle, Migdal, Caruso and Savage in the other positions. Fusia's pass defense and Kringle's punting were exceptionally good.

Next Saturdays meeting with Bucknell will find the Bisons ready, willing and able to repeat their performance of last year. They avenged, in part, their defeat by Miami last season by tying them Friday night. They will be plenty tough this week-end, and we will have to improve our offense and keep up the alert play of last week, if we are to take the Bisons.

Last Friday was my birthday, and I want to thank publicly the boys for giving me such a fine present.

men who will bear watching by the Blue defense.

On the other hand, Clipper Smith is looking forward to the meeting with the Herd with an eye to avenging the debacle of last year, and will no doubt shoot the works in an effort to stamp the Wildcats as a powerful offensive team. It will be chance for the 'Cats to show their Philadelphia critics that they have something more than a good defense. And with a team like Bucknell's, which "inspires itself" very easily, it may be necessary to make good use of that chance.

should be a great help in the breaststroke.

In order to keep a check on the work his proteges are doing, Greco has scheduled for this Friday afternoon time trials over the distance of 220 yards. Greco, realizing that the success of the team depends on the condition of the individuals making up the squad, is not letting any valuable time for hard work slip by.

In the Sportlight

By JOSEPH McDADE

LADIES and gentlemen!"—not in this corner, but certainly in this article we present to you one of the most outstanding athletes ever to don the Blue colors. A football player, all 74 inches of him, if ever there was one, and Jordan Olivar is his cognomen.

However, for convenience sake his friends call him "Ollie." Just what his opponents call him has no proper place here but we won't go into that angle. "Ollie" is a hard hitting tackle, tipping the beam at 208, and has held down his post for three years of varsity football. In those years he established a record for himself as a man who could always keep his side of the line in the play. On the offense, the Notre Dame system calling for many one-man blocks, "Ollie" proves his worth by pile-driving his man out of the way. Defensively, he is just as great, diagnosing enemy plays in an instant and preventing the ball-carrier from going through his side by his startling "submarine" tackles. It is his great defensive work which immediately appeals to the average fan. He does not wait for the play to come to him, but rather goes underneath the line and drags the surprised runner down to earth, usually for a loss.

Born in 1915

"Ollie" was first cognizant of this world on January 30, 1915, in Flatbush — Brooklyn to you. He attended grammar school at Staten Island, and Curtis High School, also in the same locality. At these institutions he distinguished himself academically as well as athletically, being an honor student throughout his entire high school years. Contrary to all pre-supposition, Olivar did not play football in his high school days! Unlike practically every other football star he did not serve his apprenticeship at some high and prep school and then as master of his trade, enter a college. He started the hard way by learning practically everthing about the game in college. A great tribute to his athletic prowess as well as to his coach.

In high school, "Ollie" played basketball, baseball, and soccer, excelling in all three. He advances the reason that he was too young to play football then since he was only 16 when graduated. After leaving Curtis High, he spent three years as a gym instructor in Brooklyn. It was through this job that he became acquainted with "Hank" Snyder, a former gridiron luminary of Villanova under Stuhldreher. Through Snyder's influence Olivar was able to matriculate at the Main Line institution, and since has performed exceedingly creditably in scholastic, as well as athletic, affairs.

Shines Scholastically

Scholastically, "Ollie" has been a leader since his Freshman days. Enrolled in the School of Education, he has always been an honor student, hitting A's in practically every subject. In his Sophomore year, his classmates selected him to be their class President. This was a fitting tribute to his ability as a leader, an ability which he retains on the football field, in view of the fact that he was chosen to captain the team against Manhattan last Saturday. Olivar is very proficient in his ability to speak foreign languages, notably French and Spanish. He was the secretary of the Spanish Club last year and later received the award for the best student's work in a foreign language.

His greatest thrill, he confided, was in his first varsity game as a Sophomore. In this particular instance, the opponent was the "Cats" usual curtain raiser—P. M. C. In the first period, Tony Sala, last year's captain, caught a long pass, and about to be tackled, he tossed a lateral to Olivar, who skirted the remaining distance for a touchdown. Blocking a kick at an advantageous moment or making a particularly good tackle is not as great a thrill as a few words of commendation from the coach, according to "Ollie." Clipper Smith says of him, "His play is consistently good." We believe it.

After graduation, "Ollie" would like to secure a position as football coach for a few years in order to finance his further studies, and then desist from active participation in it. He is primarily interested in the diplomatic service and in being a instructor in foreign languages.

Go to it, "Ollie"! We know you will be successful.

HERE and THERE

By Tom Carbine

BOTH "Clipper" Smith and Chick Meehan wanted to win last Saturday afternoon, but a third party had ideas on the subject also. He decided that Villanova was GOING to win, and then went out and scored 19 of Villanova's 20 points just to make sure that the Blue would win. In addition to this he was largely instrumental in keeping the Jaspers backfield so worried that they forgot to cross our goal line for the fourth straight time. Incidentally in those same four years Villanova has marked down 118 points on her side of the ledger.

THIS man, Wysocki, who played such a magnificient game, was on the team that started against P. M. C. There wasn't much flashy playing on that day, though, for he had just come back from a sick bed. He was in there, too, against Auburn, and it was then that he began to hit his stride as Hitchcock can, no doubt, testify, for every time the man from the South faded for a pass Johnny Wysocki was in there to aggravate him.

Although described as a country boy by one of our local sportswriters, it is well not to get the impression that he is of the easy going Stuart Erwin type; for Wysocki is not to be tampered with. He's a man of short temper and he doesn't waste words when fists will speak louder and more effectively.

However, one man shouldn't make us lose sight of the fact that at last the Wildcats are living up to their name. The combination that "Clipper" Smith put on the field will go places in any league.

Slightly overlooked (even the bus didn't come on time) in the hustle and bustle of a Manhattan week-end were the 150 pounders. In their first game of the current season in the Intercollegiate 150 Pound League, the lightweights ended up on the short end of a 6-0 score.

Lacking only a scoring drive in a thrilling first half battle, the "dollar and a half" boys gave a grand exhibition of offensive football that portends well for the future. However, a little slip in the second half, due mostly to the greenness of the men, left an opening that the Leopards used to score.

Student Coach Don Bangert has developed a fighting team that is out to make history this year in the League. Although he has never played Varsity football he has, with the help of Brad McManus, instilled a surprising amount of football instinct into a team that has only been practicing a little over two weeks.

A team that can defeat such clubs as Colgate and Princeton should be able to do a comeback even though she has lost her star, Peck, and been beaten by Syracuse's "mystery eleven." And we think that the Big Red is going to do just that next Saturday against Yale.

After a while, it's going to become monotonous so we suggest that the next time Pitt and Fordham are scheduled to play, the latter might hire the Ritz Brothers so that the customers won't think the game's just a gag for making money and stay away.

Next week the Wildcats take on Bucknell and we hope they will follow through this year and take over this eleven from Lewisburg. It was more than a surprise when they kicked us in the face last season and we'll be strongly suspicious of a jinx complex if they do a repeat performance.

SCIENCE SEMINAR HEARS HEAD COACH

'Clipper' Smith Stresses Student Enthusiasm for Football Squad

Science students attending the weekly seminar on Thursday were given an inspiring note by the presence of Maurice J. "Clipper" Smith. He was introduced by Rev. Joseph M. Dougherty, O. S. A., Dean of the Science School. The discourse was not on a scientific subject as Mr. Smith explained, but rather on the thing which he eats, talks and sleeps, namely, "Football."

The "Clipper" went on to state that football is overly defensive. The poor offensive showing is due to the rule - makers allowing any type of defensive play. For example, Mr. Smith spoke of Manhattan as one team using different defensive line-ups.

A few humorously narrated incidents of the past interspersed the dialogue. His witty remarks made the meeting very interesting. Speaking in a serious tone, Mr. Smith asked the student body to speak well of the team in outside and inside circles even if the team did not make a very good showing Saturday. The reason is clear in the fact that experience counts. Manhattan has already gone through half its season. The Villanova squad has had only a touch of the experience necessary to play stellar ball.

Spanish Priest's Letter Describes Horrible Conditions Of Civil War

it. As a matter of fact, it was not until February, that is, eight months after the outbreak of the civil war, that some of our Religious were able to get in touch with one another, and finally with our 'Committee of Reorganization.' This Committee was appointed by Rome last February due to the disappearance of our Provincial and other superiors whose whereabouts we do not know as yet. It consists of Rev. Arluro Cano as Vicar Provincial and Fathers Victorino Burgos and Diego P. de Arrilucea as Counsellors. The task assigned to this Committee has been indeed a difficult one, as you realize under the present dreadful conditions . . . Here is the way we work: As soon as the victorious forces of Franco take possession of places in which we were working before the outbreak, some of our Priests are sent there in order to resume again our Missions, though in some cases we have to use private homes because we find that our buildings have been badly damaged by the Red Hordes.

Nationalists Did Not Bomb Guernica

"In April when Bilbao was about to be taken by the Nationalists, I was appointed by our Rev. Vicar to go up there in order to inquire about our House of Guernica and Portugalete. God only knows the real ordeal I went through but nonetheless I succeeded. I had to be enlisted as a Chaplain of the Nationalists in order to accomplish my mission. I was in the battlefront myself when Guernica was taken, as well as a personal witness in the fall of Bilbao. And by the way, talking about Guernica, let it be understood, no matter what has been said to the contrary at home and abroad, the Nationalists' airplanes never bombarded Guernica, nor did they destroy anything in the town. Guernica was sacked and destroyed by the Anarchists before they fled as they usually do, leaving behind them an ignominious path of destruction. . . .

"Well dear Father, thought I would like to make some comments of my own about the whole situation in our country, but I shall not do so . . . suffice it is to say, God has been with us from the beginning, and under His protection, as well as the wise leadership of 'Generalissimo' and 'Christianissmo Franco' this modern Crusade of Christianity against the monster of Communism will end finally in our triumph. This triumph, I believe, will bring about in Spain a new era of vitality and regeneration; not ony will Science, Industry and Literature be benefitted, but most of all, our own Religion in our own Catholic country.

"Pray for us, dear Father, and for all our deceased Religious.

"Cordially in Christ,

"(Signed):

rhythms for the engineers and their guests.

Plans Concluded

When approached for a statement concerning the dance, Joseph W. Beittenmiller, chairman of the dance committee, stated that plans and arrangements are being concluded.

The purchasing of the tickets can be made by an approach to any fraternity member. The price has been set at $1.50.

The smoker held last Tuesday, October 12 proved an unusual success and was attended, beside the upperclass members, by many freshmen engineers who are prospective future members. Speaker at the session included Rev. John J. O'Leary, O. S. A. Dr. Edward L. Haenish, Dean Carl T. Humphrey, Coach Maurice "Clipper" Smith, and Patrus Banmiller. These men all gave sidelights on their various fields and added interest to the general meeting by the variety of topics and digressions. Refreshments in the Commerce and Finance basement ended an entertaining evening.

RECEIVES FELLOWSHIP

The University of Pennsylvania has awarded the Harrison Fellowship in Chemistry to Frederick Landau, '34, assistant professor in Chemistry at Villanova College. The fellowship is valued at $600.00.

CHEMICAL SOCIETY INAUGURATES PLAN

Dr. E. L. Haenish Discusses Glass-Blowing in First of Lecture Series

At the second assembly of the Villanova Chemical Society, the first of a series of faculty lecture-demonstrations was given by Dr. E. L. Haenish yesterday during the fourth period.

The subject of the meeting was glass-blowing, in which were shown the many fundamental points necessarily observed in the process. Although the actual work is apparently simple, the explanation of the technique showed it to be quite laborious. The slowness and carefulness required, besides the many procedures to be followed, necessitate skilled workmen.

Operations Shown

The preliminary operation of cutting glass tubing of various types was gone over hurriedly but comprehensively by Dr. Haenish. This particular preliminary was shown to have a special technique of its own.

The weekly business of the society concerned the donation of a patronship to the Annual Owl Hop dance to be held this coming Friday night. It was carried through unanimously.

Next meeting two weeks from yesterday will be devoted to student developed papers.

ROOSEVELT COMMENDS PEACE PLAN

THE WHITE HOUSE,
WASHINGTON, D. C.

Hyde Park, New York
October 15, 1937

My dear Mr. Deverall:

I am glad to learn that your magazine, The Christian Front, is taking the leadership in inviting students of Catholic colleges throughout the country to pray for peace on the approaching Feast of Christ the King.

Any movement which has for its purpose the search for peace should enlist the support of all thoughtful citizens and is most highly to be commended. And only by seeking and following the guidance of the All Highest may we hope to obtain peace among the nations and to receive into our hearts and souls the peace that passeth understanding.

Very sincerely yours,

NATIONALISM TOPIC OF INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS MEETING

Paul Juergens Presents Paper on Subject to First Gathering

TRACES SYSTEM BACK TO EMPIRE OF CHARLEMAGNE

Protestant Reformation Discussed by Members After Reading of Paper

Paul Juergens, Junior Education student, presented a paper on the rise of nationalism at the first meeting of the International Relations Club, Wednesday night, October 20.

Fr. Lunney Moderator

The Rev. William Lunney, O. S. A., is the present moderator of this organization, which has been active on the campus for many years. Though this society has existed as a separate group, it is now united with the Social Study Seminar. This union has been effected because it was felt that the same students were interested in both organizations and because the subjects with which they dealt were overlapping. It has been arranged that every other meeting be devoted particularly to subjects which are in the field of international relations.

Nationalism Defined

As the term "nationalism" is used in so many ways, it was necessary that it be defined before the discussion could get under way. So that the term might be better understood, Juergens explained the nation as "a great body of men who maintain an independent or sovereign political government." After further contributions by the members and some argument, it was agreed that nationalism, as used that evening, should mean the

ASPIRANTS WANTED FOR CHORAL GROUP

Rev. Robert Boyle, O.S.A. New Moderator; Cash Haggerty Appointed Manager

Under the direction of Rev. Robert Boyle, O. S. A., moderator, the Glee Club has been practicing diligently these past two weeks. However, there are not enough singers in this organization and calls for new members have been posted.

The advent of the new year saw the helm of the Glee Club turned over to Fr. Boyle by the Rev. Charles P. Brown, O. S. A., former moderator, while the position of manager was assumed by Cash W. Haggerty. Paul Teel, leader of the band, assists Fr. Boyle in his duties as moderator.

To the call for new members, 60 aspirants responded and will be given auditions some time in the near future. The members will be selected by quality of voice alone.

Several invitations to sing have been received and when the Glee Club has been whipped into shape they will be accepted. The repertoire of the club is being constantly increased by continuous practice.

Though many have responded to the call for members, there is still room for many more in this organization, and it is urged that all students who have had any experience in this kind of work or who are interested attend the meetings. The Glee Club will meet between five and six o'clock Thursday in the Commerce and Finance Auditorium.

SPANISH GROUP PLANS DEBATES

To Engage Neighboring Schools in Forensic Contests in Foreign Tongue

One of the innovations in the Spanish Club program will be the holding of debates in Spanish, with the neighboring schools. These contests are in the making, and a schedule will be released in the near future. This is the first time in the history of the club and the school that such a thing has been undertaken. It is expected to give diversion from the usual topics taken up at other societies.

This year the Spanish Club has met with great success in its enrollment drive. A thirty-five percent increase over last year has been reported, and the club is functioning in fine order with a good future anticipated.

On this Wednesday evening the Rev. Lorenzo Lonzano, O. S. A., moderator of the society, will express his views on the Pan-American Exhibition at Texas which he visited this past Summer. The talk is to be given in Spanish, but will be spoken in simple language, and slowly, so that everyone can understand. Anyone interested is invited to attend Wednesday's meeting.

Alfredo Melian, member of the Engineering School, and president of this society, is optimistic about the success of the group. He believes that with co-operation it will rise to great heights, and will continue to be one of the most popular societies on the campus.

SEND-OFF TO DETROIT

All Students Requested To Be Present At 5:40 P. M. Thursday

Villanova's Student Council has received permission to hold a send-off for the football team when it leaves for Detroit this Thursday evening at 5:40 P. M. The team and its followers will leave from the Villanova station of the Pennsylvania Railroad. The Student Council has requested that all students be present to see the team off.

Arrangements have been made for the band and cheer leaders to be there to add color to the occasion. The band will be at the station at least 15 minutes before train time so that a fitting send-off can be given our undefeated team. It is urged that everyone be present.

DRAMATIC GROUP TO STAGE PLAYS

Belle Masque Will Present Several One-Act Endeavors Before Thanksgiving

Anticipating one of the most successful years since its inception, the Belle Masque, dramatic society, will stage several one-act plays in the imminent future, the exact date being indeterminable.

In order to insure the success of these plays, Professor Anthony Frayne, moderator of the organization, has divided the club into groups with five or six men to a group. Each will be under the direction of a member of the cast of last year's play, and the group will be in competition with each other.

Particularly inspiring to the leaders of the society has been the large turnout of Freshmen, which exceeds all Freshmen classes. They have shown intense interest in the activity and gave indications of being capable additions.

These plays are being presented as a means of testing the acting ability of the members in preparation for the selection of roles for the next outstanding presentation of Belle Masque, which the society is optimistic of surpassing last year' success, "Journey's End."

Any member of the student body is entitled to try out for the roles for these one-act plays. As has been mentioned no definite date has been set, but it is more than likely that the plays will be staged before the Thanksgiving vacation.

DANCE PLANS ABANDONED

North Jersey Club Drops Thanksgiving Dance Without Giving Reason

Unavoidable circumstances were given as the reason for the deletion of the Thanksgiving dance from the social schedule of the North Jersey Club at the weekly meeting last Tuesday.

President Louis Dubino expressed regret for the course of action he pursued. He stated that the Thanksgiving dance would have been the only Fall dance that a number of the athletes would have been able to attend.

Raymond Manahan and Edward Callendriello, juniors in the School of Commerce and Finance and the Arts Department, respectively, and co-chairman of the dance committee, were thanked for their interest in the affair and commended for their spirit by Dubino.

COLLEGE DEBATERS ARRANGE CONTESTS FOR CURRENT YEAR

Beta Gamma Group Makes Negotiations for Weekly Radio Program

At an exhibition debate at Bridgeport High School last Thursday, Villanova's debating chapter, Betta Gamma, presented the Unicameral question in debate in which the affirmative was credited the winner. Anthony L. Differ, '37, president of Beta Gamma last year, presided at the debate.

The speakers for the affirmative were Pershing Calabro, James M. Quigley, and Thomas E. Delate. The speakers of the negative were William J. Corkill, John L. Simons, and John W. Stahmann.

Appeals To Emotions

The vote may be more than an index of high school opinion on state government. It may help to answer a question much discussed by students on the campus, i. e., which impresses more, eloquence or logic. The affirmative cooly stressed a conclusion based on facts. The negative used fine oratorical phrases, wrapped themselves in the flag, and appealed to the emotions.

A week ago the debating society took the affirmative of the same question on radio station WIP with Swarthmore. Representing Villanova were Frank A. Pimpinella, Joseph McNamara, and Thomas Delate.

Debate St. Joseph's

A debate is scheduled on the radio next Tuesday with St. Josep'i's College on the question: That the National Labor Relations Board should be empowered to settle all industrial disputes. Preparing the affirmative side of this question now are Frederic J. Wat-

College Band Will Journey to Boston for Terrier Game

Entire Group of Sixty Members to Make Trip to Hub City

It has been disclosed by the college authorities that the college band will journey to Boston on November 11, when the Villanova football team meets the strong University of Boston eleven.

The band has been slowly but surely rounding up into top notch condition and though it was not certain that this trip would be made, it was the hope of the band that conditions would be such as would permit their being present at the contest.

No doubt Boston University's invitation to the band influenced in no small part the college authorities' assent. It has been decided that the whole organization of 60 will go.

Already the railroad companies have bid for the transportation but as yet no definite plans have been disclosed.

With this announcement comes the revelation that the band will not go to Detroit.

By JOSEPH BONGIOVANNI

Sponsored by the Christian Front, the Mass of Peace will be celebrated in all Catholic colleges throughout the United States on Sunday, October 31. Starting off two years ago on the Villanova College campus, this movement has received recognition even from the President, who recently sent a letter to the editor of the Christian Front commending the idea.

Begun by Christian Front

Two years ago, Richard Deverall and Norman McKenna, editors of the Christian Front, started the movement with a Mass in the Villanova College chapel. To Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., belongs the distinction of being the first college president to endorse the Mass of Peace Fifty-five college presidents endorsed it in 1936 and in 1937 seventy-five have signified their intention of following their example. Recently the President of the United States wrote to Mr. Deverall saying:

"Any movement which has for its purpose the search for peace should enlist the support of all thoughtful citizens and is most highly to be commended. And only by seeking and following the guidance of the All Highest may we hope to obtain peace among the nations and to receive into our hearts and souls the peace that passeth understanding."

8:30 Mass at Villanova

At Villanova, the Mass of Peace will be celebrated at the regular 8:30 Mass in the college chapel. It is to a Missa Cantata and the celebrant will be Rev. Bernard M. Albers, O. S. A., vice president of the college. The Rev. Edward M. Dwyer, O. S. A., a new member Committee Discusses Events

The many events were discussed by the committee of the Sophomore class. The greased-pig race, one of the main events, caused a great deal of discussion which terminated in the decision to allow the pig a chance to run. It has been the habit of the past to forget to give the pig a chance to run. The result has been that the pig just sits down.

The football game and the greased pole event have been called off and other games will take their places. The tug-of-war, which is the main event on the program, will be held at the pond. Novelty events are being planned for the occasion.

Sophomores and Freshmen alike have realized that by unity alone can the Field Day be a success. It is the urgent desire of the Sopho-

PAX

IN scores of Catholic colleges throughout the United States, this coming Sunday morning, the Feast of Christ, the King, faculties and students are offering up their corporate prayer to the King of the Universe for peace: the peace of Christ in the reign of Christ.

The Preface for the Mass celebrated this Sunday reads, in part: "Our Lord Jesus Christ, the eternal Priest and universal King . . . might deliver up to thine infinite majesty . . . a kingdom of justice, love, and peace."

American Catholic students realize that there can be no peace without Christ. They realize that there can be no peace with justice and love absent.

Benedict XV, in his notable Encyclical Pacem Dei Munus Pulcherrimum proclaims that, ". . . no peace can have consistency, no alliance can have strength, though elaborated in daily laborious conferences and solemnly sanctioned, if at the same time hatred and enmities are not quenched by means of reconciliation based on mutual charity."

The men who met at Versailles to create "peace" for Europe ruled from their council chambers the just, the charitable, the peaceful Christ. They brought peace to Europe by burdening the German and other allied powers with the most unjust and inequitable payments. These "peaceful" diplomats thrust the spurred boot of malice into the face of the prostrate Central powers when they made them accept total war guilt for a war which was caused just as much by Russia and France as it was by Austria-Hungary and Germany.

Greed, hatred, enmity: that was the spirit of Versailles. And it has been the spirit animating Europe ever since.

Foolish princes; foolish premiers; foolish people—they thought they could have peace without Christ. Is it any wonder that today there are wars and rumors of wars everywhere? Is it any wonder that the people of the world are being bled white to satiate the lust of the war god and, incidentally, fill the coffers of the munitions makers?

To achieve a lasting, real peace, we must first have justice among nations. But justice alone cannot of itself give us peace. We have an international amity, a desire for the good of all the nations of the world. Justice and love, unfortunately, seem to be utterly foreign to our warmad world.

The first step toward international peace is, somehow, to subdue the violent nationalism that everywhere prevails. Nations must realize that they are only members of an international community. That community, today resembles an arena filled with wild-eyed, blood-thirsty beasts. A League of Nations founded on the Christian law in all that regards justice and charity is the need of the hour. It is the only hope of the world. It is the only hope because it recognizes that without Christ there can never be lasting, true peace.

It is therefore most significant that Catholic college youth this Sunday makes preparation to pray to Christ for peace. May those who rule nations realize what Catholic youth realizes: without Christ, there can never be lasting, true peace.

AD USUM

THE public telephones in Austin and Fedigan halls have been abused so much here of late that the authorities of the Bell Telephone Company have threatened to remove their instruments from the offending dormitories. Time and time again the company has sent its warnings to the college. Time and time again they have threatened to deprive the students of this convenience they insist upon abusing.

The telephones in the college dormitories are not the property of the college but of The Bell Telephone. As such they are part of a public property and must be considered as such. Students who abuse the instruments placed in the dormitories for their convenience must realize that in tampering with them they are violating public rights.

Most students realize that the telephone is a very necessary convenience which we should all like to keep within our reach. It hardly seems fair for those feeble minded few who in a childish glee turn the phones to the wall and otherwise abuse them should be the cause of having them taken away from those students who realize that the phones are not there for them to abuse.

Let us stop this nonsense and keep these instruments in our dormitories. The Bell Telephone will not stand abuse of their property.

WALKING

WHEN God made the World, he created spots that were so rich in beauty that men have come to look upon them as garden spots. He created the Grand Canyon; He created the Emerald fields and hills of Ireland; he created the dizzy Alps; He created the beautiful blue bay of Capri; He created the sirocco-kissed hills of California; and, amongst these other beauty spots, He created Villanova.

We, here at Villanova, are a bit too close to Villanova and the surrounding terrain to appreciate the beauty of this spot.

Rolling country, farms, estates, hills, streams, trees, birds all centre about Villanova and conspire to make it one of the most beautiful college campuses in the United States.

If you don't believe it, get out for a walk next Sunday. Instead of puttering around in your room in a fruitless bull session, get out and take the air.

Get out for a long walk. And go often!

ODDS and ENDS

By Tom O'Mahoney

DESPITE the fact that this is not Spring, that well known emotion still sweeps the campus. It seems that there is a certain young lady, in attendance at a nearby college, who is being pursued by no less than four Austinites. They must be in earnest, for they banded together to buy the said young lady a ring; one ring, with the good wishes of all four symbolized by the band. We couldn't quite find out for you just how the ring was presented to the lucky girl, but we do know some of its history. Source, Woolworth's; cost, what would you expect from Austin Hall? One of the owners, a mercenary soul named Dwyer, sold his interest in the ring for two cup cakes. The other three are, at this writing, busily scheming among themselves for sole rights. How about the girl who is wearing it now?

Incidentally, Matt Phelan doesn't like the situation a bit.

A few of our freshmen have formed an interesting league. Over in Alumni Hall, Art Somers and Cash Haggerty have formed an exclusive little club with the interesting name "Turtle Association." They've already run into trouble within the ranks, however. William Burk is on the temporary blacklist at present. The entrance committee asserts that he refuses to get on his knees during ritual.

ON THE CAMPUS

With The Class Of '41: According to the sophomores, Ted Healy tops the freshmen class social lights. Brevity: George Mawbey broke all existing records when he reviewed a 19 page "novel". What Ever Became Of: The Burlington Progressive Association? Or the Fedigan Dawn Patrol? After Dinner Spots: The Alumni Hall gym, before the intramural basketball games. Three-piece band, entertainment by the players. By the way, Austin's team is thinking of having the slogan "Quantity, if not Quality" sewn on their shirts. Tim Waad is running out of first team uniforms. So far, 37 blue suits have been issued. And still Fedigan won!

AND A LONE COMMUNITY NOTE:

Villanova's anonymous critic will rear up and write another letter denouncing the students' manners today. Just to keep up to schedule.

AT THE University of Minnesota there is an atom-smashing machine which may soon rival the projectors of the mythical Buck Rogers era. By means of the cyclotron, the high voltage necessary for atom-smashing is obtained. These high voltages are the "gunpowder" used in shooting a bullet into the nucleus or heart of the atom.

THE OBSERVER

WELL, well — we have some real news this week. We hear that Uncle John Donahue's dramatic society, the Belle Masque, is getting ready to present a new play for Villanova College. "Sleeping Beauty," we understand, is the name of the proposed production. Uncle John, president-by-acclamation of the Villanova Horizontal Club of 1937-1938, is going to play the leading role of "Sleeping Beauty." The main requirement of the role is that the sleeping beauty —Uncle John Donahue—sleep at least fifteen hours a day. Uncle John, of course, finds no difficulty in amply meeting that requirement.

When we reached Uncle John the other day for a statement, he gave us a brilliant description of his new role. Said Uncle John, as he turned over and started to snore again: "Ho, hum. . . ." I'll bet it's going to be a wow of a show!

Did you notice the articles appearing on the front page of last week's VILLANOVAN? German clubs, Study Clubs in Social Science, a History Seminar, a Music Seminar—all sorts of activity on the campus that speaks highly of faculty and student body. We understand that these new campus organizations are receiving enthusiastic support from all concerned. May they prosper.

The Observer received another letter from the mysterious letter-writer on the campus who is so concerned about the "manners" of the students. We print the text of the note exactly as we received it.

Villanova College,
Villanova Penn'a
October 19, 1937

Dear Mr. Observer:

How "our good editor-in-chief" and you, Mr. Observer, misunderstood me. That I resented, so let's understand ourselves right away.

In my letter to "our good editor-in-chief," a copy of which I have before me, I did not refer to the students here at Villanova as animals. Neither did I infer such a thing. If you, dear Mr. Observer, will re-read my letter you will see that I said, "For personal reasons I would like to keep my identity a secret. If for any reason you deem it necessary for me to reveal my true identity I shall be glad to do so." I said nothing about refusing said identity unless I was given a column.

Just to point out a definite example of how our misunderstood let me refer to the following. In the heretofor mentioned letter I did not think, or state, that I was better able to write such a column then members of your staff, I merely stated my experience with the subject in question, namely that of etiquette. There is not a doubt in my mind that you have better writers on your staff and with more experience in writing for a newspaper than I have or that I shall ever hope to have.

Once again I would like to say I'm sorry this misunderstanding happened and that I meant no offence to anyone. I also hope you get the true meaning of my letter. Thanking you again for your time, and consideration(?)

I remain
Most sincerely
Blackstone, Jr.
(Signed)

P. S. You will note I cut my name off the top of this paper, again for personal reasons.

Fifth Ave.

And that, dear readers, is the second mysterious note received from the campus Emily Post. Unfortunately for the lad, he calls himself Blackstone. We think he meant Chesterfield, Jr., for Blackstone was a lawyer, not a gentleman by profession. And it is quite obvious from the lack of punctuation, and other curious features of the letter written by Blackstone, Jr., that "the pen is no writer."

Be that as it may, we want to express to Blackstone, Jr., our deepest appreciation and sincere thanks for taking the trouble to write to the poor old Observer. Blackstone, Jr., you are more of a gentleman than you think you are!

Seriously, we think that this lad has something to say. And he has started something. Many of us resented the technique he employed. And many of us do question the un-proved assertion that we lack manners.

What are manners? What is a gentleman?

Blackstone, Jr., why not prepare a two page column for us. Write on what you think a gentleman is. Tell us what "manners" are. Send it to the Observer, care of Joe Toland, Editor-in-Chief, and we'll give you all the space you deserve.

Never let it be said that anyone started something that the Observer couldn't finish!

Incidentally, did you hear about Charlie Cooke lately, fellows? The Crisco Kid has taken up fan dancing. Let us hope that he never does any fan dancing near an open light. He might blow up.

"SACRISTA" WRITES HISTORY OF ORDER

Vatican Vicar General Has Published Many Works on Augustinians

Bishop Alphonsus Camillo de Romanis, who has been appointed "Sacrista" of His Holiness Pope Pius I and Vicar General of Vatican City, has published several highly-appreciated works on the history of the Augustinians, of which community he is a member. Among them and particularly notable is his study on St. Augustine published on the occasion of the 15th centenary of his death.

Bishop de Romanis was born in 1885 at Genazzano, a little town near Rome, where the Augustinians have their celebrated Sanctuary of Our Lady of Good Counsel. In 1901, he took his religious vows in the Augustinian community and in 1917 was ordained. He held various offices in the community, among them Provincial of the Province of Rome.

In 1934, when the new parish of Santa Prisca was erected in Rome, he was its first parish-priest, an office which he held until his elevation to the dignity of Pope's "Sacrista."

The new "Sacrista" has had very friendly relations with the greater number of the journalists of Rome, because there is a quarter in his former parish inhabited by all the journalists. His appointment was applauded in the Roman Press.

The office of "Sacrista" through very ancient tradition has always been conferred on a monk of the Augustinian Order. Up to May, 1929, this office, which really corresponds to the custody of the Papal Sacristies, was united with that of parish-priest of the Sacred Apostolic Palaces. But at that time, in consequence of the Lateran Peace Treaty between Italy and the Holy See and of the constitution of the State of the Vatican City, the Holy Father detached all the territory of this State from the Diocese of Rome, and with it, constituted a new, ecclesiastical jurisdiction under his direct and immediate dependence.

In this territory he constituted a new Vicariate-General distinct from that entrusted to the Cardinal Vicar General of Rome, and handed it over to his "Sacrista." At the same time he constituted in the Vatican City a parish separated from the office of "Sacrista" and gave it as seat, the Church of Sant' Anna, within the boundaries of the Vatican, confiding it also to Augustinian religious.

RADIO AND THE THEATER

By LEN FLINKMAN.

PREMIERE: Ida (Mrs. Eddie) Cantor, after 30 years on the fringe of the show business, is finally breaking down and will make her professional debut. Her bow-in won't be with Eddie, however. It took George Jessel to lure her before an audience. She guests on Jessel's Mutual co-operative commercial on October 31. The station in Philadelphia is WFIL.

BROADWAY: Last Saturday night, among other places, we got a load of the new International Casino. . . nice little city. Girls come out of trap doors, the sides, the ceilings, every place but the entrances. George Olsen is there now and we are convinced now more than ever that his dance rhythms certainly are ticklish. However what we want to know, while we still are on the subject of N. Y., is, what two Villanova students were called "Ray" and "Cooky Pusher" by two danceland girls?

PRISON CYCLE: Saw the picture "Alcatraz Island," which is quite evidently written around Scarface Al Catraz. We also saw the Warner Bros. "San Quentin" and "Devils Island." So we have an economic suggestion for them—why not rent studio space in the Tombs, shoot their stories there and just change the titles like, "Auburn Merry-Go-Round," "Sing Sing Syncopation" and "Folsom Follies."

ONE IN A MILLION: Tonight Sonja Henie is guest star with Al Jolson making one of her rare radio appearances.

SWITCH: Pepsodent, at the present time, is auditioning the Mickey Mouse air show with a view toward using it as a replacement for Amos 'n' Andy after the first of the year. Raymond Paige was the original choice for musical director, with Meredith Wilson handling the audition. Neither will be able to accept as each now will wave a baton on two transcontinental commercials. Amos 'n' Andy will swing to the Campbell Soup at the turn of the year.

BIGGER AND BETTER: Latest case of payroll jitters at NBC has developed a believe-it-or-not case. On Friday last, one secretary, Diana Miller got a raise at 11 A. M. in her pay envelope. At noon she got the pink slip!

COLLEGE CAPERS: We see by the press releases that the American Tobacco Company is sponsoring a daily five minute program of news from Yale University. Undergraduates appear on the program with Edwin C. Hill and "Mac" Parker. Suggestion: How about a daily or weekly program of news from the Villanova campus?

STARLINES: Kate Smith is one of radio's few singing mistresses-of-ceremonies. She was born in Greenville, Va., and has been singing since childhood. Work in the church choir led her to neighborhood theatricals. Did her bit by singing songs to encamped soldiers in 1917. At an early age she appeared in several musical comedies, namely, "Flying High," and "Hit the Deck." From there she went to radio via her discoverer, Ted Collins. Both struck up a partnership which has been active ever since, known as Kated, Inc. She's on the air from 8:00 to 9:00 P. M. on Thursdays over C. B. S.

ANNIVERSARY: This coming Thursday, Rudy Vallee, discoverer of many stage, screen, and radio stars, will celebrate his eighth anniversary with Fleischmann's Yeast Company. To help celebrate this event, there will be a host of headliners, who graduated from Rudy's program to spots of their own. Among the alumni returning are Joe Penner, comedian; Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy; and others. Rudy is a perennial headliner and has been at the top of the profession for a number of years, while other bandmasters have come and gone. In addition to his musical ability, Rudy is definitely a scholar and has attended Yale University and Maine. His college training helps him considerably in his every-day work. This column extends to Rudy hearty congratulations on his anniversary and wishes him many more. He is truly a master showman.

AWARD: Guy Lombardo's orchestra, which is heard every Sunday evening at 5:30 P. M over the Columbia Broadcasting Network, was recently named the recipient of the Distinguished Award to Radio by the Radio Guide. This speaks highly of the Lombardos but they are worthy of the honor. Their music is entirely different from any other band and resorts to smooth, suave music, which appeals immensely to the listeners. Congratulations, Guy.

"WHISPERING RHYTHM": A new type of music, which promises to be sensational, will be heard in the "Big time" this coming Spring. The originator of the "whispering rhythm" is Brad Reynolds, who is now on a barnstorming tour throughout the Mid-West. To the best of our knowledge, the only lad on the campus who has heard anything about Reynolds is our fellow staff member, Robert Howe. HOWEver—ooh!—this new type of rhythm will sweep the country and be the new rave. Swing, watch out!

GOOD ENTERTAINMENT: The Chesterfield program starring Hal Kemp's orchestra and the blonde cinemactress, beautiful Alice Faye. Kemp and Miss Faye combine to present 30 minutes of good, clean entertainment. Kemp's band is one of the most sought after aggregations for leading college proms. Miss Faye rose to the top the hard way, but can thank Rudy Vallee for her present starring position. It was Rudy who first saw Miss Faye and gave her an opportunity. Then she rose to fame. This program is heard every Friday at 8:30 P. M. over the C. B. S.

SUCCESS STORY: It took Horace Heidt approximately 13 years to climb to the envious position of possessing one of the most danceable dance bands in the country. For thirteen years, Heidt played wherever he could and whenever he could. Then suddenly a break came his way and Heidt capitalized on it. With that break he literally catapulted to fame. However, Heidt hasn't forgotten those hard times he had and is always willing to help out somebody who gives him a hard-luck story. Featured on his program over the Columbia Network are the King Sisters, charming delineators of smooth, smart syncopations. Of the quartet, Yvonne is most pleasing to the eye as well as the ear.

A. I. E. E. PLANS TRIPS

To Visit Franklin Institute, Bell Telephone Company, and Others

Villanova's branch of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers returned October 17 from the students' convention at Akron, O. Here they were the guests of the Alpha Sigma Omicron Fraternity.

Among the many points of interest during the convention were the trips to the Ohio Brass Company and the General Electric at Mela Park. Freshmen and Sophomores are urged to join the society and attend regularly the meetings held every other Monday in the Amphitheatre.

Many inspection trips have been planned for the near future. The first will be a trip to the Franklin Institute. Other tours under consideration are to the Bell Telephone, Philadelphia Electric and the Farnsworth Television Company.

Introducing—

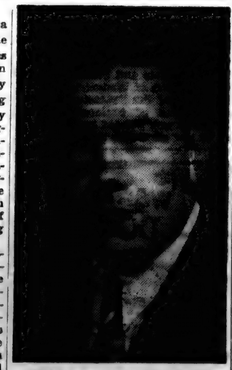
By HARRY McGLADE JR.

There is one on the Villanova campus whose colorful collegiate career is paralleled only by his achievements in the secondary schools of Long Island. Henry S. Guckenberger was the center of a multiplicity of extra-curricular activities in the Hicksville High School of Hicksville, Long Island.

Henry attained quite an enviable record while attending Hicksville High. He was president of the senior class, member of the football team for four years, a baseball player for three years, manager of the basketball team, sports editor of the "Comet"—Hicksville High School paper, and quite an enthusiastic participant in school dramatics.

Upon his matriculation into Villanova College, Henry eagerly continued to heap more honors on the name of Guckenberger, thus allowing himself to become an important and dynamic figure in carrying on the tradition that is closely allied with Villanova's extra-curricular activities.

Henry again began his public career in his sophomore year. He was appointed a member of the Vigilance Committee. It was as a member of this committee that he proved that he was a capable and efficient manager of men. Perhaps this led to his becoming manager of the football team in later years. Henry is co-senior manager of the football team and is performing his duties with his usual strict observance of the college rules and regulations.



HENRY C. GUCKENBERGER

The following year he was elected secretary of the Junior Class. He was successful in this position and he was re-elected to the post in his senior year. Besides being secretary of the class, Henry is a loyal follower of the class during inter-mural contests. He is a member of the class baseball (soft ball) team.

Although he is quite engrossed in work, Henry does not neglect his spiritual duties. His chapel record meets with the approval of the authorities and he is a member of the Holy Name Society.

All great men and Henry C. Guckenberger seek diversion in various hobbies. Henry has supplied himself with two hobbies that consume all of his spare time. During the week he may be found playing pinochle with "Art" Raimo. The other diversion, by far the most important, is making week-end trips to Germantown.

Villanova is soon going to lose this man who has proven his metal in such diverse fields of endeavor. The football team is going to lose its able and efficient manager and the senior class a man whose highest ambition is to make the acquaintance of Shirley Temple on his trip to the West Coast.

STAFF MEETING

There will be a meeting of the entire VILLANOVAN staff in the office, 119 Mendel Hall, today at 1:00 P. M. All members, as well as freshman candidates, are requested to be present on time.

TO ATTEND MEETING

Paetrus F. Banmiller, Registrar of Villanova College, will attend a meeting of the Joint Conference of Secondary and Higher Education Administrators on Thursday, October 28, at Harrisburg, Pa.

FROSH, ATTENTION!

Sheer irony — freshman at the University of Michigan are no longer required to wear "pots." But the Class of '41 has donned them again in an effort to unify the class in order to win the class games from the sophomores.

Students who abuse the instruments placed in the dormitories for their convenience must realize that in tampering with them they are violating public rights.

Most students realize that the telephone is a very necessary convenience which we should all like to keep within our reach. It hardly seems fair for those feeble minded few who in a childish glee turn the phones to the wall and otherwise abuse them should be the cause of having them taken away from those students who realize that the phones are not there for them to abuse.

Let us stop this nonsense and keep these instruments in our dormitories. The Bell Telephone will not stand abuse of their property.

WALKING

WHEN God made the World, he created spots that were so rich in beauty that men have come to look upon them as garden spots. He created the Grand Canyon; He created the Emerald fields and hills of Ireland; he created the dizzy Alps; He created the beautiful blue bay of Capri; He created the sirocco-kissed hills of California; and, amongst these other beauty spots, He created Villanova.

We, here at Villanova, are a bit too close to Villanova and the surrounding terrain to appreciate the beauty of this spot.

Rolling country, farms, estates, hills, streams, trees, birds all centre about Villanova and conspire to make it one of the most beautiful college campuses in the United States.

If you don't believe it, get out for a walk next Sunday. Instead of puttering around in your room in a fruitless bull session, get out and take the air.

Get out for a long walk. And go often!

ODDS and ENDS

By Tom O'Mahoney

DESPITE the fact that this is not Spring, that well known emotion still sweeps the campus. It seems that there is a certain young lady, in attendance at a nearby college, who is being pursued by no less than four Austinites. They must be in earnest, for they banded together to buy the said young lady a ring; one ring, with the good wishes of all four symbolized by the band. We couldn't quite find out for you just how the ring was presented to the lucky girl, but we do know some of its history. Source, Woolworth's; cost, what would you expect from Austin Hall? One of the owners, a mercenary soul named Dwyer, sold his interest in the ring for two cup cakes. The other three are, at this writing, busily scheming among themselves for sole rights. How about the girl who is wearing it now?

Incidentally, Matt Phelan doesn't like the situation a bit.

A few of our freshmen have formed an interesting league. Over in Alumni Hall, Art Somers and Cash Haggerty have formed an exclusive little club with the interesting name "Turtle Association." They've already run into trouble within the ranks, however. William Burk is on the temporary blacklist at present. The entrance committee asserts that he refuses to get on his knees during ritual.

ON THE CAMPUS

With The Class Of '41: According to the sophomores, Ted Healy tops the freshmen class social lights. Brevity: George Mawbey broke all existing records when he reviewed a 19 page "novel", What Ever Became Of: The Burlington Progressive Association? Or the Fedigan Dawn Patrol? After Dinner Spots: The Alumni Hall gym, before the intramural basketball games. Three-piece band, entertainment by the players. By the way, Austin's team is thinking of having the slogan "Quantity, if not Quality" sewn on their shirts. Tim Wand is running out of first team uniforms. So far, 37 blue suits have been issued. And still Fedigan won!

AND A LONE COMMUNITY NOTE:

Villanova's anonymous critic will rear up and write another letter denouncing the students' manners today. Just to keep up to schedule.

AT THE University of Minnesota there is an atom-smashing machine which may soon rival the projectors of the mythical Buck Rogers era. By means of the cyclotron, the high voltage necessary for atom-smashing is obtained. These high voltages are the "gunpowder" used in shooting a bullet into the nucleus or heart of the atom.

THE OBSERVER

WELL, well — we have some real news this week. We hear that Uncle John Donahue's dramatic society, the Belle Masque, is getting ready to present a new play for Villanova College. "Sleeping Beauty," we understand, is the name of the proposed production. Uncle John, president-by-acclamation of the Villanova Horizontal Club of 1937-1938, is going to play the leading role of "Sleeping Beauty." The main requirement of the role is that the sleeping beauty —Uncle John Donahue—sleep at least fifteen hours a day. Uncle John, of course, finds no difficulty in amply meeting that requirement.

When we reached Uncle John the other day for a statement, he gave us a brilliant description of his new role. Said Uncle John, as he turned over and started to snore again: "Ho, hum. . . ." I'll bet it's going to be a wow of a show!

Did you notice the articles appearing on the front page of last week's VILLANOVAN? German clubs, Study Clubs in Social Science, a History Seminar, a Music Seminar—all sorts of activity on the campus that speaks highly of faculty and student body. We understand that these new campus organizations are receiving enthusiastic support from all concerned. May they prosper.

We were chatting with a priest the other day about the Negro problem and he gave us, we thought, the best answer to the entire problem. He said: A white man has a soul. A Negro has a soul. Before God both are equal. Therefore, there is no race problem. If we think a problem exists, it is because we have "created" one. That is our fault.

The Observer received another letter from the mysterious letter-writer on the campus who is so concerned about the "manners" of the students. We print the text of the note exactly as we received it.

Villanova College,
Villanova Penn'a
October 19, 1937

Dear Mr. Observer:

How "our good editor-in-chief" and you, Mr. Observer, misunderstood me. That I resented, so let's understand ourselves right away.

In my letter to "our good editor-in-chief," a copy of which I have before me, I did not refer to the students here at Villanova as animals. Neither did I infer such a thing. If you, dear Mr. Observer, will re-read my letter you will see that I said, "For personal reasons I would like to keep my identity a secret. If for any reason you deem it necessary for me to reveal my true identity I shall be glad to do so." I said nothing about refuseing said identity unless I was given a column.

Just to point out a definite example of how our misunderstood let me refer to the following. In the heretofor mentioned letter I did not think, or state, that I was better able to write such a column then members of your staff, I merely stated my experience with the subject in question, namely that of etiquette. There is not a doubt in my mind that you have better writers on your staff and with more experience in writing for a newspaper than I have, or that I shall ever hope to have.

Once again I would like to say I'm sorry this misunderstanding happened and that I meant no offence to anyone. I also hope you get the true meaning of my letter. Thanking you again for your time, and consideration(?)

I remain
Most sincerly
Blackstone, Jr.
(Signed)

P. S. You will note I cut my name off the top of this paper, again for personal reasons.

Fifth Ave. New York

And that, dear readers, is the second mysterious note received from the campus Emily Post. Unfortunately for the lad, he calls himself Blackstone. We think he meant Chesterfield, Jr., for Blackstone was a lawyer, not a gentleman by profession. And it is quite obvious from the lack of punctuation, and other curious features of the letter written by Blackstone, Jr., that "the gent is no writer."

Be that as it may, we want to express to Blackstone, Jr., our deepest appreciation and sincere thanks for taking the trouble to write to the poor old Observer. Blackstone, Jr., you are more of a gentleman than you think you are!

Seriously, we think that this lad has something to say. And he has started something. Many of us resented the technique he employed. And many of us do question the un-proved assertion that we lack manners.

What are manners? What is a gentleman?

Blackstone, Jr., why not prepare a two page column for us. Write on what you think a gentleman is. Tell us what "manners" are. Send it to the Observer, care of Joe Toland, Editor-in-Chief, and we'll give you all the space you deserve.

Never let it be said that anyone started something that the Observer couldn't finish!

Incidentally, did you hear about Charlie Cooke lately, fellows? The Crisco Kid has taken up fan dancing. Let us hope that he never does any fan dancing near an open light. He might blow up.

"SACRISTA" WRITES HISTORY OF ORDER

Vatican Vicar General Has Published Many Works on Augustinians

Bishop Alphonsus Camillo de Romanis, who has been appointed "Sacrista" of His Holiness Pope Pius I and Vicar General of Vatican City, has published several highly-appreciated works on the history of the Augustinians, of which community he is a member. Among them and particularly notable is his study on St. Augustine published on the occasion of the 15th centenary of his death.

Bishop de Romanis was born in 1885 at Genazzano, a little town near Rome, where the Augustinians have their celebrated Sanctuary of Our Lady of Good Counsel. In 1901, he took his religious vows in the Augustinian community and in 1917 was ordained. He held various offices in the community, among them Provincial of the Province of Rome.

In 1934, when the new parish of Santa Prisca was erected in Rome, he was its first parish-priest, an office which he held until his elevation to the dignity of Pope's "Sacrista."

The new "Sacrista" has had very friendly relations with the greater number of the journalists of Rome, because there is a quarter in his former parish inhabited by all the journalists. His appointment was applauded in the Roman Press.

The office of "Sacrista" through very ancient tradition has always been conferred on a monk of the Augustinian Order. Up to May, 1929, this office, which really corresponds to the custody of the Papal Sacristies, was united with that of parish-priest of the Sacred Apostolic Palaces. But at that time, in consequence of the Lateran Peace Treaty between Italy and the Holy See and of the constitution of the State of the Vatican City, the Holy Father detached all the territory of this State from the Diocese of Rome, and with it, constituted a new, ecclesiastical jurisdiction under his direct and immediate dependence.

In this territory he constituted a new Vicariate-General distinct from that entrusted to the Cardinal Vicar General of Rome, and handed it over to his "Sacrista." At the same time he constituted in the Vatican City a parish separated from the office of "Sacrista" and gave it as seat, the Church of Sant' Anna, within the boundaries of the Vatican, confiding it also to Augustinian religious.

RADIO AND THE THEATER

By LEN FLINKMAN.

PREMIERE: Ida (Mrs. Eddie) Cantor, after 30 years on the fringe of the show business, is finally breaking down and will make her professional debut. Her bow-in won't be with Eddie, however. It took George Jessel to lure her before an audience. She guests on Jessel's Mutual co-operative commercial on October 31. The station in Philadelphia is WFIL.

BROADWAY: Last Saturday night, among other places, we got a load of the new International Casino, . . nice little city. Girls come out of trap doors, the sides, the ceilings, every place but the entrances. George Olsen is there now and we are convinced now more than ever that his dance rhythms certainly are tickilish. However what we want to know, while we still are on the subject of N. Y., is, what two Villanova students were called "Ray" and "Cooky Pusher" by two dancelend girls?

PRISON CYCLE: Saw the picture "Alcatraz Island," which is quite evidently written around Scarface Al Catraz. We also saw the Warner Bros. "San Quentin" and "Devils Island." So we have an economic suggestion for them—why not rent studio space in the Tombs, shoot their stories there and just change the titles like, "Auburn Merry-Go-Round," "Sing Sing Syncopation" and "Folsom Follies."

ONE IN A MILLION: Tonight Sonja Henie is guest star with Al Jolson making one of her rare radio appearances.

SWITCH: Pesodent, at the present time, is auditioning the Mickey Mouse air show with a view toward using it as a replacement for Amos 'n' Andy after the first of the year. Raymond Paige was the original choice for musical director, with Meredith Wilson handling the audition. Neither will be able to accept as each now will wave a baton on two transcontinental commercials. Amos 'n' Andy will swing to the Campbell Soup at the turn of the year.

BIGGER AND BETTER: Latest case of payroll jitters at NBC has developed a believe-it-or-not case. On Friday last, one secretary, Diana Miller got a raise at 11 A. M. in her pay envelope. At noon she got the pink slip!

COLLEGE CAPERS: We see by the press releases that the American Tobacco Company is sponsoring a daily five minute program of news from Yale University. Undergraduates appear on the program with Edwin C. Hill and "Mac" Parker. Suggestion: How about a daily or weekly program of news from the Villanova campus?

STARLINES: Kate Smith is one of radio's few singing mistresses-of-ceremonies. She was born in Greenville, Va., and has been singing since childhood. Work in the church choir led her to neighborhood theatricals. Did her bit by singing songs to encamped soldiers in 1917. At an early age she appeared in several musical comedies, namely, "Flying High," and "Hit the Deck." From there she went to radio via her discoverer, Ted Collins. Both struck up a partnership which has been active ever since. Known as Kated, Inc, She's on the air from 8:00 to 9:00 P. M. on Thursdays over C. B. S.

ANNIVERSARY: This coming Thursday, Rudy Vallee, discoverer of many stage, screen, and radio stars, will celebrate his eighth anniversary with Fleischmann's Yeast Company. To help celebrate this event, there will be a host of headliners, who graduated from Rudy's program to spots of their own. Among the alumni returning are Joe Penner, comedian; Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy; and others. Rudy is a perennial headliner and has been at the top of the profession for a number of years, while other bandmasters have come and gone. In addition to his musical ability, Rudy is definitely a scholar and has attended Yale University and Maine. His college training helps him considerably in his every-day work. This column extends to Rudy hearty congratulations on his anniversary and wishes him many more. He is truly a master showman.

AWARD: Guy Lombardo's orchestra, which is heard every Sunday evening at 5:30 P. M over the Columbia Broadcasting Network, was recently named the recipient of the Distinguished Award to Radio by the Radio Guide. This speaks highly of the Lombardos but they are worthy of the honor. Their music is entirely different from any other band and resorts to smooth, suave music, which appeals immensely to the listeners. Congratulations, Guy.

"WHISPERING RHYTHM": A new type of music, which promises to be sensational, will be heard in the "big time" this coming Spring. The originator of the "whispering rhythm" is Brad Reynolds, who is now on a barnstorming tour throughout the Mid-West. To the best of our knowledge, the only lad on the campus who has heard anything about Reynolds is our fellow staff member, Robert Howe. HOWEver—ooh!—this new type of rhythm will sweep the country and be the new rave. Swing, watch out!

GOOD ENTERTAINMENT: The Chesterfield program starring Hal Kemp's orchestra and the blonde cinemactress, beautiful Alice Faye, Kemp and Miss Faye combine to present 30 minutes of good, clean entertainment. Kemp's band is one of the most sought after aggregations for leading college proms. Miss Faye rose to the top the hard way, but can thank Rudy Vallee for her present starring position. It was Rudy who first saw Miss Faye and gave her an opportunity. Then she rose to fame. This program is heard every Friday at 8:30 P. M. over the C. B. S

SUCCESS STORY: It took Horace Heidt approximately 13 years to climb to the envious position of possessing one of the most danceable dance bands in the country. For thirteen years, Heidt played wherever he could and whenever he could. Then suddenly a break came his way and Heidt capitalized on it. With that break he literally catapulted to fame. However, Heidt hasn't forgotten those hard times he had and is always willing to help out somebody who gives him a hard-luck story. Featured on his program over the Columbia Network are the King Sisters, charming delineators of smooth, smart syncopations. Of the quartet, Yvonne is most pleasing to the eye as well as the ear.

FROSH, ATTENTION!

Sheer irony — freshman at the University of Michigan are no longer required to wear "pots." But the Class of '41 has donned them again in an effort to unify the class in order to win the class games from the sophomores.

A. I. E. E. PLANS TRIPS

To Visit Franklin Institute, Bell Telephone Company, and Others

Villanova's branch of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers returned October 17 from the students' convention at Akron, O. Here they were the guests of the Alpha Sigma Omicron Fraternity.

Among the many points of interest during the convention were the trips to the Ohio Brass Company and the General Electric at Mela Park. Freshmen and Sophomores are urged to join the society and attend regularly the meetings held every other Monday in the Amphitheatre.

Many inspection trips have been planned for the near future. The first will be a trip to the Franklin Institute. Other tours under consideration are to the Bell Telephone, Philadelphia Electric and the Farnsworth Television Companies.

Introducing

By HARRY McGLADE JR.

There is one on the Villanova campus whose colorful collegiate career is paralleled only by his achievements in the secondary schools of Long Island. Henry S. Guckenberger was the center of a multiplicity of extra-curricular activities in the Hicksville High School of Hicksville, Long Island.

Henry attained quite an enviable record while attending Hicksville High. He was president of the senior class, member of the football team for four years, a basketball player for three years, manager of the basketball team, sports editor of the "Comet"—Hicksville High School paper, and quite an enthusiastic participant in school dramatics.

Upon his matriculation into Villanova College, Henry eagerly continued to heap more honors on the name of Guckenberger, thus allowing himself to become an important and dynamic figure in carrying on the tradition that is closely allied with Villanova's extra-curricular activities.

Henry again began his public career in his sophomore year. He was appointed a member of the Vigilance Committee. It was as a member of this committee that he proved that he was a capable and efficient manager of men. Perhaps this led to his becoming manager of the football team in later years. Henry is co-senior manager of the football team and is performing his duties with his usual strict observance of the college rules and regulations.

The following year he was elected secretary of the Junior Class. He was sucessful in this position and he was re-elected to the post in his senior year. Besides being secretary of the class, Henry is a loyal follower of the class during inter-mural contests. He is a member of the class baseball (soft ball) team.

Although he is quite engrossed in work, Henry does not neglect his spiritual duties. His chapel record meets with the approval of the authorities and he is a member of the Holy Name Society.

All great men and Henry C. Guckenberger seek diversion in various hobbies. Henry has supplied himself with two hobbies that consume all of his spare time. During the week he may be found playing pinochle with "Art" Raimo. The other diversion, by far the most important, is making weekend trips to Germantown.

Villanova is soon going to lose this man who has proven his metal in such diverse fields of endeavor. The football team is going to lose its able and efficient manager and the senior class a man whose highest ambition is to make the acquaintance of Shirley Temple on his trip to the West Coast.

STAFF MEETING

There will be a meeting of the entire VILLANOVAN staff in the office, 119 Mendel Hall, today at 1:00 P. M. All members, as well as freshman candidates, are requested to be present on time.

TO ATTEND MEETING

Paetrus F. Bandoller, Pennsylvania of Villanova College, will attend a meeting of the Joint Conference of Secondary and Higher Education Administrators on Thursday, October 28, at Harrisburg, Pa.

RESEARCH SEMINAR SELECTS CHAIRMAN FOR ENSUING YEAR

Irving E. Uram, Senior Science Student, to Head New Organization

MEMBERSHIP STILL OPEN

Irving E. Uram, senior Science student, was elected chairman of the Research Seminar, at the organization's first official meeting last week.

Lively interest and discussion by a large attendance of science students dominated the evening.

Reports Are Given

Four reports were given at that time by upper classmen of the Science school, which was a direct application of the aim of the organization; namely, to present matters of scientific nature to the members in the event that a germ for research may be sowed among them.

Bernard J. Miller, junior Science student, reported on Nissel Bodies, while Carl Pantaleo, also a junior in the Pre-Medical Department, discussed the quantitative effect on the body of a rat upon injections of Theelin. Mr. Uram enlarged upon the latter by explaining in detail the chemistry and procedures used in that work.

Plant Cells Discussed

Edward Doudican, member of the Science school, completed the evening's talks with a discussion of plant cells.

At this time Rev. James A. Donnellon, O. S. A., moderator of the group and instructor of Physiology at Villanova College, discussed and reiterated the purposes of the organization, stressing the fact that no one is forced to come but is to attend of his own free will. He also expressed his appreciation to the men in attendance for making the first meeting a successful one.

Faculty Supports Group

Fr. Donnellon stated: "The entire science faculty is whole-heartedly in support of the organization and will aid us in whatever way possible. It is the aim of this organization to further the policy of Villanova by offering direct stimulus and assistance for its students to enter in the field of research. It is hoped that some of you, at least, may benefit by these weekly sessions and complete some original work while yet at Villanova."

Meetings of the organization will take place every Monday night, at 7 P. M. in the Mendel Hall Amphitheater. Membership is still open to all Science students.

L. K. D. FRAT DANCE PLANS COMPLETED

Pre - Meds Formulate Novel Preparations for Annual Fall Hop

Preparations for the annual Lambda Kappa Delta dance, to be held in the Villanova gymnasium on Friday, November 5, are now under way. Chairman Edward Troncelliti and his committee are making elaborate plans to insure the financial and social success of this dance, the outstanding event on the calendar of the Science Fraternity.

Inspired By Successes

Inspired by the success of the Sophomore Cotillion and the Owl Hop, the society intends to make full use of the new acoustic curtains in the Fieldhouse to aid in creating a comfortable and danceable atmosphere for those attending the dance. The use of these echo-reducing curtains was ably demonstrated by the Belle Masque in their effort last year.

The decorations committee has left no stone unturned in its search for the new and unusual. The committee has disclosed that its decorations will be unique and distinctive. An inkling has also been given that through the use of subdued lighting and wierd suspensions, an illusion, both eerie and pleasant, will be created.

Villanovans Improved

Under the capable leadership of Bert Passanante, the Villanovans will render the selections for the dancers. This year's crop of musicians has already proven its ability and has shown that as a group they far overshadow anything yet produced at Villanova.

This year's dance is to depart somewhat from previous affairs as it is to be heralded not only as a gathering for all the present students but as a reunion for alumni members of the fraternity, who are now either practicing medicine or attending medical school in the Philadelphia area. The members of the fraternity eagerly anticipate renewing old friendships in the congenial atmosphere of the Fieldhouse.

Tickets are now on sale and may be purchased from any of the members of the Committee.

STUDY PUBLICATIONS

A special committee appointed by President Ernest M. Hopkins, of Dartmouth, will study the organization and procedures of student publications and make recommendations for their improved administration.

VERY MEAGRE

Dartmouth College enrollment figures show a gain of just two students over last year.

Nationalism Topic Of Discussion Of International Relations Group

patriotic devotion of certain individuals to the group of which they were part to the partial exclusion of others. After some argument, the organization concluded that nationalism in itself was not to be condemned, but rather the abuse of it was to be censured and guarded against.

Juergens Presents Reasons

Then, as the meeting progressed, Juergens presented the fundamental reasons for the rise of nationalism in modern times and in so doing, traced it back to the Empire of Charlemagne. Other members tried to trace nationalism back to the Roman Empire, but the general consensus of opinion was that Rome did not possess nationalism in the usual understanding of the word.

When the speaker had finished, the other members of the organization added other causes which in some way might have affected the rise of nationalism. Taking active part in the entire discussion were Fr. Lunney and the Rev. John R. Dunne, O. S. A. There is a complete lack of formality, the faculty members being on an equal status with the students. Each week one student prepares a particular subject. After his presentation, there is a general discussion in which the moderators and other faculty members present take part.

Schedule Planned

Both Fr. Vrana and Fr. Lunney, moderators of the Social Study Seminar and International Relations Club respectively, have planned a definite schedule of topics to be discussed during the coming year. This has been done so that the subjects under examination each week might be related. Last week a paper was preared on "Luther and the Reformation," by Joseph Bongiovanni, student in the College of Arts and Philosophy. In the discussion of Wednesday night, the effect of the Protestant revolt on the rise of nationalism was shown. It was pointed out that the overthrow of the authority of the church was one of the contributing factors in the rise of modern nations.

It was agreed by members at the end of the meeting, that this movement promoted the rise of nationalism because it severed the political authority that held the world together and also divided men in their beliefs.

Revolt Is Detrimental

The breaking down of the political authority of the church was considered to be a good result of the revolt, but the revolt against the spiritual authority of the Pope was held to be detrimental. The effect of this division in religion can be seen in the presentation of international relations. Under the present system, it was concluded, nations have nothing in common on which to start. Nations divided not only in material interests but also in their conception of how men are to save their souls—some even deny that there is any such purpose—find it very difficult to arrive at amiable agreements and later to keep to the agreements they have made.

LOCAL TEACHER PUBLISHES BOOKS

Rev. Francis E. Tourscher, O. S. A., Completes Work on St. Augustine

The Rev. Francis E. Tourscher, O.S.A., D.D., Villanova College librarian, has announced the completion and publication of three recent literary works dealing with various aspects of the life of St. Augustine and the accomplishments of the order of which he is founder.

"Old St. Augustine in Philadelphia" gives an accurate retrospection into the events surrounding the establishment of the first Augustinian parish in the Philadelphia Diocese. This book also incorporates a history of the founding of Villanova College, very accurately portrayed by Dr. Tourscher, who has been associated with the college since its infancy.

The other two books written by Dr. Tourscher and published during 1937 are "St. Augustine in Latin and English" and "St. Augustine-Beate Vita." He is also author of many outstanding publications of Catholic literature. Among the most prominent of his works is the "History of St. Augustine."

Andy Farkas, Joe Cieslak, Al Oliveto, and John Shada are a few of the headliners.

Stopped Boston College

Coach Dorais' boys swung into the tough part of their campaign last Saturday in convincing fashion by downing the hitherto undefeated Boston College Eagles at Boston. The sloppy playing conditions couldn't stop Oliveto and Farkas, who scored the two touchdowns in the Titans' 14-0 victory.

Previously, the Detroiters had breezed their way through four tune-up frays. The season's opener more closely resembled a track meet than a football game, Detroit swamping little Hillsdale College, 60-0. Western State Teachers, Texas Tech, and Catholic U. were the other victims.

The Red-and-White fielded a very strong club last season as the Villanova vets well know, but the 1937 Titans loom much stronger. Especially in their last two encoun-

Expecting to Jar Villanova From Unbeaten List

SPORTORIAL

By BILL BOWKER, Sports Editor

LAST Saturday was marked by some amazing upsets, including Lafayette's triumph over New York University, and Brown's victory over Columbia, to mention only two. However, what is more interesting to Villahova rooters is the fact that Marquette lost to Michigan State, who lost to Manhattan, which was defeated by Villanova. All of which makes a nice hoge-podge for someone to decipher. We'll not be one to try it.

—V—

This Saturday is the day of days for the Wildcat gridders, when Detroit plays host to our lads in the Motor City. Despite the fact that we have yet to be scored upon the boys are looking forward to this contest with no delusions of grandeur, keeping in mind the fact that the Titans recently stopped Boston College, who held, or was held by, if you will, Temple to a scoreless tie on Columbus Day. The defeat handed the Beantowners shows that the Detrotters were no flash in the pan in whitewashing Catholic U., 33-0. That other Andy Farkas, having already scored eleven touchdowns, is ready, willing and able to keep up the good work against the Blue. Good luck, boys, and those of us who can't make the trip will have our ears glued to the loud speaker.

—V—

A coach's dream would include Pegg, of Bucknell, and Mellus and Wysocki, of Villanova, on the left side of the line. This seemingly improbable event occurred at Hanover Township High a few years ago. Mellus was a guard and Pegg played tackle beside him, with the Bonecrusher on the end.

—V—

It seems that the intramurals were a bit late in starting last week. The time set for the games is 7 P. M. to 9 P. M., and it is necessary that the participants should be ready for play at the appointed time. Rev. E. B. McKee, O. S. A., requests your co-operation in the matter in order to facilitate the work of the committee.

—V—

Turning back to football, we notice that since playing us Auburn's eleven has been going great guns, defeating Mississippi State, 32-7, and Georgia Tech, 19-0. Billy Hitchcock didn't play against the Tech squad, either. The Plainsmen have a very tough schedule, but the way they are going looks good for a successful season for Jack Meagher's boys.

—V—

Loyola of the West, playing the Santa Clara Broncos, lost their second successive game by dropping Sunday's tilt, 7-0.

—V—

There is a possibility of dancing after the intramural court contests if what occurred the other night is repeated very often. A few of the lads brought their musical instruments along and furnished some lively tunes between and during the frays. The Day-Hops were to get into action in the afternoon, but the equipment makers played them false, so they will have to wait a bit before enjoying the band music.

—V—

Doc Jacobs' Kitten eleven traveled to the neighboring State of Jersey and took the measure of the Du Pont Y club by two touchdowns in a pouring rain which lent no help to good football and dampened the spectators considerably. So fierce was the rain that the Kitten subs saw fit to transfer the bench to the bus in which they traveled. A salient point in the whole affair was the ability of the Blue yearlings to acquit themselves commendably in the mud and slime. Punting featured the duel, and Nick Basca showed up well in this department, showing that Clipper Smith does not have to worry too much about kicking after Andy Stopper leaves, although a man of his ability cannot help but be missed.

—V—

Lafayette's 150's and their varsity received the same penalty, for the same infraction of the rules, and at exactly the same time, in their games with Villanova and Georgetown, respectively.

RING SQUAD LOSES VALUABLE BOXERS

Sala, Jarosik, Rutecky and Shull Gone, Leaving Three Men

With only three varsity men back from last year's boxing squad, Ray Gadsby expects a tough job to round out a team that will represent Villanova College in Intercollegiate fistic circles as was done in his two seasons coaching at this institution.

Graduation has deprived the vauable services of Tony Sala, being without a doubt the most distinguished person ever to don gloves for the "Wildcats." In his boxing career at Villanova, Tony was never defeated, won the 175-pound intercollegiate championship for three consecutive years and captained the "'Cats" to two successful seasons.

John Jarosik, Georgie Shull, and Mike Rutecky, familiar faces to Villanova boxing fans, will not appear in the line-up in this season's bouts. The services of "Sparkplug" Jarosik will be the most hardly felt of the three failing to report this year.

Not taking any credit from the other two but the fact must be admitted that Jarosik was a powerful hitter, a sincere and courageous

TOURNAMENT PLANS FOR BOWLING FANS UNDER DISCUSSION

Intramural and Intercollegiate Competition Envisioned by Pin Enthusiasts

Under the management of Bill Slaughter, bowling and billiards are again in full swing down at the gym. Open to all students, these two sports are rapidly becoming popular indoor activities on the Villanova campus. Any student who wishes to play billiards or bowl is welcome and any enthusiasts who entertain a secret ambition to "knock down the pins" have their chance now.

Tournament Soon

Slaughter intends to start the annual tournament soon. This has always been a popular and bitterly contested affair, but this year it is expected to eclipse past events. Both the bowlers and the billiard sharks will have an opportunity to prove themselves to be of championship calibre. The exact date of the tournament's beginning will be announced in a later edition of the VILLANOVAN.

Rabid devotees of these sports are attempting to incite enough interest to place them on the intramural program. Even intercollegiate competition is visioned for the bowlers. If this plan succeeds, Villanova can put a powerful team in competition, judging from the form shown down at the gym.

Two years ago, Villanova had a bowling team in intercollegiate competition, and while the squad, consisting of three men, did not bring home any championships, it made a very creditable showing, and gave promise of a regular team at Villanova. Interest lagged last year, however, and no club was formed.

With the enthusiasm of the present student body at its high pitch, hopes are held out for the resumption of the sport. Slaughter and his assistant, John Donahue, feel that an intramural tourney will aid in the formation of a team.

BLUE GRIDDERS UNLEASH STRONG PASSING ATTACK

Lane's Punting and Tomasetti's Running Standouts of Losing Cause

By THOMAS O'MAHONEY

Paced by Halfback Ray Stoviak and Game Captain Johnny Mellus, the Villanova Wildcat tested its newly-found teeth on a stubborn Bucknell team last Saturday in Shibe Park as a poor crowd of 10,000 alternately cheered and dozed. Features of the contest were the surprisingly effective aerial attack of the Blue, as Andy Stopper, Stoviak, and Mike Sabrinsky hurled the loggy ball for 90 yards, and the occasional "perfect plays" along the muddy field unreeled by the 'Cats.

Face 5-3-2-1 Defense

For the second week in a row, the Main Liners were up against the so-called "quicksand," or 5-3-2-1 defense. This virtually TNT-proof type of defense, coupled with the treacherous footing on Mr. Mack's ball park, undoubtedly did much to hold the 'Cats to a total of 100 yards gained by rushing. Frank Funair and Harold Pegg, along with the weak side end, usually Vic Cannestro, backed up the Bison line with slashing tackles to stop the land drives of the Blue from tackle to tackle. Their only weakness seemed to be on plays outside the tackles, and this may be due to the polished blocking of

FROSH ELEVEN WINS SECOND GAME, 13-0

Basca Stars as Kittens Defeat duPont in Night Contest Friday

Last Friday night, "Doc" Jacobs' Villanova Frosh eleven emulated George Washington and crossed a river to bring back a victory. Playing at the du Pont Y. M. C. A. Stadium at Carney's Point, N. J., the "Greenies" ran roughshod over a larger and more experienced opponent to the tune of 13-0. More than a thousand spectators witnessed the play under floodlights in torrential rain.

Basca Stars

Nick Basca was the scoring ace of the fray, tallying both touchdowns and one point after to amass the entire yearling count. The first score came in the first half of the tussle by means of a brilliant 50-yard runback of a du Pont kick. Nick was assisted in his run by the excellent downfield blocking of Ed Ryan.

With but twenty seconds to play of the second period, Basca drove over the du Pont goal from the one-yard mark.

Both teams engaged in a punting duel at the beginning of the fray, and were pretty evenly matched until Basca's last broke the ice.

Fedigan, Alumni Win Intramural Openers

Gigolos Down Austinites In Basketball Inaugural

Season's Court Play Starts With Two Wild Contests; Forty-Two Men Play in Mendel - Alumni Encounter; Skytoppers Fall, 28-19

POSTPONE DAY-HOP AFTERNOON FRAY

By JOSEPH McDADE

With a roar of approval from the crowded Alumni gym, the Intramural basketball season got under way when Frank Connors, of Austin, dropped in a one-pointer from the foul line for the first score of the '37-'38 campaign, a few seconds after the initial toss-up.

The opener found the Fedigan Gigolos trimming the much-vaunted Austinites by a score of 32 to 18. In the second encounter, the Green and White of Alumni took the measure of the Mendel lads with a 28-19 win. Both games had their share of good and bad basketball but were replete with thrills and fast action. Interest never lagged.

The game scheduled for the afternoon between the Mendel and C&F Day Hops was cancelled due to the non-arrival of equipment.

Austinites Start Fast

In the Austin-Fedigan fray the charges of Art Vigilante got off to a fast start and racked up a six-point lead. This lead was short-lived, however, for successive goals by Fioretti, Dunnigan, Goumy and a brace of single-pointers by Costello put them ahead. The game see-sawed back and forth for the remainder of the half with both teams playing tight defensive ball.

Starting the second half with a one-point disadvantage, "Dubino's Doubtfuls" proceeded to make a runaway of the game. Mike Totin and Jack Dunnigan suddenly found their eye and accounted for 14 points, which was almost three times as much as all the Austinites could put together. Erratic and sloppy ball-handling on the part of Austin further helped the Gigolos to come through with an impressive victory.

Dunnigan and Totin were the individual high scorers for the victors with nine and seven points respectively. Sandor and Waad stood out for the vanquished with a duo of twin-pointers each.

Frosh Use Many

In the second game the two Frosh teams put on a show which started out as a good ball game but ended up in a riot comparable to bargain day on Monday. Wholesale substitutions made the scorers think that the respective managers were employing the Notre Dame system of "shock troops" to wear the other team out. A total of 42 players saw action, 22 of whom represented Alumni.

The Green and White aggregation which started the game amassed a 7-0 lead within a few minutes. Then a new team from each bench entered the game and the Mendelians proceeded to knot the count. At this point the Alumni board of strategy saw fit to substitute another quintet. This stratagem proved effective, because the Alumnians left the floor at the half with a two-point lead.

Football tactics employed by both aggregations enlivened the start of the second half. It was a rough and tumble affair, but the lads from Alumni had the better of the argument and finally emerged victorious by a 28-19 count. They started by racking up eight successive points but a spirited rally by the Mendelians nearly the locals, who left the Herd ends very battered young men at the final whistle.

Bucknell received the kickoff, relinquishing the ball on its own 38. Bill Lane punting to the Villanova 40. Stopper slipped around right end for 34 yards. Eight plays later, after reaching the 8, Stopper faded and dropped one directly in Stoviak's arms over the goal line. Johnny (Ask Manhattan) Wysocki added the extra point with a perfect placement, and the Blue led after only seven minutes.

'Cats Ease Up

This easy score seemed to satisfy the 'Cats, and there ensued a kicking duel between Stopper and Lane, with little opening up on either side, as the wet pigskin was booted back and forth, the Bisons having the edge, mainly because Tomasetti nullified the Wildcat punt yardage by spectacular runbacks. The second period and much of the third dragged along in the same manner, with little excitement until close to the end of the third stanza, when, aided by a 15-yard penalty, Bucknell marched to the 18, where three trys failed to make a first down, and the Blue took over.

As the scores of other games came in, and the upsets were noted, the 'Cats finally got going at the start of the fourth quarter. Behind trip-hammer blocking, Stopper, Stoviak and Raimo pounded from their own 46 to the 31, where Andy again faded and passed to Walt Nowak on the Herd 22. Stoviak, trailing the play, took a lateral from Nowak just as he was savagely dropped by Klick, and burst through three Bison tacklers to score the second touchdown standing up. This time Johnny Mellus pulled out of the line and kicked the soaked ball squarely between the uprights to make it 14-0. From here on it was all Villanova, as Lane fumbled the kickoff, Buckley recovering for the Blue. A holding penalty put the 'Cats back for the moment, but Harvey Buek, who played a great game at safety all day, ran a Bucknell punt to the visitors' 30. Five running plays swept the Orange and Blue back to their four, where "Jeep" Raimo bored through a quick-closing hole at center for the third Wildcat tally. The "Jeep" then added insult to injury by place-kicking the extra point as the powerful Blue line checked the straining Bisons.

New Team Enters

An entirely new team moved out on the field for Villanova at this point, and the Herd took to the air in a desperate effort to score. Two passes and a reverse caught the 'Cats napping, but the Herd lost the ball when they kicked from the Blue 45. On the exchange of punts, however, the Bisons last threat ended and the final Main Line drive began when the 'Cat seconds intercepted a pass on the first play, and marched 50 yards, displaying a beautiful aerial game, Sabrinski to Wysocki. It is interesting to note that ten yards were lost by penalties in this trek, yet the ball reached the ten-yard stripe, before the Bisons intercepted a pass as the game ended.

Out of 12 attempted conversions this season, the Wildcats have booted 10 points onto their scoring totals, and rushed over another, with but one failure. A comforting thought, though those extra points haven't been necessary so far.

Gam : Captain Mellus, his running mate at tackle, Jordan Olivar, and John McKenna stood out in an all-star 'Cat line on defense, while Lou Tomasetti, Frank Funair and Bill Lane deserve the palms for their splendid work in the Bucknell backfield. Lane, a clever field general, got the most out of his team in a losing battle. Ever alert, he called the right play at the right time. Once, noticing that Johnny Mellus pulled out to back up the right side of the line on a Bison play to the left, he called a reverse, figuring to catch Johnny off guard. It didn't work, for Mellus torpedoed the unlucky carrier, but Lane ought to be credited with a try.

The try for point after the score went wide, and after resumption of play, the battle resolved itself into a humdrum affair with the ball hovering around midfield, quick kicking by Basca playing an important role. Shortly before the half closed, the Frosh opened up a drive which culminated in the second and final tally of the day, or rather, night. Shader and Yankouskas aided in no small way to the garnering of the second touchdown.

Not much in the way of offensive play was accomplished in the second half due mostly to the rain which came pouring down very vigorously, making the field a quagmire, and forcing the strategists to indulge in a punting duel.

Outstanding Frosh linemen were Ed Killian, Bill Dokas and Ed Ryan, their play preventing the Y. M. C. A. club from threatening seriously at any time throughout the fray.

All members of the class of 1941 with swimming or diving ability are urged to come to the meeting, whether they have been practicing or not.

Titans Awaiting Arrival of Blue

ters, a 33-0 rout of Catholic U., and the Boston affair have the Westerners flashed their stuff.

In Andy Farkas the Titans boast one of the hardest-running backs in the country. This right halfback has to his credit for the five games of this season, eleven touchdowns. Andy is a power runner; neither exceptionally speedy nor particularly shifty, he depends on sheer power to get by. Villanova will have to stop him to win.

Up front Coach Dorais is fortunate in having at one of the tackle posts, Captain Joe Cieslak, great leader and fine linemen. Joe is a rangy lad, fast, aggressive, and smart. This is his third season at the left tackle position in which key post he has been the chief bulwark of the Titan forward wall. His post is perhaps the toughest, offensively and defensively in modern football, but Joe has always handled his assignments capably.

Al Oliveto, who scored against Boston College on an 81-yard sprint, is another lad who has been showing up well of late. Al, a converted quarterback, has been going great guns as a fullback. Ed Palumbo, a newcomer at left half, is the third bonecrushing ball carrier in the Detroit backfield. And the 'Cats must look out for substitute, Jack "Hayes, a southpaw passer, who gave them no end of trouble last Fall.

Standing out with Captain Cieslak in the line are the guards, Kondraski and Shada, and left end, Larson. Shada displays his versatility by doing all Detroit's placement kicking in addition to playing a consistently good game at guard.

Gus Dorais has his charges rolling along smoothly and as usual they will be at a peak for the Villanova eleven. They have made every preparation to make the Wildcats' reception a warm one.

In the Sportlight

By JOHN L. SIMONS

THIS WEEK we introduce to you "The Man in the Iron Mask," Johnny Mellus. His being named game captain for the Bucknell encounter last Saturday was a fitting reward for three years of consistently brilliant play at the difficult left tackle position.

John's career at Villanova is all the more remarkable in view of the fact that, although he is a senior, he is the youngest man on the squad. He is now but 20 years old and has been playing as a regular tackle in tough college football since he reached the tender age of 18 Summers. So he could by not too great a stretch of the imagination be called a child prodigy.

Hails from the Regions

In Lynwood, suburban Wilkes-Barre, John Mellus embarked on his athletic career. After graduating from Thomas Jefferson Grammar School in Lynwood, he entered Hanover Township High.

His shy, retiring nature and his extreme youth kept him out of the spotlight for the first two years. In his junior year he came out of his shell and was a member of the basketball team. His senior year, however, was when he really got started.

In the Fall he came out for football for the first time. He went out for guard and won a regular position from a boy who had held down that post for the two previous seasons. His ability earned him game captaincy for one of the most important frays of the year.

To round out his athletic endeavors he played basketball and pitched for the baseball club.

Coach Sends Him Here

Upon completion of his high school course, John was influenced by his coach, Ed Halicki, a friend of Harry Stuhldreher, to come to Villanova. As a freshman John did all his football playing against the varsity and had little chance to shine. During the Winter he led the Alumni Hall Steamrollers to the Intramural basketball championship.

Then came th Autumn of 1935 and big days for Johnny. Only a green, untried, 18-year-old soph at the time, he calmly stepped in and filled the left tackle slot to perfection. During the course of that campaign John developed into a kick blocker supreme. In all he got in the way of five alien punts before November was up. He had a field day against the Detroit Titans at Detroit, blocking two. In addition he played an aggressive game at tackle and qualified as a member of the Villanova "They Shall Not Pass" Brigade. And throughout the season John was bothered with a bad shoulder.

Bad luck caught up with him at the start of last year. On the second play of the season's opener with P. M. C., he fell on his bad shoulder and received a further affliction in the form of a kick in the nose. Complications set in, and he was confined to the infirmary for several weeks.

Leaves Sickbed to Play

On the Friday preceding the Bucknell game he was released from his sickbed, and the next day played 58 minutes of bangup football. He was the outstanding man on the field and went great guns on a day when some of his mates were off form.

It was in this Bucknell fray that John became the "Man in the Iron Mask."

Mellus came back to Villanova this September, after working in the coal mines all Summer, tipping the beam at 218 pounds. Clipper has pared him down to 205, and this poundage, spread over a six foot frame, gives John a Tarzanesque physique. He is still a very quiet fellow, one who believes in the efficacy of action in preference to words. But we finally got him to say a few words about the Temple game of two years ago. "My greatest thrill in college football came in the Temple game of November 22, 1935, when we came from behind to defeat the Owls, 21-14."

John is taking the new pre-Law course at the Commerce and Finance School. He hopes to get a coaching post next year and would like one that would enable him to enter Law School. If he shows the same qualities he has shown here on and off the field he should go far.

evened the count once more. However, on pretty set shots by Gene Leahy and Ed Burke, they moved into the fore, never to be headed.

Individual stars among the conglomeration of players were Leahy and Burke for Alumni who scored eight and six points respectively. For the losing outfit Smith and Delehanty each scored four points to lead in that department, but Burns and Scebia were outstanding for their fine defeneive work and floor play.

LIGHTWEIGHTS BOW TO RUTGERS' 150'S IN SECOND CONTEST

Blues, Minus the Services of Kerrigan, Are Outclassed in 25-0 Loss

ENTIRE SQUAD IN ACTION

By BILL SINNOTT

Villanova's 150's, playing minus the services of its captain, Paul Kerrigan, yielded to the power and deception of a dazzling Rutgers eleven at New Brunswick, N. J., Saturday afternoon by a score of 25-0.

The echoes of the opening whistle had hardly died when the "Little Wildcats" found themselves in trouble. Domenick intercepted a pass, Shaw to Barile, on the 9-yard line. Rutgers held and Villanova's third down punt was blocked by Ragone and recovered by Cary. Barile spun over the goal for the touchdown. Shaw's attempted conversion was blocked.

Winners Push Hard

Rutgers pushed relentlessly toward the Blue's goal throughout the second quarter. Leahy, Villanova's brilliant back, got off a sixty yard punt that was returned all the way back to the 'Cats 11. Villanova's defensive power began to show when the Raritaners put the ball on the "dollar and half's" 1 foot line. For three downs the 'Cats repulsed the hard-charging Scarlet, only to succumb to the inevitable. Cole took the ball through center for the score. The conversion was blocked by Allesandroni.

The start of the second half found Villanova with a fighting, rejuvenated team on the field. A pass, Lombardo to Carbine, was good for 15 yards. A series of gains, with McManus and Domenick carrying the ball, brought the Blues to the Rutgers 15. The attack bogged and Leahy kicked to Shaw, who was stopped after a short return.

Shaw dropped back to his thirty and heaved a flat pass to Barile that was good for 15 yards. Villanova braced and held. The rest of the period devolved into a punting duel in which Villanova had a slight edge.

Blue Weakens

The field was a quagmire when the teams lined up to start the last period. Villanova, with its line unable to charge and its backfield unable to get started, weakened perceptibly. Rutgers passed its way to the 11 yard line after intercepting a pass by Lombardo intended for Carbine. Barile slid through the line for the third score. The conversion was blocked by the whole 'Cat team.

Villanova's defense collapsed completely in the closing minutes of the last period. Shaw picked up eight yards through tackle. Barile, Rutgers' running ace, slithered through the mud around right end for six more. Cole smashed the center of the 'Cat's line for nine. Barile added three more over right guard. The conversion again failed after three attempts.

Alessandroni and Timmins stood out in the Villanova line, along with the kicking and defensive work of Ed Leahy. Every Villanova man on the squad saw action.

Rutgers' Ragone, Cary and Barile gave as fine a performance as any varsity backfield could. The quarterbacking of Captain Shaw had Villanova on the spot all afternoon.

HERE and THERE

By Tom Carbine

Unbeaten, unscored on—a record which is almost unique at this spot in the football season. And it may be a record that will bring us some notoriety for this week only. Next Saturday Villanova meets the Detroit Titans, and it will take a great defensive team to hold in check the club that humbled the previously unbeaten Boston College.

With the myth of the Bucknell jinx completely dispelled "Clipper" Smith has one less worry on his mind for the future. However, that 21-0 victory should show the boys that a bit of head-up football will make the breaks fall in the right direction. And there is no doubt that Dorais' well coached ball club will be playing for the breaks on Saturday. It's up to the Wildcats to keep awake and turn everything to their own advantage.

The John pair, Wysocki and Mellus seem to have a system. Johnny Wysocki was so outstanding in the Manhattan game that Al Humphreys, Bucknell coach, had a three-man defense rigged up to trap the blonde country boy. This was just the thing for the left side of the Villanova forward wall, for "Curly" Mellus stepped in and took care of the situation by making HIMSELF the thorn in the Bison's hide.

Inexperience will be the ruination of the 150-pound team yet. In their 25-0 setback at the hands of Rutgers, the lightweights were completely at a loss as to what to do on several occasions. At the very beginning of the game, the Scarlet Scourge broke through and blocked a punt. The main cause of this weak defense so early in the contest was a seven - man line. Used to playing against six men on the forward wall, Villanova wasn't alert enough to realize just what was happening; consequently their greenness was a decided handicap in this case.

It would be unfair, though, not to give credit where credit is due. At certain spots during the game Villanova did rise to heights of brilliance and it won't be long before they are going to win. Rutgers had a finely drilled team and after their game with Yale next week it will be an easy matter to decide which team will win the league title.

Villanova's "dolls an' a half" team will journey to Princeton on Friday. This game will be the Wildcats' big chance. The whole squad has now had game experience and now Bangert will be able to select his men with more discretion.

* * *

Former head coach at Villanova, Harry Stuhldreher, had had the eyes of quite a few of us turned sympathetically in his direction. When the quarterback of the Four Horsemen left Villanova for Wisconsin's so called grave yard, it was felt that he would be stepping into a job far over his head. But he has pulled through in fine style and to our guess that it won't be many more years until Wisconsin will again push on to the top of the Big Ten.

* * *

Harvey Harman's explanation of the "12th man" incident seems to center quite a bit of blame on the officials for misinforming the players as to the correct down. We sympathize with Coach Harman because in our experience with game officials, we have found that too often their own cocksuredness has been to the detriment of one team. Harman has been coaching long enough to know when it is legal to send a man on the field as a substitute and he evidence seems to point to the fact that the fault is entirely with the officiating. If the officials would only keep in mind that they are human, they might take one or two precautions every now and then during the game in order to check up on themselves, thus saving a bit of anguish on the part of the helpless coach.

STAFF MEETING

There will be a meeting of the VILLANOVAN sports staff, Tuesday, October 26, at 1:00 P. M. in the office. Members of the staff on the 150-pound club must be present.

fighter; and a boy that did much to help Villanova come through in their meets for the last two seasons. In his boxing career at Villanova Jarosik lost his first fight and then followed through to win all of his bouts over a two-season stretch.

However, representing the credit side of the books, Ray Gadaby has three boys who turned in impressive wins last year. Bill Duffy, Eddie Kirk, and Bob Metzinger, are the names of the three fellows who undoubtedly will bolster the team considerably. Donning the gloves for the first time last year as Freshman, this trio is anxious to continue from where they left off last season and keep up their fine showing.

NEW COLLEGE MARCH PRESENTED BY BAND AT BUCKNELL GAME

Sister Mary Beatrice, S. M., of Georgian Court College, Composed Song

TAUGHT OPERATIC STARS

Villanova On Parade, new collegiate military march, presented by the Villanova College Band at last Saturday's football classic, was composed by Sister M. Beatrice, S. M., director of music at Georgian Court College, and presented to Villanova College early this Fall.

This recent dedication received its formal introduction when it was played by the United States Navy Band and broadcast from the Sail Loft of the United States Navy Yard in Washington, D. C. on July 12. Lieutenant Charles Bentner directed the 76-piece naval band upon the occasion.

Heard At Girls College

Villanova On Parade received another rendition under the direction of Lieutenant Bentner at a grand concert held at Georgian Court College on October 15. This march was included in a varied program of classical melodies presented by the U. S. Navy Band.

Sister Mary Beatrice, composer of the new march, received her Doctorate degree in Music at the New York College of Music in 1924. She is reputedly known as the early music instructress of Jessica Dragonette, popular operatic singer, and has been associated with music at Georgian Court College for a number of years. Sister M. Beatrice has composed a number of musical arrangements; among them the Spirit of the Ages, and the Georgian Court March.

Villanova On Parade combines fine musical arrangement with inspiring melodic qualities which will make it one of the most popular and outstanding of collegiate military arias. Much credit is due Sister Beatrice, and although it is quite new to the college it is hoped that Villanova On Parade will prevail on this campus as a tribute to her. Lyrics for the march are to be drawn up in the near future.

BIDS ACCEPTED BY JUNIOR RING GROUP

At last Thursday's meeting of the Junior Ring Committee, it was announced that, to date, bids have been received from five of the leading firms in Philadelphia. A representative from each of these firms has been granted a special appointments with the Committee, at which each will stress the particular advantages of his bid. These appointments extend over the next two weeks, on Thursdays at 12:30, and Fridays at 2:30.

Bids have been received from Bailey, Banks and Biddle Co., Burke and Company, Tratemberg Company, Leming Company, and S. Earl Eby Company, who designed last year's rings.

Before any bid is definitely accepted, a meeting of the Junior Class will be called. At this meeting all bids received together with other pertinent information compiled by the Ring Committee will be presented to the class for their deliberation.

Chairman William Leahy expects that all preliminary negotiations will have been completed by early next week. He has temporarily set November 12 as the dead-line, when choice of ring will be announced, and the contract awarded to the successful bidder.

Co-incident with this announcement, Mr. Leahy divulged to the VILLANOVAN more details concerning the probable make-up of the ring. Five or six stones will be offered for selection, with the possible inclusion of a new type two-tone stone. At present it appears that ring prices will range from 15 to 25 dollars. The committee is open to any suggestions from any member of the Junior Class.

Leahy has appointed John D'Ippolito, of the Commerce and Finance School, secretary of the Ring Committee.

The theme of the sermon is to be that peace, which is created by God, is disrupted only by man and, as it is man who disrupts peace it will be man who stops war so alien to the laws of God.

Engineering Frat Considers Pleas Of Chem. Students

It was announced at the regular bi-weekly meeting of the Phi Kappa Pi Fraternity meeting yesterday that the annual dance held last Friday was a pronounced success. Joseph W. Beittenmiller, chairman of the affair, gave a full account of the dance. In his announcement he disclosed the fact that the affair was attended by over one hundred couples, and that the financial end of it was successful.

Among the several other topics under discussion at the meeting was one concerned with the entrance of chemistry students into the fraternity. Those who are pursuing the B. S. in Chemistry course applied for admission and since there is a little doubt as to their status as engineers, a committee has been appointed to look into the matter and present an explanation at the next meeting, to be held two weeks hence.

Another item came up in the proposed showing of technical motion pictures. It was held that the pictures should be shown at this meeting instead of at the other technical society meetings because of the fact that many other than the specified group would be interested in seeing these pictures, who would be unable to see them at these other meetings because of intervening classes. Paul Skelly, president of the fraternity, stated that he would tend to the matter and appoint a committee to obtain desirable pictures.

WELLESLY COLLEGE GIVES UNIQUE TEST

'Know Thyself' Quiz Taken by Freshmen at Girls' School

Wellesley, Mass.—(ACP)—Socrates' classic admonition, "Know thyself," is being taken seriously by Wellesley College. Young women who entered the school for the first time this Fall were given four tests arranged to make them review their own attributes and consult their own experience.

Two of the tests have been used since 1932; two were given for the first time this Fall. Following are some of the controversial statements and questions, from the alternatives of which the students are asked to indicate a personal preference, included in one of the tests.

"Because of the aggressive and self-assertive nature of man, the abolition of war is an illusory idea. Yes. No.

"If you were a university professor and had the necessary ability, would prefer to teach (a) poetry; (b) chemistry and physics?"

The test is designed to show the relative emphasis the students place on theoretical, economic, esthetic, social, political and religious values.

MUSIC GROUP HEARS RUSSIAN SYMPHONY

Ravel's Bolero to be Played This Thursday Evening at Seminar

Russian music was the feature of last Thursday's Music Seminar. Tschaikowsky's symphony in B Minor, Pathetique, was the important recording of the evening.

"La Grande Paque Russe," by Rimsky-Korsakow completed the Russian music of the meeting. The somber lugubrious music portrayed the realism that has been typical in Russian music and literature.

McCormack Recording

A lighter music was then added to remove the melancholic air that had fallen upon the group. Schubert's Musical Moments and the Hurdy-Gurdy Man sung by John McCormack, gave an extra bit of zest to the evening's program.

Modern impressionistic music will come to the front in the next week's Music Seminar. Ravel's Bolero will be played. This music with its cannibalistic and sensuous movements will fascinate all those who hear it. This is the first occasion for the members of the Music group to hear and enjoy modern music.

Many Interesting Features Included In Villanova Engineer Magazine

Technology Publication Appeared On Campus Last Week for First Time This Year; Cover Design Outstanding; Success Looms for Periodical

With the Rev. John J. Vrana, O. S. A., at the helm, the staff of the Villanova Engineer collaborated to produce one of the outstanding issues in the history of that magazine.

The engineering students have always succeeded in making their presence felt through the medium of this magazine and the last issue is no exception.

Not to be confined to the educational purpose which is its main aim, the Villanova Engineer presents in each issue some articles which have as their main purpose entertainment. In the present issue "Hints to our Frosh" and "Cross Section" are such articles. However, we are assured that the hints to the frosh are to be taken seriously—that is—if they wish to ascend the scholastic ladder.

Articles Educational

Among the educational articles are "Quantitative Analysis" and "Photographic Films." These can be read with profit not only by the members of engineering school but also by the rest of the student body.

If first impressions have anything to do with the success of a magazine, the Villanova Engineer will have reached the pinnacle of fame as the cover design is one of the most outstanding in collegiate ranks. It was designed by a former Villanova student, Mr. Alfred Panepinto, who is a graduate of the class of '28, also drew up the plans for a new Villanova library to be built sometime in the future.

Joseph Sanborn, has been quite successful in his editorship. He has worked very hard so that the success of the magazine might be assured.

The staff has collaborated to produce this issue. The members of the staff are as follows: Joseph B. Sanborn, editor; John Simons, associate editor; Emil Mathias, business manager; John Parker, circulation manager; John Linsley, assistant manager.

On the shoulders of Fr. Vrana, faculty moderator, rests the burden of guidance. Fr. Vrana has undertaken the task without complaint though he has many other duties.

This year for the first time cameo heads are being used. They are quite attractive and no doubt help to produce symmetry so characteristic of the pages in the latest issue.

The personal columns live up to the fine quality which is to be found in the past issues. Nor are the educational articles of any inferior to those that have preceded.

Another new feature introduced this year is the summary of the articles on the front page. By means of this summary the reader may select what interests him without having to thumb through the entire magazine.

A. I. E. E. SOCIETY FORMS PROGRAM

Electrical Engineer to Present Projects, Motion Picture at Next Meeting

Villanova branch of the A. I. E. E. forecasts a very active year. Last week, after a special meeting of the Society, a program of topics to be discussed at formal meetings was drawn up and published by the Chairman. Each meeting is to include an illustrated paper, and a shorter presentation dealing with new developments in Electrical Engineering, both of which are to be given by the Senior members of the organization.

Next week, the paper will be presented by Robert Guinee, and will be accompanied by a special moving picture which will be shown by Robert Strong. All Sophomores and Freshman Electrical Engineering students are cordially invited.

Bridgeport High School Officials Commend Team For Performance

Mr. Anthony J. Frayne, moderator of the varsity debating team, received a letter ffrom the Bridgeport Student Association commending the members of the Villanova student body who debated before the Bridgeport Senior High School on October 21.

The proposition of debate, it will be remembered, was Resolved: That the several states should adopt a unicameral system of legislature. Pershing Calabro, James M. Quigley and Thomas E. Delate represented the affirmative, while the negative side was presented by William J. Corkill, John L. Simons and John W. Stahmann.

BIESTER AND CONTE HEAD BELLE AIR BALL, CLASS DINNER DANCE

Commerce Student and Scienceman Win Coveted Social Week-End Positions; February 25 and 26 Set as Dates For Affairs

COMMITTEES WILL BE ANNOUNCED LATER

By JAMES P. TOFANI

Anticipating the most successful Belle Air Ball in the history of the college and eager to procure an early start for the last social function of their collegiate careers, the Senior Class members, through President Joseph H. Weber, issued two important announcements late yesterday afternoon.

Louis J. Biester, member of the School of Commerce and Finance, was appointed to the chairmanship of this brilliant event, and as a result of this appointment he will direct the activities of the Ball in its entirety and will have supervision over all committees and subcommittees. Named to head the Dinner-Dance Committee was Andrew N. Conte, student in the Science Department. The committee members to supplement Biester and Conte will be officially released in the VILLANOVAN next week.

Date in February

Despite an attempt by last year's seniors to hold this traditional affair in April, the present senior class decided to revert to the policy of staging this extraordinary social function in mid-Winter. The date of the bail has been set for Friday evening, February 25, while the dinner-dance will take place on the followng evening.

Realizing that the week-end of February 25-26 will be their last social gathering together as a class, the seniors are determined to outdo all previous efforts. The ball will be the climax to their collegiate life, and the dinner-dance will provide the anti-climax.

Biester is optimistic as to the success of this year's ball. He is of the opinion that this dance will surpass all others that have yet been presented on the college campus. He is eager to have the entire committees chosen so that he can begin formulating plans imme-

NERVOUS DISTRESS TOPIC OF LECTURE TO SCIENCE GROUP

Dr. A. M. Ornsteen, Professor of Neurology, Addresses L. K. D. at Meeting

Dr. A. M. Ornsteen, associate Professor of Neurology and Clinical Psychology at the University of Pennsylvania Medical School, addressed the Lambda Kappa Delta fraternity last Thursday at the organization's biweekly meeting, on the subject of Functional Hysteria.

Hysteria Explained

"Hysteria," Dr. Ornsteen explained, "as understood in the medical sense, differs from the lay interpretation. Hysteria in my talk is to be understood as meaning functional abnormalities of the nervous system produced primarily by emotional distress, and is not to be confused with the ordinary hysteria as observed in individuals said to be 'hysterical'."

Motion pictures of actual cases under the doctor's care and taken by him were shown jointly with his discussion. The cases described ranged from simple muscular disabilities to spasmodic sneezing, belching, coughing, various muscular contractions, to abnormal types of walking and violent tremors and thrashings of the body.

In each case shown Dr. Ornsteen briefly discussed the case history and causes of the disturbance.

Cases Psychical

It was stressed that none of the cases described were results of organic disturbances, but were solely psychical, and as such were treated and cured by means of Psychotherapeutics.

Stressed in the lecture was the fact that even though the abnormalities presented to spectators were in many cases laugh-provok-

EDITOR MAKES REQUEST

VILLANOVAN Official Asks College Organizations to Aid "Campus Calendar"

The editor of the VILLANOVAN requests that all student organizations on the campus turn in times and dates of meetings for the "Campus Calendar" at least one week in advance.

This request has been made in order to arrange the calendar in an appropriate manner and also to include all events that are to occur during the week. The "Calendar" has rapidly become one of the outstanding features of the publication and provides a medium for the students to keep in touch with the various activities on the campus. The cooperation of all the organizations is requested.

HISTORY CLUB WILL HEAR DR. HARTMAN

Professor Will Present Paper at Meeting Tomorrow Afternoon

Dr. Harold F. Hartman, professor of History at Villanova College, will present a paper at the meeting of the History seminar tomorrow afternoon. The subject of this paper will be "The General Trends of Political Philosophy in the Sixteenth Century."

One Month Old

The history seminar is the youngest organization on the campus, inaugurated last month under the direction of Professor Hartman and Rev. John Dunne, O. S. A., and Edward Grimes, O. S. A. The purpose of this seminar is to familiarize students in the technique of historical research. At the last meeting Dr. Hartman laid particular emphasis on the reading of modern historical works, not only books but also the publication of the Catholic and American Historical Societies.

At the present time research is being made in the field of political philosophy in order to ascertain the influence of Cardinal R. Bellarmine on the development of American political philosophy.

REACTIONARY BLEATING!

LONG and loud bleats are emitted from the various members of the Republican Party High Command of late, for they seem to think that under the Roosevelt "dictatorship" America is destined for a speedy crack-up. The latest cry is that the stock-market fluctuations "prove" the dangerous trend of President Roosevelt's policies.

Franklin Delano Roosevelt was inaugurated at a period of our history when every bank in the country was closed. The Republican Administration turned over to the newly-elected President an economic system that was paralyzed. They left behind them a banking system suffering from a severe case of the "cramps."

For the many years during the mad Twenties when slick salesmen were selling worthless German, Peruvian, and Timbuktu bonds to a gullible public, the Republican Administration, then in power, had little to say about Wall Street and the banking system. Indeed, they had so little to say that many suspected — rightly or not—that Wall Street had taken over the White House. The Federal Reserve Board, prior to 1929, made several half-hearted attempts to stop reckless speculation, but the crash was not affected by this policy of do-nothingness.

The tremendous reform zeal so characteristic of the New Deal found expression, in the realm of finance, in a host of laws setting up a revised, reformed banking system. Deposits, up to $5000, were insured. Banks which had unsafe folios of securities were liquidated. Wall Street was invaded when the Securities Exchange Commission was set up by the New Deal legislators.

The S. E. C. has raised the margin requirements, thus removing from the speculative market the man who does not have much money. It has also removed the man who wants to gamble, and not invest. The S. E. C. has subjected to sorutiny all new stock and bond floatations, thus meliorating the floatation of fraudulent securities.

This governmental interference with private enterprise, as the Reactionary lambs call it, has been hotly resented by those men on Wall Street who are interested in preying upon the money of others. S. E. C. is condemned as "undemocratic and alien" because it has dared to make justice a consideration.

The men decrying the present activities of the S. E. C. and the Roosevelt Administration are the very men who secured the blessing of the economic royalists. This group has twice been stunningly rebuked by an informed, intelligent electorate. With that repudiation went the repudiation of the economic royalists who today are anxious to re-establish their overlordship.

Do not be deceived. When men say that "government should keep out of business," and infer that the Roosevelt Administration is ruining the stock market, remember that the Administration is first interested in securing justice for the average investor. It is not interested in protecting speculators whose activities are best characterized by the word "gambling."

Let the lambs continue to bleat. Their bleat is so like the howl of the wolf that few listen to them.

FRESHMAN REGS

FRESHMAN Regs are conspicuous by their absence. This is a deplorable condition and does not speak well of the Sophomore Class.

Discipline is one of the most important lessons that the incoming Frosh must learn. They must learn respect and regard for order, authority and discipline.

The Sophomore Class, and other upperclassmen, give them a poor example. Man is, too often, recidivist—a back slider. He needs constant prodding to be kept on the straight and narrow.

If the Frosh are at times lax, what they need is a bit of prodding. A word or two will correct the trouble. But if the Sophomore Class continues to give an anarchic and unruly example to the Frosh, we shudder to think what discipline among the Frosh is going to be like this coming Spring.

"As ye sow, so do ye reap." If the upperclassmen permit laxity and poor discipline, they should be not surprised to reap a harvest of disrespect, insolence, and disregard of lawful authority.

AGAIN CONGRATULATIONS

VILLANOVA'S student body is again to be congratulated upon its splendid display of spirit upon the occasion of the team's return from Detroit. Although over two-thirds of the student body was home for the long week-end caused by the holiday yesterday, every remaining student joined to make the reception the best in the history of the college.

The marvelous spirit of appreciation shown by the students was greatly aided by the appearance of the Villanova natives who, for the first time in many years, are showing that they live in the neighborhood and are giving the team and the college the support it deserves. Congratulations are also in order for them for this unprecedented show of spirit on their part. Let's hope this moral aid will continue.

"DOODLING," the science of amusing oneself with a pencil or pen when bored in a class, follows the law of the survival of the fittest at Mount Holyoke College. When first observed in the freshman class it is almost universal in innumerable elementary forms, sometimes consisting only of a row of x's across the top of a page. But after an evolutionary period of four years it is practiced only by a select group who practice the most complicated type of "doodling."

It seems that the art of reading is rapidly becoming a lost art as far as the majority of students are concerned. (perhaps the seniors should practice reading bedtime stories to the freshmen.)

ODDS and ENDS

By Tom O'Mahoney

OUR Little Bird Tuesday sang this week, and the things he said were immediately recorded for posterity. How this little bird does get around!

SEEN: A certain red headed bird oops—Soph, becoming embarrassed at the "simply super" and "scrumptious" of a Bryn Mawr College girl whom he did NOT take to the Cotillion . . . Two Fedigantites who do not know that the girls in the yellow Packard stopped at another hall on the campus after explaining "We really must be going home now."

HEARD: That a Rosemont freshman, who, incidentally, is after our little Bird, would be pleased no end if 850 Villanovans would write to her daily. Well, now, Dot. Too bad Buzz Hart is that way in the general direction of Chestnut Hill. Otherwise, he'd be delighted to oblige you. . . . The incessant ringing of the Fedigan phone—another call from Ardmore. "Is Eddie Doudlcan there?" . . . That those Austinites are disclaiming knowledge of the ring mentioned in last week's column. It is no use, says our Bird. He saw Dwyer eating the cupcakes, and predicts that Hugh Riley will be exclusive owner of the brass circlet within a day or two. . . . And that Phelan will be burned indeed. . . . That a baseballer will be hurrying back to Baltimore this week-end. Explaining why he has been walking into trees and going to Chapel on Wednesday morning for the Thursday mass. Our Bird deplores such actions, Charlie. . . .

ASSUMED: That Lou Dymond is still tired from that venture in the Empire State Building. He was locked out of the elevator corridor up near the Observatory and had to walk the height of the building to the ground floor. . . . That Gilligan and Mahoney will confine their afternoon gymnastics to the gym or settle the feud in the intra-mural boxing and wrestling bouts. . . . That Bob O'Brien will relinquish the presidency of the Ugly Club to George Haggerty. . . . That Cash Haggerty will wow 'em down in Rocky Mount, N. C., with the new clipped Boston accent. . . . That the Villanovans had a great time on the way to Detroit. Our little Bird is busily looking for news on that angle. Hold tight.

THE OBSERVER

SCENE: A room of spacious proportions, tapestry on the walls, heavy rugs, curtained windows, subdued lighting, gorgeous furniture—the room of a princess. A beautiful young lady reclines on an exotic divan. Before her is a samovar, at which a servant, dressed in the uniform of Cossack, is preparing a cup of tea for milady. A soft, muffled gong sounds in the distance.

"Nicolai," sighs milady, Investigate!"

Nicolai bows and leaves the room. Nicolai re-appears. Following him is a rather portly Villanova student.

"His Excellency, Czarevitch Basil Torevitch Dobrowolski awaits the pleasure of your Highness," announces Cossack Nicolai. The domestic bows and then withdraws.

"My Basil, My Big bad Russian Wolf," purrs the Princess.

"Princess Olga!" brays the Mad Russian as he hastens to crush milady's hand in his fist.

Basil, somehow, then sinks down on the divan, and a charming tete-a-tete has begun.

That, friends, is just to let you know that Czarevitch Basil Torevitch Dobrowolski—the Mad Russian to us proletarians—now keeps company with a real Russian Princess whose court is somewhere in Philadelphia. He has been going with her for several weeks. He was seen at the Owl Hop. I'll bet you didn't suspect that royalty was present that night, did you? Princess Olga! Czarevitch Basil! Rowdy dow!

The Mad Russian is going in for blue blood. Watch out for the methylene blue, Basil.

Oftentimes we wonder what our Representatives to the Congress of the United States do with all of their time. The other day we happened to be reading the Congressional Record, and came across a sample of Congressional oratory. Here is a snatch from a speech made by a Representative from Georgia on the 9th of July last. He was discussing "America Faces a Crisis."

"We, as a people, stand at the dividing pathways of decision. Upon the decision which we, the custodians of a sacred trust—the preservation of our Republic—shall make will depend the destiny of this Union. Upon the leaders and the citizens of today rest the responsibility of determining whether this Nation as a free constitutional democracy shall continue its progress in a complex world civilization as a united country bulwarked and buttressed by a fraternal spirit of common counsel and a unified effort irrestibly moved by a mutual love for our common country or whether constitutional democracy, personal liberty and individual opportunity shall eventually go down in fratricidal strife and disorder or be submerged by surreptitious betrayal under the pattern of an alien political and social philosophy. . ." and so, far into the night.

That sort of stuff goes on for pages and pages. Every now and then we see this inserted in the record: (Applause). Many of these speeches are never given, but are presented to the Speaker for inclusion in the Congressional Record. After it is printed, the Congressman has them reprinted, and mails thousands of them back to the folks at home. They, naturally, envision their Representative holding the Congress of the nation spellbound while he rides to battle with. . .well, I never could figure out what he was beefing about. No wonder they call it Washington merry-go-round.

FRESHMEN: did you ever know that Murray Zealor is interested in Freshman Debating?

We were chatting with one of the Fathers the other day, and he spoke of Our Lord as the "Prisoner of Love." Said the Father: "He is a prisoner in more than one sense. Because of the hardness of men's hearts, He is locked up in the Church and is not allowed to come to men and to live with them." There's a lot in that, fellows. How many of you receive Him every morning? How many of you drop in to visit Him at lunch times? How many of you think of Him constantly all day?

For some strange reason, we all seem to put the most important Person in our lives in the last place. No wonder they call Him the prisoner of love!

Did you hear the booming of the bombs last week as Paul the Painter and his helpers blasted away the too-solid foundations of the old green house? When we first heard the blasts, we thought that Charlie Cooke, the Crisco Crocked Communist, had started the Revolution.

Darkening the moon, now peeking,
Casting moonbeams, parting shadows,

PRECEDENT SET BY SOPHOMORE CLASS IN SCHOLARSHIP FUND

Class Inaugurates Policy With Largest Single Contribution Ever To Be Invested

Establishing an unparalleled stand, the Class of 1940 has inaugurated its scholarship fund with the largest single contribution ever to be invested. This announcement was recently made by the Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O.S.A., president of the college.

The Class of 1940 also deserves recognition of being the second group ever to establish such a fund during its second year at Villanova College. The establishment of scholarship funds has been carried on by succeeding classes at Villanova since the inauguration of the custom in 1928.

In a letter to Robert E. O'Brien, chairman of the recent Sophomore Cotillion, the president of the college acknowledged the establishment of Class of 1940 Scholarship Fund and highly commended O'Brien and the sophomore class for the splendid achievement in this regard.

It was through the tremendous success of the Sophomore Cotillion that the initiation of the scholarship fund could be realized. Through the founding of such endowment funds it is possible for each class to maintain after graduation a representative in attendance in the person of the student who receives the scholarship upon its termination.

The scholarship funds have been inaugurated to perpetrate the classes upon the campus even after graduation. The Class of 1928 sponsored the creation of a Class Endowment Fund through bequests of life insurance policies, which have been followed by each succeeding class.

Under the trust agreement established by the Class of 1940 the Scholarship fund will be invested in United States Savings Bonds, allowing the interest to accumulate with the principal and other added investments of the class until a minimum of one thousand dollars is realized. From then on the income will be available for scholarship assistance.

It is hoped that the Class of 1940 will be able to realize the minimum principal amount before its graduation. This amount has never been reached before graduation by any group at Villanova College.

RADIO AND THE THEATER

By LEN FLINKMAN.

CRITICISM: Something should be done about radio reviewing. Today, it lacks accomplished critical evaluation. Why? Well, let's look the situation over. Radio reviewing is not taken more seriously because on the surface there seems hardly any need for it. The moment a program is over, the audience is supposed to forget it (and it usually does). It is not like a moving picture which the reviewer can recommend to his readers, or against which he may warn them. There is a second point: sponsors of the great commercial programs are also advertisers in newspapers and they may resent unfavorable criticism of their offerings. Between these two deterrents, radio reviewing has a bad time. Something is done in this field, but only occasionally.

Recently the broadcasts of Shakespeare by both networks were reviewed; dramatic critics discussed the "Fall of the City," when it was produced by the CBS workshop; and now music is listened to by the music critics of the metropolitan dailies. Yet note that these enterprises, among the important ones of radio, are generally reviewed by critics in other fields. Thus, conclusively speaking, radio has no true critics. The radio is one of the three great forces of persuasion. That the newspapers should not be steadily criticizing this new power seems to me an abdication of one of their prime duties. The situation resembles a portrait of a college sophomore attempting to decide whether to join up with General Franco, enlist in the Chinese Army, or return to Villanova. More sustained criticism is needed to make criticism of radio what the critics themselves would like it to be; a function on the level of the criticism of books or plays or music or the theatre.

MUSIC: A new list of six distinguished American composers has been named to write additional music for radio by the formation of the second Columbia Composers' Commission. The composers selected have been placed at liberty to write in whatever form they please, subject only to time limitations. Among them is a Philadelphian, Vittorio Giannini, who has some closer restrictions placed upon him. He is to write an opera. And he is to write an opera whose playing time is precisely 29 minutes, 30 seconds.

AT LARGE: Elsa Maxwell, All-American blow-out thrower, returned the states from abroad last week and immediately announced a little sports party for this winter at the Waldorf. . . Her plans encompass installing a steeplechase course and some odds and ends like a ski slide, boxing ring and a little reservation for skeet shooting. The boys in Hal Kemp's orchestra have presented the "Cunnel" with a portrait of himself in honor of the 12th anniversary of the band's founding on the No'th Car'lina campus. . . incidentally don't miss Hal's swelegent version of "I Want to See Samoa of Camoa" from the new "Fifty-Second Street" flicker. Walter Winchell leaves for New York Thursday with the announcement that he will make no more pictures, saying that film work and columning do not mix. Yeah, I'm of the same opinion too, Walter. He returns to the Jergens program November 14 and resumes his writing November 15.

BREAKS: When the Ritz Bros. played Boston sometime back, George Holland, local dramatic critic, went on with them. He fell and broke a leg on the engagement. The Yacht Club Boys, currently playing in Boston, sent Holland a wire asking him to appear with them. "We'll guarantee you a better break," they promised.

STRIKE: Lucky Strike cigarettes introduces a new program next Tuesday night over the WOR system. Time: 8 to 8:30. Music: Dick Himber. Title: "Script Tease." It's a song guessing affair and if its a humdinger it will replace the "Hit Parade" which has been a headache to them since its inception.

PREMIER: On the eve of November 4, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, in conjunction with Maxwell House, will present something deluxe in radio. After much deliberation, the authorities have decided to tag the air opus, "Good News of 1938." In the talent lineup of the inaugural will be Jeanette MacDonald and Allan Jones singing a few selections from "The Firefly," Sophie Tucker in a memory lane feature, bringing to the mike many old timers from Broadway, including Gus Edwards, Trixie Friganza, Eleanor Powell, Buddy Ebsen, Una Merkel, Juddy Garland, George Murphy and Ted Healy. Music by Meredith Wilson.

REMEMBRANCE: It'll be worth your while to listen to D'Artega and his orchestra on Sunday's at 6:30 over WOR. Another swell program . . .by the Hudson Motor Car Co., presenting "Hobby Lobby" over WOAU on Wednesday's at 7:15. Last week's program included a women whose hobby is training dogs to speak. She had one there that could actually say, "I Love You." Note to Matt Phelan who is currently having trouble with two other fellows over a certain local college lass.

THEATER: The Kauffman-Gershwin musicomdey, "I'd Rather Be Right," opened in Boston to rave notices. . . . starring George M. Cohan, the presidential satire promises to be another "Of Thee I Sing" . . . it will be in Philly very, very shortly. Messers Shubert are bringing "Hooray for What," Ed Wynn's new musical with Hannah Williams Dempsey and our favorite rhythm - swingstress, Kay Thompson, also to Philly.

UNDERGRAD PICKS: In a poll just completed by the New York University "Varieties," most widely circulated student publication in the country, 3,376 students voted the following programs and radio personalities their favorites: Favorite comedian: (1) Jack Benny; (2) Fred Allen. Favorite singer; (1) Bing Crosby; (2) Kenny Baker. Favorite orchestra leader; (1) Mark Warnow; (2) Horace Heidt; (3) Benny Goodman. Favorite Actor; (1) Don Ameche; (2) Edward Robinson. Favorite actress; (1) Helen Hayes; (2) Claudette Colbert. Most unusual result of the poll was the number of votes cast for Mark Warnow and Horace Heidt, showing the students' change in attitude toward popular music. Swing music, apparently, is losing many of its former adherents.

Introducing—

by RENE CAILLIET

SOME 20 years ago in a little town of Philadelphia was born a little tyke that made January first not only the start of a new year but also a greater celebration, that of his birthday. This yowling brat was destined to guide the activities of the Villanova Engineering Bulletin and was classified in the census as Joseph Sanborn.

Joe, one of the few surviving senior Chemical Engineers, has won his way into many hearts with his perpetual smile and his shuffling feet. Always a leader or a willing follower when something is doing, Sandy has trucked his way into situations that are too numerous to mention here but his diary, if he has one, could well be published as a Collegian Digest.

Strange as it may seem, he is one of the few Engineers that can boast of an ever-present crease in his trousers and his Esquire style is only marred by the bulge of a faithful slide rule.

Coming from West Catholic, where he started his literary career on the newspaper staff, he became the efficient director of the Villanova Engineer. His efforts in this field have been witnessed by the new unique cover designs, new type printing, and the change in editorial policies. These changes on the publication have caused much favorable comment and have established the magazine as a first class issue not only in the opinion of the campus critics but also in the estimation of the National E. C. M. A.

Since high school days there has been sort of a Chase and Sanborn in which, Sanborn has been regularly "dated" and the chasing has been done by a certain Katherine, so we are told. Knowing Joe, however, it is doubtful that even if the date expired he would remain on the shelf very long.

JOSEPH B. SANBORN

In his Junior year his class mates realized that the freshmen were not admiring Joe in vain so they honored him with the vice presidency of Phi Kappa Pi Fraternity. Like many optimistic classmates, Sandy reluctantly confesses that he will accept $75 a week as a starting wage after he has covered a spot on the wall with his graduating sheepskin.

This introduction is really an unnecessary introduction compared to the many friends he has acquired with his "Hello, Chum." It can be said in parting that his middle name, would sooner apply to his list of friends, past record, or his feet than it would to the size of his head.

The outstanding characteristic of "Sandy" is his propensity for coming in late with the engineering story for the VILLANOVAN each week. For four long years he has been entrusted with the responsibility of getting the news in at a specified time. However, due to many other activities, Joe caused his editors to end of worry and numerous new gray hairs weekly by sailing in with copy long after it was due. Because of this, he has gradually earned the title of "Snail," and is shortly to be appointed chief executive of the newly - formed Procrastinators Club, which is comprised of those members of the staff who are late with their stories. The duties of the chief executive will be to show the way by means of personal example the art of folding VILLANOVANS for mailing purposes. As chief executive of the organization, Joe is expected to set a pace that will be difficult to maintain in years to come, and so it is with the best of wishes that we leave our celebrity of the week. May he live long and have success in all endeavors, especially in catching trains.

PEACE MASS SERMON CALLS MODERN WAR MONSTROUS MACHINE

Rev. Edward M. Dwyer, O.S.A., Decries International Conflict at Missa Cantata

FR. ALBERS IS CELEBRANT

In a Missa Cantata celebrated at 8:30 o'clock last Sunday in the campus chapel, the student body of Villanova College raised their hearts and minds to Christ in gratification for the peace which pervades our own land and in supplication for those nations less fortunate.

The Rev. Bernard M. Albers, O.S.A., vice president of the college, was celebrant and the Rev. Edward M. Dwyer, O.S.A., preached the sermon while the Scholastic Choir of the seminary assisted at the ceremony.

Quotes St. Augustine

"Peace is such a great good, that even on earth where we are surrounded by mortal things nothing is more pleasing to our ears, nothing is sought for more ardently, nothing is of greater value to us than the sweetness of peace, most dear to all of us." With this quotation from the "Civitate Dei" of Saint Augustine, Fr. Dwyer started off his sermon. His thesis was that peace was given to man by God and that as it is man who disrupts this peace it is for man to restore it.

It was not without a certain propriety that on the Feast of Christ the King a sermon should be preached which had as its purpose the peace of Christ in the reign of Christ. The context of the sermon was that the student body was gathered with the priest in gratitude to God for their own condition and in supplication for the less fortunate. Fr. Dwyer pointed out further that three principles must be realized if man were to attain peace, namely; justice, charity and the responsibility of man. Justice was not to be thought the aim of Christians solely but of all peoples but charity was to be recognized as an ideal peculiar to Christianity.

Fr. Dwyer reminded the student body that when Christ came down to earth peace reigned—He brought peace to mankind—and though this peace has long since been disrupted by man nevertheless there still remains that great gift of God, the will for peace. We should be grateful to God because though war, which has been prevalent throughout the word, has knocked at our door we have been successful thus far in avoiding it.

War Is Machine

"Christ came down to earth and brought peace. Christ has gone from the earth and peace has gone" reiterated Fr. Dwyer. But this is due to man's free will. God gave a man a free will by which he could reject sanctity, grace and even God himself if he so chose. There is prevalent a belief that "War is a monstrous machine which is eating up men." This "machine" is looked upon as a thing of nature, not to be avoided. But it never should be forgotten that this "monstruous machine" is born of man and is born only because man forgets the principles of justice and charity.

"Justice is a constituent part of man's make up." It is not only an ideal to be looked at from afar and it is the duty of every Catholic to never allow the pessimism, which maintains that Justice is unattainable, to penetrate into his beliefs and the same can be said of charity. The difference between these two principles is that "Justice is not only an ideal treasured by us but by other peoples as well" while charity is an ideal distinctly Christian.

"Justice must be preserved and when it is destroyed it must be restored among nations." Further for we Catholics the principle of charity must always be practiced as the same God that said He was justice also said "Love God above all things and your neighbor as yourself for the sake of God." Thus with the ideal of justice tempered with charity put into practice man can and will attain peace.

Diplomats of our day have however disregarded these principles and for that reason have failed to a great extent. "The demon of war is rising once more in spite of the World War." The reason for this is that "Justice was excluded in the treaties which followed the World War." A nation must have the necessities of life and when deprived of these can only be kept in peace by might.

We will have the peace which we so much desire then when man will by his free own will accept the principles of justice and charity.

AN IDEA OF WHAT TO EXPECT ON NOV. 13

SOPHS MIXING IT UP WITH FROSH
on one of their annual Field Day ceremonies. The mud battle is one of the most popular events on the schedule and always proves to be one of the most interesting to spectators.

Sophs Promise Frosh Very Busy Time When Annual Class-Day Clash Occurs

Special Committee Statement Presages Victory For Second Year Men Over Cocky Yearling Group; Tug-of-War, Pig Chase Will Be Featured

A new system has been inaugurated this year by the Class of '40 with regards to the Field Day. The details, formerly handled by the Orientation Committee, are now arranged by a separate committee. This Committee is under the leadership of George Haenn who was in the thick of it last year and who shows a lot of spirit in all activities. He is being assisted by a well chosen committee.

To Demonstrate Worth

This year, although the frosh are backed by a very large enrollment, the sophs will be out to try to show the high flying freshmen, in a gentlemanly sort of way, just which is the better class of the two.

The Class of 40, last year, had a taste of victory. But in respect to the class of 39, who fought very bravely, it must be said that they were outnumbered by about three to one. Remembering this, the sophs will be prepared to take on all the frosh who wish to attend the preliminaries leading up to the tug of war, which takes place at the pond, the loser being doused.

Pig Chase Planned

The preliminaries are still being arranged, but it is certain that there will be a greased pig chase. However, this year the pig is going to do a little running instead of sitting down and squealing. The ultimate aim is to get the pig in a basket. The class succeeding in doing this emerges victorious.

The day ends with the tug of war at the pond. But usually the pond wins, for when the lads are done the pond is no dirtier, which is more than one can say for the lads. When one class finds themselves on the short end of the rope, they usually go for their adversaries and then the fun begins. After a series of duckings, mud baths group wrestling and what not till everyone is tired, the weary gladiators tread home. They are happy whether on the losing or winning end and never fail to show good sportsmanship. With the mud scraped off, a hot shower and clean clothes, they feel chipper again.

The Field Day is one memory which will always remain in the heart of a Villanova man. Because it is here that he will find the brotherly spirit displayed under fire, but coming through unscathed. It is certain that all the sophs who took part in this last year will make a return appearance. It is also certain that those who didn't see action last year and miss it this year will have passed up something worth while.

of the judges will be declared and crowned "King and Queen of the Big Apple." This feature has been adopted at informal fraternity dances in many Eastern colleges.

Multi-colored balloons will be predominant in a variety of aspects at the dance according to an announcement by Rene Caillet, who has been assigned to direct decorations in the gymnasium. Other novelties indicative of the medical aspect of the Lambda Kappa Delta fraternity will be displayed at the dance, completing a well-rounded phase of decorations in creating a pleasant atmosphere for the dance.

As has been previously announced, tickets for the affair can be purchased from any member of the fraternity at $1.50 per couple. Complete enthusiasm was displayed by both Chairman Troncelliti and Allan F. Dowling, fraternity president, at a recent meeting of the organization. The co-operation being displayed by fraternity members in support of this annual presentation, together with the enthusiasm about the campus, give prophecy of a successful informal.

diately. Conte shares Biester's optimism over the ultimate result of the dinner-dance. Conte is determined to make this affair one of the most enjoyable and entertaining in the lives of the seniors.

Committees Announced Later

Immediately after all committees are announced, negotiations will get underway to contact leading dance aggregations in the country. After staging a fine Junior Prom last year, the seniors are confident of presenting another successful event.

Both Biester and Conte have been exceedingly active in extra-curricular activities in the course of their stay here. Biester is present business manager of the Belle Air, yearly publication of the college. In his sophomore year, he was a member of the Sophomore Cotillion Committee and the following year he was chairman of the Junior Ring Committee as well as a member of the Junior Prom Committee. Biester is also athletically inclined as is evidenced by his being an outstanding performer on the Villanova lightweight football team last year.

Conte, at present, is subscription editor of the VILLANOVAN and has been a member of the staff for the past four years.

Scanlon and Shiek Address Group Concerning Technical Gatherings

Two interesting and instructive reports were presented at the second bi-weekly meeting of the American Society of Civil Engineers. The first report was given by Ward Scanlon, who attended a meeting of student chapters of local engineering schools at the University of Pennsylvania and the other report was by Raymond Sheik on the "Golden Gate Bridge." He attended the civil engineers meeting at the Engineers Club in Philadelphia.

Formulation of plans in the imminent future for a trip to a reinforced concrete construction were discussed. President Joseph O'Brien extended a formal invitation to all new students of civil engineering to be in attendance at the next regular bi-weekly meeting which will be held November 4.

CAPTAIN RAY SONNENBERG HILL TOPPERS' BIG THREAT

Schoemann, Out of Action with Appendicitis, to Return to Center

By JOSEPH McDADE

In what promises to be one of the most interesting games in this section, the Golden Avalanche of Marquette University will invade the lair of the undefeated Villanova Wildcats in the initial fray between the two teams on Saturday, November 6, at Shibe Park. Marquette, despite its poor record to date, seems to be ready to crash the win column once more, judging by the great stand they made against a very powerful Santa Clara team. (The Main Liners, fresh from a hard fought victory over Detroit, are riding the crest of an undefeated season and must guard against any mental let-down in encountering a supposedly second rate team.)

Eleven Lettermen Back

Marquette, which last year suffered only one defeat in its regular season and one in a post-season tilt, has a strong, fast team that is long on courage but short on experience. It has but eleven letter men from last year's great team of whom only two are backfield men. This situation has caused coach Paddy Driscoll to rely upon his green sophomore backs. So far, they have not come up to expectations due principally to inexperience. However, with six games under their belt, the Golden Avalanche will strike Villanova in what should be top form.

Paddy Driscoll, a former All-American on Walter Camp's All-American selections, was faced with a difficult problem at the beginning of the season. He had a veteran starting line but no replacements. The situation in the backfield was even worse with only two veteran backs. Injuries from the outset put a crimp in the Marquette team. Coldagelli, one of the most promising backs, broke his leg, and Roy Schoemann, a center was forced to undergo an appendectomy operation. Several minor mishaps have kept the squad below its physical par.

Schoemann Will Play

However, Schoemann, who received considerable mention last year for his All-American work will play against Villanova. This will enhance the chances of the Hill Toppers considerably as Schoemann is one of the greatest centers in their history. A powerhouse on the offense, he has never made a bad pass to the backfield. His six feet one inch height, and 190 pounds stand him in good stead in backing up the line and in knocking down enemy passes.

Driscoll uses no particular system but incorporates the best features of several to which he adds his own ideas. He is an exponent of wide-open football and uses flankers, spreads, and passes extensively. He has built his passing attack around Ray Sonnenberg

Stopper Passes to Raimo For Only Tally of Game

Fullback Takes Throw on Goal Line to Break Losers Five Game Winning Streak; Three Regulars Injured in Fray

FARKAS STANDS OUT FOR VANQUISHED

By WILLIAM BOWKER

Despite the loss of three of its most valuable players, Villanova's unbeaten, unscored on eleven continued on its way by downing Gus Dorais' hitherto unbeaten Detroit Titans 7-0, before a 25,000 Detroit homecoming day crowd.

Minus the services of Game Captain Ray Stoviak, Andy Stopper, triple threat backs, and John Wysocki, All-American calibre end, the big Blue gridders showed a powerful defense after unleashing a rapid fire ground and aerial attack early in the opening period.

Raimo Scores On Pass

The Wildcat tally came after about ten minutes of the first period had passed, and was the result of the alert defensive play that has characterized the Main Liners' games all season. John Wysocki drove in from his left end position to block Ed Palumbo's punt deep in Detroit territory. Artie Raimo, the diminutive fullback, recovered on the Titan 16, and the fun began. Andy Farkas, one of the best backs seen by Villanova teams in many a day, threw Stopper for a six yard loss. This was followed by a pass which Johnny McKenna caught after Oliveto futilely attempted to bat it down. McKenna was downed on the ten, and Stopper made first down on the Detroit eight. Three plays availed naught, and with fourth down and goal to go, Stopper again faded to pass and completed one to Raimo, who had eluded the secondary and nabbed the ball as he crossed the goal line.

Wysocki added to his impressive record of points after touchdowns by making the score 7-0. During the time he was in the game, the "Bonecrusher" consistently rushed the Titan passers to make their vaunted aerial attack somewhat ineffective.

Stoviak Injured

Shortly after the score, the Wildcats lost the services of Game Captain Ray Stoviak, who was removed from the game due to a head injury received in attempting to block a punt. Those two Arts, Murphy and Raimo, alternated in Ray's position, throughout the remainder of the game.

Another valuable man was lost to the Blue cause as when Stopper, whose sensational punting had time and again set the losers back on their heels, retired from further play with a hip injury. His punting ability was not missed as much as might be assumed by Villanova rooters, for Harvey Buek showed himself to be an able kicker, booting the ball with great length and accuracy.

After the score and the completion of the initial period, the game developed into a see-saw battle of two great defensive teams, with the victors having the edge on yardage gained. The half closed without further action.

Titans Flash Power

Fifteen minutes of rest worked wonders with the Titan squad, and they promptly rolled up a couple of first downs by means of passes and running attacks that had the Wildcat rooters in a frenzy, the boys to do something about it. Much of

We can't find words that express sufficiently well the admiration we have for the corageous playing of our Wildcats last Saturday when they turned back the Detroit Titans on the one foot line. A salute to the Villanova eleven for their showing when the chips were down. And a special one to Harvey Buek for the beautiful punt he drove from deep in the end zone under the same terrific pressure.

Villanova's frosh footballers came through in fine style in their climax fray with the Temple yearlings last Friday night. The Kittens stormed into Temple Stadium and tore into the hitherto unbeaten Owlets to slap a 16-7 defeat on them. This was the third consecutive win for the charges of "Doc" Jacobs.

—V—

The frosh setup this Fall is quite different than it has been for the past four seasons. In addition to being daily guinea pigs for the varsity the yearlings have their own schedule to worry about. But the feature Blue greats have taken care of both assignments well. The Kittens opened up with a 27-0 win over Dickinson Seminary, which team has since administered a sound drubbing to the perennially strong Army Plebes. Next the Jacobmen took on the big Du Pont "A" team and bested them in a 13-0 mud battle. Then came the triumph over Temple.

—V—

In all three games Nick Basca, ex-Phoenixville High flash, has paced the Blue attack. Nick reached a peak in the Owl encounter. He gave an exhibition of pass tossing that would make even Slingin' Sammy Baugh envious. His record for the night was 12 successful passes out of 16 tries.

—V—

In the contest against Temple, Nick kicked a 30 yard field goal. If memory and the records at hand serve us, this was the first three pointer scored by a Villanova footballer since Toby Cavanaugh kicked one against Temple in November of 1933. Toby, incidentally, booted three in that 1933 season.

—V—

Two high-class ball-toters have been seen by the Villanova gridiron squad this year, and the pair consists of Andy Farkas and Bill Hitchcock. The former is the driving type of runner, while the latter, seen by more of the Wildcat rooters, is the shifty type. Both are certainly of All-American calibre, and should be near the top of the heap when the returns are in.

With the intramural basketball season still in its very early stages the Vandel Dayhops, defending champs, and the Fedigan Hall Gigolos look ill the class of the league. The Dayhop team is essentially the same club that has won the championship for the past two years, and they have been bolstered by the addition of several frosh, high school stars from Philadelphia. Fedigan has in recent years more or less specialized in baseball, but the present time finds them at the top of the basketball race.

FRESHMAN GRIDDERS GAIN 16 - 7 TRIUMPH OVER TEMPLE TEAM

Nick Basca Stars As Yearlings Trounce Hitherto Undefeated Owlets

By SAUL WALLACH

With "Smiling" Nick Basca turning in one of the season's outstanding individual performances, Villanova's undefeated freshman eleven smothered the Temple University yearlings, 16-7, under the arclights of Temple Stadium, Friday night.

A handful of fans, barely making a blotch in the huge bowl, saw Doc Jacobs' Kittens smash a 23 game winning streak established by Temple freshman teams.

Basca Too Much For Owls

It was too much Basca for Temple to stomach in one evening. Basca tossed 16 passes, 12 of which were completed, he ran like a scared rabbit when he had the ball, and did some fancy punting through out the game. Basca also was credited with a 30 yard field goal in the third period.

Two passes, Basca to Ben Morkun placed the ball in scoring position, on the 13 yard line. A third pass from Basco to Len Kolenda, standing unmolested in the end zone, brought the initial score in the second period. Basca failed to convert.

Following Phoenixville Nick's field goal, which culminated a 45 yard march, through the running efforts of Gordon Shader and Al

PEACE MASS SERMON CALLS MODERN WAR MONSTROUS MACHINE

Rev. Edward M. Dwyer, O.S.A., Decries International Conflict at Missa Cantata

FR. ALBERS IS CELEBRANT

In a Missa Cantata celebrated at 8:30 o'clock last Sunday in the campus chapel, the student body of Villanova College raised their hearts and minds to Christ in gratification for the peace which pervades our own land and in supplication for those nations less fortunate.

The Rev. Bernard M. Albers, O.S.A., vice president of the college, was celebrant and the Rev. Edward M. Dwyer, O.S.A., preached the sermon while the Scholastic Choir of the seminary assisted at the ceremony.

It was not without a certain propriety that on the Feast of Christ the King a sermon should be preached which had as its purpose the peace of Christ in the reign of Christ. The context of the sermon was that the student body was gathered with the priest in gratitude to God for their own condition and in supplication for the less fortunate. Fr. Dwyer pointed out further that three principles must be realized if man were to attain peace, namely; justice, charity and the responsibility of man. Justice was not to be thought the aim of Christians solely but of all peoples but charity was to be recognized as an ideal peculiar to Christianity.

Fr. Dwyer reminded the student body that when Christ came down to earth peace reigned—He brought peace to mankind—and though this peace has long since been disrupted by man nevertheless there still remains that great gift of God, the will for peace. We should be grateful to God because though war, which has been prevalent throughout the word, has knocked at our door we have been successful thus far in avoiding it.

War Is Machine

"Christ came down to earth and brought peace. Christ has gone from the earth and peace has gone" reiterated Fr. Dwyer. But this is due to man's free will. God gave a man a free will by which he could reject sanctity, grace and even God himself if he so chose. There is prevalent a belief that "War is a monstrous machine which is eating up men." This "machine" is looked upon as a thing of nature, not to be avoided. But it never should be forgotten that this "monstrous machine" is born of man and is born only because man forgets the principles of justice and charity.

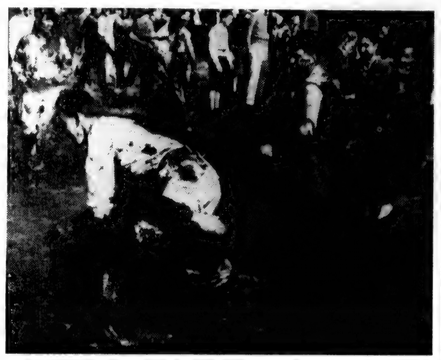
"Justice is a constituent part of man's make up." It is not only an ideal to be looked at from afar and it is the duty of every Catholic to never allow the pessimism, which maintains that Justice is unattainable, to penetrate into his beliefs and the same can be said of charity. The difference between these two principles is that "Justice is not only an ideal treasured by us but by other peoples as well" while charity is an ideal distinctly Christian.

"Justice must be preserved and when it is destroyed it must be restored among nations." Further for we Catholics the principle of charity must always be practiced as the same God that said He was justice also said "Love God above all things and your neighbor as yourself for the sake of God." Thus with the ideal of justice tempered with charity put into practice man can and will attain peace.

Diplomats of our day have however disregarded these principles and for that reason have failed to a great extent. "The demon of war is rising once more in spite of the World War." The reason for this is that "Justice was excluded in the treaties which followed the World War." A nation must have the necessities of life and when deprived of these can only be kept in peace by might.

We will have the peace which we so much desire then when man will by his free own will accept the principles of justice and charity.

AN IDEA OF WHAT TO EXPECT ON NOV. 13



SOPHS MIXING IT UP WITH FROSH
on one of their annual Field Day ceremonies. The mud battle is one of the most popular events on the schedule and always proves to be one of the most interesting to spectators.

Sophs Promise Frosh Very Busy Time When Annual Class-Day Clash Occurs

Special Committee Statement Presages Victory For Second Year Men Over Cocky Yearling Group; Tug-of-War, Pig Chase Will Be Featured

A new system has been inaugurated this year by the Class of '40 with regards to the Field Day. The details, formerly handled by the Orientation Committee, are now arranged by a separate committee. This Committee is under the leadership of George Haenn who was in the thick of it last year and who shows a lot of spirit in all activities. He is being assisted by a well chosen committee.

To Demonstrate Worth

This year, although the frosh are backed by a very large enrollment, the sophs will be out to try to show the high flying freshmen, in a gentlemanly sort of way, just which is the better class of the two.

The Class of 40, last year, had a taste of victory. But in respect to the class of 39, who fought very bravely, it must be said that they were outnumbered by about three to one. Remembering this, the sophs will be prepared to take on all the frosh who wish to attend the preliminaries leading up to the tug of war, which takes place at the pond, the loser being doused.

Pig Chase Planned

The preliminaries are still being arranged, but it is certain that there will be a greased pig chase. However, this year the pig is going to do a little running instead of sitting down and squealing. The ultimate aim is to get the pig in a basket. The class succeeding in doing this emerges victorious.

The day ends with the tug of war at the pond. But usually the pond wins, for when the lads are done the pond is no dirtier, which is more than one can say for the lads. When one class finds themselves on the short end of the rope, they usually go for their adversaries and then the fun begins. After a series of duckings, mud baths group wrestling and what not till everyone is tired, the weary gladiators tread home. They are happy whether on the losing or winning end and never fail to show good sportsmanship. With the mud scraped off, a hot shower and clean clothes, they feel chipper again.

The Field Day is one memory which will always remain in the heart of a Villanova man. Because it is here that he will find the brotherly spirit displayed under fire, but coming through unscathed. It is certain that all the sophs who took part in this last year will make a return appearance. It is also certain that those who didn't see action last year and miss it this year will have passed up something worth while.

diately. Conte shares Biester's optimism over the ultimate result of the dinner-dance. Conte is determined to make this affair one of the most enjoyable and entertaining in the lives of the seniors.

Committees Announced Later

Immediately after all committees are announced, negotiations will get underway to contact leading dance aggregations in the country. After staging a fine Junior Prom last year, the seniors are confident of presenting another successful event.

Both Biester and Conte have been exceedingly active in extra-curricular activities in the course of their stay here. Biester is present business manager of the Belle Air, yearly publication of the college. In his sophomore year, he was a member of the Sophomore Cotillion Committee and the following year he was chairman of the Junior Ring Committee as well as a member of the Junior Prom Committee. Biester is also athletically inclined as is evidenced by his being an outstanding performer on the Villanova lightweight football team last year.

Conte, at present, is subscription editor of the VILLANOVAN and has been a member of the staff for the past four years.

Multi-colored balloons will be predominant in a variety of aspects at the dance according to an announcement by Rene Cailliet, who has been assigned to direct decorations in the gymnasium. Other novelties indicative of the medical aspect of the Lambda Kappa Delta fraternity will be displayed at the dance, completing a well-rounded phase of decorations in creating a pleasant atmosphere for the dance.

As has been previously announced, tickets for the affair can be purchased from any member of the fraternity at $1.50 per couple. Complete enthusiasm was displayed by both Chairman Tronceliti and Allan F. Dowling, fraternity president, at a recent meeting of the organization. The co-operation being displayed by fraternity members in support of this annual presentation, together with the enthusiasm about the campus, give prophecy of a successful informal.

CAPTAIN RAY SONNENBERG HILL TOPPERS' BIG THREAT

Schoemann, Out of Action with Appendicitis, to Return to Center

By JOSEPH McDADE

In what promises to be one of the most interesting games in this section, the Golden Avalanche of Marquette University will invade the lair of the undefeated Villanova Wildcats in the initial fray between the two teams on Saturday, November 6, at Shibe Park, Marquette, despite its poor record to date, seems to be ready to crash the win column once more, judging by the great stand they made against a very powerful Santa Clara team. (The Main Liners, fresh from a hard fought victory over Detroit, are riding the crest of an undefeated season and must guard against any mental let-down in encountering a supposedly second rate team.)

Eleven Lettermen Back

Marquette, which last year suffered only one defeat in its regular season and one in a post-season tilt, has a strong, fast team that is long on courage but short on experience. It has but eleven letter men from last year's great team of whom only two are backfield men. This situation has caused coach Paddy Driscoll to rely upon his green sophomore backs. So far, they have not come up to expectations due principally to inexperience. However, with six games under their belt, the Golden Avalanche will strike Villanova in what should be top form.

Paddy Driscoll, a former All-American on Walter Camp's All-American selections, was faced with a difficult problem at the beginning of the season. He had a veteran starting line but no replacements. The situation in the backfield was even worse with only two veteran backs. Injuries from the outset put a crimp in the Marquette team. Coldagelli, one of the most promising backs, broke his leg, and Roy Schoemann, a center was forced to undergo an appendectomy operation. Several minor mishaps have kept the squad below its physical par.

Schoemann Will Play

However, Schoemann, who received considerable mention last year for his All-American work will play against Villanova. This will enhance the chances of the Hill Toppers considerably as Schoemann is one of the greatest centers in their history. A powerhouse on the offense, he has never made a bad pass to the backfield. His six feet one inch height, and 190 pounds stand him in good stead in backing up the line and in knocking down enemy passes.

Driscoll uses no particular system but incorporates the best features of several to which he adds his own ideas. He is an exponent of wide-open football and uses flankers, spreads, and passes extensively. He has built his passing attack around Ray Sonnenberg

Fullback Takes Throw on Goal Line to Break Losers Five Game Winning Streak; Three Regulars Injured in Fray

FARKAS STANDS OUT FOR VANQUISHED

By WILLIAM BOWKER

Despite the loss of three of its most valuable players, Villanova's unbeaten, unscored on eleven continued on its way by downing Gus Dorais' hitherto unbeaten Detroit Titans 7-0, before a 25,000 Detroit homecoming day crowd.

Minus the services of Game Captain Ray Stoviak, Andy Stopper, triple threat backs, and John Wysocki, All-American calibre end, the big Blue gridders showed a powerful defense after unleashing a rapid fire ground and aerial attack early in the opening period.

Raimo Scores On Pass

The Wildcat tally came after about ten minutes of the first period had passed, and was the result of the alert defensive play that has characterized the Main Liners' games all season. John Wysocki drove in from his left end position to block Ed Palumbo's punt deep in Detroit territory. Artie Raimo, the diminutive fullback, recovered on the Titan 16, and the fun began. Andy Farkas, one of the best backs seen by Villanova teams in many a day, threw Stopper for a six yard loss. This was followed by a pass which Johnny McKenna caught after Oliveto futilely attempted to bat it down. McKenna was downed on the ten, and Stopper made first down on the Detroit eight. Three plays availed naught, and with fourth down and goal to go, Stopper again faded to pass and completed one to Raimo, who had eluded the secondary and nabbed the ball as he crossed the goal line.

Wysocki added to his impressive record of points after touchdowns by making the score 7-0. During the time he was in the game, the "Bonecrusher" consistently rushed the Titan passers to make their vaunted aerial attack somewhat ineffective.

Stoviak Injured

Shortly after the score, the Wildcats lost the services of Game Captain Ray Stoviak, who was removed from the game due to a head injury received in attempting to block a punt. Those two Arts, Murphy and Raimo, alternated in Ray's position, throughout the remainder of the game.

Another valuable man was lost to the Blue cause as when Stopper, whose sensational punting had time and again set the losers back on their heels, retired from further play with a hip injury. His punting ability was not missed as much as might be assumed by Villanova rooters, for Harvey Buek showed himself to be an able kicker, booting the ball with great length and accuracy.

After the score and the completion of the initial period, the game developed into a see-saw battle of two great defensive teams, with the victors having the edge on yardage gained. The half closed without further action.

Titans Flash Power

Fifteen minutes of rest worked wonders with the Titan squad, and they promptly rolled up a couple of first downs by means of passes and running attacks that had the yard march, through the running efforts of Gordon Shader and Al

Editor's Note. This week the Sportorial is being conducted by John L. Simons, Associate Sports Editor.

—V—

We can't find words that express sufficiently well the admiration we have for the corageous playing of our Wildcats last Saturday when they turned back the Detroit Titans on the one foot line. A salute to the Villanova eleven for their showing when the chips were down. And a special one to Harvey Buek for the beautiful punt he drove from deep in the end zone under the same terrific pressure.

Villanova's frosh footballers came through in fine style in their climax fray with the Temple yearlings last Friday night. The Kittens stormed into Temple Stadium and tore into the hitherto unbeaten Owlets to slap a 16-7 defeat on them. This was the third consecutive win for the charges of "Doc" Jacobs.

—V—

The frosh setup this Fall is quite different than it has been for the past four seasons. In addition to being daily guinea pigs for the varsity the yearlings have their own schedule to worry about. But the feature Blue greats have taken care of both assignments well. The Kittens opened up with a 27-0 win over Dickinson Seminary, which team has since administered a sound drubbing to the perennially strong Army Plebes. Next the Jacomen took on the big Du Pont "" team and bested them in a 13- mud battle. Then came the triumph over Temple.

—V—

In all three games Nick Basca, ex-Phoenixville High flash, has paced the Blue attack. Nick reached a peak in the Owl encounter. He gave an exhibition of pass tossing that would make even Slingin' Sammy Baugh envious. His record for the night was 12 successful passes out of 16 tries.

—V—

In the contest against Temple, Nick kicked a 30 yard field goal. If memory and the records at hand serve us, this was the first three pointer scored by a Villanova footballer since Toby Cavanaugh kicked one against Temple in November of 1933. Toby, incidentally, booted three in that 1933 season.

—V—

Two high-class bull-toters have been seen by the Villanova gridiron squad this year, and the pair consists of Andy Farkas and Bill Hitchcock. The former is the driving type of runner, while the latter, seen by more of the Wildcat rooters, is the shifty type. Both are certainly of All-American calibre, and should be near the top of the heap when the returns are in.

With the intramural basketball season still in its very early stages the Vendel Dayhops, defending champs, and the Fedigan Hall Gigolos look like the class of the league. The Dayhop team is essentially the same club that has won the championship for the past two years, and they have been bolstered by the addition of several frosh, high school stars from Philadelphia. Fedigan has in recent years more or less specialized in baseball, but the present time finds them at the top of the basketball race.

FRESHMAN GRIDDERS GAIN 16 - 7 TRIUMPH OVER TEMPLE TEAM

Nick Basca Stars As Yearlings Trounce Hitherto Undefeated Owlets

By SAUL WALLACH

With "Smiling" Nick Basca turning in one of the season's outstanding individual performances, Villanova's undefeated freshman eleven smothered the Temple University yearlings, 16-7, under the arclights of Temple Stadium, Friday night.

A handful of fans, barely making a blotch in the huge bowl, saw Doc Jacobs' Kittens smash a 23 game winning streak established by Temple freshman teams.

Basca Too Much For Owls

It was too much Basca for Temple to stomach in one evening. Basca tossed 16 passes, 12 of which were completed, he ran like a scared rabbit when he had the ball, and did some fancy punting through out the game. Basca also was credited with a 30 yard field goal in the third period.

Two passes, Basca to Ben Morkun placed the ball in scoring position, on the 13 yard line. A third pass from Basco to Len Kolenda, standing unmolested in the end zone, brought the initial score in the second period. Basca failed to convert.

Following Phoenixville Nick's field goal, which culminated a 45 yard march, through the running efforts of Gordon Shader and Al Wildcat rooters [illegible] ring the boys to do something [illegible] it. Much of

Strong Dayhop Quintet Routs Mendel 51-18

Fedigan Basketeers Still Pacing Intramural League

Gigolos and Mendel Dayhops Each Gain Two Victories; Keating Gets 19 Points in Commutters' Rout of Penthousers

TOTIN LEADING INDIVIDUAL SCORER

By BILL SINNOTT

The conclusion of the second week of the Intramural basketball competition found the Fedigan Hall "Gigolos" firmly ensconced in first place by virtue of victories over the "Penthousers" of Mendel Hall and the C&F Dayhops by scores of 39-7 and 27-19, respectively, to record their second and third consecutive wins.

The Mendel Dayhops, late starters in the league, garnered two victories to land in second place. The commuters licked Alumni, 35-23, and swamped the Mendel Residents under an avalanche of baskets by a score of 51-18 to gain third place.

Austin Hall, recovered from its debut defeat last week by Fedigan, handed the C&F Dayhops a 30-27 setback and the Irish of Alumni a 33-21 beating.

The Fediganites had little trouble in dispensing with the threat offered by the Mendelmen. Mike Totin personally accounted for four points more than the entire Mendel team scored. The same Mike Totin continued his scoring spree to lead his lads to a surprise victory over the strong C&F Daymen. He rang up 12 points and directed the floor play of the Gigolos.

Dayhops Win Two

The Mendel Commuters, heralded as the strongest club in the league, started fast and smothered the Green and White of Alumni in their Tuesday game. The last minute scoring splurge of Joe Beittenmiller won for the Dayhops.

The Mendel Residents, set to hold Beittenmiller in check, failed to take into consideration the scoring proclivities of Thorne and Keating, who scored 35 points between them, and were submerged under a record score for the young season, 51-18.

The most interesting game of the week was the battle of the Austinites and C&F Dayhops. The Dayhops lead at half time due to the individual efforts of Don McGurk. With the score 19-13 against them, the Vigilante men, lead by sharpshooting Jim Dwyer, bottled McGurk in the second half and went on to win. McGurk contributed 15 points to the Dayhops' cause. Dwyer and "Tex" Connor tossed in 19 between them.

Alumni, striving desperately to avert a second defeat for the week's play, could not cope with the set shots of the sensational Dwyer and finally succumbed in the second half after holding the "Little Autos" from Austin in check for the first half.

In the individual scoring race, Mike Totin added 23 points to his total to run up to 30 and nose out Keating who had 27 to his credit. Jim Dwyer had 23 for third place honors. The highest score for one game was achieved by Keating who rippled the cords for nine baskets and one foul for a 19-point effort against the Mendel Residents. Close on Keating's heels was Joe Beittenmiller with a 15-point game against the "Gas House Gang" from Alumni Hall.

and Andy Bakula, usually occupies the right half-back post and is regarded as a triple threat man. Bakula, 5 feet 10 inches and hitting 170, alternates with Howard Spuhler in the quarterback spot. Both are sophomores and despite their lack of experience have shown ood judgment in calling plays when under pressure. Their passing and running ability are about even as both men are touchdown threats when once past the line of scrimmage.

Dan Koster, whose 6 feet 2 inches and 198 pounds fits him quite capably for a good blocking back, holds down the left halfback slot. He also is a sophomore but is one of the most promising finds of the season according to Driscoll, and is a capable running mate of Sonnenberg. In Morgan Busch, the Avalanche has 190 pounds of human tornado that crashes the line viciously. His 6 feet 1 inch, supplies him with plenty of power with which to make up that needed yardage for a first down. He is hard to stop when once he gets in motion.

In front of these backs is a rugged line composed of veterans from end to end. Standout among them are the ends Anderson and Cooper together with Schoemann at center. The lack of replacements however, often forces Driscoll to use his starting line-up for nearly the whole game. The line has an average weight of 192 pounds and is slightly over 6 feet in height, while the backfield hits the scales at 180 and is about 6 feet in height also.

With six games behind them and the determination to break into the win column once more, the Wildcats are going to have a tough time trying to stop them.

Blue Gridders Defeat Titans

the success of their passing offensive was due to the fact that the tosser, usually Palumbo or Farkas, had plenty of time to pick out his man and throw the ball. Several first downs were made this way, and the Detroit fans were beginning to voice enthusiasm when McKenna intercepted a toss on his own five. After Buek kicked out of danger, the Titan aerials again began to function with Palumbo throwing to Ripley and other Detroit receivers almost at will, until Art Murphy, showing up extremely well on pass defense, intercepted another of Palumbo's heaves.

Buek punted out of bounds on the Titan four shortly after the final quarter opened, but the home team was offside and the play was called over. This time Captain Joe Cieslak drove through from his position at right half to block the kick, which was recovered by the Wildcats, but the ball wis given to the Titans on the Blue 43. Pass after pass was expected at this point by the visitors, but a well executed running attack, featured by the phenomenal work of Farkas gained much yardage. After Farkas had driven to the seven on a pass from Palumbo, Ray Larsen, stellar end, took the ball on an end around, but was tackled viciously by Mellus and dropped the ball. "Curly" John fell on the ball on the one foot mark. Buek's punt ended the most important Titan threat, and shortly after this the game concluded, leaving Villanova with four more opponents to conquer this season.

Shorts

Andy Farkas, despite a leg infection, played such outstanding ball that he cannot help but rate a position on the Wildcat All-Opponent eleven.

The Wildcat line again played defensive ball comparable to that attributed to Forham's "saven blocks of granite." The losers ended up with a net gain from scrimmage of minus 20 yards.

Sophomore replacements at guard and halfback positions showed that "Clipper" Smith hasn't much to worry about from those sources next year, but where, oh where, will he find another pair of tackles like Oliver and Mellus? These lads, along with Harvey Buek, played the entire contest.

Farkas, despite the fact that he was stopped from scoring by the Blue eleven, is still a great player.

LIGHTWEIGHTS BOW TO PRINCETON, 12 - 0

Kerrigan and Leahy Injured as 150's Drop Third Fray of Year

Princeton's 150-pound football team continued undefeated in league competition when they downed the Villanova lightweights by a 12-0 score at Princeton last Friday afternoon.

Villanova fought gallantly but they were unable to score even though they piled up more first downs than their opponents. It was the first time this year that the Blue had their offense clicking consistently and they would have scored if it hadn't been for several bad breaks.

Kerrigan Injured

The Wildcats' fighting captain, Paul Kerrigan, received such a severe blow on the neck that he had to be carried from the field on a stretcher. According to X-ray photographs that were taken immediately, however, it was seen that he was not injured seriously. A few moments later his substitute, Gene Leahy, made such a hard tackle that his equipment couldn't absorb the shock and as a consequence his collar bone was broken.

This fullback position wasn't jinxed because Harold Murphy then came into the game and proceeded to rip through the center of the game for one long gain after another.

Tiger Offensive Clicks

At the very beginning of the game Princeton had Villanova far back on their own goal line. The Wildcats kicked out of danger on several occasions, but finally the Tiger offense began to click and it wasn't long before Buster Bedford cracked through the line for a touchdown. The placement for the extra point was wide.

Becoming aroused at this point the Wildcats shook Ed Henessey loose on a thirty-yard run that was stopped by a lone Tiger who cornered the ball carrier between himself and the sideline. This rally lost its fire when the goals changed at the quarter and it was a while before the 'Cats began to scamper again. On one reverse after another Harold Murphy aided by excellent blocking by the linemen, carried the ball for four first downs in succession. Just as the Blue were in position a misplay cost them the ball and when they got it back on downs the half ended before a score could be made.

The third quarter displayed some great defensive work by both teams. Outstanding was Frank Lombardo, who was calling his shots so successfully from his defensive position at left halfback

First Villanova Frosh Swimming Team Planned; Bowling Tourney In December

John Pholeric and Walter Kelley Outstanding Frosh Natators

When a coach is appointed to take over the destinies of the Villanova swimmers this year he will have a well conditioned squad to guide in quest of aquatic victories. Through daily drills under the watchful eye of Captain Greco, the boys have already reached mid-season form.

Captain Greco is pleased with the showing of team in the time trials over the distance of 200 yards. While the trials are used only as a check, plenty of the natators, particularly some of the freshmen, have exhibited flashy form and speed. John Pholeric, a freshman who looks more like a tackle than a sprinter, has led the way in the time trials thus far.

Wealth of Material Available

With a wealth of Freshmen material available this year it is the hope of the Captain that a regular yearling team will be organized. If Greco's plan finds favor with the new coach, whomever he may be, it will be the first Frosh team in the history of the sport at Villanova. One meet has been scheduled for the first-year men with Germantown Y. M. C. A. on December 3.

It is the hope of all those interested in swimming that the team will materialize. Probably the most outstanding freshman is Walt Kelley, famous in Middle Atlantic swimming circles and former national Catholic champ in both 50 and 100 yard dashes. Kelley won both of the titles while competing for West Catholic High in the annual scholastic meet sponsored by Villanova. Walt should feel right at home while swimming for the Kittens.

Kelley Shines at Hun

Last year Kelley prepped at Hun School and he placed his name high in the long list of out-standing stars who have competed for the Jersey school. If he continues at his present pace he should do for swimming at Villanova, what Larry Kelley did for football at Yale. Promising members of the yearling squad are Paul Farnsworth who specializes in the backstroke and the 50 free-style, and Tom Moore, formerly of North Catholic.

Ferris, the "Kittens" started to roll again.

Ends Snare Passes

Basca's accurate bullet throws, combined with the able pass snatching of the Villanova pass receivers, set the ball in motion for the second "Kitten" touchdown of the night. The former Phoenixville High and Pennington Prep luminary, unfuried one of his prize heaves of the fracas, thrown from the vicinity of the Temple 45, lodged in the huge paws of Pete Yankauskas, stellar halfback, somewhere between the 15 and 13 yard lines. Yankauskas scampered the rest of the way for the score. Basca made the try for the extra point good.

Had it not been for Julian Ertz and Bill Jurlowicz, the Templars would have been completely annihilated. Both gained almost at will with their line plunging, and the former's punts, averaged 50 yards per boot.

Bruising Ed Killian, Bill Pisclone, and Will Dokas drew the plaudits of the small crowd for their fine brand of defensive play.

A bad pass from center, placing the ball on the Main-Line goal stripe, paved the way to the lone "Owlet" score of the fray. Basca's punt from behind the goal line was returned by Bob McCracken to the 19 . Successive thrusts by Larry Brahm, substitute back, put the ball on the three, where he crashed over the line for the tally. Brahm placekicked the extra point.

Jacob's minions rolled up nine firstdowns to the four credited to Temple. The "Owlets" made much of their headway, through a strong ground attack.

FIELD GOALS WIN

"Doc" Jacobs' Norristown club lost over last week-end due to the educated toe of Dick John, former Princeton star, who booted four field goals to give his club 12 points, enough for victory.

Bits from Detroit

By YOURS TRULY

Villanova had a small group of rooters at the game . . . we mean student rooters, not enthusiasts from outlying areas of Detroit. . . . Every student out there was a guest at the Book-Cadillac Hotel, and by guest we mean non-paying. . . . Of course, some slept on the floor, and one used the somewhat small easy chair and a dresser drawer to rest his weary bones. . . . Incidentally, we hear that the floor of the Motor City hostelry is not much harder than the beds around here. . . . Idle rumor, we hope.

Detroit's band looked and sounded like a million dollars until they perpetrated a rendition of "Hail Villanova." . . . Then they were—well, the word that Ted Husing was banished from Harvard broadcasts for using is the one that comes to mind. . . . The trombones ended up ahead of the saxes and on the whole a rather inadequate rendition of this stirring piece was the result. . . . It is to be hoped most sincerely that the spectators present didn't think that was the Villanova Alma Mater. . . . The drum major was all right, though.

Co-eds were trotting around the campus Friday afternoon . . . leading Yours Truly to come to the conclusion that Detroit is a co-educational institution, even as Villanova is listed in the World Almanac. . . . They were nice, too. . . . There are no dorms at the U. of D. Everyone day-hops or boards out near the place. . . . It must be farther from the center of Detroit than Villanova is from Philly. . . . The buildings are pretty nice, each one being a separate school, Engineering, Science, etc.

The lads who drove out—six of them — pulled in the Motor City about three - quarters of an hour after the gridders. . . . They expected to grub a meal from the fashionable Laurel School in Cleveland, but fourfifteen antemeridian is scarcely the time to drop in for breakfast.

. . . What a beating the Forest City stop lights took. No less than seven or eight successive lights were crashed, or maybe the boys are bragging. . . . Page Jim Montgomery. Some of the lads thought It was a nice town. . . . And it is.

Detroit was certainly hotted up for the fray. Big headlines in the papers before and after the game. The Titans' Rose Bowl hopes were dashed with the touchdown Artie Raimo scored. . . . It was the largest homecoming day crowd ever to be present at Detroit. . . . It just goes to show how the Wildcats are rated outside of Philly. Seats behind the end zone were selling for $2.00, and not scalper's prices either.

Play to Start Shortly After End of Grid Season

Upon completion of the football season a Bowling and Billiard tournament will be held. Under the able guidance of Bill Slaughter the prospective contest is coming along in fine fettle. It is expected that this year will be a banner season for the tourney due to the high interest shown by the student body.

Unlike other years, this season may see the Pool and Ten Pin boys as members of the mural schedule. A suggestion has been made to the Rev. Edward B. McKee, O.S.A., moderator of intra-murals, that these sports be entered in the Intra-mural schedule and he has taken it under consideration. The eliminations will be held similar to the tennis tournament, that is, each hall will play separate matches among themselves to determine their representative and the winners from all the halls will be matched in the finals.

Since some of the best Pool shots and Bowlers are football players. It has been decided that the contest would bring better results if it were run after the pigskin season when the football men could compete. If this sport is not entered in the mural card there will be valuable prizes for those who win.

All those who have a yearning to try their hand at either pool or bowling are requested to stop at the gym any afternoon between 1:30 and 5:30 P. M. Those desiring to enter the contest are asked to see Bill Slaughter so that he may know upon how many entries to consider in making up a schedule.

that he was making tackles up on the line of scrimmage. He also helped stave off a Princeton rally by intercepting a pass close close to his own goal line and carrying it to the thirty-five before he was downed.

Opening up with a passing attack in the final chapter, Villanova showed its lack of finesse on several occasions by having two eligible receivers run so close together that they could be covered by one defender. Up to this point Villanova had been doing a fine job on defense but as the twilight deepened the backers-up and halfbacks were being faked out of position by off-tackle cutbacks. Bruce Batejar first got way on one of these for a 50-yard gain that was only stopped by the very fast Ed Hennessey. After another five yard gain the Princeton back again carried the ball the remaining 20 yards to a touchdown. The drop-kick was blocked and then downed by a Villanova man. The game ended on the following kick-off by Princeton.

In the center of the Villanova line the fine offensive blocking and defensive playing of Joe Alessandroni and Evan Quinn, both 60-minute men, stood out like a shining light. This was the first game that Quinn, New York district fencing champion, had ever started. The game with Rutgers the Saturday before was the first game in which he had ever played.

HERE and THERE

By Tom Carbine

EIGHT INCHES have been the margin that has kept Villanova in that select group of unscored upon teams. When Auburn recovered a mishandled punt in their game at Shibe Park, the ball was only four inches from the goal line. Again against Detroit, when Johnny Mellus made Ray Larsen fumble from the severity of the tackle, the ball was recovered four inches from the line.

So that he might be more valuable to the team this year as a quarterback, Franny Nye gave up his opportunity of playing a good bit last year as blocking back. This sacrifice has netted him fifteen minutes of actual playing time so far this season and it now looks as though this will be his total game service for 1937 because his knee injury is of the more serious nature. Franny was one of the hardest blocking backs on the squad and it speaks well for his successor Harvey Buek, who has played 60 minutes in this position in the last three games.

Plus Nye's injury, the week-end also saw Andy Stopper and John Wysocki taken out of the game with bruised hips and Ray Stoviak with the results of a head blow and wrenched shoulder. However, these publicized injuries were not the only ones of the week-end. The one hundred and fifty pound team lost the services of two very valuable players. Captain Paul Kerrigan received a severe blow on the back of the neck that raised considerable alarm until X-ray photographs showed up negative. His substitute, Gene Leahy, then was stretched out with a broken collarbone after making a tackle. When the Princeton doctor removed Leahy's jersey to look at the injury and saw the shoulder pads that were supposed to protect against such an injury, his eyebrows lifted in a very expressive manner. And who wouldn't be surprised to see the inferior equipment that the lightweights are expected to use in this bone-crushing game of football?

The 150-pound team played their best game of the year against Princeton, and the offense showed that Coach Bangert's practice of thorough dummy scrimmage is bearing fruit. The boys were fighting for a win, but a couple of breaks decided the game against them. Not at all discouraged though, the boys are looking forward to the game with Yale on Saturday. This will be the first home game of the season and it is felt that Yale will be in for quite a surprise.

Undefeated, Yale won the League title last year and they might be just a trifle overconfident when they meet the Wildcats. In any event, Villanova's students will have their first opportunity to see a fighting 150-pound team.

A sure sign that Winter is upon us — ice hockey will again take precedent at the Arena when the Ramblers return from Canada for their first game on Saturday night. Last year was the first season that Philadelphia has had a team that has been worthy of a boast and Coach Hub Gardinier promises us that his combination will be more colorful than ever. There was a time when Villanova had an ice-hockey team, but it died a sudden death several years ago and has never been revived.

BETA GAMMA MEETS INITIAL OPPONENTS

Varsity Forensic Group to Inaugurate Season in Radio Debate Today

Campus dials will be turned to radio station WIP this afternoon to hear Beta Gamma engage St. Joseph's College debating team at 3:15 o'clock. Speakers for Villanova, taking the affirmative side of the issue Resolved: That the National Labor Relations Board should be empowered to arbitrate all industrial disputes, are, in order, Frederick Waters, John J. Harrington, and Robert E. O'Brien.

At the present time the Board's duty is confined to the protection of the exercise of collective bargaining rights. The resolution if carried out would extend the authority of the Board to settle strikes, lockouts, intimidation, and all other disputes of capital and labor. This is seen as an important question, and as Anthony Frayne, moderator, said of it, "loaded with dynamite."

At the regular meetings of the society this afternoon and Thursday afternoon workouts in the Oregon plan will be gone through in preparation for the debate with the University of Pennsylvania Evening School next Monday, November 8. This will be the first home debate of the season. Two Villanova teams are ready for this debate: William J. Corkill—John W. Stahmann and John L. Simons—Joseph McNamara. One team will go to Philadelphia and the other will be host to Penn here.

Heads of Jewelry Firms Address Junior Ring Committee Members

Earle S. Eby and A. A. Constable, Producers of '38 and '35 Rings, Speak to Group at Last Week's Meetings

In the course of the past week, representatives of two leading Philadelphia jewelry firms have addressed the Junior Ring Committee.

On Thursday afternoon, Mr. Earle S. Eby, proprietor of the company bearing his name, spoke to the committeemen in support of his bid. Mr. Eby extemporized on the reliability of his work in the past, the various schools for which he has made rings, and the aspects of die-making together with the history of a ring from molten mass to finished product. In regard to the stone he suggested that the genuine mined stone be chosen in most cases because of its hardness in comparison with the synthetic type. For this reason he does not recommend the new two-tone stone, which is synthetic.

Congratulates '38 Class

During the meeting Mr. Eby, who was awarded the ring contract last year, congratulated that class (now the senior class) for its prompt payment and very satisfactory relations with his company.

Mr. Eby also suggested that the method of handling all complaints used last year, should be continued this year. At that time after all the rings had been distributed, a student representative of the company was empowered to inspect all imperfect rings, and to return them either to the company for satisfaction or to the student, depending upon whom, in his judgment, was responsible. Mr. Eby said that position was very capably filled last year by Louis J. Biester, Commerce and Finance student.

Mr. A. A. Constable, representing the Bailey, Banks and Biddle Company of Philadelphia, appeared at the committee meeting Friday.

Mr. Constable, whose company supplied the Class of '35 rings, brought with him a complete set of the dies used in making that ring. These consisted of five separate sections of high-grade steel, each enscribed with sections of the ring. Two of these are called "hubs," which consist of the original pieces inscribed by hand. These hubs are then pressed separately into two larger sections of steel. The fifth section of die is the top of the ring, that piece surrounding the stone. All of pieces, except the hubs are then used in the actual making of the ring.

Among those companies yet to send representatives, but with whom appointments have been made covering the next two weeks, are Martin Company, Tratemburg Company and Leming Company.

COMMITTEE MEETS

There will be a very important meeting of the Frosh-Soph Field Day Committee today at 1 o'clock in Room 207. All members are requested to attend.

Hundreds See Fire In Villanova Gym Sunday Evening

False Ceiling Completely Destroyed by Blaze; Damage Not Very Great

A spectacular fire raced through the Villanova College gymnasium last Sunday night damaging hundreds of yards of draperies and acoustic curtains, which were erected for the coming Lambda Kappa Delta dance this Friday evening.

The fire, which attracted hundreds of passing motorists, was discovered by a member of the faculty and several students, who were exercising in the gymnasium at the time. A hurried call was put through to the Bryn Mawr Fire Company, who arrived in time to rip down much of the blazing material before it could damage the ceiling.

The blaze, however, completely destroyed the false ceiling and burned one acoustic curtain in its entirety.

An electric bulb over the draperies suddenly exploding, showering sparks on the flimsy cloth, was given as the cause of the fire. The damage was estimated at approximately $400.

The false ceiling is owned by the Lambda Kappa Delta, science fraternity which is sponsoring the dance this week. The acoustic curtains are owned by the college and were purchased by the authorities for the Belle Masque.

OBITUARY

Students and faculty join in expressing their condolences to the Rev. John O'Leary, O. S. A., upon the death of his mother. Mrs. O'Leary, who died on Friday, was buried today at the Church of the Transfiguration, Philadelphia.

ing, that to the patient the disability was real and very often obnoxious.

Causes of these disturbances ranged from marital troubles, financial difficulties and the like, to a small squabble between neighbors, or great dislike of various actions. In total they were all due to some circumstances either environmental or domestic which to the individual were not consciously recognized. The source of the troubles in many cases were far from the effect produced. For example, a case shown was that of a tailor who was unable to hold his needle in hand very long. His fingers twisted under him and jabbed the needle into the palm of his hand. This defect was caused by marital trouble.

Conceived Affliction

One case was that of paralysis of the right leg and left arm of a woman. It was explained that the abnormality was purely functional and not organic. The patient in question disliked spring house cleaning because she had to do it without servant help. Her mind unconsciously conceived of this affliction so that she would not have to do the Spring Cleaning. Her condition was cured and she was discharged.

Freshmen and Sophomores Meet In Battle Saturday

Many Novel Events to be Featured in Annual Clash; Picked Team Policy Inaugurated This Year; Second-Term Men Favored

NEW POINT SYSTEM TO DECIDE VICTOR

By HARRY McGLADE, JR.

Following out a tradition of long standing, the Sophomores will conduct their annual Field Day on Saturday, November 13. At this time the Frosh will have an opportunity to prove that acquiescent submission to the rules laid down by the Sophomore Orientation Committee was not stimulated by fear but by a willingness to cooperate with the committee.

The Sophs have worked arduously to plan a program that will surpass any that has already been put into being on similar occasions. A number of innovations have been instituted this year. Included in these is the introduction of a special committee to plan and direct the events of the day.

Special Committee

The introduction of the special committee has relieved the Vigilance Committee of a portion of its many duties. In former years the Vigilance Committee had the double task of welcoming the Frosh and directing Field Day. George Haen has been chosen to head the special committee. Haen was in the center of the melee last year and a very active member of his class.

Those who were present at last year's competition will testify as to the enthusiasm shown by the participants. Also they will remember the valiant struggle affected by the Sophs although overwhelmed by the larger number of Frosh. A repetition of last year's victory is anticipated by the present Sophomore Class, but the increased enrollment of Freshmen may cause them some trouble.

Victory or defeat is not the most important thing after the final event. The victory gained by the stronger group will not be as keenly dominant as is the spirit of goodfellowship that is evident at this time. The interesting chatter in the showers as tired bodies are being revived will evidence a new-

MENDEL BULLETIN NEARS COMPLETION

Science Quarterly Publication Expected by December 1; Ciacci Staff Head

Material for the first issue of this year's Mendel Bulletin is now being assembled for the printer. The Mendel Bulletin is the quarterly publication of the students of Villanova's Science School.

It is expected that the first issue will be ready for distribution by the end of this month, according to Vincent Ciacci, chairman of the Mendel Bulletin staff.

Follows Plan

This year's Bulletin will follow closely the plan adopted last year. Prior to that time this publication had been issued annually. Last year the plan was followed of issuing four publications in quarterly series. Noteworthy success of the new method was achieved under the Chairmanship of David Zion, graduated last June from the Villanova School of Science, in that the publication received the National Scholastic Press Association award for quarterly periodicals.

Four articles will feature the first issue. One will concern itself

EXTENSION DEPT. SHOWS INCREASE

Numerous Degrees Offered by Evening and Part-time Schools

The Villanova Extension School has been running along very smoothly for the past month or so. This year's enrollment is one of the largest ever. A broad program of courses is offered by means of which part time students are able to attain the following degrees: Master of Arts, Master of Science, Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Science in Education, (elementary and secondary), and Bachelor of Science in Nursing.

The evening session has a total enrollment of 445 students; 207 men and 238 women. This is about two thirds the number of the Saturday session which has a total of 738 students; 684 nuns and 738 lay students.

The number of courses given by the evening session is 24 while Saturday session gives 97. There are 120 graduate students and 618 undergrads. The teachers are the regular faculty of Villanova College.

RECOMMEND WORKS IN LITERARY FIELD DURING BOOK WEEK

College Library Sponsors Program; Erects Own Bulletin Board

Book Week will be inaugurated at Villanova College next week with the erection of bulletin boards, displaying the information concerning late publications on current events, biography, history, psychology, and fiction, it has been announced by Rev. Daniel P. Falvey, O.S.A.

This plan has been initiated at Villanova to bring to the mind of the student the invaluable knowledge that can be assimilated through constant association with better readings. Information concerning many recent publications will be available in prominent locations in both Mendel Hall and the Commerce and Finance building.

Biography

Many publications have been recommended, among which may be found "Sorrow Built a Bridge," by Katherine Burton. This is a biography of Nathaniel Hawthorne's youngest child, Rose, who is renowned for her work in the foundation of an enlarged sanitarium in West Chester, N. Y., for those suffering from incurable cancer. This book should have a special appeal to students in the Pre-Medical Department.

The life of a missionary among negro slaves in the West Indies is related in the biography of Peter Clavier, by Arnold Lund. This book is more than a biography in that it presents the attitude of the Catholic Church towards slavery. This work transcends ordinary experience, presenting a new horizon to the mind and imagination that should appeal to all scholars.

"Luther and His Work," by Joseph Clayton, is a summary of the life of Martin Luther. Though a short treatment, it arouses interest and tends to make one probe further into the story of the flag-bearer of

DANCE PLANS ABANDONED

Plans for the annual informal dance sponsored by the Lambda Kappa Delta fraternity for the last Friday evening were abandoned as a result of a decision of the group at a special meeting on Wednesday.

Negotiations for the dance were dissolved when the decorations and part of the accoustic arrangements were destroyed in a small fire in the gymnasium on Sunday evening, October 31. At the special meeting Chairman Edward Troncelliti expressed his appreciation for the spirit and co-operation shown the dance committee prior to the decision. Monetary transactions have been settled by William J. Ward, treasurer.

PRESS NIGHT PLANNED

Third Annual News Session To Be Conducted by Rosemont College

Rosemont College will hold its third annual Press Night, November 11, in the Kistler Memorial Library.

Miss Isabelle Van Meter, assistant to the editor of Life, will give a short talk. Mr. Joseph Vincent Connolly, head of the International News Service and King Syndicate Features, will conduct a round table discussion.

This year stress will be on news in pictures. There will be a contest among the Philadelphia news photographers and guests of Press Night will vote for their favorite picture.

Thirty-four colleges from the eastern section of Pennsylvania, and Delaware have been invited.

Peter J. Mackin, business manager and John L. Simons, assistant sports editor will probably be the representatives of the VILLANOVAN.

Belle Masque Announces Pre-Thanksgiving Plays

John Donahue, Robert Barret, Joseph McNamara and Bradley McManus Direct Four Productions to Be Given Before November Recess

DRAMAS WILL TEST ABILITY OF THESPIANS

By ALBERT ZOGBY

Active progress is being made in the preparation of four one-act plays to be presented by the "Belle Masque," dramatic society, before the student body in the near future.

This was revealed to the VILLANOVAN after a recent meeting of the "Furtherance Committee" which is made up of such active members of the society as John M. Donahue, Robert Barret, Joseph McNamara, Bradley McManus and others. The four mentioned are to be remembered for their excellent work in last year's great success "Journey's End."

Veterans Direct Plays

The plays will be directed under the separate and personal supervision of the above mentioned committeemen.

Anticipating another fine year, the "Belle Masque" is staging these plays in competition with one another in order to test the dramatic ability of the individual cast members for the selection of roles in the forthcoming dramatic presentation which the society feels certain will surpass the outstanding achievement of last year which won the praise of several of the critics in Philadelphia.

The directors together with their casts and the names of the plays are as follows:

John M. Donahue, senior in the School of Commerce and Finance and director of "Four on a Heath," is assisted by the following cast: Edward Arnade, senior in the School of Education; Benjamin Pawlowski, Senior in the School of Arts, and Italo deBartolomeis, junior in the School of Science, and William Garrity, Freshman in the School of Technmerce and Finance.

Robert Barret, junior in the School of Arts, director of "On the Other Side," is assisted by the fol-

SENIORS ANNOUNCE BALL, DINNER DANCE COMMITTEES TODAY

President Weber Appoints Eighteen Members to Supplement Biester

Committee members for the Belle Air Ball and dinner - dance were officially announced today by Joseph H. Weber, president of the Class of 1938.

As has been previously announced, Louis J. Biester, of the School of Commerce and Finance, has been appointed to the chairmanship of the Ball, and Andrew N. Conte, member of the Science Department, was named to head the dinner-dance. Biester will be supplemented by a committee of 18 members, while Conte will be aided by four committeemen. This excludes class officers who automatically become committee members by virtue of the high rank in their class.

Distribution Equal

There is a fair distribution of members among the four schools on the campus. The Belle Air Ball committee includes: School of Technology, Joseph Sanborn, Joseph Beittenmiller, James Cook, John Simons, Edward Carroll; School of Science, Joseph Federowicz, James Valerio, Raymond Chonko, Leonard Connelly, William Scesney; School of Arts and Philosophy, Salvatore Angellosi, John Stahmann, Alfred Laun, Joseph Alesandroni; School of Commerce and Finance, Thomas Kennedy, Francis McGarrity, Edwin Moses, William Bowker.

The dinner-dance committee to assist Conte includes: Edward Shovlin, of the Arts Department; Theodore Guomy, of the Business School; Anthony Rifici, of the Pre-Med School; William Dinges, of the Engineering School.

With the release of the various committees, the Class can now commence negotiations with leading dance bands for the Ball. Conte and his committee will also negotiate with bands for the dinner-dance.

ROSEMONT MEETS FORENSIC GROUP

Debates With St. Joseph's, Penn Evening School Cancelled

The Beta Gama debate with the University of Pennsylvania Evening School set for yesterday was postponed as was the radio debate with St. Joseph's College. Students and followers of debating were disappointed Tuesday when the radio station telephoned three hours before the broadcast that a conflict in programs would prevent the contest's going on the air.

Teams have been selected and given the propositions for each of the debates scheduled for the next month. In some of these debates the Oregon Plan will be used, entailing a ten minute constructive speech by the affirmative, cross-examination five minutes by the negative, and five minutes summation and refutation by negative, and five minutes rebuttal for negative and for affirmative.

Meetings are held Tuesday and Thursday afternoons at 2:30 in Room 108 Mendel.

A debate with Rosemont is scheduled for next week on the topic of compulsory arbitration.

Freshmen Intelligence Shows Slight Rise Over Last Year's Class

Two weeks after the commencement of the present school year, the freshmen took a psychological examination prepared by L. L. Thurston and Thelma G. Thurston of the University of Chicago.

The examination was held under the co-operative guidance of Rev. Joseph C. Bartley, O. S. A., Dean of the School of Commerce and Finance and Mr. Patrick Dougherty, professor in the same department, in the auditorium of the Commerce and Finance building.

Is Annual Affair

This examination is an annual affair which has been in existence for several years in Villanova College. Colleges of high scholastic rating throughout the country give this examination to their incoming freshmen.

The purpose of the examination is to give the dean and the teachers a nearly accurate rating of the students under their care. The various degrees of intelligence, tendency to grasp material and efficiency are determined in this man-

NINETEEN YEARS

NINETEEN fateful years have passed since the representatives of the triumphant Allied Powers of the World concluded with the defeated Central Powers an agreement providing for an end to the war fought to end all war.

The First World War was a war fought by diplomats to secure preferment; it was fought by men interested in advancing the economic interests of themselves and of their country; it was fought by power-drunk statesmen who considered more the glory of their nation than the triumph of truth and justice.

To-day the world is beginning to find out the inside story of the war. Today the world is finding out that the French and Russian statesmen of 1913-1914 were working for war more assiduously than were the German statesmen. And paradoxically, we now see that his Imperial German Majesty, Wilhelm II, was as cruelly duped into war as were the American people.

History re-written without the prejudice and hatred of wartime has given the lie to the war propagandas.

If America learned anything from the World War, it was that we were easily open to subversive propaganda from abroad. During the war, Americans were shocked by the crude propaganda of the German agents. It took us twenty years to discover that the British had operating here a far more effective and deadly propaganda. We now find out that our statesman and our diplomats were tricked by silky-mouthed Europeans.

Nineteen years ago marked the end of a period, a period during which tens of thousands of American youths gave up their lives in order to make the world safe for democracy.

Those boys were boys just as we are. They were snatched away from their homes, their jobs, their colleges, to feed the grim maw of the war god.

Nineteen years have passed, and on Armistice Day we still remember those boys. We remember them, and we know how they were tricked.

It is encouraging and inspiring to know that American youth of today, the generation after those thousands who went over and never returned, is resolved to have peace.

American youth is through with war.

American youth today sees how neither the victors nor the vanquished gained by the war. Souls were lost, bodies mangled, economies wrecked, enmities created — from no angle was the war at all fruitful of good. Even the end of the war — "to make the world safe for democracy"—has vanished in the haze of those nineteen years, for today the iron heel of the dictator everywhere pounds the earth with his martial tread.

American youth, thanks be to God, is through with war!

TAKE THE AIR

"THERE are more things hidden in nature than man can ever perceive." Shakespeare did not write this but it is a fact worth realizing and investigating.

We are now in a season when the most of Nature's beauties are unfolded before us: the fallen leaves, the barren fields resting from the harvest of the fall, the corn in stacks, and the pumpkins on the ground.

You have but to seek them.

In the countryside about us there is presented a new and more beautiful aspect of God's creation than you can ever imagine.

You have but to seek them.

On Sundays and many times during the week there is an opportunity for you to walk about the surrounding country. There are many places that you might go to. Villanova and the territory hereabouts is rich in historical value and background. Pre-revolutionary homes and mansions, where our early leaders resided, still remain. There is a wealth of modern homes and lands that are a treat to our eyes.

You have but to seek them.

In walking you will find relaxation from the daily grind of work, and freedom of mind and body in the absence of the monotony of your daily surroundings.

Go take a walk.

The rewards of walking are multifold. Let this article be your incentive, let it be your guide in finding a new recreation and a new means to make idle time valuable.

OUR ALMA MATER

VILLANOVA COLLEGE has one of the most beautiful Alma Mater songs to be found in today's American colleges. Rivaling the well known "Hail All Hail Cornell" and the popular "Hail Pennsylvania" our own school song is full of beautiful melody and inspiring words. Yet, when the band lines up during the halves at our football games and goes into the opening bars of our stirring refrain most of the student body remains inexcusably silent.

Is it that they do not know the words? Perhaps this is true for we recently heard several seniors unblushingly admit that they did not know the words to any song but "College Days." Imagine it. Seniors not ashamed to admit that they have so little school spirit that they do not even know the words of their Alma Mater song.

So far this year your cheering has been excellent. Get next to a rule book or game program and LEARN YOUR ALMA MATER.

Ocurrence: Found wherever man is, and seldom in the free state. With few exceptions the combined state is preferable.

Physical properties: All colors and sizes; usually found in semi-disguised condition; face covered with film of composite material. Stops at nothing and may freeze up at any time. Very bitter when left alone or not treated well.

Chemical properties: Very active, possessing great affinity for gold, silver, platinum, and precious stones. Violent reaction when encountered after being left alone. Able to absorb vast quantities of expensive food or vitamins at any time. Inclined to turn a decided green when placed beside a better looking specimen. Ages very rapidly. Possesses great magnetic attraction to men.

Five long years of bitter defeat, with hardly a point scored along the way.

They're "bums," some sneered—others laughed; some merely shook their heads, "they can't play."

Twenty points Yale's great 150 pounders scored, things ran true to form, but critics found

That humans can assimilate so many sneers; then the tide will turn; the goats rebound.

Ten thousand high school fanatics in Villanova's Stadium missed the latter game, played behind them on a dusty practice field.

Thirteen points the enraged cubs scored, as Yale gave ground, faltered, then reeled.

A band of little Villanova men, proved that heart and heart alone will push the ball across.

Yes, they lost, were defeated—but they scored—is victory always to the victor—was it a loss?

Odds and Ends

By Tom O'Mahoney

WE ARE all familiar with blasts in college papers directed against the sport pages of their professional brethren when the interested school is seemingly discriminated against in the matter of space or adverse criticism concerning Alma Mater's athletic teams. However, we recently heard about a masterpiece of this type from a University located at Spruce and 33d Sts., which shall, for the time being, be nameless. There recently emanated a peculiarly righteous rebuke to the Philadelphia press. It seems that this University, after displaying second class high school ball against Yale, Columbia and Georgetown, beat Navy last Saturday. According to the campus paper, crestfallen and penitent sports writers walked into the University's locker rooms after this triumph to congratulate the victors. Here was indeed a dramatic moment—would the Red and Blue team magnanimously forgive the scribes their reams of criticism (and, incidentally their eight-column streamers advertising this University to the world) and call bygones bygones? NO! As the University daily complacently reported the answer in expressive, though vague language, "the team told them." End quote. This, gentle readers, leaves us stunned.

ON THE CAMPUS

Came the Revolution: Tsarevitch Basil Dobrolowski has switched his affections. It's a Mayor's daughter . . . Rosemont style. DESPITE the Russian Princess story in the "Observer." Remember, "O & E" brings you the Truth. Too, Too Bad: That blond-haired officer of the sophomore class who thinks he knows our little Bird was in hot water last week-end. Triple trouble. It seems he was in the w. k. eternal triangle last week. All by himself, too. Late, But Good: Art Vigilante is still all a-flutter over those Mt. St. Joe's girls at the Cotillion. We'd never have suspected you, Art. Competition: Jerry Holland is very annoyed with Bob O'Brien. It appears that the latter is about to break into Jerry's business. It's so bad now that Holland opens all of Obie's packages.

COMMUNITY NOTES:

The boys want to know the age of Frank Feron's newest heartburn. Several unkind souls have claimed to seeing her graduate from grammar school last year.

THE OBSERVER

THE fellow reporting the gym fire in last week's issue of the VILLANOVAN failed to make mention of the mop squads which helped to remove the water from the gym floor. Led by Father Lunney and ably supplemented by the Mad Russian, a group of students saved the college considerable money by their efforts.

We heard the story yesterday of the Freshman who, lest his profs expect too much of him, deliberately marked most of the questions on his intelligence examination the wrong way. He came out with such a low score that he'll never have to work during his college career. . . . if he has a career.

Dan O'Mahoney, what were you doing with a bunch of roses, at one o'clock in the morning, on the corner of Broad and Market, in the city of Philadelphia, on the night of November 3?

• • •

And, incidentally, who was the senior accompanying O'Mahoney. Someone said it was the Pope from Fedigan Hall. We wonder.

The football team was hardly back, last Sunday evening, when the dulcet tones of Judge Marquette's voice were heard resounding through the length and breadth of Fedigan Hall. They ought to have a law against such fellows!

Wandering through the precincts of Mendel Hall, late the other evening, we heard a heated discussion going on in one of the rooms. It was late—12:30 in fact—and the voices were quite distinct. We could not help listening, for we are the observer.

"Wotta guy, wotta guy. Wotta pal. I never heard of such a dirty trick. Here I am in an exam, got all the dope, and you copy from the guy next to you."

"But I tell you, Butch," shrilla a tiny voice, 'I copied from Spider because I could read his writin easier. I wasn't playin yellar."

"Don't gimmie that stuff, Needle, you was yellar. You thought he had a better paper than I did. You can't give me that stuff."

"Honest, Butch, I copied only because his writing was easier to read."

Silence followed.

"Well," said Butch, "I'll forgive yuh."

"Gee, you're a swell kid, Butch," said Needle, "I knew you'd let your pal off easy."

"But get this, kid. Yuh was cheatin, anyhow."

Silence again.

What do you make of that?

As the peoples of the world pause in their labors to remember the ending of the World War, on the 11th of November, we are minded to recall that it was 19 years ago that the flower of American manhood went over rough seas to lay down their lives in order to make the world, so they were told, safe for Democracy. It was a grand thing, that idea, and it was worthy of the idealism of American youth. American youth today is just as idealistic as it was then. It is just as noble, just as un-selfish, and just as religious. But the past 19 years have caused American youth to re-examine the World War and its causes. American youth today realizes how the American youth of another day—especially those who never came back—were mortally deceived by the war propagandists. American youth today is not interested in war, or in organized mass-murder.

American youth today is interested in building up in America a land where justice and truth reign. American youth, in a world seething with hatred, greed, and envy, has the daring courage to be possessed of a glorious, of a most magnificent obsession: it is dedicating its life to the building of a nation where every man receives his due.

Building a nation of sound, sturdy, just, and charitable men is no picnic. And, unlike war, it is not a glorious task. The laborers must be many, and the rewards are few. . . . in this world. But those of us, we, young America, know that we are building here in America today a nation of Americans who in future times, will be the bearers of the torch of liberty, freedom, truth, and justice.

Last Tuesday, Jim Farley came to New York to speak in favor of a certain Mahoney, a gentleman who sought to be elected Mayor of the City of New York. Farley put his support behind Democrat Mahoney.

By Wednesday, all the world witnessed the election of Fiorello La Guardia—Republican Fusion Candidate for Mayor. Thursday, one day later, Mr. Farley calls to extend to Mr. La Guardia his congratulations.

We thought that they changed horses that quick only in the big ring of the circus.

Maybe we're right.

Speaking of a circus reminds us of the circus that goes on here almost every day and every night. Hundreds of boys waste time during the afternoons and evening . . . and then "haven't the time" to get up a half-hour early to attend Mass and receive the Body and Blood of Our Saviour, Christ.

When a regular circus is over, everyone goes home and no one is hurt. But when this circus is over—ah! that's a different story. If you have been playing the clown, you die a clown.

And that is tough, brother.

So who is kidding whom?

Do you notice the sunsets these days? No? Why not watch some evening.

Some years ago, when we were younger, there was a popular song the message of which was that: "The best things in life are free."

That is straight stuff.

If you don't believe it, just watch the next sunset. Watch that crimson ball of fire as it sinks from out of the empyrean blue skies into the raging-red crucible of the distant hills. • • •

In passing (and in conclusion) we want to publicly announce that Tom O'Mahoney, the so-called "columnist" who writes on the Editorial page of the Villanovan, is a low-down thief and crook. We were reading some of the exchanges the other day and too much of the stuff we read sounded like O'Mahoney. On comparing O'Mahoney's dates with the dates of the exchanges, we found that O'Mahoney is always a week late.

Now we don't want to say anything nasty, we wouldn't want to call Mr. O'Mahoney a crook and a thief and a low-lifer or a goniff, but. . . .

CHEMICAL SOCIETY HEARS SPEECHES BY STUDENT MEMBERS

O'Connell, Hoffman, Murphy and Sanborn Address Technical Gathering

Villanova's Chemical Society inaugurated its recently developed plan of presenting student speakers to talk on subjects of chemical engineering interest at its bi-weekly meeting held yesterday during the fourth period.

Four speakers, three seniors and one sophomore, gave the talks yesterday about their respective Summer jobs which they held during the last vacation.

Frank O'Connell, sophomore, who worked at the Barrett Chemical Company, gave an interesting insight on the preparation of chemical catalysts as done by that company, and connected this preparation with the subsequent use in the plant productions.

A second talk was given by Alfred Hoffmann, employed during the Summer by the duPont Company in Wilmington, Del. Hoffman was engaged for the most part in laboratory work and was thereby able to picture clearly for the gathering that phase of duPont activity. It was stressed during his talk of the necessity of grasping every available bit of information in the various courses a chemical engineering student pursues. A very interesting sidelight cited was the overhead necessarily incurred in large-scale manufacturing. It was on this point that Hoffmann devoted the major part of his discussion.

Edward Murphy, another senior chemical engineer, devoted his time to discussing the production of hard tool steel. Murphy was employed in the laboratory and plant work during the Summer by the Midvale Steel Company. The talk was pleasingly interesting, avoiding the more technical nature of the process.

The fourth discussion was given by Joseph Sanborn who, like O'Connell, was employed by the Barrett Company. Sanborn detailed his short career as a pipe-fitter's helper and connected that particular phase of construction of process buildings with the actual process recently begun by the Barrett Company.

RADIO AND THE THEATER

By LEN FLINKMAN.

FOLLOW-UP: Last week we made mention of the lack of criticism of radio programs. Well here we are again, only this time not criticising the situation, but rather the program itself. Here we go with a few of them. The Admiracion airshow with D'Artega, Tim and Irene have been on our listening list for a long time. The program changed orchestra, singer, writers and producers last Sunday for its series on Mutual. Only noticeable improvement was the band, a well-balanced instrumentation of the sweet type with D'Artega the batonist. One number by this aggregation which stood out sharply and provided much relief from the program's general air of hurlyburly was that based on D'Artega's sprightly arrangement of "Night and Day." New gag writers haven't made it any easier for Tim and Irene. The studio audience still seems to go into convulsions, but the crossfire as emanating from the loudspeaker is composed mostly of stuff that even third rate sustaining programs of a small station would scorn. Hal Gordon, the vocalist newcomer, tenorizes passably on the romantic pops. 'Nuff said for a shampoo.

"We, the People," over CBS Thursday nights for Sanka Coffee continues to unleash vivid and penetrating scripting. Last week's guestees on the stanza ran a wide variety of characterizations and motifs. Included were an urchin who unloaded the impediments of his pockets, a lady with a southern drawl to dish out an appeal for adoption of babies as the pathos of the show, a champ liar, a legally authorized yodeler, a housefrau who doesn't think her clown husband is funny ("I sometimes think he married me just for a laugh"), a vet rider of the pony express days —and several others. It's a sock session, with almost every guest scripted for one laugh and with Gab Heatter handling the m.c. post in strong fashion.

FLASH: Heard the premier of the "Good News of 1938" program last Thursday night. If indications of the first airshow mean anything the rest of the stanzas to follow are to be wows. It's the first lunge that any Hollywood studio has made into radio, and as such, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer is to be given a corsage of daffodils. MGM is known to accomplish things in a colossal manner and they certainly did do it last Thursday eve. Probably this generation can not appreciate the showpeople of a few decades ago, but Sophie Tucker brought back memories that only our grandparents can remember, and these memories are now before us in a modernized version. Next week MGM, in collaboration with Maxwell House, brings Spencer Tracy and Freddie Bartholomew to the mike. Don't fail to listen in.

STOMPIN' AT THE BAR: The "Big Apple" was more than the ceiling of a State Liquor Store here could bear last week. When employees came to work one morning they found their entire $15,000 stock buried under chunks of broken plaster from the 18 by 75 foot ceiling. The Strand Ballroom is right above the liquor store in Philly's Harlem. Investigation by State authorities revealed guys and gals had been doin' their stuff on the B. A. when the crash occurred. Now it's waltzes or nothing.

UNDRESS: One particularly remarkable fact about the Kate Smith programs is that there are never any formal dress rehearsals for the Thursday night broadcasts on CBS. It is perhaps the only program of its size which pursues this policy. The main reason for it is the inability of the various guest stars of the dramatizations to get away from matinee or evening performances in Broadway theaters to arrive in time to rehearse. The broadcasts go smoothly, however, because of Kate's experience and ability to manage her shows so that everything runs smoothly down to the last second of air time.

LUCKY STRIKE STATUS: A show which has been built around Dick Powell for Lucky Strike cigarettes was auditioned last Monday. The program recorded on film and running around 75 minutes, will be run off during the week for George Washington Hill, president of the American Tobacco Co. If okayed, the show will go into the spot now used for the Hit Parade on the NBC-red Wednesday nights.

BOWBOTTOM: Uproar over commercially sponsored film gossip programs echoed last week when Jimmy Fidler arrived in 'Frisco. Said Fidler. "An attempt to keep me from reviewing new films the way I see them and telling what I know of the inner workings of Hollywood might be made. But it will never succeed for two good reasons. In the first place there is the matter of the sponsor (Proctor and Gamble spend roughly $6,000,000 a year on radio advertising) and the radio which is unwilling to lock horns with Hollywood. "In the second place," Fidler added, "if the film lots bar their doors to the chatterers, which has been proposed more than once, he would continue to get as much news, if not more than he get now." Fidler has 24 tipsters on his payroll and all 24 hold key positions in major studios. He is the only one who knows their names. When they phone in a story—and this may seem a little melodramatic, but it's true—they identify themselves merely as "Operator 7" or "Operator 1001," whichever it may be. I work it a little differently, Jimmy. I have 3 agents in Hollywood, 2 in Chicago, 3 in New York and one abroad. But what prattles my eye-balls is, that when they send me a story by wire they send it "collect"! Yes they also get paid weekly.

THISA AND THATA: First of Fall crop of West Coast shows to take count is Chesterfield. The half hour with Hal Kemp and Alice Faye will wash up Dec. 24. Chesterfield is negotiating for Paul Whiteman. Come on, Chesterfield, bring home the bacon. Stoopnagle and Budd fly out to the West Coast Nov. 18 to arrive in plenty time for their date on the 20th with the Packard airshow. . . . Clarence Gaskill has written two melodies that ought to be sure fire ones. "In the Vallee of Lombardo Under the Lyman Tree," is the title of one. The other—"No Squat, No Stoop, No Squint." Freddy Martin at present plays at the Aragon Ballroom in Chi until December 4 and is then coming East to locate. Be nice if we could nab him for some dance. . . .We also know definitely that there is no truth to the Garbo-Stokowski merger. . . .

Introducing—

By JOSEPH BONGIOVANNI

MUSSOLINI has his black shirts, Hitler has his brown shirts and Charley O'Connor has his brown coat. Wherever and whenever we see Charlie he is always wearing a brown top-coat and a brown felt hat (N. B.: he occasionally wears a gray hat). Hailing from Quaker city, Charlie Junior, as he is affectionately called, seems to have come to Villanova for the specific purpose of introducing to it brown—not brown shirts but brown in the abstract—for not only does our worthy wear a brown coat and hat but all his apparel is brown, as far as we could see.

CHARLES B. O'CONNOR

His early childhood (i.e. his pre-Villanova days) he spent in Philadelphia but since he has come to Villanova the little birdie tells us that even his week-ends he is taking trips to — could it be Wilmington? But during his Philadelphia year when he attended the Transfiguration Elementary school he was to be found home studying.—We couldn't take you seriously Charlie, when you said you did nothing.

Attended West Catholic

During his stay at West Catholic High he did take time out to participate in freshman basketball. In addition he exercises his vocal chords (?) in the Glee club while not reporting for the West Catholic News or helping to stage the dramatic enterprises of the school. As a fitting prologue to his college course in the school of Commerce and Finance he chose the high school commercial course and rounded this out further by participation in the school economic club.

It was at Villanova (THE END OF EARLY CHILDHOOD DAYS) that Charlie really became active in class affairs. In all class activity he is sure to co-operate to the best of his ability. As a member of the junior ring committee he was actively cooperative to the benefit of his class mates.

Though Charlie is quite a social lion it is hard to find out anything about this as he is rather modest. From several casual remarks he has dropped we learn that the Belle Air, of which he is editor, is to be an improvement over last year's. There will be less print and more pictures. And you can be sure that under the able direction of Charlie we will not be at all disappointed when we view the final product of his and the staff's yearly toil. Charlie said that he has been active in intramural basketball and at the same time asks that this be kept from the ears of Fr. McKee. The reason for this only "Junior" knows or perhaps Fr. McKee knows something too. Let us in on it will you, Father?

Was In Spanish Club

In his early collegiate years, for you know Charlie is now a senior, he was a member of the Spanish club but due to "academic pressure," as "Junior" puts it, he was forced to relinquish his membership. However, he is still a member tried and true of the Day Hop's club. (If it exists.)

We are reminded of an amusing incident in Charlie's career by a class mate of his. The scene is Prof. Savage's class in salesmanship and the occasion is the questioning of O'Connor by the Prof. As Charlie was not so well acquainted with the answer a fellow student in the rear whispered it, but our worthy instead of repeating it—he was too honest for that —cried out "that's it." Charlie told us confidentially that if Chased-Sanborn wanted $75 a week he would take nothing less than $80—do we hear anybody say 85?

"And so with this thought we leave "Charlie the man of brown-coat, brown hat, brown suit, brown shoes, etc., and we leave "Junior" the man of the higher than Chased-Sanborn's wage man and in closing we wish him luck in his enterprises at the Villanova and after completion of his course in the big school of life.

NINETEEN YEARS

NINETEEN fateful years have passed since the representatives of the triumphant Allied Powers of the World concluded with the defeated Central Powers an agreement providing for an end to the war fought to end all war.

The First World War was a war fought by diplomats to secure preferment; it was fought by men interested in advancing the economic interests of themselves and of their country; it was fought by power-drunk statesmen who considered more the glory of their nation than the triumph of truth and justice.

To-day the world is beginning to find out the inside story of the war. Today the world is finding out that the French and Russian statesmen of 1913-1914 were working for war more assiduously than were the German statesmen. And paradoxically, we now see that his Imperial German Majesty, Wilhelm II, was as cruelly duped into war as were the American people.

History re-written without the prejudice and hatred of wartime has given the lie to the war propagandas.

If America learned anything from the World War, it was that we were easily open to subversive propaganda from abroad. During the war, Americans were shocked by the crude propaganda of the German agents. It took us twenty years to discover that the British had operating here a far more effective and deadly propaganda. We now find out that our statesman and our diplomats were tricked by silky-mouthed Europeans.

Nineteen years ago marked the end of a period, a period during which tens of thousands of American youths gave up their lives in order to make the world safe for democracy.

Those boys were boys just as we are. They were snatched away from their homes, their jobs, their colleges, to feed the grim maw of the war god.

Nineteen years have passed, and on Armistice Day we still remember those boys. We remember them, and we know how they were tricked.

It is encouraging and inspiring to know that American youth of today, the generation after those thousands who went over and never returned, is resolved to have peace.

American youth is through with war.

American youth today sees how neither the victors nor the vanquished gained by the war. Souls were lost, bodies mangled, economies wrecked, enmities created — from no angle was the war at all fruitful of good. Even the end of the war — "to make the world safe for democracy"—has vanished in the haze of those nineteen years, for today the iron heel of the dictator everywhere pounds the earth with his martial tread.

American youth, thanks be to God, is through with war!

TAKE THE AIR

"THERE are more things hidden in nature than man can ever perceive."

Shakespeare did not write this but it is a fact worth realizing and investigating.

We are now in a season when the most of Nature's beauties are unfolded before us: the fallen leaves, the barren fields resting from the harvest of the fall, the corn in stacks, and the pumpkins on the ground.

You have but to seek them.

In the countryside about us there is presented a new and more beautiful aspect of God's creation than you can ever imagine.

You have but to seek them.

On Sundays and many times during the week there is an opportunity for you to walk about the surrounding country. There are many places that you might go to. Villanova and the territory hereabouts is rich in historical value and background. Pre-revolutionary homes and mansions, where our early leaders resided, still remain. There is a wealth of modern homes and lands that are a treat to our eyes.

You have but to seek them.

In walking you will find relaxation from the daily grind of work, and freedom of mind and body in the absence of the monotony of your daily surroundings.

Go take a walk.

The rewards of walking are multifold. Let this article be your incentive, let it be your guide in finding a new recreation and a new means to make idle time valuable.

OUR ALMA MATER

VILLANOVA COLLEGE has one of the most beautiful Alma Mater songs to be found in today's American colleges. Rivaling the well known "Hail All Hail Cornell" and the popular "Hail Pennsylvania" our own school song is full of beautiful melody and inspiring words. Yet, when the band lines up during the halves at our football games and goes into the opening bars of our stirring refrain most of the student body remains inexcusably silent.

Is it that they do not know the words? Perhaps this is true for we recently heard several seniors unblushingly admit that they did not know the words to any song but "College Days." Imagine it. Seniors not ashamed to admit that they have so little school spirit that they do not even know the words of their Alma Mater song.

So far this year your cheering has been excellent. Get next to a rule book or game program and LEARN YOUR ALMA MATER.

Five long years of bitter defeat, with hardly a point scored along the way.

They're "bums," some sneered—others laughed; some merely shook their heads, "they can't play."

Twenty points Yale's great 150 pounders scored, things ran true to form, but critics found

That humans can assimilate so many sneers; then the tide will turn; the goats rebound.

Ten thousand high school fanatics in Villanova's Stadium missed the better game, played behind them on a dusty practice field.

Thirteen points the enraged cubs scored, as Yale gave ground, faltered, then reeled.

A band of little Villanova men, proved that heart and heart alone will push the ball across.

Yes, they lost, were defeated—but they scored—is victory always to the victor—was it a loss?

ODDS and ENDS

By Tom O'Mahoney

WE ARE all familiar with blasts in college papers directed against the sport pages of their professional brethren when the interested school is seemingly discriminated against in the matter of space or adverse criticism concerning Alma Mater's athletic teams. However, we recently heard about a masterpiece of this type from a University located at Spruce and 33d Sts., which shall, for the time being, be nameless. There recently emanated a peculiarly righteous rebuke to the Philadelphia press. It seems that this University, after displaying second class high school ball against Yale, Columbia and Georgetown, beat Navy last Saturday. According to the campus paper, crestfallen and penitent sports writers walked into the University's locker rooms after this triumph to congratulate the victors. Here was indeed a dramatic moment—would the Red and Blue team magnanimously forgive the scribes their reams of criticism (and, incidentally their eight-column streamers advertising this University to the world) and call bygones bygones? NO! As the University daily complacently reported the answer in expressive, though vague language, "the team told them." End quote. This, gentle readers, leaves us stunned.

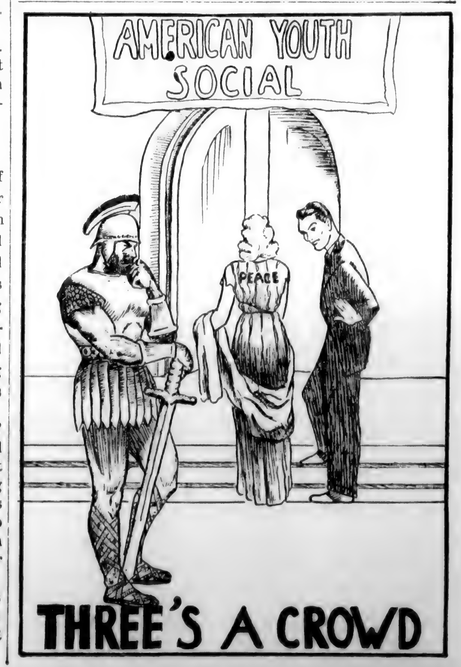
The boys want to know the age of Frank Feron's newest heartburn. Several unkind souls have claimed to seeing her graduate from grammar school last year.



THE OBSERVER

THE fellow reporting the gym fire in last week's issue of the VILLANOVAN failed to make mention of the mop squads which helped to remove the water from the gym floor. Led by Father Lunney and ably supplemented by the Mad Russian, a group of students saved the college considerable money by their efforts.

We heard the story yesterday of the Freshman who, lest his profs expect too much of him, deliberately marked most of the questions on his intelligence examination the wrong way. He came out with such a low score that he'll never have to work during his college career. . . . If he has a career.

Dan O'Mahoney, what were you doing with a bunch of roses, at one o'clock in the morning, on the corner of Broad and Market, in the city of Philadelphia, on the night of November 2?

* * *

And, Incidentally, who was the senior accompanying O'Mahoney. Someone said it was the Pope from Fedigan Hall. We wonder.

* * *

The football team was hardly back, last Sunday evening, when the dulcet tones of Judge Marquette's voice were heard resounding through the length and breadth of Fedigan Hall. They ought to have a law against such fellows!

Wandering through the precincts of Mendel Hall, late the other evening, we heard a heated discussion going on in one of the rooms. It was late—12:30 in fact—and the voices were quite distinct. We could not help listening, for we are the observer.

"Wotta guy, wotta guy. Wotta pal. I never heard of such a dirty trick. Here I am in an exam, got all the dope, and you copy from the guy next to you."

"But I tell you, Butch," shrills a tiny voice, 'I copied from Spider because I could read his writin easier. I wasn't playin yellar."

'Don't gimmie that stuff, Needle, you was yellar. You thought he had a better paper than I did. You can't give me that stuff."

"Honest, Butch, I copied only because his writing was easier to read."

Silence followed.

"Well," said Butch, "I'll forgive yuh."

"Gee, you're a swell kid, Butch," said Needle, "I knew you'd let your pal off easy."

"But get this, kid. Yuh was cheatin, anyhow."

Silence again.

What do you make of that?

As the peoples of the world pause in their labors to remember the ending of the World War, on the 11th of November, we are minded to recall that it was 19 years ago that the flower of American manhood went over rough seas to lay down their lives in order to make the world, so they were told, safe for Democracy. It was a grand thing, that idea, and it was worthy of the idealism of American youth. American youth today is just as idealistic as it was then. It is just as noble, just as un-selfish, and just as religious. But the past 19 years have caused American youth to re-examine the World War and its causes. American youth today realizes how the American youth of another day—especially those who never came back—were mortally deceived by the war propagandists. American youth today is not interested in war, or in organized mass-murder.

American youth today is interested in building up in America a land where justice and truth reign. American youth, in a world seething with hatred, greed, and envy, has the daring courage to be possessed of a glorious, of a most magnificent obsession: it is dedicating its life to the building of a nation where every man receives his due.

Building a nation of sound, sturdy, just, and charitable men is no picnic. And, unlike war, it is not a glorious task. The laborers must be many, and the rewards are few. . . . in this world. But those of us, we, young America, know that we are building here in America today a nation of Americans who in future times, will be the bearers of the torch of liberty, freedom, truth, and justice.

Last Tuesday, Jim Farley came to New York to speak in favor of a certain Mahoney, a gentleman who sought to be elected Mayor of the City of New York. Farley put his support behind Democrat Mahoney.

By Wednesday, all the world witnessed the election of Fiorello La Guardia—Republican Fusion Candidate for Mayor. Thursday, one day later, Mr. Farley calls to extend to Mr. La Guardia his congratulations.

We thought that they changed horses that quick only in the big ring of the circus.

Maybe we're right.

Speaking of a circus reminds us of the circus that goes on here almost every day and every night. Hundreds of boys waste time during the afternoons and evening . . . and then "haven't the time" to get up a half-hour early to attend Mass and receive the Body and Blood of Our Saviour, Christ.

When a regular circus is over, everyone goes home and no one is hurt. But when this circus is over—ah! that's a different story. If you have been playing the clown, you die a clown.

And that is tough, brother.

So who is kidding whom?

Do you notice the sunsets these days? No? Why not watch some evening.

Some years ago, when we were younger, there was a popular song the message of which was that: "The best things in life are free."

That is straight stuff.

If you don't believe it, just watch the next sunset. Watch that crimson ball of fire as it sinks from out of the empyrean blue skies into the raging-red crucible of the distant hills. * * *

In passing (and in conclusion) we want to publicly announce that Tom O'Mahoney, the so-called "columnist" who writes on the Editorial page of the Villanovan, is a low-down thief and crook. We were reading some of the exchanges the other day and too much of the stuff we read sounded like O'Mahoney. On comparing O'Mahoney's dates with the dates of the exchanges, we found that O'Mahoney is always a week late.

Now we don't want to say anything nasty, we wouldn't want to call Mr. O'Mahoney a crook and a thief and a low-lifer or a goniff, but. . . .

CHEMICAL SOCIETY HEARS SPEECHES BY STUDENT MEMBERS

O'Connell, Hoffman, Murphy and Sanborn Address Technical Gathering

Villanova's Chemical Society inaugurated its recently developed plan of presenting student speakers to talk on subjects of chemical engineering interest at its bi-weekly meeting held yesterday during the fourth period.

Four speakers, three seniors and one sophomore, gave the talks yesterday about their respective Summer jobs which they held during the last vacation.

Frank O'Connell, sophomore, who worked at the Barrett Chemical Company, gave an interesting insight on the preparation of chemical catalysts as done by that company, and connected this preparation with the subsequent use in the plant productions.

A second talk was given by Alfred Hoffmann, employed during the Summer by the duPont Company in Wilmington, Del. Hoffman was engaged for the most part in laboratory work and was thereby able to picture clearly for the gathering that phase of duPont activity. It was stressed during his talk of the necessity of grasping every available bit of information in the various courses a chemical engineering student pursues. A very interesting sidelight cited was the overhead necessarily incurred in large-scale manufacturing. It was on this point that Hoffmann devoted the major part of his discussion.

Edward Murphy, another senior chemical engineer, devoted his time to discussing the production of hard tool steel. Murphy was employed in the laboratory and plant work during the Summer by the Midvale Steel Company. The talk was pleasingly interesting, avoiding the more technical nature of the process.

The fourth discussion was given by Joseph Sanborn who, like O'Connell, was employed by the Barrett Company. Sanborn detailed his short career as a pipe-fitter's helper and connected that particular phase of construction of process buildings with the actual process recently begun by the Barrett Company.

RADIO AND THE THEATER

By LEN FLINKMAN.

FOLLOW-UP: Last week we made mention of the lack of criticism of radio programs. Well here we are again, only this time not criticising the situation, but rather the program itself. Here we go with a few of them. The Admiracion airshow with D'Artega, Tim and Irene have been on our listening list for a long time. The program changed orchestra, singer, writers and producers last Sunday for its series on Mutual. Only noticeable improvement was the band, a well-balanced instrumentation of the sweet type with D'Artega the batonist. One number by this aggregation which stood out sharply and provided much relief from the program's general air of hurlyburly was that based on D'Artega's sprightly arrangement of "Night and Day." New gag writers haven't made it any easier for Tim and Irene. The studio audience still seems to go into convulsions, but the crossfire as emanating from the loudspeaker is composed mostly of stuff that even a third rate sustaining programs of a small station would scorn. Hal Gordon, the vocalist newcomer, tenorizes passably on the romantic pops. 'Nuff said for a shampoo.

"We, the People," over CBS Thursday nights for Sanka Coffee continues to unleash vivid and penetrating scripting. Last week's guestees on the stanza ran a wide variety of characterizations and motifs. Included were an urchin who unloaded the impedimenta of his pockets, a lady with a southern drawl to dish out an appeal for adoption of babies as the pathos of the show, a champ liar, a legally authorized yodeler, a housefrau who doesn't think her clown husband is funny ("I sometimes think he married me just for a laugh"), a wet rider of the pony express days —and several others. It's a sock session, with almost every guest scripted for one laugh and with Gab Heatter handling the m.c. post in strong fashion.

FLASH: Heard the premier of the "Good News of 1938" program last Thursday night. If indications of the first airshow mean anything the rest of the stanzas to follow are to be wows. It's the first lunge that any Hollywood studio has made into radio, and as such, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer is to be given a corsage of daffodils. MGM is known to accomplish things in a colossal manner and they certainly did do it last Thursday eve. Probably

SPECIALIST SPEAKS TO PRE-MED FRAT THURSDAY EVENING

L.K.D. to Hold Nomination, Election; Sports Schedule to be Arranged

Dr. George Whelan, associated with the Eagleville Tuberculosis Sanitorium and affiliated with the Jefferson Medical School in Philadelphia, will be the guest of the Lambda Kappa Delta fraternity at its bi-weekly meeting this Thursday evening at 8:00.

At the meeting, Dr. Whelan, specialist in medicine of the nose and throat, will present a discourse on that particular aspect of medical study. This address will be the second in a series of lectures being conducted by the fraternity.

Nominations Planned

Nominations for a Board of Governors will be held at a special meeting of the fraternity to be conducted for that purpose today at 1 o'clock. Final elections will be held at the regular meeting on Thursday.

Other topics of variant importance will also be discussed at the evening session. The payment of all past dues are to be concluded by Thursday, it was announced by William J. Ward, treasurer of the fraternity. Arrangements for the election of a Board of Admissions to accept incoming fraternity members will also be made at the meeting. Application blanks may be secured from Harry M. Taylor, secretary, or through a fraternity officer.

The organization of a sports calendar is being conducted by the fraternity. A basketball team, initiated last year, will arrange a schedule with other organizations on the campus. Arrangements are being made with Lawrence Knaphle, recently appointed manager. In the near future a committee for the securing of fraternity pins will be appointed. Alan F. Dowling, president of the fraternity, announced that all members and prospective applicants attend Thursday's meeting.

with a discussion of the Chestnut Blight which attacked the trees on the Villanova College campus and surrounding areas last year. The second discusses the struggle for existence among protozoa; the third is a description of historical preparation and examination of motor cells of vertebrates; and the last will consist of miscellaneous articles of interest in scientific events.

No definite staff has yet been appointed of the Mendel Bulletin. The only definite appointment has been that of Vincent Ciacci as chairman of the staff. A working staff, however, is temporarily taking the place of that of a permanent one. It consists of Donald Cantor, Edgar Gibson, Bernard Miller, and Edward Lucenti, photographer.

If the work of these men is satisfactory they will be appointed as permanent staff members for the year 1937-38.

Later issues of the Bulletin will contain articles submitted by the staff and other members of the Science school, with theses done by the present senior Science men as completed, and with book reviews of modern science work.

dance is fondly hoped for at this time—9:26 P. M.

Be There Early

The assembly should be made at least 15 minutes before train time in order that the enthusiasm might mount to its highest peak at the actual moment of departure. If we can attribute th Detroit victory, even in a very small part, to the fine send-off accorded the team, then the Boston pep rally should be over so much greater.

The time for the return of the team has also been announced. Therefore, no matter what the outcome of Thursday's game—win, lose, or draw—a similar welcoming committee of as many students as possible should be on hand to shout to the high heavens the merits of this year's aggregation of football stars.

In the field of psychology, many prominent literary publications and scientific works have been recommended. Mortimer J. ner. This method is in all probability the most accurate system of its type for obtaining results which might not be obtained in any other fashion.

The examination in itself contains 400 questions. They vary in scope as: English, literature, spelling, arithmetic and artificial language tests. No student is expected to answer all the questions. Each division of questions has a definite time limit after which no student is allowed to work. In this way even the most brilliant student will not have time to sufficiently complete the work, and enabling all students to be rated.

This year's results in comparison with those of last year are found to be about average. There is a slight rise of this year's marks over those of last year but it is not very noticeable. The marks of a student are not divulged to him. The entire project is kept in absolute secrecy, and is known only to the dean and members of the faculty.

There can be no comparison of marks this year with other colleges and universities for some time to come. Many schools do not wish to mention or send in for rating their marks. The University of Chicago is compiling the marks, but they are unable to complete it without the co-operation of the other schools.

Fr. Bartley is retaining the marks of the examinations taken in his school for comparison in the years to come. It is an attempt to judge as nearly accurate the status of most students and the method of teaching that is to be employed in educating them. The answers for these questions are hoped to be found in the records of the psychological examinations presented each year to the freshmen.

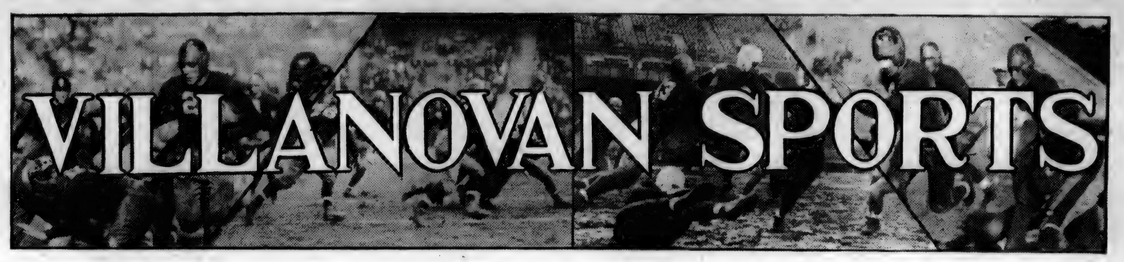
Terriers Confident Of Toppling Wildcats



BLUE SMOTHERS GOLDEN AVALANCHE

Sportorial

By BILL BOWKER

Sports Editor

SOME of the rooters of the Wildcat team are taking too much to heart the fact that the Blue gridders had what they consider to be the misfortune of having been scored upon by the Marquette Golden Avalanche. There is a saying that everything happens for the best, and it can be applied here. For a team to keep up an undefeated record from week to week is a difficult job, made so by the pressure which increases with each win. Add to that already heavy pressure, the aditional burden of trying to keep the goal line unorossed, and you will find a very heavy strain on the squad as a whole. With the scoring of the touchdown by Sonnenberg on Saturday, this bit of tension was lifted from the Wildcat.

—V—

One of the Milwaukee writers was heard to say the Villanova squad was the best he had seen this season. And he had seen some good teams, among them Santa Clara, who defeated the Golden Avalanche 38-0. Philly papers please notice.

—V—

Don Bangert's lightweights have yet to win a game this season, but against the Eli one-fifties they showed a scoring punch that has been noticeably absent from teams of the past years. By tallying two touchdowns last Saturday, they accounted for more points than they did all last year plus the first three games of this season. If the boys keep up the play of the Yale contest they have a good chance to break into the winning column against Penn a week and a half hence. On the whole, not much support is given the "Dollar and a Half" boys around Villanova, but this coming fray with the Little Quakers will find the entire student body backing them to the hilt, for nothing would suit the Wildcat rooters more than to see a Blue victory over the Philly university. Go to it boys, we're with you all the way on this one.

—V—

Speaking of Yale brings to mind the fact that Clint Frank beat Brown practically singlehanded. Wonder what he could do if he had Wysocki and Melius on one side of the line and Olivar and Nowak on the other side to open the way for him. Not to mention guards and centers such as trot around in Villanova uniforms. He is an All-American in his own right, but what a super player he would be with the blocking shown by the Wildcats in the first half Saturday.

—V—

Mention of Wysocki brings back to mind the remark noted in the "Loyolan," the school paper of the Blue's coast rival. Under "Odd and Uninteresting Items" was the statement "the possibility of John Wysocki, of Villanova, being an All-American end," or words to that effect. We wonder if the author is attempting to develop an intense rivalry between the two institutions.

—V—

After watching six of the Wildcat grid contests, we are convinced that we are from Missouri and will have to be shown a pair of tackles the equal of Melius and Olivar. John has blocked three kicks which have resulted in touchdowns, and Jordan has flashed an ability that is nothing short of phenomenal in calling plays from a line position.

Large Group Reports To Coach Severance For Approaching Season

Garbed in bright green practice uniforms, the Kittens of Villanova have been furnishing opposition for the scarlet clad varsity basketeers for the past week. If the colors of the shirts are any criterion of the team's ability, the Blue court representatives of this year should be among the leading teams of the country.

Players have reported to Coach Severance from all parts of the country, and a good Frosh club is anticipated. Daily scrimmages with the varsity have been held since the yearlings began practice and both teams are rounding up well, with the varsity showing the way after a slow start. Many games are scheduled for the youngsters with other colleges and some prep schools, and a good showing is expected.

School Stars Report

Among the prospective varsity timber several high school luminaries have been noticed. Frank Morris, formerly of Our Lady's High School of Newton, Massachusetts, has been showing up well in scrimmages, and may prove to be a standout as the season progresses, although little or nothing definite can be said about anyone at this early date.

Many courtmen hail from the Empire State. Among them are Paul Nugent and Tony Vinci, both of Stuyvesant High in the metropolis and at present members of the Commerce and Finance school. Other representatives from New

Hanley's Bostonians Out To Revenge Last Year's Shattering 25-7 Defeat

Nechtem and Famiglietti Lead Flashy Array of Backs; Dillon and Miller Outstanding Linemen; Strong at Ends

By SAUL WALLACH

One of the largest crowds ever to witness a football game in Boston is expected to tax the capacity of Fenway Park, Thursday afternoon, when the undefeated Wildcats invade the New England metropolis to battle the eager Boston University Terriers, in an Armistice Day game.

Revenge will be the motive of Pat Hanley's Bostonians who are still smarting from the unexpected defeat sustained at the hands of Clipper Smith's first edition of Wildcats last year at Shibe Park. The Terriers were undefeated when they entered the ball park, when the final whistle blew, the score read 25-7 against them. It was the Bostonians' only set-back of the campaign.

All but eight of the 37 players who witnessed that game from the Boston side of the field, are back again this season. All are raring to go against the Main Liners.

Spivack Leads Boston

Led by Captain Leon Spivack, brilliant blocking quarterback and as fine a ball carrier as any, the New Englanders have run up high scores in defeating such opponents as Lehigh, Slippery Rock, Washington University, and American International. The lone team to put the nod on the Terriers were the hard-fighting representatives of Western Reserve, considered the number one team of the smaller colleges.

Hanley has had to build his backfield around three veterans of experience. Besides Spivack, he has Saul Nechtem, considered one of the best triple threat backs in the New England area. Pairing with Nechtem at the wing back posts is Lou Blazynski, a flashy ball carrier, who is equally as good on the defense as he is on the offense.

Have Leading Scorers

Holding down the fullback post is Gary Famiglietti, bruising 200-pound back who was the lone shining light of the Boston club last season against the locals. For all his size and weight, Famiglietti is exceptionally fast. On punts he averages 45 yards per boot. Both Famiglietti and Blazynski are leading scorers in the East.

It is with this line that Hanley has met his biggest problem. Four outstanding stalwarts of the line have graduated and two capable reserves have left the school. He has had to fill the vacancies with untried sophomores.

An oddity in college football, a starting guard weighing 155 pounds is found on the Boston University line. Max Miller, senior and varsity man since he joined the squad in his sophomore days holds this distinction. Topping that, Miller has played in all but seven minutes of last season. A real 60-minute footballer. Teaming with Miller at the other guard position is Robert Aldrich, a transfer from Bates, who has been opening holes for his backfield mates. Norman Alpert, a sophomore sensation last season, is a capable reserve.

Seniors at End

Two seniors will probaly get the call Thursday to start at end. They are Al Holgerson and Harold Canavan, both lettermen. Roland Bernard, sophomore wing, will see action. Of the three, Canavan is the man to watch.

The Boston line averages 180 pounds and the backfield slightly less. The heaviest man on the B. U. squad is Joe Glonnotti, soph tackle.

MELLUS STARS AT TACKLE

By TOM O'MAHONEY

A slashing, tearing Villanova Wildcat drove closer to its goal—an undefeated season — by decisively smothering Marquette, 25-7, at Shibe Park last Saturday before 11,000 gleeful witnesses. Despite the fact that three stars, Andy Stopper, Ray Stoviak, and Johnny Wysocki, were in the park only as guests of Mr. Meek's enterprising little firm, the 'Cats swept to a first period touchdown in nine minutes, blocking and running like nothing seen in this area since Notre Dame ran up 60 points on Penn, back in 1930.

Score in 13 Plays

After trying the Blue line twice, Marquette punted to the Villanova 27, where Harvey Buek returned it for five. Exactly 13 plays later, smashing through the line for consistent gains, "Buzz" Howlett faded from the visitors' four and dropped a perfect pass into Jack Earle's arms for the first score. Johnny Mellus, tackle supreme, booted the try for point for the 'Cats' only successful conversion of the day.

The second score came on an impressive drive of 56 yards which mixed passes with line plays, a 20-yard heave from Howlett to Welt

BANGERT'S ELEVEN SHOWS NEW POWER

Latent Attack Uncovered in 20 - 13 Loss to Yale 150's

Villanova's battling 150's found their power too late to overtake Yale's undefeated "Little Men" and lost 20-13 on the Villanova field, Saturday afternoon. It marked the first time in two years that the Yale goal has been crossed.

Kolmer and McManus scored the two touchdowns for Villanova, while Cates scored two and Wargo one for Yale. But "Berky" Cousart was the outstanding player for the "wild kittens," even though he didn't score.

Cousart Shines

Cousart had a banner day at the Little Bulldogs' expense. His running and left-handed passes off reverses baffled the Canines completely. One of these passes was good for a touchdown when Johnny Kolmer speared the ball over the double stripe.

In the first quarter Yale tallied 13 points, gaining ground by means of spinners and reverses, making first down after first down. Wargo, Yale's outstanding ball toter, led the attack.

Tom Carbine, punter and ball carrier, was injured in the sec-

Mendel Commuters Assume Intramural Lead

DAY-HOP VICTORIES SEND FEDIGANITES FROM FIRST PLACE

Wins Over Gigolos and Austinites Gain Lead For 1936 Champs

BUSINESS CLUB STARTLES BY TAKING PAIR OF FRAYS

Defeats Alumni and Mendel Residents; Great Improvement in Teamwork

As the teams get ready for the home stretch drive of the initial half, the ratings find the strong Mendel Day Hop club pushing the Fediganites from the top of the ladder. In displacing the Gigolos, the Day-Hoppers defeated them by a 30-21 score, in a game marked by close defense and very accurate shooting. Later in the week they took the measure of a scrappy Austin team, 51-36, to chalk up their fourth consecutive win.

C & F Wins Two

Imbued with plenty of spirit, the C & F Day-Hops notched a double win at the expense of Alumni and the Mendel residents, by 40-36 and 32-29 scores in probably what were the outstanding games of the week. In the other frays Austin easily defeated the Mendel residents, rolling up 26 points to their 10, while Fedigan trimmed Alumni by a five point margin—32-27.

The C & F Day-Hops, probably the most improved team in the league, presented a strong scoring combination in the persons of McGurk, Coupe, and Lyman. McGurk was particularly effective, scoring 12 against Alumni and 14 against the Mendel Penthousers. Should they continue their present pace they will undoubtedly be a threat to the leaders.

Mendel's Train-and-Trolley boys seem to be as good, if not better, than last year's championship quintet. In Dan Keating they have a flashy forward who has scored 54 points in four games—an average which speaks for itself. Austin succeeded in holding him to a duo of baskets in the first half, but he broke away and ran wild in the second canto. Vic Sandor did some nice floor work, stealing the ball on several occasions and parting the cords for 11 points. Danny O'Connor stuck in five two pointers and a like number of fouls to cop high scoring honors.

Gigolos Withstand Attack

Alumni came back strong in the second half of their game with Fedigan but accurate shooting by Mike Totin and Ted Goumy put the game on ice. Costello played a good defensive game for the Gigolos in addition to earning six points. For the losers John Looney and Delucca stood out, the former garnering ten markers and the latter seven.

In a slow game, Austin held the Penthousers of Mendel to a single basket in the opening half, and won without being extended too much. Dwyer and Cuskey each netted four baskets and Sandor played his usual scrappy floor game. For the vanquished, Cleary and Skelly were outstanding.

The games the past week were decidedly better than any previous contests. Due to the fact that the players have had time to become accustomed to the ball and to their team-mates, a little more co-ordination and teamwork was possible. The two Frosh teams have an abundance of good material but lack precision and teamwork. Mendel Day-Hoppers have six good men and they do not allow individual play to spoil their offensive. The C & F Day-Hoppers seem to have found themselves and should go places if they continue their present pace. The two upper-class halls have well-balanced teams but Austin seems to lack the necessary spirit to produce a consistently winning team.

Individual scoring leaders changed considerably also, with Mike Totin slipping from first place to sixth and Dan Keating taking his place as leader. He has a ten point lead over McGurk, of the C & F train-and-trolley lads. McGurk, a new-comer to the "first five," is only slightly in advance of Beittenmiller, of the Mendel Day Hops. Thorne and Dwyer complete the list.

Blue Opens Attack

In the third quarter, the Blue lightweights opened up with an aerial circus. They completed a few passes and marched to Yale's 15. Cousart faded back for a pass, saw no one open and ran to the two - yard line. From here McManus carried the ball to a touchdown. The conversion was blocked and Cousart (in an Andy Stopper fashion) nailed the ball and raced to the goal line for the point. Shortly after this score, Yale charged in and blocked Lombardo's punt on the Felines' 20, and advanced the ball to the eight. On the next play, a reverse, Wargo was driven out of bounds on the one-yard line. An off-tackle play netted a touchdown, Wargo carrying the ball.

In the fourth quarter, Villanova on runs by Hennessy and McManus and passes by Cousart, advanced the ball to Yale's nine. Cousart, with his unfailing accuracy, flipped a spot pass to Johnny Kolmer for their second touchdown. The conversion missed by inches. Yale received and marched up the field only to be stopped on Villanova's 20. From here Villanova's 150's advanced to Yale's 35 on two pass plays. The longest of these, Cousart to Hennessy, netted about 40 yards with Ed almost breaking loose. The game ended after the next play which was an incomplete pass hurled in last-minute desperation.

Bucknell, Temple, C. C. N. Y. Among Foes to be Met on Heavy Card

This year the leather pushers from Villanova will have stiff opposition in Temple, Bucknell, C. C. N. Y., Catholic and Florida Universities.

Last year the fracas with Temple was fought at the Owls' gym and ended in a stalemate. This season, the meet will be enacted on the Blue campus with the Wildcats out to score a decisive win over their arch-rivals.

City College of New York promises to give the 'Cats plenty of trouble in their tussle This, too, will be in the home ring. The lads from C. C. N. Y. are making their initial trip to Villanova and all precautions will be taken to make their stay a happy one and to prolong relationships with the New York College

First among the travelling meets will be that with Bucknell. The flatic tussle is to be staged at Lewisburg, the home of the Bisons. In former years the Bucknellians have given the Wildcats the keenist competition and are expected to continue as usual this season. Victory over them would be a feather in the caps of the boxers since the Bisons won the Eastern Conference Championship last year.

Another newcomer to the schedule this year is Catholic University. The Gadsbymen will engage them at Washington and will continue the meeting every year, if present plans materialize. It has been said by the coach that his squad will have to be in top shape to win this contest.

Florida University has been scheduled to slug-it-out with the Blue on the Twenty-fourth of February; (but this fracas may have to be postponed because the Belle Air Ball is scheduled for the night after the event).

Western Maryland and the Coast Guard Academy may be engaged again this year. Negotiations have not been completed but there is a possibility that the leather pushers will travel to New London, Conn. to inaugurate a series of encounters between the two schools.

The Green Terrors of Western Maryland have been a yearly favorite on the Blue schedule and may be fought at home again this season. Last year the Wildcats came through with a decisive victory.

By JOHN L. SIMONS

Ray Stoviak, who led Villanova to the hard fought victory over the Titans of Detroit as game captain, is one Wildcat footballer who has never been given sufficient credit for the brand of ball he has consistently played. He is in the middle of his third season as a regular at the right half back post, and his performances in the past have been so capable that he has held that position against all comers, some of whom have been top flight backs.

Has Unusual Career

Ray's football career at Villanova has been a little out of the ordinary. The odd things began happening even before he came to this Main Line institution. In the Summer of 1934 he was playing sandlot baseball in his native Uniontown in western Pennsylvania, when Bob Reagen, Harry Stuhldreher's assistant, came along on a football scouting trip. And Bob persuaded Ray to come to Villanova even though he had never seen him playing football.

As a freshman Ray played with the yearling eleven in their daily tangles with the varsity, but when Spring rolled around he chose the baseball diamond in preference to football Spring practice. That year he played first base on the Kitten nine and batted in the number four slot.

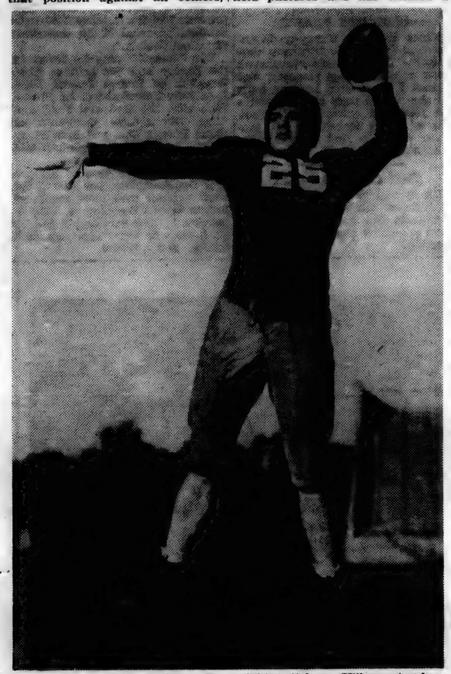
At the start of his sophomore year Ray was an unknown as far as Villanova football went. When the team opened the season with P. M. C. he rated as third string right half. But before even that first game was over he had wrested that particular position away from his rivals and has held it ever since. Without the benefit of the Spring practice he stepped in in the first game, a green soph, and became a regular, a truly remarkable feat!

Triple Threat Back

Ray, on the gridiron, is a hard-running back and a very efficient blocker. Of late his accurate southpaw pitches to Wysocki et al., and his capable left footed punting stamp him as a real triple threat man. But his true worth to the team is perhaps best shown by his heady all around ball playing. Twice this season on identical plays he has demonstrated that he has a sufficiency of that very vital gray matter.

The incident in the Bucknell fray in Shibe Park a couple of weeks ago will serve as a good example. Ray was back, and the pass from center went sailing past him. When he recovered the pigskin, he was trapped some 20 yards in back of the scrimmage line. Then he pulled his smart one out of the bag and let fly a beautiful pass which missed connections with Harvey Buek's fingertips by inches.

This halfback's first love is, however, not the gridiron game, but America's national pastime, baseball. He likes the game better and is looking forward to a professional baseball career with high hopes. Doc Jacobs has gotten a lot of good ball playing out of Ray in the two seasons he has cavorted on Doc's outfield. He has played good baseball as the patroller of the left field pastures and has wielded a mighty stick as Villanova's clean-up man.



While "Stovy's" athletic activities here at Villanova have been varied, he really showed his versatility in high school days. In his student years at Georgetown High School, near Uniontown, he received nine major letters, three each for football, baseball, and basketball. On the gridiron he was quarterback for three years, and captain the senior season; he was a three year basketball regular; and he played first base and batted cleanup every year on the baseball team.

He graduated in 1934 and came to Villanova that same Fall, enrolled as a prospective teacher. At the present time the lure of the professional diamond is greater than that of the pedagogue's chair. Ray intends to go in for baseball in a big way. So far he has aroused the interest of the Boston Red Sox club, whose scouts are looking him over. Let's hope he goes a long way in pro ball.

Ray is another of Clipper's young footballers; to be exact he is today 21 years, five months and two days old. He has lived all these years in Uniontown, a pleasant small town in southwestern Pennsylvania.

Gridders Smother Avalanche, 25 - 7

Nowak eating up much of the yardage, and a four-yard plunge by Howlett topping it off for the clinching marker. After Mellus missed his kick, the entire starting line-up was replaced by a sophomore team, and the third score came when "Googoo" Gogolinski intercepted a Marquette pass on the Avalanche 43 and out-raced the safety-man to the goal.

Marquette Scores

With a 19-0 lead, the 'Cats eased up noticeably, yet the Gold needed two breaks to score. Midway through the second quarter, Harvey Buek dropped two punts, one on his 49, and the other on the Blue 18. Even here, with a first down, the visitors had difficulty in punching through the 'Cat seconds. Finally, however, after line plays failed, Johnny Maltsch hurled a sweet pass into the end zone which Captain Ray Sonnenberg caught by a spectacular dive into the dirt. Niles added the extra point from placement, thus breaking Villanova's unscored upon record and easing the terrific strain such a record imposes.

At this point, Clipper Smith sent the first string back in, and the rest of the half was no contest. With Marquette pinned against its own goal line near the end of the period, Leysenaar, Gold fullback, tried to punt from his three. Mellus, McKenna and Bukofski, who was playing in the injured Johnny Wysocki's place, blocked the kick, and Buofski fell on the ball for the final touchdown.

Marquette Throws Passes

In the second half, Marquette played a passing game, but met with no success. The Blue, however, just missed two more scores. After a 35-yard runback of a punt by Buek, the Wildcats pressed to the Marquette one - yard marker, where Jack Earle fumbled as he went over the goal line. A poor kick out by the Avalanche put the Main Liners in a threatening position once more, but an end zone pass, Verbitsky to Murphy, was dropped when the ball bounced off the latter's shoulder.

Marquette used a flanker play to good advantage in the fourth quarter, as the number four back ran to his right in a deep formation from which either a pass or a wide end sweep could be operated. The inexperienced 'Cat second line was whipsawed repeatedly on this formation, and the left end, in particular, was sideswiped as he went in to rush the passer, leaving the flank entirely unguarded.

Shorts

The Blue marked up 12 first downs to their opponents' three, and gained 191 yards from scrimmage to the Gold's 127, most of which was garnered at the expense of the 'Cats seconds. Villanova completed five forwards for a total of 49 yards, while Marquette made 42 yards through the air, also on five accurate pitches.

Jack Earle and Art Raimo, playing at full and half, respectively, were outstanding, as was "Buzz" Howlett. Buek played a beautiful game at quarter, despite those two fumbles on punts, and his blocking opened up many a hole in the Gold line. The blocking as a while was the finest shown by the 'Cats all season, being crisp and very, very hard. The thuds were almost audible in the stands whenever a Marquette player was hit. Johnny Mellus played the finest game of his career, as he constantly penetrated the Gold interference, despite the three-man defense set up against him by Coach Paddy Driscoll. Jordan Olivar, at the other tackle slot, and Walt Nowak at end were also outstanding on a Blue line that looked to be the equal of any in the country.

CLIPPER COMMENTS

on Marquette Game

DESPITE the three clubbings they received prior to facing us last Saturday, the Marquette eleven came into our game with a spirit that was a delight to see. The fact that they were 18 points behind at the beginning of the final quarter did not serve to diminish this enthusiasm, and they still acted as though they would make a game of it. Our boys would do well to copy some of the stuff shown by Paddy Driscoll's cohorts. Especially on the defense we could display a little more spontaneous chatter.

Turning to our side of the game, that first period brought forth offensive play the like of which the boys had not flashed in all the previous games put together, especially on the ground offense. This was due in part to the good blocking done by the guards, an improvement over former contests. However, there is room for further improvement. Missar and DiFilippo showed up well at guard. The other line positions were capably handled, but when Olivar and Mellus are out of the fray, the quality of play leaves something to be desired. Ollie is to be highly commended for his all around offensive and defensive play, as well as his choice of plays.

Too Many Fumbles

On the ends, Bukofski and Nowak did some good work, with the former showing improvement over previous performances. Howlett's play in the backfield, filling Andy Stopper's place, was commendable, as his passing and ball handling was all that could be desired. On the whole, though, we are still afflicted with a bad case of "fumblitis," and this malady should be remedied before long, due to the all-too-evident fact that to continue dropping the ball at inopportune moments will cour disaster, especially in the Temple fray. The opportunities for scoring may not present themselves in the next contests as they did Saturday.

Our pass defense is notably weak in spots, especially in the department of the play featuring rushing the passer. The Marquette backfield men had all the time in the world to get those tosses off, with the result that many plays were completed that would have failed had the defense been in the right positions. Scouts for the three remaining teams on the schedule have been following us for the past four weeks and they will not be slow to capitalize on any pass weakness of ours. Loyola, in particular, has a very efficient scout who has been giving them some good information.

Boston Club Tough

I hope that Wysocki, Stopper and Stoviak will be in shape to face Boston this Thursday, as they didn't play over half of the Detroit contest, and the experience they will get in the New England fray will serve to get them on edge for the Temple game. This Boston outfit is not the setup that the Villanova rooters are inclined to think. They have been more or less coasting along this year, pointing for us. They still remember that Shibe Park defeat, and are out to avenge it in no uncertain terms. Pat Hanley has some good backfield men. Saul Nechtem, in particular, is one of the fastest backs in New England, and one of the best passing players in the East.

A lot depends on this game, because it will give us some indication of what we can do against Temple's offense. Hanley is a Warner disciple and his club plays a strictly Warner game, so we should be able to get some experience on the Owls' style of play. Overconfidence of our boys does not seem to be evident, but there is always the possibility that the praise they have been getting may have a deleterious effect.

Mendel Commuters Assume Intramural Lead

DAY-HOP VICTORIES SEND FEDIGANITES FROM FIRST PLACE

Wins Over Gigolos and Austinites Gain Lead For 1936 Champs

BUSINESS CLUB STARTLES BY TAKING PAIR OF FRAYS

Defeats Alumni and Mendel Residents; Great Improvement in Teamwork

As the teams get ready for the home stretch drive of the initial half, the teams find the strong Men's Day Hop club pushing the Fediganites from the top of the ladder. In displacing the Gigolos, the Day-Hoppers defeated them by a 30-21 score, in a game marked by close defense and very accurate shooting. Later in the week they took the measure of a scrappy Austin club, 51-36, to chalk up their fourth consecutive win.

C & F Wins Two

Imbued with plenty of spirit, the C & F Day-Hops notched a double win at the expense of Alumni and the Mendel residents, by 40-36 and 32-29 scores in probably what were the outstanding games of the week. In the other frays Austin easily defeated the Mendel residents, rolling up 26 points to their 10, while Fedigan trimmed Alumni by a five point margin—32-27.

The C & F Day-Hops, probably the most improved team in the league, presented a strong scoring combination in the persons of McGurk, Coupe, and Lyman. McGurk was particularly effective, scoring 12 against Alumni and 14 against the Mendel Penthousers. Should they continue their present pace they will undoubtedly be a threat to the leaders.

Mendel's Train-and-Trolley boys seem to be as good, if not better, than last year's championship quintet. In Dan Keating they have a flashy forward who has scored 54 points in four games—an average which speaks for itself. Austin succeeded in holding him to a duo of baskets in the first half, but he broke away and ran wild in the second canto. Vic Sandor did some nice floor work, stealing the ball on several occasions and parting the cords for 11 points. Danny O'Connor stuck in five two pointers and a like number of fouls to cop high scoring honors.

Gigolos Withstand Attack

Alumni came back strong in the second half of their game with Fedigan but accurate shooting by Mike Totin and Ted Goumy put the game on ice. Costello played a good defensive game for the Gigolos in addition to earning six points. For the losers John Looney and Dellucci stood out, the former garnering ten markers and the latter seven.

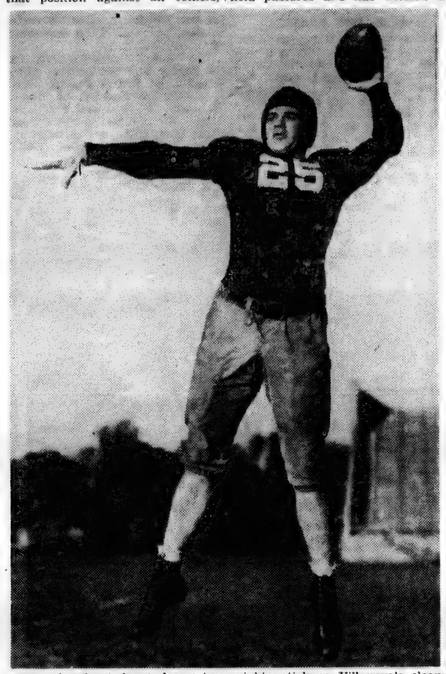
In the Sportlight

By JOHN L. SIMONS

Ray Stoviak, who led Villanova to the hard fought victory over the Titans of Detroit as game captain, is one Wildcat footballer who has never been given sufficient credit for the brand of ball he has consistently played. He is in the middle of his third season as a regular at the right half back post, and his performances in the past have been so capable that he has held that position against all comers, some of whom have been top flight backs.



Has Unusual Career

Ray's football career at Villanova has been a little out of the ordinary. The odd things began happening even before he came to this Main Line institution. In the Summer of 1934 he was playing sandlot baseball in his native Uniontown in western Pennsylvania, when Bob Reagen, Harry Stuhldreher's assistant, came along on a football scouting trip. And Bob persuaded Ray to come to Villanova even though he had never seen him playing football.

As a freshman Ray played with the yearling eleven in their daily tangles with the varsity, but when Spring rolled around he chose the baseball diamond in preference to football Spring practice. That year he played first base on the Kitten nine and batted in the number four slot.

At the start of his sophomore year Ray was an unknown as far as Villanova football went. When the team opened the season with P. M. C. he rated as third string right half. But before even that first game was over he had wrested that particular position away from his rivals and has held it ever since. Without the benefit of the Spring practice he stepped in in the first game, a green soph, and became a regular, a truly remarkable feat!

Triple Threat Back

Ray, on the gridiron, is a hard-running back and a very efficient blocker. Of late his accurate southpaw pitches to Wysocki et al., and his capable left footed punting stamp him as a real triple threat man. But his true worth to the team is perhaps best shown by his heady all around ball playing. Twice this season on identical plays he has demonstrated that he has a sufficiency of that very vital gray matter.

The incident in the Bucknell fray in Shibe Park a couple of weeks ago will serve as a good example. Ray was back, and the pass from center went sailing past him. When he recovered the pigskin, he was trapped some 20 yards in back of the scrimmage line. Then he pulled his smart one out of the bag and let fly a beautiful pass which missed connections with Harvey Buck's fingertips by inches.

This halfback's first love is, however, not the gridiron game, but America's national pastime, baseball. He likes the game better and is looking forward to a professional baseball career with high hopes. Doc Jacobs has gotten a lot of good ball playing out of Ray in the two seasons he has cavorted on Doc's outfield. He has played good baseball as the patroller of the left field pastures and has wielded a mighty stick as Villanova's clean-up man.

While "Stovy's" athletic activities here at Villanova have been varied, he really showed his versatility in high school days. In his student years at Georgetown High School, near Uniontown, he received nine major letters, three each for football, baseball, and basketball. On the gridiron he was quarterback for three years and captain the senior season; he was a three year basketball regular; and he played first base and batted cleanup every year on the baseball team.

He graduated in 1934 and came to Villanova that same Fall, enrolled as a prospective teacher. At the present time the lure of the professional diamond is greater than that of the pedagogue's chair. Ray intends to go in for baseball in a big way. So far he has aroused the interest of the Boston Red Sox club, whose scouts are looking him over. Let's hope he goes a long way in pro ball.

Ray is another of Clipper's young footballers; to be exact he is today 21 years, five months and two days old. He has lived all these years in Uniontown, a pleasant small town in southwestern Pennsylvania.

Clipper Smith will be the featured speaker at the annual Football Luncheon given by the Poor Richard Club of Philadelphia next Tuesday at 1:30 P. M. The talk will be broadcast via Station KYW.

Nowak eating up much of the yardage, and a four-yard plunge by Howlett topping it off for the clinching marker. After Mellus missed his kick, the entire starting line-up was replaced by a sophomore team, and the third score came when "Googoo" Gogolinski intercepted a Marquette pass on the Avalanche 43 and out-raced the safety-man to the goal.

Marquette Scores

With a 19-0 lead, the 'Cats eased up noticeably, yet the Gold needed two breaks to score. Midway through the second quarter, Harvey Buck dropped two punts, one on his 49, and the other on the Blue 18. Even here, with a first down, the visitors had difficulty in punching through the 'Cat seconds. Finally, however, after line plays failed, Johnny Maltsch hurled a sweet pass into the end zone which Captain Ray Sonnenberg caught by a spectacular dive into the dirt. Niles added the extra point from placement, thus breaking Villanova's unscored upon record and easing the terrific strain such a record imposes.

At this point, Clipper Smith sent the first string back in, and the rest of the half was no contest. With Marquette pinned against its own goal line near the end of the period, Leysenaar, Gold fullback, tried to punt from his three. Mellus, McKenna and Bukofski, who was playing in the injured Johnny Wysocki's place, blocked the kick, and Buofski fell on the ball for the final touchdown.

Marquette Throws Passes

In the second half, Marquette played a passing game, but met with no success. The Blue, however, just missed two more scores. After a 35-yard runback of a punt by Buck, the Wildcats pressed to the Marquette one - yard marker, where Jack Earle fumbled as he went over the goal line. A poor kick out by the Avalanche put the Main Liners in a threatening position once more, but an end zone pass, Verbitsky to Murphy, was dropped when the ball bounced off the latter's shoulder.

Marquette used a flanker play to good advantage in the fourth quarter, as the number four back ran to his right in a deep formation from which either a pass or a wide end sweep could be operated. The inexperienced 'Cat second line was whipsawed repeatedly on this formation, and the left end, in particular, was sideswiped as he went in to rush the passer, leaving the flank entirely unguarded.

Shorts

The Blue marked up 12 first downs to their opponents' three, and gained 191 yards from scrimmage to the Gold's 127, most of which was garnered at the expense of the 'Cats seconds. Villanova completed five forwards for a total of 49 yards, while Marquette made 42 yards through the air, also on five accurate pitches.

Jack Earle and Art Raimo, playing at full and half, respectively, were outstanding, as was "Buzz" Howlett. Buck played a beautiful game at quarter, despite those two fumbles on punts, and his blocking opened up many a hole in the Gold line. The blocking as a while was the finest shown by the 'Cats all season, being crisp and very, very hard. The thuds were almost audible in the stands whenever a Marquette player was hit. Johnny Mellus played the finest game of his career, as he constantly penetrated the Gold interference, despite the three-man defense set up against him by Coach Paddy Driscoll. Jordan Olivar, at the other tackle slot, and Walt Nowak at end were also outstanding on a Blue line that looked to be the equal of any in the country.

CLIPPER COMMENTS

on Marquette Game

DESPITE the three clubbings they received prior to facing us last Saturday, the Marquette eleven came into our game with a spirit that was a delight to see. The fact that they were 18 points behind at the beginning of the final quarter did not serve to diminish this enthusiasm, and they still acted as though they would make a game of it. Our boys would do well to copy some of the stuff shown by Paddy Driscoll's cohorts. Especially on the defense we could display a little more spontaneous chatter.

Turning to our side of the game, that first period brought forth offensive play the like of which the boys had not flashed in all the previous games put together, especially on the ground offense. This was due in part to the good blocking done by the guards, an improvement over former contests. However, there is room for further improvement. Missar and DiFilippo showed up well at guard. The other line positions were capably handled, but when Olivar and Mellus are out of the fray, the quality of play leaves something to be desired. Ollie is to be highly commended for his all around offensive and defensive play, as well as his choice of plays.

Too Many Fumbles

On the ends, Bukofski and Nowak did some good work, with the former showing improvement over previous performances. Howlett's play in the backfield, filling Andy Stopper's place, was commendable, as his passing and ball handling was all that could be desired. On the whole, though, we are still afflicted with a bad case of "fumblitis," and this malady should be remedied before long, due to the all-too-evident fact that to continue dropping the ball at inopportune moments will cour disaster, especially in the Temple fray. The opportunities for scoring may not present themselves in the next contests as they did Saturday.

Our pass defense is notably weak in spots, especially in the department of the play featuring rushing the passer. The Marquette backfield men had all the time in the world to get those tosses off, with the result that many plays were completed that would have failed had the defense been in the right positions. Scouts for the three remaining teams on the schedule have been following us for the past four weeks and they will not be slow to capitalize on any pass weakness of ours. Loyola, in particular, has a very efficient scout who has been giving them some good information.

Boston Club Tough

I hope that Wysocki, Stopper and Stoviak will be in shape to face Boston this Thursday, as they didn't play over half of the Detroit contest, and the experience they will get in the New England fray will serve to get them on edge for the Temple game. This Boston outfit is not the setup that the Villanova rooters are inclined to think. They have been more or less coasting along this year, pointing for us. They still remember that Shibe Park defeat, and are out to avenge it in no uncertain terms. Pat Hanley has some good backfield men. Saul Nechtem, in particular, is one of the fastest backs in New England, and one of the best passing players in the East.

A lot depends on this game, because it will give us some indication of what we can do against Temple's offense. Hanley is a Warner disciple and his club plays a strictly Warner game, so we should be able to get some experience on the Owls' style of play. Overconfidence of our boys does not seem to be evident, but there is always the possibility that the praise they have been getting may have a deleterious effect.

BOSTON TO SEE COLLEGE BAND

Villanova Musical Group To Make Trip to Hub City

The Villanova College Band is going to follow the team to Boston for the game with Boston University on Thursday afternoon.

The college musical organization will leave the Villanova station tomorrow evening and will travel by sleeper to Boston where they will arrive early Thursday morning. Immediately after the game the band will board an evening train and will return to Villanova in time for classes Friday morning.

The much inproved band under the direction of Rev. Joseph I. Boyle, O.S.A. and Paul G. Teei has attended every game except the one played in Detroit, and their stirring music and brilliant performances have done much to inspire the team through the season. This year's band has the distinction of being the Villanova band to present the new Villanova march "Villanova On Parade." It is also fortunate in having two good drum majors.

Villanova's cheer leaders will be in the party leaving for Boston tomorrow night.

CLUB HEARS STOKOWSKI

Music Society To Attend Symphony By Philadelphia Orchestra, Thursday

Villanova's Music Club will travel into Philadelphia Thursday night to hear Leopold Stokowski's Philadelphia Orchestra render Stokowski's own transcription of Bach's organ Toccata and Fugue in D Minor; the Brahms Fourth Symphony; Tchaikovsky's "Francesca da Rimini" and an American composition's premiere.

Those wishing to accompany the club, contact Father Vrana before Tuesday evening.

12 HOURS EARLY

Three hundred blurry-eyed, under-slept Ohio State freshmen congregated in the men's gymnasium upon a Wednesday morning and waited. They waited half an hour for the rest of their class to arrive for freshman convocation. Then one of them looked at his program card to find the meeting scheduled for 8 P. M., not 8 A. M.

SOPHOMORES MEET

There will be a meeting of the Sophomore Class today at 1.00 o'clock in the Amphitheatre. All class members should attend this meeting.

VILLANOVA SET FOR TEMPLE

EDITORIAL

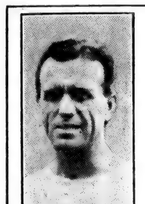
BEAT THAT TEMPLE OWL

VILLANOVA Gridmen, the toughest assignment of your entire career is ahead of you on Saturday afternoon when you meet the minons of "Pop" Warner up at Temple Stadium. Your record to date has been excellent and all Villanova students and rooters are proud of the showing you have made. On the face of things you are the favorites in this year's classic battle, but we know that you realize that past records are meaningless when the Wildcat and the Owl clash. But we of Villanova College know that you can win. You have proved by your excellent display of spirit in all games this season that you have the will to win and the spirit which makes champions. The Temple Owl is good. He always is. BUT WE ARE ABSOLUTELY SURE THAT YOU HAVE THE NECESSARY SPIRIT AND ABILITY TO EMERGE THE VICTORS FROM OUR TRADITIONAL BATTLE.

"Pop" Warner, one of the greatest men in the athletic world of today, is ready with a good team. They are always at their best in the Villanova game and their spirit and determination for victory in this contest is as strong as ours. The Owls are, without a doubt, the cleanest, hardest hitting and gamest fighting team on your schedule. They will be out to win. IT IS UP TO YOU TO STOP THEM. We know you have the stuff and every Villanova student is pulling with you heart and soul. Don't let them down. Fight for a win.

Villanova Students, we feel sure that we do not need to encourage you to lend your vocal support to the moral support you are willing to give the team. A game such as the Villanova-Temple battle is no place for a deaf and dumb spectator. We know that you want the team to win. Give them your vocal support and sing and cheer as we know you can. Our team is going to out-class the Owl gridmen. Let's see if you can't do your bit to out-cheer their rooters. Our fighting Wildcats will give you the opportunity—make the best of it.

Team, students and friends. We must all pull together if we are to beat the strong opposition which the Broadstreeters are sure to give us. Our motto all week and at the game will be "BEAT TEMPLE." Let's form a strong Villanova unit and we are sure to emerge victorious from Saturday's fray.



How Rival Coaches View Saturday's Annual Fray

Maurice "Clipper" Smith, head coach of the Wildcats says:—

"Pop Warner has one of the sweetest teams I have seen in action this year outside of Detroit," wailed Clipper Smith, Villanova's head coach, to your inquiring reporter, yesterday afternoon.

"Vince Renzo is the speediest and headiest safetyman who is playing that position in this sector. This fellow Johnny Kovacevich can kick that football as far as any man in the game this season," said the 'Clipper.'"

Smith summed up the Temple forward wall with "Pop has one of the strongest lines I have been privileged to see. They have two strong lines, where we have only one.

"Don't let that Bucknell score fool you, on dry ground Temple would have swamped the Bucknell club by four touchdowns."

"Doc" Jacobs, head of the Villanova yearling squad, says: "Temple has been showing a steady improvement in football tactics judging from the games I've witnessed. The game with Holy Cross would have been a Temple victory had it been played on a dry field."

Glenn S. "Pop" Warner, Grand Old Man of football, and coach of the formidable "Owls" thinks that, although they are the underdogs, the Owls will not concede any victory to the Wildcats.

"We realize," said the mentor of the Broadstreeters, "that Temple is going into this battle as the underdogs, but that does not mean that we are conceding victory to Villanova. The underdog very often comes through to upset the dope and in that respect Temple is liable to come out with a victory."

Fred Swan, genial assistant coach, when approached for a statement said: "Villanova has the best team I have seen at your school since Mr. Warner and myself came to Temple. You are going great guns this year and I hope we won't be a stumbling block on the way to the Sugar Bowl. Wysocki and the rest of your team are splendid. I have scouted several of your games and can say from my contacts with the boys that they are as fine a bunch as can be found anywhere."

Spirit Rises to New Peak

GYMNASIUM SCENE OF GIGANTIC RALLY THIS FRIDAY NIGHT

Prominent Speakers to Address Gathering; Spirit Rises to New Heights

BONFIRE FEATURES EVENT

With high hopes for an undefeated season, national recognition, and principally a Temple scalp, the entire student body, together with hundreds of Wildcat fans and alumni will gather in the Villanova gymnasium at 7:30 this Friday night for the annual Villanova-Temple game pep rally.

To keep the spirit and victory craze at the heighth it has reached on the campus since September, the student council under the chairmanship of Edward Shovlin has planned an affair that will resound throughout Philadelphia to rattle the Owl bones on North Broad St. and further feed the Villanova fire with unsquelchable fuel.

Rally in Gym

Removing the rally from the Commerce and Finance auditorium to the gymnasium was the plan of the student council to accommodate the throng expected. The band will be placed behind the speakers and cheerleaders on the stage and the entire football squad will occupy the floor. The students and visitors will be seated in the balcony.

Speakers who will be introduced by Shovlin are Maurice "Clipper" Smith, Vince McNally, "Reds" Bradley, captain of the Wildcat squad in 1931, Rev. Francis X. Coan, O. S. A., and several members of the squad which will include comments from the captain, as yet not announced.

This year's rally will not only enliven the traditional fervor of Temple games, but will also acclaim the "Clipper" and his nationally famous squad.

Routes to Temple Stadium By Both Auto and Trolley

Below are given the best routes both by automobile and trolley to get to Temple Stadium, Vernon Rd. and City Line, Philadelphia. These routes have been compiled by the VILLANOVAN, for those who are not familiar with the streets of the Quaker City.

By Automobile

The direct route from the central part of the city is north on Broad St. to its end, left on Cheltenham Ave. to Vernon Rd. and the parking ground adjacent to the Stadium. Another route, longer in distance but shorter in time, is to go out the Benjamin Franklin Parkway to the East River Drive in Fairmount Park, then continue to the Wissahickon Drive (joins East River Drive at Ridge Ave. and City Line). Continue to the Lincoln Drive, to dead-end and turn right to Germantown Ave., double cartracks, bear right again and at the first traffic light turn left on Mt. Airy Ave. and follow till you come to the Stadium.

The latter route may be considered more desirable for the reason that the heavy traffic on Broad St. is avoided. Those from South Philadelphia will proceed on Broad St. to City Hall, and then take their choice of ways marked out above.

Undefeated Wildcats Confident Of Victory Over Warner's Owls

Huge Bonfire and Rally Will Climax Week's Pre-Game Activities Friday; Student Enthusiasm High

RENZO IS OUTSTANDING BACK OF FOE

By JOHN L. SIMONS

On Saturday afternoon Villanova's football Wildcats will encounter their toughest obstacle in the path to an undefeated season, when they meet Pop Warner's Temple University gridders. The Villanova-Temple rivalry is a football "natural" and gives the sports followers the gridiron game at its flashing, smashing best.

This game, the tenth in the series, looms as the greatest battle of them all. The Owls are still on the short end with three victories and one tie against five defeats and are anxious to close up the gap. On the other hand the Wildcats still feel keenly the sting of last year's 6-0 defeat.

Temple Powerful

The team that Pop Warner will field is one of the strongest and most successful in the history of the Broad St. institution. Although the Cherry and White started the present campaign with but two regulars from last year, the Owls have come through a representative schedule in fine shape.

Only the lack of a scoring punch in three early season games has kept the Templars from their rightful recognition as one of the big powerhouses of the country. Scoreless ties with Mississippi, Boston College, and Holy Cross, top-notchers all, have marred their record. The one loss suffered by the Owls was at the hands of powerful Michigan State, one of the rating teams in the Midwest. Most prominent on Temple's list of current victims is the Carnegie Tech eleven. The Tartans came roaring out of Pittsburgh fresh from a brilliant win over Notre Dame, but Pop Warner's charges set them back on their heels by a 7-0 count.

SPECIAL TRANSPORTATION FOR CONTEST WITH OWLS

Chartered Buses To Carry Students To Temple Stadium

Special transportation has been arranged to carry Villanova students to Temple stadium for the annual football classic this Saturday.

Chartered Aronimink buses will carry the Villanova students to and from the game. The buses will leave the college at 12:45 P. M. on Saturday and will return immediately after the game. Arrangements for the transportation may be made with Francis Cadran, 225 Austin Hall. Fare tickets may be secured from Cadran any time before Friday evening. A charge of — per student has been set for transportation to and from Temple stadium.

Student Opinions On Game's Outcome Favor 'Cat Gridmen

Marshall Ward—Senior Engineer: "Although a natural pessimist, I feel optimistic about the outcome of Saturday's game and believe our Wildcats will come out on top."

John Linsley—Junior Engineer: "Wysocki will clinch All-American honors in this fray. Villanova by 17 points."

Leonard Pampa—Soph Engineer: "Stopper, Wysocki, and Raimo will prove too much. I believe the score will be 12-0." Since Len is a former Temple student, his opinion is to be particularly noted.

Ed DeCosta — Frosh Engineer: "With tackles like Mellus and Olivar in the forward wall Temple's chances of scoring on power plays are slight. The prowess of our backfield will be the deciding factor."

Tom Kennedy—Senior Business: "By reason of the fact that our Wildcats conquered Boston U., an exponent of the type of play used by Pop Warner's team, I feel confident of a Villanova victory."

Frank Cadran—Junior Business: "Our past record speaks for itself, and if "Clipper" doesn't forget to make use of all his luck charms we should doubtlessly add another victory to our growing list."

YOUTH

WE of America today stand at a strategic point in history. Before our eyes an old epoch hastens to its end—a new one is being born. The ideologies and norms of nineteenth century Liberalism suddenly have been found wanting; new and strange philosophies are rising to take their place. So rapid is the transition through which we are now passing that peace, order, and stability everywhere are threatened.

Grave misgivings and a sense of fear have gripped all the nations. We of America are to-day caught in what is probably the gravest and most universal social crisis in all history. Certainly not since the Deluge has mankind been in such distress.

Crisis always calls for leadership, and this crisis calls for masterful leadership. The salvation of the world, of civilization, is at stake. Twenty years ago it was youth that manned the guns of death; today it is youth that must stem the tide of social dissolution. The rising generation is the first of the new epoch, and, being first, it must blaze the trail for those that are to follow.

Youth today cannot be concerned with carving fortunes, as was youth of yesterday. It faces a much sterner task—the tasking of staying the wane of civilization and laying the bedrock of a social order that will endure.

Youth of to-day can fulfill its historic mission if it will cast off the fictions and fallacies that have brought us to this sorry plight. Youth need not sink with the world; it can save the world if it will revolt from the foolishness and arrogance of yesterday which said: "Only the new is true."

Youth with its vitality, its power, its daring, and its vision can win this day if it will but draw from the wisdom of the ages.

That is the challenge confronting you to-day, youth!

ALMA MATER
By Al Dubin and Joseph Burke

When the twilight shadows gather
Out upon the Campus green,
When the blue and purple night
Comes stealing on the scene
Loyal sons of Villanova
Sing a hymn of praise
To our dear old Alma Mater
And our College days.

Villanova, Villanova,
When we leave your shelt'ring walls,
We shall leave an echo ringing
Through your treasured halls
We will leave an echo ringing,
In the silent night
While our memories are singing
Of the Blue and White.

When the last big game is over
And the last roll call is heard
When the oldest pedagogue

ODDS and ENDS

By Tom O'Mahoney

ON a bitterly cold day in 1928, Philadelphia football fans made the long trek down to Municipal Stadium, to see the first game of what has become the most interesting series in Quaker City pigskin annals. They saw a favored Blue team lose its undefeated and untied record when an inspired Owl held Villanova to a scoreless tie. This Saturday will see the tenth renewal of the series, with the Wildcat holding a 5-3 advantage in games won. This year, even more so than in other season, a win over Temple means a successful gridiron campaign for the 'Cats. On the other hand, to lose to Tempie means failure, despite the fine showing of the team to date. We trust that we won't have to think about that—and somehow, we have a feeling that we won't.

Seen at Field Day:

Soph Bob O'Brien going down for the third time. Paul Fitzmaurice—"Ya got any adhesive tape?" The freshmen—"Let's get this guy, he hasn't been wet yet!"—and another dripping soph splashes and bounces across the pond. And Paul Kerrigan alarms the staid seniors by joining in on the side of the upperclass team. (36 sophs and one senior). A truck driver threatening mayhem as the jubilant '41-ers block traffic on the pike with a sit-down strike. And taking it back when he saw the condition of the sophs. Ed Shovlin got lots of practice, so a good time was had by all.

RETORT COURTEOUS DEPARTMENT

Our esteemed but distinctly uninteresting and notoriously inaccurate colleague on the opposite page, to wit, the "Observer," seems to be trying to get some much-desired, but ill-deserved, publicity by accusing this bureau of plagiarism. Come, come. We remember when you disclosed that Guy Lombardo was a famous "CROONER." (VILLANOVAN, Oct. 12) We all know that Lombardo of the sugar and saccharine orchestra is no musician, and that he would probably have difficulty in securing an organ grinder's union card, but none of us ever knew that he was also a crooner. Observer, we salute you. BUT credit us with lifting only news, not inaccuracies. Kindly.

ON THE CAMPUS

Optimism: What upperclassman hasn't been besieged with requests from alumni for tickets to the Temple game? Obviously, times have changed. Even Jimmy "Cupcake" Dwyer goes to the games this year. And the freshmen have stopped whistling the Notre Dame Victory March, praise Allah. Sure Sign: The Alumni Frosh have the honor of displaying the first Temple jinx. And VillanOVATIONS to Bill Connelly, Alumnus number on, who presented the plaque for best dorm display. Add Suggestions: The one floating around the campus which recommends holding dances off-campus to prevent a repetition of the fire in the gym which resulted from sparks from an exploding light bulb falling on the false ceiling erected for the LKD jam. Wonder Where They Are Now: Whitey Randour, Villanova star back of '31-'33, who beat Temple single-handedly 24-0 in 1933. Called by Harry Stuhldreher the "greatest back he ever coached." Terpsichore, by Fedigan: The dance team of Jungle Jim Montgomery and Tiny Malcolm claim the truckin' crown of the campus. And they have their own music, too. Bill "10-Goal" Sinnott, Lou Wannemacher and Lloyd Rice are as noisy a trio as any. And speaking of Monty, we hear that he is to be nominated as the working girls' choice. Credit And Debits Corner: Bud Lawrence is thinking of getting a court order to collect his debts. Here's wishing you luck, Bud. We have a feeling you'll need it.

COMMUNITY NOTES

Let's dust off the old All-American Villanova cheering section again for the Temple game. The cheer leaders wish to thank the student body for their work in the past, but hope for even better things Saturday.

BEAT TEMPLE!

College Chatter

By Joe Alessandroni

THIS IS Temple week, as well as exam week, and we must not forget that we play the hardest football game of the season this Saturday. The players will remember, and lest we forget in a burst of confidence, it might be well to reflect on the torch which fires teams to victory—

What balances the odds, when traditional foes tangle in a battle of gridiron greats?

What is that unseen power acting as Goddess of justice, balancing the scales, deciding their fates?

What makes an embryonic team rise from the dust of ashes that are lifeless defeats?

What causes the spectators to gasp when the winning players are pushed from their lofty seats?

The answer lies in the line of the jaw; in the fortified organ beating within a figure that won't be licked.

The answer lies in the spirit that spectators muster, long before the whistle blows, the ball is kicked.

Football with its fundamentals; its intricacies; its colorful clothes—

These will be merely incidentals when the "Owl" and the "Wildcat" meet as foes.

Only the whispering winds will carry the key to victory, far above the stadium's roar.

Spirit — Spirit — Spirit — they whisper; this spirit we must capture and into our men pour.

For victory is not always to the one with the most victories, nor to the team that lives on its past.

For one team is pressing; the other is relaxing, and Spirit alone makes the die evenly cast.

Then, never forgetting that the teams are equal, and spirit alone can win the game

Let us inspire that spirit at Villanova which will linger, win lose or draw, giving Villanova national fame.

Decoration Plaque Presented By Alumnus

William Connelly Donates Award For Hall Raiment

Dormitory With Best Annual Pre-Temple Game Displays Will Have Name Engraved on New Prize

MUST CONFORM TO STRICT SET OF RULES

Enthusiasm is again running high on and off the campus as the traditional argument with Temple University draws near.

Heading the list of Villanova's enthusiastic supporters is none other than Mr. William "Bill" Connelly '27, Villanova's number one alumnus.

Mr. Connelly has again shown his fine spirit by donating a plaque which is to be presented to the resident or day student group which puts on the finest display of decorations on the campus. This plaque is to be presented to the winning group at the Temple rally next Friday night and remains in the possession of the winners for one year.

This will mark the first year the decorations have been judged, but they have already become a part of the Temple game tradition, and tends to increase the fine pregame spirit which is always shown for this game.

Students have already begun planning and according to indications there will be no limit to the amount of time and effort placed on the winning of the contest.

An indication of the great interhall and day-hop rivalry may be gathered from the statements issued by the various groups. Lawrence "Jocko" Stanwick of Fedigan Hall has signified Fedigan's intention to win with the following motto: "We will win this contest without any doubt or know the reason why." This gives indication of strong arm methods being used, but it is known that this is not possible with "Fire Chief" Paul Kerrigan in the same contest. Says "Chief Kerrigan," speaking for Austin Hall engine house number one—"I wish to say if that mob up in Fedigan Hall thinks it's going to win hands down they have another think coming."

It seems that both upper classmen halls have forgotten that there are two more halls to be heard from beside the "Train and Trolley Wreckers Association" who want it known by all that they are very much in the race. Over in Alumni Hall Father Lunney's pets, led by the versatile "Chief" Cash U. Haggerty, he of the southern drawl, are aiming at upholding the honor of Alumni Hall, which last year was by far the best dressed hall on the campus. Up near the sky, on the fourth floor of Mendel hall the Mendel board of strategy has already begun work on what they say will be the most novel idea in the whole campaign. Over in the other wing the day hops have rallied to the cause under the able leadership of a point committee of Pre-medicos and Engineers, while in the school "down beyond," the Commerce and Finance wrecking crew is all set to go ahead with plans for a supercolossal show of color. All in all a great display can be looked forward to. The leaders of the various groups if they have not already become acquainted with the rules of the contest had better see them before going any farther. Some of the rules are as follows; No college linen to be used, use of college linen will disqualify the group. Decorations must be on or in the vicinity of the respective halls. Decorations are to be paid for by the group as a whole.

Judges will be the entire Student Council. Judging will take place on Thursday November 18, with the winner being announced at the rally.

mentioned on the All America second team. Other Villanova gridsters have received honorable mention on various selections of national press ratings, among whom were George "Whitey" Randour and William "Toby" Cavanaugh.

Wysocki received a Card of Merit, issued by the All America Board, and the assurance of consideration by the Board when it meets to select the team for 1937.

EARLE EBY MAKES JUNIOR CLASS RINGS

Philadelphia Jeweler Given Contract by Third Year Committee

Definitely concluding a series of interviews with representatives of prospective jewelry firms, the Junior Ring Committee has contracted the Samuel E. Eby Co., of Philadelphia, to manufacture the Class of 1939 rings.

Under the chairmanship of William Leahy, the committee of eight junior class members has decided on a ring of design similar to that employed by the preceding classes at Villanova College.

Military Style Chosen

A military-styled ring bearing the seal of the Augustinian College of Villanova and the symbolic Wildcat will be the token of remembrance adopted by the class of '39. The ten-karat gold rings will range in weight from the customary 12 pennyweight to a heavier 16 pennyweight, depending entirely upon the individual selection of the student.

A wide variety of stones will be available at the option of the student. The price of the rings for the 12 pennyweight will be $18.00 including the cost of the stone. The stones will vary in price from one to three dollars. The 14 pennyweight rings will cost approximately $20.00, and the 16 pennyweight will cost about $22.00. The final choice of the exact pennyweight and the choice of stone will be optional.

The search for wood which has even sent yearning glances in the direction of Alumni Hall, is an indication that it will be of a size such as has never illuminated a Main Line sky. Ticket sales for student tickets for the Villanova Temple game will close this evening at 5 o'clock. No student tickets will be sold after this date.

Quickest Routes to Temple Stadium By Both Automobile and Street Car

From West Philadelphia the route, as sugested, is over Girard Ave. Bridge at the Schuylkill River and at the first semaphore signal turn left down the hill, and at the bottom bear to the right. From that point follow the route marked out above, concerning the Wissahickon Drive, etc.

For Villanovans and other suburbanites, follow Montgomery Ave. to City Line, then bear left and continue on City Line till Ridge Ave., (double car tracks) is reached. From there follow plan outlined for those who will leave from West Philadelphia, namely Wissahickon and Lincoln Drives, Allens Lane, Germantown Ave., and Mt. Airy Ave. to the scene of the fray.

By Street-Car:

From City Hall and South Philadelphia take the Broad St. subway to Olney Ave., then transfer to Route 6 trolley. (When paying a fare on Broad St. subway secure transfer, which is to be used on Route 6.)

West Philadelphians take Market St. subway-elevated train to 15th St. Station. Get off here and ascend the stairs and cross to City Hall; then go through the archway and down the stairway marked North. The route to be followed from there is the same as that marked above.

From Villanova use the Philadelphia and Western to 69th St. Terminal and then take the Market St. elevated. When paying fare ask for an exchange ticket. When boarding the Broad St. subway hand cashier your exchange and ask for a transfer to be used on Route 6, which you will get at the northern terminal.

Villanova students may take the bus which runs regularly on the Lincoln Highway to 63rd and Lancaster Ave. There get on a Route 10 car which will take you to the 15th and Markets Sts. where you proceed as above. Bus tickets are five cents each in the book-store.

For the convenience of residents a special bus will be run direct from the campus to Temple Stadium. Those who desire this form of transportation should get in touch with Francis Cadran, 225 Austin, student representative of the company.

ALUMNI ELECTS OFFICERS

Graduates From All Parts Becoming Organized Into Active Society

At a recent meeting in the office of the State Librarian, Dr. Joseph Rafter, preliminary plans for the organization of an alumni association of Villanova College were laid out. The following men were elevated to positions as officers: Patrick L. Reagan, president; Joseph Herrity, vice-president; J. J. McHugh, secretary, and Vincent Marra, treasurer. This membership committee was also appointed: Fritz Kopp, chairman; James Marra and John Francella. Only tentative plans and decisions were made at this meeting.

Even in distant Puerto Rico the alumni of Villanova is becoming organized and federated into an active society. Although we have learned of this fact in itself, we have as yet been unable to receive the names of the newly elected officers.

Beware Many Omens of Good and Bad Luck; Survey Shows 'Cats and Their Followers Are Superstitious

By ROSS ARNOLD

The annual Temple-Villanova classic is upon us and along with it the rallies, "Beat Temple" buttons, predictions, wagers and superstitions. The latter is the nucleus of this column and contains off-hand replies to the question, "Are you superstitious about the Temple game and, if so, what are your superstitions?" Random selections were made although well known campus figures were included.

Barrels Good Omen

For super-superstitious individuals no other than Maurice J. "Clipper" Smith, head coach, leads the pack. In a short interview any number of jinx-foolers were unearthed. The first which is well known is the act of walking on the field backwards. The "Clipper" learned this from the great team first comes on the field the "Clipper" also carries a football; Vince McNally carries it off.

Villanova has yet to walk on the field first. This is left up to the rival team, the principle being, there is a jinx on the field, we won't get it. Close observation will show that Mr. Smith has worn the same tie since Auburn tied us. When traveling the team sleeps on the seventh or eleventh floor of the hotel where they are staying. This can be attributed to an unfortunate incident in the life of Mr. Smith When he played St. Mary's on the coast, the team was quartered on the 13th floor. . . .the score next day was 14-13 favor of St. Mary's. Clipper is always sure of a victory if he sees a load of barrels before a game.

Coach Smith confided that his wife won't go to the games, the reason being she attended the Auburn game and they tied us. She feels guilty, but personally we can't see why she should feel that way about it.

Announcer's Hat Lucky

Kirby Cushing, ace sports announcer, thinks that a hat and a sweater which he owns has something to do with Villanova luck during the Temple engagements. The sweater is a yellowish-green, according to "Clipper" Smith and the hat, one of those derelicts which every man seems to own. Last year Mr. Cushing's wife insisted that he wear a new hat on the day of the big game, the old hat was to rest in the closet. Those who remember last year recall that Temple was the victor. Mr. Cushing is going to be sure to wear the old hat. Thank you, Mr. Cushing.

Mrs. Tommy Lovett, wife of the sports writer, wears a green sweater to the games; so far the wearing of the green has meant victory for the "Wildcats."

Band Wary Of Song

The Villanova band has a custom of singing a song which seems to have a bearing on the team's luck. The tune is "John Brown's Body Lies A'moulding in the Grave," and the name of the rival college is inserted in place of the words "John Brown's." The topic of interest lies in the fact that every time the tune is sung before the game, a dark cloud descends and disaster looms on the gridiron for the "Wildcats." Since this quirk of fate has been discovered any band member who starts the song is promptly squelched. After victory, however, every one joins in and those who don't sing or shout the song are given a friendly "ride."

Don Bangert, 150 pound coach, thinks that the team should change their shoe laces before every game. That has been his custom for a long time.

Should Always Receive

Frosh Johnny Maher believes that if we receive instead of kicking off, we will be in a bad way. Every victory has been preceded by the Wildcats kicking off at the opening whistle.

Ed Shovlin, president of the student council, wants the team to wear the blue jerseys. He said that even though he is Irish, the green worries him.

Father O'Donnell, English professor, feels that, if Villanova has more points at the closing whistle than Temple, the Wildcats are assured of victory. We hope that this prediction is true.

Student Opinions Favor Villanova

"Temple has played a fairly tough schedule and won't be a "push-over." However, this year Villanova seems definitely superior and should come out on top if nothing unforeseen happens."

Gordon Brosmer — Business Frosh: "Though both Villanova and Temple are pointing for this game, it means more to the Wildcats because of last year's defeat at the hands of the Owls and their own unblemished record. A Villanovan win."

Tom O'Brien—Senior Arts: "Villanova's showing in the B. U. game is no criterion of its playing ability. In my estimation the Wildcats will prove to the public that they are one of the best teams in the country by decisively defeating the Owls in their annual battle."

Pershing Calabro — Junior Arts: "Villanova will show the Temple team some flashy ball playing. This is the Wildcats' year."

Bill Duffy—Soph Arts: "We have a power-house in Wysocki and should win by two touchdowns."

Victor Corbett — Frosh Arts: "With an even share of the breaks the Wildcats should lead Temple to the finish line. Our great line will effectively stop Temple's fast backs."

Vince Ciacci—Senior Science: "If Temple shows up, we will beat them."

Frank Reale—Junior Science: "I think the team will more than make up for last year's final period defeat. We should take them in stride after the Boston game. P. S. Watch out for Raimo."

Barney Bellew — Soph Science: "Temple is a hard-fighting team, but it lacks that extra initiative so necessary for victory."

Ross Arnold—Frosh Science: "My vote goes to Villanova without any hesitation. However, I am keeping my fingers crossed in hopes that that persistent jinx of fumbling by Villanova hands will not prove the error of my selection."

YOUTH

WE of America today stand at a strategic point in history. Before our eyes an old epoch hastens to its end—a new one is being born. The ideologies and norms of nineteenth century Liberalism suddenly have been found wanting; new and strange philosophies are rising to take their place. So rapid is the transition through which we are now passing that peace, order, and stability everywhere are threatened.

Grave misgivings and a sense of fear have gripped all the nations. We of America are to-day caught in what is probably the gravest and most universal social crisis in all history. Certainly not since the Deluge has mankind been in such distress.

Crisis always calls for leadership, and this crisis calls for masterful leadership. The salvation of the world, of civilization, is at stake. Twenty years ago it was youth that manned the guns of death; today it is youth that must stem the tide of social dissolution. The rising generation is the first of the new epoch, and, being first, it must blaze the trail for those that are to follow.

Youth today cannot be concerned with carving fortunes, as was youth of yesterday. It faces a much sterner task—the tasking of staying the wane of civilization and laying the bedrock of a social order that will endure.

Youth of to-day can fulfill its historic mission if it will cast off the fictions and fallacies that have brought us to this sorry plight. Youth need not sink with the world; it can save the world if it will revolt from the foolishness and arrogance of yesterday which said: "Only the new is true."

Youth with its vitality, its power, its daring, and its vision can win this day if it will but draw from the wisdom of the ages.

That is the challenge confronting you to-day, youth!

ALMA MATER
By Al Dubin and Joseph Burke

When the twilight shadows gather
Out upon the Campus green,
When the blue and purple night
Comes stealing on the scene
Loyal sons of Villanova
Sing a hymn of praise
To our dear old Alma Mater
And our College days.

Villanova, Villanova,
When we leave your shelt'ring walls,
We shall leave an echo ringing
Through your treasured halls
We will leave an echo ringing
In the silent night
While our memories are singing
Of the Blue and White.

When the last big game is over
And the last roll call is heard
When the oldest pedagogue
Has had his final word
We shall come to Alma Mater
In our dreams again
With a prayer for Villanova
And a sweet amen.

ON a bitterly cold day in 1928, Philadelphia football fans made the long trek down to Municipal Stadium, to see the first game of what has become the most interesting series in Quaker City pigskin annals. Here's wishing you luck, Bud. We have a feeling you'll need it.

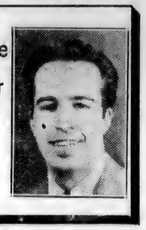
COMMUNITY NOTES

Let's dust off the old All-American Villanova cheering section again for the Temple game. The cheer leaders wish to thank the student body for their work in the past, but hope for even better things Saturday.

BEAT TEMPLE!

College Chatter



By Joe Alessandroni

THIS IS Temple week, as well as exam week, and we must not forget that we play the hardest football game of the season this Saturday. The players will remember, and lest we forget in a burst of confidence, it might be well to reflect on the torch which fires teams to victory—

What balances the odds, when traditional foes tangle in a battle of gridiron greats?

What is that unseen power acting as Goddess of justice, balancing the scales, deciding their fates?

What makes an embryonic team rise from the dust of ashes that are lifeless defeats?

What causes the spectators to gasp when the winning players are pushed from their lofty seats?

The answer lies in the line of the jaw; in the fortified organ beating within a figure that won't be licked.

The answer lies in the spirit that spectators muster, long before the whistle blows, the ball is kicked.

Football with its fundamentals; its intricacies; its colorful clothes—

These will be merely incidentals when the "Owl" and the "Wildcat" meet as foes.

Only the whispering winds will carry the key to victory, far above the stadium's roar.

Spirit — Spirit — Spirit — they whisper; this spirit we must capture and into our men pour.

For victory is not always to the one with the most victories, nor to the team that lives on its past.

For one team is pressing; the other is relaxing, and Spirit alone makes the die evenly cast.

Then, never forgetting that the teams are equal, and spirit alone can win the game

Let us inspire that spirit at Villanova which will linger, win lose or draw, giving Villanova national fame.

Decoration Plaque Presented By Alumnus

William Connelly Donates Award For Hall Raiment

Dormitory With Best Annual Pre-Temple Game Displays Will Have Name Engraved on New Prize

MUST CONFORM TO STRICT SET OF RULES

Enthusiasm is again running high on and off the campus as the traditional argument with Temple University draws near.

Heading the list of Villanova's enthusiastic supporters is none other than Mr. William "Bill" Connelly '27, Villanova's number one alumnus.

Mr. Connelly has again shown his fine spirit by donating a plaque which is to be presented to the resident or day student group which puts on the finest display of decorations on the campus. This plaque is to be presented to the winning group at the Temple rally next Friday night and remains in the possession of the winners for one year.

This will mark the first year the decorations have been judged, but they have already become a part of the Temple game tradition, and tends to increase the fine pregame spirit which is always shown for this game.

Students have already begun planning and according to indications there will be no limit to the amount of time and effort placed on the winning of the contest.

An indication of the great interhall and day-hop rivalry may be gathered from the statements issued by the various groups. Lawrence "Jocko" Stanwick of Fedigan Hall has signified Fedigan's intention to win with the following motto: "We will win this contest without any doubt or know the reason why." This gives indication of strong arm methods being used, but it is known that this is not possible with "Fire Chief" Paul Kerrigan in the same contest. Says "Chief Kerrigan," speaking for Austin Hall engine house number one—"I wish to say if that mob up in Fedigan Hall thinks it's going to win hands down they have another think coming."

It seems that both upper classmen halls have forgotten that there are two more halls to be heard from beside the "Train and Trolley Wreckers Association" who want it known by all that they are very much in the race. Over in Alumni Hall Father Lunney's pets, led by the versatile "Chief" Cash U. Haggerty, he of the southern drawl, are aiming at upholding the honor of Alumni Hall, which last year was by far the best dressed hall on the campus. Up near the sky, on the fourth floor of Mendel hall the Mendel board of strategy has already begun work on what they say will be the most novel idea in the whole campaign. Over in the other wing the day hops have rallied to the cause under the able leadership of a point committee of Pre-medicos and Engineers, while in the school "down beyond," the Commerce and Finance wrecking crew is all set to go ahead with plans for a supercolossal show of color. All in all a great display can be looked forward to. The leaders of the various groups if they have not already become acquainted with the rules of the contest had better see them before going any farther. Some of the rules are as follows; No college linen to be used, use of college linen will disqualify the group. Decorations must be on or in the vicinity of the respective halls. Decorations are to be paid for by the group as a whole.

Judges will be the entire Student Council. Judging will take place on Thursday November 18, with the winner being announced at the rally.

EARLE EBY MAKES JUNIOR CLASS RINGS

Philadelphia Jeweler Given Contract by Third Year Committee

Definitely concluding a series of interviews with representatives of prospective jewelry firms, the Junior Ring Committee has contracted the Samuel E. Eby Co., of Philadelphia, to manufacture the Class of 1939 rings.

Under the chairmanship of William Leahy, the committee of eight junior class members has decided on a ring of design similar to that employed by the preceding classes at Villanova College.

Military Style Chosen

A military-styled ring bearing the seal of the Augustinian College of Villanova and the symbolic Wildcat will be the token of remembrance adopted by the class of '39. The ten-karat gold rings will range in weight from the customary 12 pennyweight to a heavier 16 pennyweight, depending entirely upon the individual selection of the student.

A wide variety of stones will be available at the option of the student. The price of the rings for the 12 pennyweight will be $18.00 including the cost of the stone. The stones will vary in price from one to three dollars. The 14 pennyweight rings will cost approximately $20.00, and the 16 pennyweight will cost about $22.00. The final choice of the exact pennyweight and the choice of stone will be optional.

will return outside where a huge fire will be lighted in the parking space across Lancaster Pike from the gymnasium. The search for wood which has even sent yearning glances in the direction of Alumni Hall, is an indication that it will be of a size such as has never illuminated a Main Line sky. The band will also appear at the fire and furnish music for the ensuing snake dance.

SALE CLOSES TODAY

Ticket sales for student tickets for the Villanova Temple game will close this evening at 5 o'clock. No student tickets will be sold after this date.

Quickest Routes to Temple Stadium By Both Automobile and Street Car

From West Philadelphia the route, as sugested, is over Girard Ave. Bridge at the Schuylkill River and at the first semaphore signal turn left down the hill, and at the bottom bear to the right. From that point follow the route marked out above, concerning the Wissahickon Drive, etc.

For Villanovans and other suburbanites, follow Montgomery Ave. to City Line, then bear left and continue on City Line till Ridge Ave., (double car tracks) is reached. From there follow plan outlined for those who will leave from West Philadelphia, namely Wissahickon and Lincoln Drives, Allens Lane, Germantown Ave., and Mt. Airy Ave. to the scene of the fray.

By Street-Car:

From City Hall and South Philadelphia take the Broad St. subway to Olney Ave., then transfer to Route 6 trolley. (When paying a fare on Broad St. subway secure transfer, which is to be used on Route 6.)

West Philadelphians take Market St. subway-elevated train to 15th St. Station. Get off here and ascend the stairs and cross to City Hall; then go through the archway and down the stairway marked North. The route to be followed from there is the same as that marked above.

From Villanova use the Philadelphia and Western to 69th St. Terminal and then take the Market St. elevated. When paying fare ask for an exchange ticket. When boarding the Broad St. subway hand cashier your exchange and ask for a transfer to be used on Route 6, which you will get at the northern terminal.

Villanova students may take the bus which runs regularly on the Lincoln Highway to 63rd and Lancaster Ave. There get on a Route 10 car which will take you to the 15th and Market Sts. where you proceed as above. Bus tickets are five cents each in the book-store.

For the convenience of residents a special bus will be run direct from the campus to Temple Stadium. Those who desire this form of transportation should get in touch with Francis Cadran, 225 Austin, student representative of the company.

ALUMNI ELECTS OFFICERS

Graduates From All Parts Becoming Organized Into Active Society

At a recent meeting in the office of the State Librarian, Dr. Joseph Rafter, preliminary plans for the organization of an alumni association of Villanova College were laid out. The following men were elevated to positions as officers: Patrick L. Reagan, president; Joseph Herrity, vice-president; J. J. McHugh, secretary, and Vincent Marra, treasurer. This membership committee was also appointed: Fritz Kopp, chairman; James Marra and John Francella. Only tentative plans and decisions were made at this meeting.

Even in distant Puerto Rico the alumni of Villanova is becoming organized and federated into an active society. Although we have learned of this fact in itself, we have as yet been unable to receive the names of the newly elected officers.

Wysocki received a Card of Merit, issued by the All America Board, and the assurance of consideration by the Board when it meets to select the team for 1937.

Beware Many Omens of Good and Bad Luck; Survey Shows 'Cats and Their Followers Are Superstitious

By ROSS ARNOLD

The annual Temple-Villanova classic is upon us and along with it the rallies, "Beat Temple" buttons, predictions, wagers and superstitions. The latter is the nucleus of this column and contains off-hand replies to the question, "Are you superstitious about the Temple game and, if so, what are your superstitions?" Random selections were made although well known campus figures were included.

Barrels Good Omen

For super-superstitious individuals no other than Maurice J. "Clipper" Smith, head coach, leads the pack. In a short interview any number of jinx-foolers were unearthed. The first which is well known is the act of walking on the field backwards. The "Clipper" learned this from the great team first comes on the field the "Clipper" also carries a football; Vince McNally carries it off.

Villanova has yet to walk on the field first. This is left up to the rival team, the principle being, if there is a jinx on the field, we won't get it. Close observation will show that Mr. Smith has worn the same tie since Auburn tied us. When traveling the team sleeps on the seventh or eleventh floor of the hotel where they are staying. This can be attributed to an unfortunate incident in the life of Mr. Smith When he played St. Mary's on the coast, the team was quartered on the 13th floor. . . the score next day was 14-13 favor of St. Mary's. Clipper is always sure of a victory if he sees a load of barrels before a game.

Coach Smith confided that his wife won't go to the games, the reason being she attended the Auburn game and they tied us. She feels guilty, but personally we can't see why she should feel that way about it.

Announcer's Hat Lucky

Kirby Cushing, ace sports announcer, thinks that a hat and a sweater which he owns has something to do with Villanova luck during the Temple engagements. The sweater is a yellowish-green, according to "Clipper" Smith and the hat, one of those derelicts which every man seems to own. Last year Mr. Cushing's wife insisted that he wear a new hat on the day of the big game, the old hat was to rest in the closet. Those who remember last year recall that Temple was the victor. Mr. Cushing is going to be sure to wear the old hat. Thank you, Mr. Cushing.

Mrs. Tommy Lovett, wife of the sports writer, wears a green sweater to the games; so far the wearing of the green has meant victory for the "Wildcats."

Band Wary Of Song

The Villanova band has a custom of singing a song which seems to have a bearing on the team's luck. The tune is "John Brown's Body Lies A'moulding in the Grave," and the name of the rival college is inserted in place of the words "John Brown's." The topic of interest lies in the fact that every time the tune is sung before the game, a dark cloud descends and disaster looms on the gridiron for the "Wildcats." Since this quirk of fate has been discovered any band member who starts the song is promptly squelched. After victory, however, every one joins in and those who don't sing or shout the song are given a friendly "ride."

Don Bangert, 150 pound coach, thinks that the team should change their shoe laces before every game. That has been his custom for a long time.

Should Always Receive

Frosh Johnny Maher believes that if we receive instead of kicking off, we will be in a bad way. Every victory has been preceded by the Wildcats kicking off at the opening whistle.

Ed Shovlin, president of the student council, wants the team to wear the blue jerseys. He said that even though he is Irish, the green worries him.

Father O'Donnell, English professor, feels that if Villanova has more points at the closing whistle than Temple, the Wildcats are assured of victory. We hope that this prediction is true.

Student Opinions Favor Villanova

"Temple has played a fairly tough schedule and won't be a "push-over." However, this year Villanova seems definitely superior, and should come out on top if nothing unforeseen happens."

Gordon Brosmer — Business Frosh: "Though both Villanova and Temple are pointing for this game, it means more to the Wildcats because of last year's defeat at the hands of the Owls and their own unblemished record. A Villanovan win."

Tom O'Brien—Senior Arts: "Villanova's showing in the B. U. game is no criterion of its playing ability. In my estimation the Wildcats will prove to the public that they are one of the best teams in the country by decisively defeating the Owls in their annual battle."

Pershing Calabro — Junior Arts: "Villanova will show the Temple team some flashy ball playing. This is the Wildcats' year."

Bill Duffy—Soph Arts: "We have a power-house in Wysocki and should win by two touchdowns."

Victor Corbett — Frosh Arts: "With an even share of the breaks the Wildcats should lead Temple to the finish line. Our great line will effectively stop Temple's fast backs."

Vince Clacci—Senior Science: "If Temple shows up, we will beat them."

Frank Reale—Junior Science: "I think the team will more than make up for last year's final period defeat. We should take them in stride after the Boston game. P. S. Watch out for Raimo."

Barney Bellew — Soph Science: "Temple is a hard-fighting team, but it lacks that extra initiative so necessary for victory."

Ross Arnold—Frosh Science: "My vote goes to Villanova without any hesitation. However, I am keeping my" fingers crossed in hopes that that persistent jinx of fumbling by Villanova hands will not prove the error of my selection."

GRIDDERS DEFEAT TERRIERS, 12-0

Sportorial

By BILL BOWKER

Sports Editor

BIRD MEETS FELINE, Saturday when our Wildcats tangle with Pop Warner's Temple Owls in the Temple stadium. This year finds the Blue gridders riding on the crest of an unbeaten season, while the Warner men have the Michigan State defeat and three scoreless ties to mar their record. However, past performances go by the boards on this contest, and a team not having scored a point all season is likely to leap up and drop the high-riding opponent. It has happened in the past and history is said to repeat itelf. Our boys have the material and will to win, but they must show a lot on the ball to take over the Broad St. boys. Temple has always been known to be a team that takes advantage of any breaks that come its way, and this is especially true this year, as they seem to lack a scoring punch that was present in the past few seasons.

—V—

Boston U. was supposed to be a test of how the 'Cats would look against Temple. If that is so, the boys are in for a tough afternoon up at the stadium. While we came out on the long end of the score, there were times that the Blue didn't come up to standard. However, the Terrier club was not the set-up it was assumed to be by the Villanova rooters. They were pointing for us, and that could easily be seen by the way they played throughout the contest, especially in the first half. Hanley's boys racked up five first downs to our one during the earlier parts of the first half. Our lads started to click just before the whistle sounded the end of the second quarter. It is to be hoped that the Blue gridders finsh this form for the full 60 minutes against Temple.

—V—

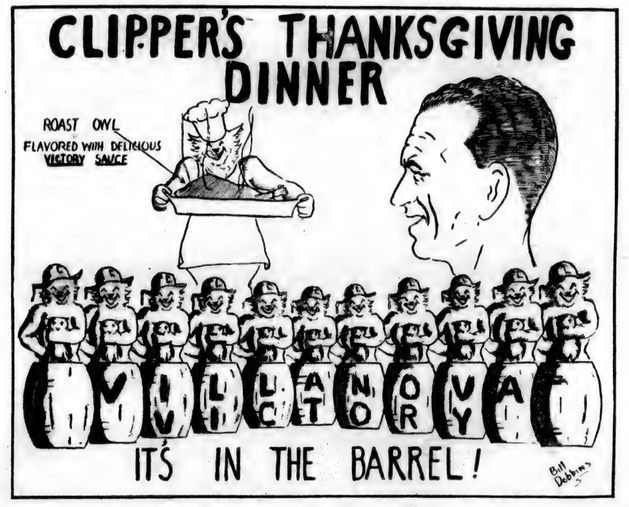
After witnessing all the Wildcat games to date, we are firmly convinced that their best offensive weapon is the blocked punt. More touchdowns have been scored that way this season than in the past two or three.

—V—

This fray marks the final Temple game for a large number of seniors. Eleven, and possibly thirteen, will be seeing the Cherry and White across the scrimmage line for the last time. Among the men bidding goodbye to the Owls as opponents are Johnny McKenna, Ray Stoviak, Andy Stopper, John Mellus, Jordan Olivar, Pat Marquette, Joe Missar, Jack Earle, Art Raimo, Alex Bell, Bill Rogers, and Franny Nye. Val Rizzo, out with a broken ankle, is still eligible for another year's play, and may be seen next year paving the way for the backfield men.

—V—

This time next week will see the boys on their way to California. If they are to go out West with an undefeated record, they will have to flash the type of ball they played against Marquette in the first quarter, when they tallied nineteen points in a little over ten minutes. Only sixty minutes of such performance will be necessary this Saturday.



Renzo, Lukac Leading Touchdown Threats of Aggressive Temple Team

Fast Backfield Behind Sturdy Owl Line Serious Menace to Blue Hopes; Cherry and White Has Psychological Edge

sive are the climax running wing backs, Vince Renzo and Mike Lukac, and two fullbacks Chris Pappas and Allan Nichols. Renzo was Temple's ace ball carrier in 1935 but wasn't in school last Fall. This September he took up where he left off and has re-established himself as a touchdown threat.

Temple's touchdown plays are built around him. Pop's favorite reverses and double reverses are usually planned to wind up with Vince lugging the leather toward the goal line. As an added threat Vince on defense plays in the safety position. The Cats have this season faced some smooth running punt returners, including the flashy Billy Hitchcock of Auburn, yet Temple's Renzo can run with any of them.

Chris Pappas, who scored the six pointer that defeated the Cats last year, is still holding down the regular fullback post. Chris, a vastly underrated player, is one of the best ball handlers in the East. Although injured in the Michigan State fracas, he is expected to start against the Wildcats.

Lukac and Nichols are playing their first season for the Owls. Lukac, a junior, has been a fast stepper at right half. Nichols, the most outstanding of Pop's sophs, is the hardest line plunger on the squad.

Quarterbacking this fine group of ball carriers is Johnny Kovacevich, a smart field general. As is the custom with Warner coached clubs the quarterback is the kicker, and in this respect John has done a capable job.

On the line only Allan Sturges remains from last year's forward wall. Sturges holds down the right tackle post and is rated by Pop Warner as one of the best tackles he has ever coached. Teaming with him will be either "Hippo" Palmer, a Philadelphia lad, or Ed Kolman, towering sophomore.

Two steady pairs of ends are available to the Owls. Joe Mooney and Charley Walters are slated as starters, but Bill Van Syckle and Verne Schriefer are pushing them hard. Lorusso, Katz, and Mesics are the middle three of the Temple line. All have risen from 1936's substitute ranks to edge into the regular lineup.

Temple will field a line averaging 194 pounds and a backfield that averages 179. The Cats, then, will be outweighed one pound per man in the line and five per man in the backfield.

COACHES AND FANS GIVE PREDICTIONS

'A Tough Game' the Concensus of Opinion on Saturday's Traditional Fray

Conservatism marks the comments of coaches and friends of the Villanova team as the long-awaited annual Temple-Villanova fray looms on the horizon. Remembering last year's Owl victory, most of them are loath to predict a win for the Wildcats. Confidence in the fact that the boys will give their utmost is prevalent in the remarks given to the interviewers.

Al Severance, Graduate Manager and Basketball Coach: "Toughest ball game of the season. The Temple line is as good as ours. This is one game which can go either way, depending on the breaks."

Bob Whalen, Secretary, Villanova Athletic Association: "Villanova hasn't played its best game yet—this one should be it. If the 'Cats play the game they're capable of, it should be a good day for Villanova."

Louie, Pie Shop Philosopher and Raconteur: "Villanova has gone into the Temple game before as favorites and come out on the short end. It's always a hot fight, and that's what wins these close ones."

Ray Gadsby, Trainer, football Team, Coach of Boxing: "This is the Big Game — we'll have to be right to win it. And we mustn't forget the Loyola game just over the hill. They will be tough on their home field."

Edgar Semprini, Sports Editor, Temple News: "I'm not predicting a win for Temple or Villanova, but I wouldn't be surprised to see the Owls shatter Villanova's hopes for an undefeated season."

Tony Catrambone, former Sports Editor of the VILLANOVAN states, "I expect a very tough game, but the better team will win."

WYSOCKI TALLIES TWO TOUCHDOWNS TO BEAT BOSTON U.

End Scores on Blocked Kick and 40-Yard Pass From Stoviak

17,000 WITNESS BATTLE

Paced by Johnny Wysocki's sensational playing, Villanova's Wildcats continued on their unbeaten path by defeating an underrated Boston University team in an Armistice Day battle at Fenway Park, Boston. Wysocki tallied all of the Blue's 12 points.

Blue Blocks Kick

Aproximately 17,000 witnessed the fray which saw the Main Liners score on a blocked kick and a 35-yard pass. Early in the second period, Sollie Nechtem, ace Boston back, attempted to kick from his own 27, but Wysocki and Mellus dropped in on the Terrier backfield and blocked the punt, and the "Stonecrusher" picked the ball up and dashed the 27 yards to the goal line without a hand being laid upon him. For the first time in many tries, Wysocki failed to convert the extra point and the half ended with the 'Cats ahead by a 6-0 count.

The final score of the game resulted when Ray Stoviak faded back to the B. U. 40 and threw to Wysocki on the goal line. A brilliant catch by John made six points out of what looked to be an incomplete pass. For the remainder of the fray, the battle see-sawed back and forth with the Pennsylvanians having the ball in Boston territory for the major part of the action.

Blue Offense Clicks

Late in the first half the Blue offense, hitherto checked by the stubborn resistance set up by the Terriers, began to function with Artie Raimo carrying the mail for a 25 yard jaunt from the Blue 30. Andy Stopper then heaved a pass to Buek, who went to the losers' three yard mark before being forced out by the safety man.

Two scares were experienced by Villanova rooters. Once when Blaszynski ran down the field deep into Wildcat territory only to have the officials claim he stepped outside at midfield, and in the final quarter when Sollie Nechtem intercepted a pass on his own 32 and dashed the remaining yards to the Blue goal. The officials took a hand in the matter and brought the ball back to midfield where he had stepped out when dashing down the sideline.

Shorts

Mellus again played his stellar game, teaming with Wysocki to discourage the Terrier backs from coming through that side of the line.

Johnny McKenna, Art Raimo and Ray Stoviak all starred as did most of those getting in the game. Sabrinski showed promise for next year with his running and passing, which was good considering three weeks' inaction due to a shoulder injury.

SANTA CLARA WINS

Santa Clara, formerly coached by "Clipper" Smith, defeated the St. Mary's Gaels by a 7-0 count Sunday. Loyola was defeated by St. Mary's by one touchdown, which means tough sledding for the Wildcats.

Mendel Day-Hops Continue To Dominate Intramurals

Defeat Commerce and Finance Commuters, 36 - 16, to Maintain Unbeaten Pace; Fedigan Holds Second Place by Defeating Austin, 28-21

MENDEL RESIDENTS STAY IN CELLAR

By JOSEPH MC DADE

Flashing a brilliant passing attack combined with snappy floor play and teamwork, the Mendel Day Hops, paced by the unstoppable Dan O'Connor, buried a hapless C and F Day Hop team under an avalanche of baskets to maintain their unbeaten leadership in the Intramural race. The score was 36-16. In the other games of last week, Fedigan continued on the heels of the pace-makers by outscoring the Austinites 28-21, while Alumni took the measure of the Mendel Penthousers by 29-18.

With five of their ten game first-half schedule completed, the Mendel Commuters have defeated every team in the league and are now firmly entrenched in first place. Fedigan's Gigolos, who are in second place with a record of five wins and one loss seem to be the only team with a possibility of catching them. However their one setback has come at the hands of the unbeaten Day Hops.

Day Hops Battle

In the battle between the two Day Hop teams, the Mendel train-and-trolley boys started off with a bang, racking up several baskets before the Business Men found their bearings. But the ultimate victors were not to be checked, for with O'Connor and Thorne pacing the attack, they assumed a commanding ten point lead at half-time. Keating, usually a prolific scorer, was held to six counters due to the close guarding of Gerry Lyam. Joe Beittenmiller likewise played a good floor game for the Mendel Hops. For the defeated quintet, McGurk and Shelle were outstanding.

Fedigan and Austin put on a real battle but the Austinites again proved to be 20 minute players when they lost out in the second-half after finishing the initial canto in a 10-10 stalemate. The game was close all the way but the Gigolos opened up with a powerful attack in the closing minutes with which the Austinites were unable to cope. Carroll dropped in four double deckers for the Spring Mill boys, as Hart and Goumy smared two apiece. Tex Connors, with eight counters, stood out for the vanquished outfit while Waad and Bochetto played a great brand of defensive ball.

Alumni Wins

Mendel's Penthousers were unable to meet the second half onslaught of the fighting Alumni crew and went down to their sixth consecutive defeat. Finding themselves on the short end of a 16-9 score at the conclusion of the first half, the Alumnians came back strong to rack up 20 markers while limiting their adversaries to a single basket, to ring up their second win in six starts. Deluca and Kaiser with seven and five points respectively copped high scoring honors for the Irish as Haynes turned in a good defensive game. Delehanty accounted for ten of his team's scoring with Scelba and McCann co-starring.

LEAGUE STANDING

	W.	L.	P.
Mendel D. H.	5	0	1.000
Fedigan	5	1	.825
Austin	3	3	.500
C. and F. D. H.	2	3	.400
Alumni	2	4	.333
Mendel Res	0	6	.000

Individual Scoring

	G.	F.	P.
Keating	29	2	60
McGurk	19	9	47
Thorne	22	5	47
Beittenmiller	15	10	40
Dwyer	16	2	34

The league standing, as a result of last week's games, were not changed. The Mendel Commuters maintained their unbeaten stride and still hold the top rung. Fedigan, recently displaced as the leader, is in the runner-up slot with only one setback. Austin remained in third place with a .500 average of three wins and three losses. The C and F Day Hops fell back in to their old habits by losing their third game after copping two straight.

In the race for high scoring honors, Keating added to his lead over McGurk by getting six points while the latter was only able to garner two. Thorne, also of the Mendel Commuters, moved into a deadlock for second place honors by counting 12 markers through the week.

LIGHTWEIGHT CLUB TO FACE PENN CUBS

Initial Victory of 1937 Season Expected by Blue 150 Pounders

Villanova Midgets will play hosts to the University of Pennsylvania eleven at the Main Line Stadium on Friday, November 19. Desirous of attaining revenge for last season's reverse, the lightweights are awaiting the tussle with no little anxiety and a good hard-fought game should result. Keen rivalry has always been exhibited between the two schools and this year is expected to be no exception. Even now the two teams are preparing for the fracas and expect to continue to do so until game time.

"Get Penn" Cry

As in other years the Midgets are again pointing for the Penn encounter and are more determined than ever to vanquish their long-standing rival. The slogan "Get Penn" has arisen in the locker room and is greatly stimulating the interest of the more luke-warm enthusiasts.

The University men are reaching the finish of a rather mediocre season and are determined to add a blaze of glory to their otherwise uneventful year by trouncing the Villanova Dwarfs.

On the Red and Blue squad are such players as Rakow and Edwards, two backs who have made very creditable showing in the past season. The Penn lightweights employ a system similar to that of their varsity, the Warner style. Wide end sweeps, combined with other running plays constitute the attack of the Quaker club.

Domenick Returns

The miniature Wildcats will be greatly strengthened by the return of their regular left end, Victor Domenick, who was injured in the first game of the campaign, and has not seen action since. He is one of the mainstays of the 150's forward wall and was greatly missed. His return brings added power and encouragement to the Midget squad.

To form a more definite opinion of the two elevens we may compare their respective results against Princeton, a team which both clubs have played. The Pennsylvania footballers fell prey to a 41-0 shellacking while the 150's from Villanova encountered a 12-0 set-back. It may be seen by these scores how the two clubs shape up and what may be expected of them. In intersectional games, statistics are of little use unless one team thoroughly outclasses the other; therefore, the 'Cat lightweights had better watch their step and play heads-up football, lest the Quakers catch them off guard.

This year the Blue Midgets are fired by the desire to win for Banggert, their coach, who has been loyal to them throughout the season and drilled their plays into them to the best of his ability.

Even Battle Expected

Since both clubs are on an apparently even plane, an interesting battle is anticipated. Coach Massavage of Penn has been drilling the squad in new formations and plays, so that, these, together with the old ones, promise to give the cohorts from the Main Line something to think about when game time rolls around. Interest on the part of the student body at Penn is at a high pitch—they have no other winning team to root for. The Villanova players are going into the game with that "do or die" spirit to help their alma mater emerge the victor and cap off their season with a victory.

Should the Villanova stalwarts emerge victorious it will be the first time it has happened in four years.

Wildcat Squad's General Comment, "It Will be a Tough Game"

Interviews with the members of the Villanova football squad brought out the fact that the general opinion of the boys amounts to the conclusion that the game with Temple will be hard fought and the breaks will decide the contest. Some of the lads were bashful and ran when they saw the scribes approaching, but those who would talk were cornered and some statements wormed out of them. Pulling teeth out of a hen was a simple job compared to prying statements from the modest lads. Possibly they are a bit superstitious about predicting a win, but anyway here are their statements.

Johnny Mellus, quiet, unassuming tackle, chosen captain for the Temple game due to his outstanding play throughout the season, foregoes comment on the game, thus living up to his reputation as a strong, silent man.

Franny Nye, senior quarterback who has been on the sidelines all season with an injured leg, is noncommittal: "Let's play the game Saturday."

Pat Marquette, reserve right tackle, sees tough going: "This will be the hardest game of the year. The boys will have to play exceptionally good ball to beat Temple."

Bill Cochrane, another of Clipper's tackles, is optimistic: "After a tought fight Villanova will get revenge for last year's defeat."

Andy Stopper, Wildcats' ace triple threat left half, and a senior playing his third year as a regular, commends the Villanova spirit. He says: "The whole squad is keyed up for this big game and will be in there fighting all the time, but the seniors and the rest of the veterans will have the extra incentive of avenging last year's unfortunate occurrence. Temple has a strong team as usual, but we, too, have power and speed enough to cope with them if we can click. We are due, and if the breaks are even, look out—Temple!"

Matt Kuber, junior guard, who alternates with Dave DiFilippo, opines: "This game should be a Villanova victory. The boys are pointing for this one and I believe the inspirational play throughout the year is partially due to this fact. They'll be in no mood to be denied. However, predictions always presage bad luck and I dislike to say anything definite."

Jordan Olivar, senior tackle, whose play for three years has been consistently good, and who has been directing plays from his line post, states: "I agree with Matt Kuber. The boys have been pointing for this Temple outfit ever since last year's setback. It will mean a lot to us if we win, but I dislike to say anything definite one way or the other. What I will say, though, is that Temple will realize that they have a tough battle on their hands before the game is over."

Paul Verbitsky, one of "Clipper's" many sensational backs, refuses to commit himself, saying: "I'll withhold comment 'til after the game."

Val Rizzo, senior guard, who has been inactive due to a broken ankle received before the season opened, states: "To predict this game is nearly always impossible. Both teams play inspired ball in this fray and season records mean little or nothing. Villanova should have the edge, but I look for breaks to decide the game."

John Wysocki: The "Wildcat's" outstanding All - America candidate and high-scoring end, speaks thusly on the "Owl" - "Wildcat" tussle. "The boys are in the right frame of mind for this Temple fray. We are just itching to get our hands on the 'Owls' to hang a defeat on them. With aroused mental attitude and our good physical condition, things look promising for us."

Art Raimo, Villanova's flying fullback, comments: "We are gunning for this game in earnest, and we're due to click. If we do, we will win."

Alex Bell, senior end, whose pass catching ability ranks him with the best, remarks at length. "We're due for one of our best showings against the 'Owls.' When the final whistle blows we should be on the long end of the score, but look for a tough fight."

"Russ" Howlett, sensational sophomore halfback, comments: "The players are set mentally and physically. The Owls will have a tough battle."

Ray Stoviak, a reliable halfback who doesn't get the publicity he deserves, says: "If our running attack can menace our opponents as our passing attack has, we will have no trouble."

John McKenna, senior centerman and great line backer is brief: "If we play the ball we can, we will defeat Temple."

Jerry Neri, sturdy sophomore halfback, confines himself to one word in his prediction, "Villanova."

Frank Bukofski, one of the sensational left ends on the Wildcat squad, comments, "Now that we have beaten Boston University I think we should take Temple."

Andy Chisik, who shares much of the action at center with Johnny McKenna, states, "Villanova 'shooting the works' all afternoon."

"Legs" Shedlosky, lanky substitute end, comes out with "We just can't lose."

John Gogolinski, one of "Clipper's" plunging fullbacks, speaks conservatively, "We'll be in there battling. I'll have my say after the game."

Sam Monaco, who helps bolster Clipper's strong wing department, is optimistic in his prediction: "This is the last call for plenty of Villanova men and they'll not be beaten if fighting spirit, coupled with football ability, means anything."

Bill Romanowski, sophomore halfback noted for his passing ability, opines, "This game is always a tough one to predict. I look for the breaks to decide this one."

Lou Dymond, peppery junior pivot man, thinks the 'Cat steamroller is now underway: "We've come a long way, and there's no stopping us now."

Tony Periera, chunky lineman, prophecies: "It's going to be a good game. I hope we are on the winning end. I think the boys all have the stuff it takes to win."

Vic Cook, promising soph tackle who has been hampered by injuries this Fall, predicts, "It will be a tough, nasty game, but we have some plenty nasty boys. Watch 'Curly' Mellus go to town."

Harry Mazzei, soph signal caller who has seen a good bit of action this Fall, states, "Temple will be in there attempting to thwart our Bowl hopes. We'll be in there attempting to thwart Temple."

Tom Casper, peppy little guard from Radnor, looks into the crystal ball and prognosticates a 'Cat victory; "Last year's score is still fresh in the Seniors' memories, so I would say that the Owls had better beware. You know the old saying 'Revenge is sweet.'"

"Reds" Ramen, giant sophomore tackle who has been hampered by an injured hand, states, "Looks like the 'Cats will really start to claw on this one."

Ronnie Tronvall, soph snapper back, becomes enthusiastic: "Ababajabba. We'll get 'em. Let's go gang."

Art Murphy, right halfback who shines on pass defense; "If we play the breaks as we have the rest of the year we should win."

Dave DiFilippo, the demon sophomore guard who has seen plenty of action, states: "The breaks will decide this one."

Walt Nowak, another of the many fine ends of the Wildcat squad opines, "We should take this one."

Bob Buckley, junior end, formerly a halfback, comes through with the statement that "We should win, but Temple is Temple and the breaks mean everything."

Tom McMahon, powerhouse fullback, remains conservative with "I think the boys will repeat their past performances."

Mike Sabrinsky, left halfback who went well in the Bucknell and Boston frays, remarks, "One of the toughest games of the year, but the best I look for breaks."

Vytoid Urbellis, speedy sophomore signal caller, voices the general opinion that "As it is a game of intense rivalry, it will be a hard-fought battle for both teams."

Mendel Day-Hops Continue To Dominate Intramurals

Defeat Commerce and Finance Commuters, 36 - 16, to Maintain Unbeaten Pace; Fedigan Holds Second Place by Defeating Austin, 28-21

MENDEL RESIDENTS STAY IN CELLAR

By JOSEPH MCDADE

Flashing a brilliant passing attack combined with snappy floor play and teamwork, the Mendel Day Hops, paced by the unstoppable Dan O'Connor, buried a hapless C and F Day Hop team under an avalanche of baskets to maintain their unbeaten leadership in the Intramural race. The score was 36-16. In the other games of last week, Fedigan continued on the heels of the pace-makers by outscoring the Austinites 28-21, while Alumni took the measure of the Mendel Penthousers by 29-18.

With five of their ten game first-half schedule completed, the Mendel Commuters have defeated every team in the league and are now firmly entrenched in first place. Fedigan's Gigolos, who are in second place with a record of five wins and one loss seem to be the only team with a possibility of catching them. However their one setback has come at the hands of the unbeaten Day Hops.

Day Hops Battle

In the battle between the two Day Hop teams, the Mendel train-and-trolley boys started off with a bang, racking up several baskets before the Business Men found their bearings. But the ultimate victors were not to be checked, for with O'Connor and Thorne pacing the attack, they assumed a commanding ten point lead at half-time. Keating, usually a prolific scorer, was held to six counters due to the close guarding of Gerry Lyam. Joe Beittenmiller likewise played a good floor game for the Mendel Hops. For the defeated quintet, McGurk and Shelle were outstanding.

Fedigan and Austin put on a real battle but the Austinites again proved to be 20 minute players when they lost out in the second-half after finishing the initial canto in a 10-10 stalemate. The game was close all the way but the Gigolos opened up with a powerful attack in the closing minutes with which the Austinites were unable to cope. Carroll dropped in four double deckers for the Spring Mill boys, as Hart and Goumy snared two apiece. Tex Connors, with eight counters, stood out for the vanquished outfit while Waad and Bochetto played a great brand of defensive ball.

Alumni Wins

Mendel's Penthousers were unable to meet the second half onslaught of the fighting Alumni crew and went down to their sixth consecutive defeat. Finding themselves on the short end of a 16-9 score at the conclusion of the first half, the Alumnians came back strong to rack up 20 markers while limiting their adversaries to a single basket, to ring up their second win in six starts. Deluca and Kaiser with seven and five points respectively copped high scoring honors for the Irish as Haynes turned in a good defensive game. Delehanty accounted for ten of his team's scoring with Scelba and McCann co-starring.

LEAGUE STANDING

Mendel D. H.	5	0	1.000
Fedigan	5	1	.825
Austin	3	3	.500
C. and F. D. H.	2	3	.400
Alumni	2	4	.333

	G.	F.	P.
Keating	29	2	60
McGurk	19	9	47
Thorne	22	5	47
Beittenmiller	15	10	40
Dwyer	16	2	34

The league standing, as a result of last week's games, were not changed. The Mendel Commuters maintained their unbeaten stride and still hold the top rung. Fedigan, recently displaced as the leader, is in the runner-up slot with only one setback. Austin remained in third place with a .500 average of three wins and three losses. The C and F Day Hops fell back in to their old habits by losing their third game after copping two straight.

In the race for high scoring honors, Keating added to his lead over McGurk by getting six points while the latter was only able to garner two. Thorne, also of the Mendel Commuters, moved into a deadlock for second place honors by counting 12 markers through the week.

Sam Monaco, who helps bolster Clipper's strong wing department, is optimistic in his prediction: "This is the last call for plenty of Villanova men and they'll not be beaten if fighting spirit, coupled with football ability, means anything."

Bill Romanowski, sophomore halfback noted for his passing ability, opines, "This game is always a tough one to predict. I look for the breaks to decide this one."

Lou Dymond, peppery junior pivot man, thinks the 'Cat steamroller is now underway: "We've come a long way, and there's no stopping us now."

Tony Feriera, chunky lineman, prophecies: "It's going to be a good game. I hope we are on the winning end. I think the boys all have the stuff it takes to win."

Vic Cook, promising soph tackle who has been hampered by injuries this Fall, predicts, "It will be a tough, nasty game, but we have some plenty nasty boys. Watch 'Curly' Mellus go to town."

Harry Mazzei, soph signal caller who has seen a good bit of action this Fall, states, "Temple will be in there attempting to thwart our Bowl hopes. We'll be in there attempting to thwart Temple."

Tom Casper, peppy little guard from Radnor, looks into the crystal ball and prognosticates a 'Cat victory; "Last year's score is still fresh in the Seniors' memories, so I would say that the Owls had better beware. You know the old saying 'Revenge is sweet.'"

"Reds" Kamen, giant sophomore tackle who has been hampered by an injured hand, states, "Looks like the 'Cats will really start to claw on this one."

Ronnie Tronwall, soph snapper back, becomes enthusiastic: "Abbajabba. We'll get 'em. Let's go gang."

Art Murphy, right halfback who shines on pass defense; "If we play the breaks as we have the rest of the year we should win."

Dave DiFilippo, the demon sophomore guard who has seen plenty of action, states: "The breaks will decide this one."

Walt Nowak, another of the many fine ends of the Wildcat squad opines, "We should take this one."

Bob Buckley, junior end, formerly a halfback, comes through with the statement that "We should win, but Temple is Temple and the breaks mean everything."

Tom McMahon, powerhouse fullback, remains conservative with "I think the boys will repeat their past performances."

Mike Sabrinsky, left halfback who went well in the Bucknell and Boston frays, remarks, "One of the toughest games of the year, but the best team will win."

Vytold Urbellis, speedy sophomore signal caller, voices the general opinion that "As it is a game of intense rivalry, it will be a hard-fought battle for both teams."

FRESHMEN IDLE

"Doc" Jacobs freshman eleven was idle last Saturday when the concluding game of the season, one with Wyoming Seminary, was cancelled.

FRESHMEN VICTORS IN ANNUAL BATTLE WITH SOPH RIVALS

Tug-of-War, Mud-Fight Highlight Clash as Frosh Swamp Foe

MANY EVENTS CANCELLED IN FACE OF HEAVY RAIN

Meager Appearance of Sophomore Class Causes One-Sided Yearling Victory

Freshmen to the right of us,
Freshmen to the left of us,
And onward marched the two hundred.

Unless the Sophomores need visual aid that is the sight they saw on Field Day. Traditional at Villanova College, Field Day occasions the formal, rather informal, meeting of the Sophomore and Freshmen classes.

Planned Course Abandoned

A planned course of events had been anticipated this year, invoking various new ideas and plans of entering into the spirit of competition. Due to a heavy fall of rain for several days this was made impossible, and the events had to be cancelled.

The Freshmen, 200 strong, met no opposition against the 20 Sophomores who appeared for the fray. A victory was anticipated by the Freshmen but they had hoped the opposition would be greater.

Sophomores and Freshmen alike felt disappointed in the response to the call to arms that the Freshmen made in going through Fedigan and Austin Halls. Their successive marches yielded naught. This was in all sincerity the poorest showing the Sophomore class has ever made. Those who went out from this class deserve credit for their courage and good sportsmanship.

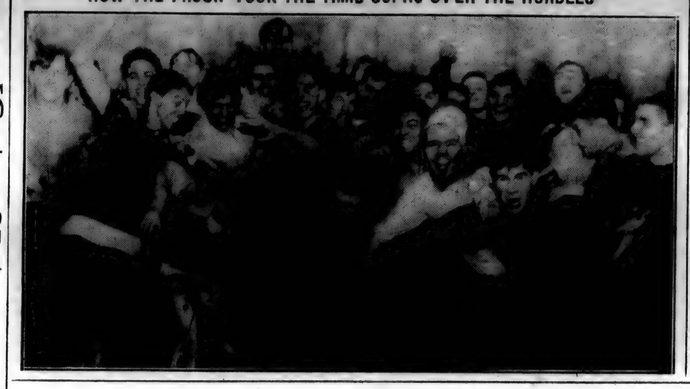
Mendel Was Scene

The campus behind Mendel Hall was the scene of the early scrimmages and most of the action. The heavy rains had made the ground soggy and the mud was plentiful. At the slightest provocation a mud battle was started, the Freshmen fighting among themselves for lack of favorable antagonists.

Mud slinging and ducking was the program at the pond. In the tug-of-war the Freshmen easily won by simply pulling the Sophomores into the pond. The horse at the pond did not care to enter into the entertainment and left for foreign grounds after several had attempted to ride him.

The showers worked overtime on Saturday after the Field Day as the shortage of water caused many unpleasant situations. The clothes, what are left of them, are so stiff that some of the Freshmen have them standing in the corner as a memento of their fight for the removal of the regs.

HOW THE FROSH TOOK THE TIMID SOPHS OVER THE HURDLES



WILDCAT COACH FETED IN BOSTON

Maurice J. "Clipper" Smith, Villanova football mentor, was feted at a dinner conducted by the Villanova alumni of the New England vicinity last Wednesday evening at the Hotel Lennox in Boston.

The alumni gathering was given as a welcome to the Villanova grid coach upon his first visit to the Hub City, prior to the football classic with Boston University. James P. Kane, '27, was toastmaster at the dinner which was attended by over 30 alumni members.

Among those present at the dinner were: Rev. James McDonald, O. S. A., captain of the first Villanova football team in 1895; Walter Griffin, '22, mayor of Lawrence, Mass.; Dr. Eddie Anderson, coach of the Holy Cross team; and John P. Coan, former National Alumni Association president. Frederick Donovan, '31, was chairman directing the affair.

SENIORS UNABLE TO SECURE BAND

Louis J. Biester, recently appointed chairman of the Senior dance committee, announced to the VILLANOVAN today that no definite selection of an orchestra could be made before the first of January.

Mr. Biester made this announcement after contacting the Philadelphia booking agents of practically every well-known dance-band in the country. According to these agents most of the orchestras are at present tied up with long engagements at hotels and night clubs, and as for those that are not tied up, their prices are sky-high.

At the initial meeting of the 18-member dance committee today at one o'clock in room 104, the matter of which orchestra to obtain will reign paramount. Two limitations however, will bind this discussion. One is the figure set as a limit by the administration in obtaining an orchestra. The other is the difficulty, frequently met with by former classes, of selecting an orchestra whose schedule of engagements does not already conflict with the date chosen for the Senior prom, which this year is set at February 25.

Senior prom orchestras during the past four years include Russ Morgan, last year's choice; Glen Gray and the Dorsey Brothers.

Belle Masque Presents Plays And Dance Tonight

GYMNASIUM SCENE OF DRAMATIC GROUP DUAL PRESENTATION

Thespians Introduce Show and Dance Idea to Villanova Campus

VILLANOVANS TO SUPPLY RHYTHMS FOR OCCASION

Entire Production in Hands of Student Members of Society

Four one-act plays combine with a pre-Thanksgiving dance to form the extensive program to be presented tonight by the Belle Masque Dramatic Society. Activities will begin in the Villanova Field House at 8:30 and will be followed by dancing until one o'clock.

Villanovans Supply Music

The dramatic presentations will be directed by four members of the cast of "Journey's End," conducted last Spring by Belle Masque. The program is under the sponsorship of the Furtherance Committee, recently established by the dramatic society. Admission to both the plays and the dance will be covered by a 25 cent charge.

Music for the pre-Thanksgiving dance will be furnished by the Villanovans, campus orchestra. The dance will get under way immediately after the completion of the four plays and will continue until one o'clock. The orchestra has volunteered its services to make the evening's entertainment complete.

Donahue Directs One Play

John M. Donahue, president of Belle Masque, will direct the presentation of "Four on a Heath." "The Other Side" will be under the supervision of Robert J. Barrett, junior in the School of Arts. Joseph McNamara, sophomore Arts student, will direct "Message From Khufu," and the one-act play "Fair

Best Display Ever Seen On Villanova Campus Makes Fedigan Hall First Winner of Decorations Plaque

Basil Dobrowolski Leads West-End Dormitory to Award

By ALBERT ZOGBY

Matching the razzle dazzle of the varsity Wildcats, Fedigan Hall put on a magnificent display of posters, lighting effects, pep rally and fire works to clinch the honor of being the first winner of the Connelly plaque for the finest pre-Temple game display.

Much credit is due Fedigan Hall for their wholehearted enthusiasm and co-operation in getting behind this contest 100 percent, and Fathers Vrana and Donnellen may well be proud of their charges. The Fedigan boys certainly showed beyond any doubt that co-operation is the keynote of success wherever a group is called upon to work.

The man who deserves credit for placing Fedigan in line is, as any Fediganite will tell you, the ever popular "Bomb Slingin', Mad Russian" Mr. Basil Dobrowolski. Mr. Dobrowolski in his spare time is a senior in the School of Education.

With all this he is a practical as well as mental genius. Anything needing repair in Fedigan Hall usually finds its way to Dobbies hands. With all this he is one of the finest, best liked fellows on the campus.

Mr. Dobrowolski, the VILLANOVAN salutes you and your coworkers, you certainly deserve all the credit given to you.

Fedigan Hall's nearest competitor was "the fire hose toters" from down in "Hose company" Austin. Austin showed spirit in its attempt at the plaque but fell a bit too short of Fedigan.

Frosh, Day-Hops Spiritless

Taking nothing away from Fedigan, it was a bit disappointing to see the lack of intrest displayed by the Freshman and Day students. The most that can be said for the freshmen is that they did not come anywhere near the records set by previous freshman classes of Villanova. What was the trouble with the frosh. They certainly had the opportunities the other fellows had. Could it be they had other more pressing matters which needed their attention? The quarterly examinations were given to the upperclassmen at the same time as they, yet they found time to show the Villanova team they were 100 percent behind them. Can the frosh say the same? Forensic Group Shows Unusual Activity During Past Week

This past week has been characterized by unusual activity by the Beta Gamma debating society. The swing of meets started November 12 when Temple was met on WIP. James Quigley, Thomas Delate, and Pershing Callabro took the affirmative side of the question: Is the president justified in not invoking the neutrality legislation?

The next Monday, November 15, the society again had time on the radio with Temple as guest. John H. Lind, Francis Pimpinella, and Frederick Waters a took the affirmitive side of the question: Should the National Labor Reistions Board be empowered to force arbitration of all industrial disputs?

That night there were two more debates, both with the University of Pennsylvania Evening School on the question: Should the several states adopt a system of unicameral legislature? John Stahman and William Corkill went down to Houston Hall in Philadelphia and took the negative side, winning the decision. Robert O'Brien and Jo-

By SAUL WALLACH

Roaring on all eleven cylinders, a high powered grid machine, probably the greatest team in Villanova football history, ran wild over a fighting Temple eleven, crushing the Owls, 33-0, at Temple Stadium, Saturday.

Braving the elements of rain, snow, sleet, and some sunshine, 36,000 football addicts, saw Villanova administer the worst licking ever sustained by a Temple team in recent yenrs. It certainly was the worst ever received at the hands of a Wildcat team, surpassing the 1933-34 battles in which the locals scored three and four touchdowns to none for the Owls.

Four Touchdown Passes

It was an amazed crowd who had come to see a closely contested ball game, owing to the few points scored against Temple previous to this encounter, that saw the charges of Clipper Smith score almost at will. The Wildcats hit the jack pot five times, four times via the air, and came close to hitting it on two other occasions. Costly fumbles deep in Temple territory nullified these thrusts.

After a hair raising first period in which they knocked at the door for a touchdown, the Villanova team was stopped dead in its tracks as Temple took command of the situation. Four successive first downs were rolled up before the

This early preparation is necessitated by reason of the high standard the Juniors have set for themselves. They are really in earnest when they say that all other Junior celebrations will be completely overshadowed by their proposed program.

IT'S ALL OVER

SO far as you students are concerned the superb exhibition you were so fortunate in witnessing last Saturday afternoon was the last game you will be able to see this year. Now that the home season is over we feel that a word of congratulation is in order for the wonderful spirit you have evidenced during this past football campaign.

From the opening cheer of the P. M. C. game all through the season down to the last echo of the send-off last evening your spirit has been excellent. The very much improved cheering and singing of the college songs, while not yet just what it should be, was the best ever heard on the Villanova campus. Your one hundred percent backing of the team was just what was needed to send them out fighting for you so that they could bring you an undefeated record.

A special word of commendation is in order for Fedigan Hall, the first winner of the newly-presented Connelly Award for Pre-Temple game hall decorations. The spirit displayed by the Fediganites is worthy of special note and will go far to firmly establish the new tradition.

Possibly the best indication of spirit is the abandonment of the "laissez-faire," "Let the Frosh do it" attitude of the upper-classmen. For the first time in many years the three older classes have surpassed the first year men in displays of spirit. The cheer leaders have noticed that members of all classes responded to their efforts rather than just the members of the yearling class as has been the custom in the past. So again, Congratulations. May the fine spirit you have shown during the football season carry over into basketball and baseball. There will be cheering at basketball games. We know we can count on you for your support.

The greatest and noblest pleasure which men can have in this world is to discover new truths; and the next is to shake off old prejudices.

THANKSGIVING!

THE approaching Thanksgiving holiday brings into our daily life a note of joy and a note of sorrow.

We are thankful that the curse of economic depression has, to some measure, lifted from our country. We are thankful that although countries on all sides have gone Fascist or Communist, America is yet the bulwark of Democracy.

We are sorrowful that America is the member of a family of nations whose chief occupation these days is anarchic, international warfare. Everywhere brothers in Christ's Mystical Body are ripping out each other's vitals. Hatred, greed, revenge: that is the message that comes from other shores to mar our Thanksgiving observances.

The college youth of today—every one of you — are the potential cannon fodder of tomorrow. The time is ripe for another international war. Since 1917, the World has witnessed sporadic, localized wars. Now warfare is spreading. The United States is spending more this year on armaments than it ever spent before. The nations of Europe are spending on armaments in one year what they used up in the four years of the World War!

Has reason evaporated? Have human beings lost their humanity?

Must man eternally be offered up on the rotten altar of the war-god to satisfy the lust for blood and for money?

While youth in other lands offers up its spirit to the war-god, we here in America believe that it is far more noble to live for our country than it is to be murdered for our country. We believe, rashly or no, that a good Christian life is far more acceptable to God than a hand with the blood of Christ's brothers upon it. We believe in peace, not war; in love, not greed; in Christian living, not mass murder.

Thanksgiving to us can mean but one thing: thanksgiving to Almighty God that He has spared us from the war-madness, the war-sickness of the World. And as we thank Him for His sublime Goodness, let us resolve to dedicate ourselves to that cause which He sent His only Begotten Son to defend: to establish the Peace of Christ in the Reign of Christ.

That is what Thanksgiving means to us.

We hold that we are brothers of Christ, not mere cannon fodder! We are come to live, and to die for Truth. We have come to fight the world, the flesh, and the devil—not our brothers.

HAPPINESS

FRESHMEN — DID YOU SEE GOD TODAY? FRESHMEN — have you found the seclusion and the nearness to God in the chapel that some have found? Freshmen—heed those who have found solitude and joy in the presence of the Holy Sacrament.

Each day when work is about to begin and each night when work is finished you can find Him there waiting to see you, and hear your humble praise. The doors are always open, inviting all to enter, to ask aid for your troubled minds and to give thanks for life and peace. Take heed to our words when you pass these doors and find what we have found.

Go, seek the presence of the Son. There amid the murmuring of praise to God on high, sweet prayers which rise to heaven as incense, glorifying Him to Whom we owe all, you will find solitude and greater love for God.

The chapel doors are open every morning, inviting you to enter and witness the unbloody sacrifice of Calvary. Morning Mass is a wholesome habit and a worthy practice. Your proximity to God will earn you untold spiritual advantages and will bring happiness to your soul with Jesus living there.

ODDS and ENDS

By Tom O'Mahoney

WE knew it was true when we saw the Sunday morning papers, 33-0. Remember, Temple? As Joe Weber said, "Their band was good, anyway."

That gagster who kept nominating the Owls for the Rose Bowl annoyed even the Villanova fans. There is something that has been puzzling us for quite a while. Why is it that the synthetic alumni are more rabid than the real McCoy? Who was that football coach seen slinking out of town Saturday evening? And who killed Cock Robin?

While perusing the New York Times the other day, we came upon the following advertisment for an eating place in Princeton. It read, "When in Harvard for the Cornell game, eat at the Nassau Tavern." We can't figure it out, but perhaps—there is always the chance—some of our more educated readers can. If so, please let us know.

Our little Bird Tuesday dropped in to ask us if we had heard about the tenants of room 325 Fedigan. One is known at home by the interesting nom de guerre "Angel Face." Our Bird reveals that this gentleman has just received permission from the O & O to have a date while he is at school. Come, come. Pre-Meds must be more broad-minded. Look at Ed Doudican—well, that's enough. But we digress. The other occupant of the above-mentioned room, a senior Engineer, from which class nothing is a surprise, was actually seen smoking his first pipe. That is, he was smoking it until he went home for a week-end lately. When he returned, he sadly and silently handed over pipe and tobacco to his roommate mumbling something about his Large Moment not liking the odor of the burning weed. Our Bird thinks that something ought to bt done about it. "Women," he says, "have ruined many a Villanovan. Why not start a club for hen-pecked college men?" The idea appealed to us. Our roommate is the only one who has so far raised any objections to the plan. His statement is that such a state is enjoyable. Perhaps there is room for argument here. But the Martyrs of 325 certainly must lead a dog's life. Tsk, tsk, as this department's favorite critic, (he is, too, folks,) "Pop" Moynihan would say. By the way, have you ever asked "The Dad" any questions about Lawrence?

College Chatter

HOW easy it is to be thankful, when we are on the winning side.

But, could we be as thankful, if something should turn the tide?

We must remember, that everything which goes up must come down.

And we are as uncertain of the future, as a king with his crown.

Let us then thank God, that for the present, we have more than our share,

And show our gratitude by facing every tomorrow with a thankful prayer.

Let us give thanks: that we of Villanova have so many more happy reflections, on this one of the greatest victory weeks in the history of our college — thanks which other colleges, less fortunate, will not be able to carry home.

—That after four years of dry, bitter defeats, our 150-pound team (pint and one-half) came through with a slashing exhibition of blocking, tackling and point scoring against their greatest rival, Pennsylvania. (Score, 20-0.)

—That a spirit of unselfish interest in fellow students prevails at Villanova, where men are always willing to give a word of encouragement, or a hearty handshake for a thing well-done, in any field.

—That as Catholic College men, we are given every opportunity to improve our religious welfare.

—That we are in college, while many more students equally as deserving, roam the streets in despair.

—That our varsity players crushed Temple University in a victory, which will live long in the memory of all Villanovans. . . . Surely we have material and spiritual cause for making this a real holiday.

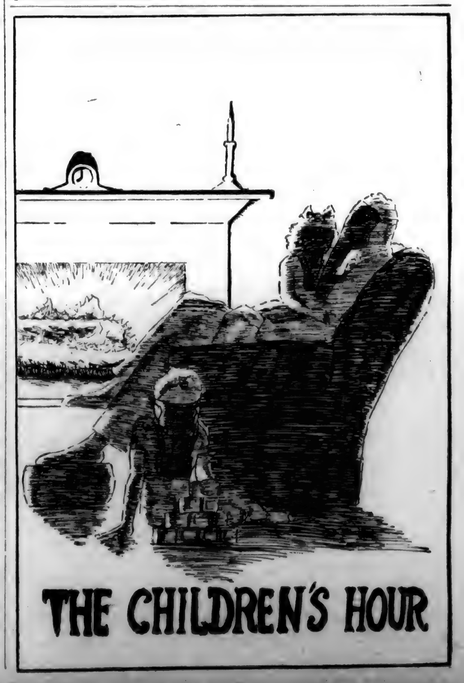
The American college system in almost all its phases was criticized by Dr. Hamilton Holt, president of Rollins College, in a recent address before education students at New York University.

He advocated "abolition of the recitation system," characterizing it as a "detective process" by which the student learns to be a "bluffer."



THE OBSERVER

SCENE: Basil, the Mad Russian, down in the Pie Shoppe. He is hopping around the shop, not noticing all the cans are falling off the shelves. Under the mountain that is Basil's nose, is affixed with home paste a piece of string fuzzed up at the end. Basil thinks he has a moustache. Curious, some people.

"Vah! Heil Hitler. So vere are you going? I'll hit you in the haid."

Thus the linguistic acrobat, self-styled Mad Russian, continues to rave and rant, stomp and storm about.

Scene: Radnor High School. It is 1:30 P. M. The practice-teachers from Villanova are due to arrive.

Two students in the science classroom: "I'll bet that Russian Prince is coming up today."

"Yea," says one student, "and I wonder where he got his education. One day he talks like a Harvard Professor, and the next day he sounds like a South Philadelphia politician. I wonder what he does with himself at night?"

Silence pours as the Mad Russian hops over the window sill and crashes to the floor.

"Good afternoon, dear children," thunders Professor Dowbrowoloski, Ph. D., M. A., B. S., Freshman, Knight of the Bath, and the Guardian of the Royal Meat Hook "So how iss things by yuy?"

"Aw nerts," retort the pupils.

"This afternoon, my deah children, ve are gonk to diskuss the ameeba. I'm tellink you, deah children, dis ammeeba is found by eminent men all ovah the worrld. In fact, brats, deh even find dem in the Joisey meadows. Dey put url in the Joisey meadows to kill the ammeeba, but it dun't woik."

"Teacher," snarls the student who Basil is sitting upon, "my pants are pressed now."

So O'Mahoney has attacked us, has he? Well, what do we care. If that cheap plagiarist wants to garner cheap publicity by attacking the Observer, he can. As soon as his atrocious and nasty attack appeared in the last issue of THE VILLANOVAN, one of our fans wrote us:

"Don't worry about that cheap fellow, O'Mahoney. Tom O'Mahoney will soon be out of the way. Ask the Bryn Mawr Police and the Milk Man."

(Signed) Loyal Supporter of The Observer.

Our "Loyal Supporter of the Observer" enclosed a cheque for $10.00 to aid the Observer Defense Fund. We haven't dared to try cashing it. Maybe Tom O'Mahoney sent it!

November 15, 1937.

Dear Mr. .....

In response to numerous pleas from your collegiate associates, we hereby extend to you an invitation to appear in our demonstration. You will represent what a person looks like before taking ourt treatments.

Please send us your best picture. We will print your picture in "The Ladies Home Journal" and "Vogue" magazines. It will be entitled: "Don't let this Happen To You (For God's Sake)!"

Send us a recording of your voice as we wish to use it as a "warning" call on a garbage boat.

Yours truly,
HELENA RUBENSTEIN.

Yessir, folks, there is an example of Observer sleuthing. Bet O'Mohoney never heard of that scoop.

We of course suppressed the name of the party to whom the letter was addressed.

But that doesn't stop anyone's guessing.

And in parting, we want to remind you: Here's wishing you a perfectly swell Thanksgiving Dinner when you get home. Don't be too hasty in eating it. Your stomach might not be able to stand up under the sudden change.

Poet's Corner

Comes on Thursday, November's last,
A time to feast and break the fast,
To praise and thank the Lord above,
To give rejoice and show our love.

The Puritans of Plymouth Rock
Did in their somberness unlock
A day to feasting dedicate
And our Thanksgiving Day create.

Texas Christian University students have worn out three editions of Emily Post's book on etiquette and the fourth is in shreds, according to the librarian. The most frequent borrowers are boys. By noticing who borrows "Emily Post" she can often predict wedding and announcement parties.

MANY MANUSCRIPTS NOW DISPLAYED IN COLLEGE LIBRARY

Outstanding Works of Fourteenth and Fifteenth Centuries Included

By FRED WATERS

Many priceless manuscripts dating as far back as the fourteenth century are now on display in the College Library.

Notable among this collection is the work of an unknown fifteenth century scribe, "Historia Deorum et Herorum." Many who have heard much about "illuminated" manuscripts, but have never actually seen one, may now have that rare opportunity by paying a brief visit to the ante-room of the library, on the first floor of Austin Hall, during the ensuing week.

Illuminated Manuscripts

Illuminated manuscripts are the hand-inscribed works of ancient writers, chiefly Friars and Monks, that have been "lighted up" by using virgin gold and other clear, radiant colors in the decorations and capital letters. Probably the rarest and best example of "illuminated" works is a copy of the Gospels now in the British Museum, that was written entirely in gold.

In addition to gold, decorations are frequently found to contain as many as six or more colors, including green, violet, yellow, silver, black and red.

Many of these manuscripts were written on white vellum, made from the skin of very young animals, usually calf-skin. This vellum was so expensive, that in many cases sheets were cleaned of their original matter and used again. Those written on second hand vellum are called palimpsests. These latter are often of great value to archaeologists, as the ghost of the original characters lies under the new, so that by restoring the first writing scholars have sometimes discovered texts of great value.

Vellum Is Enduring

The outstanding value of vellum lies in the fact that it does not deteriorate; thus the pages of Historia Dporum et Herorum, although written at the time of Columbus, show practically no sign of decay.

In making up these pages into books, care was taken to place the sheets in such a way that hair-side faced hair-side, and flesh-side faced flesh-side, so that when the book was opened, both pages seen by the reader looked the same in texture,—either the yellow-hue of

SMILE, SUH! Now that Florenz Ziegfeld has been dead five years it appears that the beauts who once paraded in his shows aren't so anxious to be identified as "Ziegfeld girls." It makes them too old, too "dated" by past tense glories rather than present. This was amusingly emphasized over the radio recently when an orchestra leader intending to be complimentary introduced a girl as a Ziegfeld girl. Girl, who was among collegiates at the moment, stiffened, made very wary answers and at last blurted out, "Well, I'm not so old now, you know. I was only 15, when Ziegfeld hired me." THIRD DIMENSION: Hold your breath and then take a long look at Petty's Alice Faye in Esquire. Tony Martin, how I envy YOU!

AT HOME: Knowing Fannie Brice as well as we do we would give anything to hear the opening speech she has prepared for Little Billy! . . . We saw the "Hurricane" opening . . . we put on our overcoat and rubbers during the storm sequences; we take no chances. We particularly enjoyed the scene showing four of the principal characters floating down the wild river reclining peacefully on a tree . . . which proves conclusively only Goldwyn can make a tree! Broadstreet is rapidly developing with two more Chinese restaurants, opening in the next few weeks—but ark our words in four or five years American food is bound to make a comeback.

It has been explained that there is no time for play in Hollywood as you must arise at six, be on the set at seven, etc. Of course we have seen some people in pictures lately who would have been better off if someone had stolen their alarm clocks, but that's beside the bed. SEQUEL: Judging from the way the Big Apple dance craze swept out of the Carolinas and engulfed the nation, you never can tell where the next Dixie terp idea will lead. Newest dance here is the "Little Peach," which was born out of necessity on Emory U. Campus. The college's Inter - Fraternity Council barred the Big Apple from term dance floors, due to lack of space.

Remember about two weeks ago when we said that the Center Theatre ought to show some of the college productions instead of booking flops. So. See.

BUSTED: Phillips Lord is contemplating stepping out of the "Gang Busters" (Palmolive) on Columbia, so that he can develop a couple of new program ideas.

STAR LINER: Seymour Simons conducts Columbia's "Romantic Rhythm." Has written some 2000 songs, close to 300 having been published. Among them such hits as "All of Me," "Honey," and "Breezin' Along." He began his career as writer of student operas for Michigan U. Afraid of playing solo after director asked him to do pianologues he demanded and got an orchestra. He was in the air service during the war (not the Civil War, he says). He commutes to New York every weekend for his broadcast. He says he is fatalistic so has no superstition, but he must be last person to adjust microphone before air time.

Did I see her. What do you think.

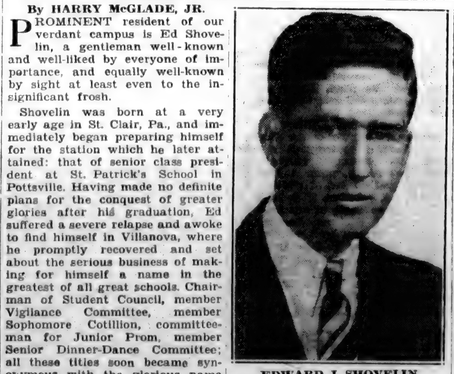
PASTING: So Temple was all set to upset the dope on the Wildcats. From where I was sitting it looks like the dope was administered to Temple good and proper during the first half. The effects showed up during the second half. It seems that the Temple pass receivers staggered when ready to snag the ball. Van Sykle, Temple's right end, left the game with a "bun" on. Also the dope was so effectively administered that when Rogers ran back an intercepted pass 68 yards for a touchdown, Temple's heart, by that time, was completely removed. Al Horwitz, remember him, said that Pop Warner had a defense all set for us. Why, they couldn't even defend their goal posts during the game, let alone after the game. A bunch of "Varieties" deficits to the team and their inspiring coach, the one and only, "Clipper" Smith.

Introducing—



EDWARD J. SHOVELIN

By HARRY McGLADE, JR.

PROMINENT resident of our verdant campus is Ed Shovelin, a gentleman well-known and well-liked by everyone of importance, and equally well-known by sight at least even to the insignificant frosh.

Shovelin was born at a very early age in St. Clair, Pa., and immediately began preparing himself for the station which he later attained: that of senior class president at St. Patrick's School in Pottsville. Having made no definite plans for the conquest of greater glories after his graduation, Ed suffered a severe relapse and awoke to find himself in Villanova, where he promptly recovered and set about the serious business of making for himself a name in the greatest of all great schools. Chairman of Student Council, member Vigilance Committee, member Sophomore Cotillion, committeeman for Junior Prom, member Senior Dinner-Dance Committee; all these titles soon became synonymous with the glorious name of Shovelin. What a man!

Usually seen on campus flanked by bodyguards Corkil and O'Brien, Ed has become an integral part of the Augustinian College, a landmark to be sorely missed after our tearful last farewells in June. We'll miss him fussing around school, but we'll probably hear of his progress in the halls of the great, and it's a cinch we'll see him around at the games and reunions for years to come, for Villanova's affection for Ed is not wholly unreciprocated.

If you would be a doer of things, if you would be famous and popular and versatile in the arts that count, if you would leave the memory of your name with us, O lowly freshman, have someone point out to you Ed Shovelin (if you didn't see him officiating at the Temple rally). Get one of his discarded ties, wear it, and try to emulate his example in every way possible. He is the type appreciated in Villanova.

Any of the students who attended the dances graced with Ed's efficient directorship will lift their voices in praise. The Sophomore Cotillion, two years ago, and last year's Junior Prom were certainly the quintessence of school affairs.

Every senior is anxiously awaiting the Senior Dinner-Dance. Ed is a member of the committee and if he has his way the seniors will be treated to the best meal that money and Ed's diplomatic ability can obtain.

All the faculty will agree to Ed's sterling integrity and trustworthiness for wasn't he appointed the custodian of Villanova's lucky sweater? Ed was true to this trust for he turned up at the game with the sweater tucked under his arm. He did not, however, wear the sweater for it was considered better that it (the sweater) should have a place of honor on the team's bench.

When Ed says his last farewell to Villanova and returns to the coal regions he will leave many memories and many friends behind. Those who find it necessary to visit the infirmary will miss the willing ministerings of Ed as the efficent doctor. Those negotiating for orchestras will sorely miss the diplomacy of this super-diplomat. The student council will miss his able directorship. The faculty will miss his helpfulness.

IT'S ALL OVER

SO far as you students are concerned the superb exhibition you were so fortunate in witnessing last Saturday afternoon was the last game you will be able to see this year. Now that the home season is over we feel that a word of congratulation is in order for the wonderful spirit you have evidenced during this past football campaign.

From the opening cheer of the P. M. C. game all through the season down to the last echo of the send-off last evening your spirit has been excellent. The very much improved cheering and singing of the college songs, while not yet just what it should be, was the best ever heard on the Villanova campus. Your one hundred percent backing of the team was just what was needed to send them out fighting for you so that they could bring you an undefeated record.

A special word of commendation is in order for Fedigan Hall, the first winner of the newly-presented Connelly Award for Pre-Temple game hall decorations. The spirit displayed by the Fediganites is worthy of special note and will go far to firmly establish the new tradition.

Possibly the best indication of spirit is the abandonment of the "laissez-faire," "Let the Frosh do it" attitude of the upper-classmen. For the first time in many years the three older classes have surpassed the first year men in displays of spirit. The cheer leaders have noticed that members of all classes responded to their efforts rather than just the members of the yearling class as has been the custom in the past. So again, Congratulations. May the fine spirit you have shown during the football season carry over into basketball and baseball. There will be cheering at basketball games. We know we can count on you for your support.

The greatest and noblest pleasure which men can have in this world is to discover new truths; and the next is to shake off old prejudices.

THANKSGIVING!

THE approaching Thanksgiving holiday brings into our daily life a note of joy and a note of sorrow.

We are thankful that the curse of economic depression has, to some measure, lifted from our country. We are thankful that although countries on all sides have gone Fascist or Communist, America is yet the bulwark of Democracy.

We are sorrowful that America is the member of a family of nations whose chief occupation these days is anarchic, international warfare. Everywhere brothers in Christ's Mystical Body are ripping out each other's vitals. Hatred, greed, revenge: that is the message that comes from other shores to mar our Thanksgiving observances.

The college youth of today—every one of you — are the potential cannon fodder of tomorrow. The time is ripe for another international war. Since 1917, the World has witnessed sporadic, localized wars. Now warfare is spreading. The United States is spending more this year on armaments than it ever spent before. The nations of Europe are spending on armaments in one year what they used up in the four years of the World War!

Has reason evaporated? Have human beings lost their humanity?

Must man eternally be offered up on the rotten altar of the war-god to satisfy the lust for blood and for money?

While youth in other lands offers up its spirit to the war-god, we here in America believe that it is far more noble to live for our country than it is to be murdered for our country. We believe, rashly or no, that a good Christian life is far more acceptable to God than a hand with the blood of Christ's brothers upon it. We believe in peace, not war; in love, not greed; in Christian living, not mass murder.

Thanksgiving to us can mean but one thing: thanksgiving to Almighty God that He has spared us from the war-madness, the war-sickness of the World. And as we thank Him for His sublime Goodness, let us resolve to dedicate ourselves to that cause which He sent His only Begotten Son to defend: to establish the Peace of Christ in the Reign of Christ.

That is what Thanksgiving means to us.

We hold that we are brothers of Christ, not mere cannon fodder! We are come to live, and to die for Truth. We have come to fight the world, the flesh, and the devil—not our brothers.

HAPPINESS

FRESHMEN — DID YOU SEE GOD TODAY? FRESHMEN — have you found the seclusion and the nearness to God in the chapel that some have found? Freshmen—heed those who have found solitude and joy in the presence of the Holy Sacrament.

Each day when work is about to begin and each night when work is finished you can find Him there waiting to see you, and hear your humble praise. The doors are always open, inviting all to enter, to ask aid for your troubled minds and to give thanks for life and peace. Take heed to our words when you pass these doors and find what we have found.

Go, seek the presence of the Son. There amid the murmuring of praise to God on high, sweet prayers which rise to heaven as incense, glorifying Him to Whom we owe all, you will find solitude and greater love for God.

The chapel doors are open every morning, inviting you to enter and witness the unbloody sacrifice of Calvary. Morning Mass is a wholesome habit and a worthy practice. Your proximity to God will earn you untold spiritual advantages and will bring happiness to your soul with Jesus living there.

ODDS and ENDS

By Tom O'Mahoney

WE knew it was true when we saw the Sunday morning papers, 33-0, Remember, Temple? As Joe Weber said, "Their band was good, anyway."

That gagster who kept nominating the Owls for the Rose Bowl annoyed even the Villanova fans. There is something that has been puzzling us for quite a while. Why is it that the synthetic alumni are more rabid than the real McCoy? Who was that football coach seen slinking out of town Saturday evening? And who killed Cock Robin?

While perusing the New York Times the other day, we came upon the following advertisment for an eating place in Princeton. It read, "When in Harvard for the Cornell game, eat at the Nassau Tavern." We can't figure it out, but perhaps—there is always the chance—some of our more educated readers can. If so, please let us know.

Our little Bird Tuesday dropped in to ask us if we had heard about the tenants of room 325 Fedigan. One is known at home by the interesting nom de guerre "Angel Face." Our Bird reveals that this gentleman has just received permission from the O & O to have a date while he is at school. Come, come. Pre-Meds must be more broad-minded. Look at Ed Doudican—well, that's enough. But we digress. The other occupant of the above-mentioned room, a senior Engineer, from which class nothing is a surprise, was actually seen smoking his first pipe. That is, he was smoking it until he went home for a week-end lately. When he returned, he sadly and silently handed over pipe and tobacco to his roommate mumbling something about his Large Moment not liking the odor of the burning weed. Our Bird thinks that something ought to bt done about it. "Women," he says, "have ruined many a Villanovan. Why not start a club for hen-pecked college men?" The idea appealed to us. Our roommate is the only one who has so far raised any objections to the plan. His statement is that such a state is enjoyable. Perhaps there is room for argument here. But the Martyrs of 325 certainly must lead a dog's life. Tsk, tsk, as this department's favorite critic, the is, too, folks,) "Pop" Moynihan would say. By the way, have you ever asked "The Dad" any questions about Lawrence?

HOW easy it is to be thankful, when we are on the winning side.

But, could we be as thankful, if something should turn the tide?

We must remember, that everything which goes up must come down.

And we are as uncertain of the future, as a king with his crown.

Let us then thank God, that for the present, we have more than our share.

And show our gratitude by facing every tomorrow with a thankful prayer.

Let us give thanks: that we of Villanova have so many more happy reflections, on this one of the greatest victory weeks in the history of our college — thanks which other colleges, less fortunate, will not be able to carry home.

—That after four years of dry, bitter defeats, our 150-pound team (pint and one-half) came through with a slashing exhibition of blocking, tackling and point scoring against their greatest rival, Pennsylvania. (Score, 20-0.)

—That a spirit of unselfish interest in fellow students prevails at Villanova, where men are always willing to give a word of encouragement, or a hearty handshake for a thing well-done, in any field.

—That as Catholic College men, we are given every opportunity to improve our religious welfare.

—That we are in college, while many more students equally as deserving, roam the streets in despair.

—That our varsity players crushed Temple University in a victory, which will live long in the memory of all Villanovans. . . . Surely we have material and spiritual cause for making this a real holiday.

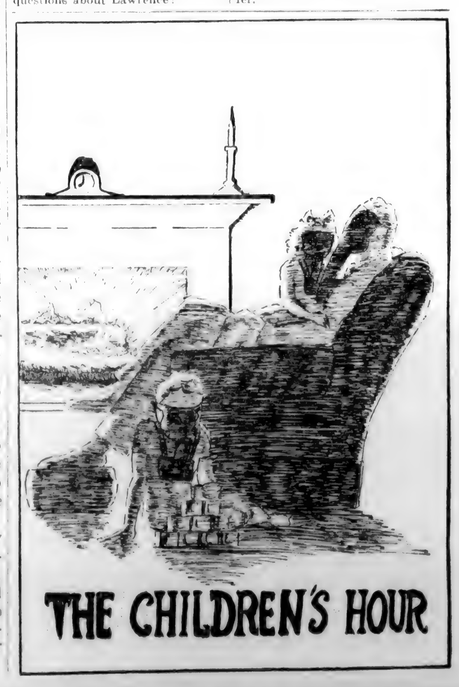
The American college system in almost all its phases was criticized by Dr. Hamilton Holt, president of Rollins College, in a recent address before education students at New York University.

He advocated "abolition of the recitation system," characterizing it as a "detective process" by which the student learns to be a "bluffer."



THE OBSERVER

SCENE: Basil, the Mad Russian, down in the Pie Shoppe. He is hopping around the shop, not noticing all the cuts are falling off the shelves. Under the mountain that is Basil's nose, is affixed with home paste a piece of string fuzzed up at the end. Basil thinks he has a moustache. Curious, some people.

"Vah! Hell Hitler. So vere are you going? I'll hit you in the haid."

Thus the linguistic acrobat, self-styled Mad Russian, continues to rave and rant, stomp and storm about.

Scene: Radnor High School. It is 1:30 P. M. The practice-teachers from Villanova are due to arrive.

Two students in the science classrooms: "I'll bet that Russian Prince is coming up today."

"Yea," says one student, "and I wonder where he got his education. One day he talks like a Harvard Professor, and the next day he sounds like a South Philadelphia politician. I wonder what he does with himself at night?"

Silence pours as the Mad Russian hops over the window sill and crashes to the floor.

"Good afternoon, dear children," thunders Professor Dowbrowoloski, Ph. D., M. A., B. S., Freshman, Knight of the Bath, and the Guardian of the Royal Meat Hook "So how iss things by yuy?"

So O'Mahoney has attacked us, has he? Well, what do we care. If that cheap plagiarist wants to garner cheap publicity by attacking the Observer, he can. As soon as his atrocious and nasty attack appeared in the last issue of THE VILLANOVAN, one of our fans wrote us:

"Don't worry about that cheap fellow, O'Mahoney. Tom O'Mahoney will soon be out of the way. Ask the Bryn Mawr Police and the Milk Man."

Our "Loyal Supporter of the Observer" enclosed a cheque for $10.00 to aid the Observer Defense Fund. We haven't dared to try cashing it. Maybe Tom O'Mahoney sent it!

Dear Mr. .....

In response to numerous pleas from your collegiate associates, we hereby extend to you an invitation to appear in our demonstration. You will represent what a person looks like before taking ourt treatments.

Please send us your best picture. We will print your picture in "The Ladies Home Journal" and "Vogue" magazines. It will be entitled: "Don't let this Happen To You (For God's Sake)!".

Send us a recording of your voice as we wish to use it as a "warning" call on a garbage boat.

Yours truly,

We of course suppressed the name of the party to whom the letter was addressed.

But that doesn't stop anyone's guessing.

MANY MANUSCRIPTS NOW DISPLAYED IN COLLEGE LIBRARY

Outstanding Works of Fourteenth and Fifteenth Centuries Included

By FRED WATERS

Many priceless manuscripts dating as far back as the fourteenth century are now on display in the College Library.

Notable among this collection is the work of an unknown fifteenth century scribe, "Historia Deorum et Herorum." Many who have heard much about "illuminated" manuscripts, but have never actually seen one, may now have that rare opportunity by paying a brief visit to the ante-room of the library, on the first floor of Austin Hall, during the ensuing week.

Illuminated Manuscripts

Illuminated manuscripts are the hand-inscribed works of ancient writers, chiefly Friars and Monks, that have been "lighted up" by using virgin gold and other clear, radiant colors in the decorations and capital letters. Probably the rarest and best example of "illuminated" works is a copy of the Gospels now in the British Museum, that was written entirely in gold.

In addition to gold, decorations are frequently found to contain as many as six or more colors, including green, violet, yellow, silver, black and red.

Many of these manuscripts were written on white vellum, made from the skin of very young animals, usually calf-skin. This vellum was so expensive, that in many cases sheets were cleaned of their original matter and used again. Those written on second hand vellum are called palimpsests. These latter are often of great value to archaeologists, as the ghost of the original characters lies under the new, so that by restoring the first writing scholars have sometimes discovered texts of great value.

Vellum Is Enduring

The outstanding value of vellum lies in the fact that it does not deteriorate; thus the pages of Historia Deorum et Herorum, although written at the time of Columbus, show practically no sign of decay.

In making up these pages into books, care was taken to place the sheets in such a way that hair-side faced hair-side, and flesh-side faced flesh-side, so that when the book was opened, both pages seen by the reader looked the same in texture,—either the yellow-hue of

SMILE, SUH! Now that Florenz Ziegfeld has been dead five years it appears that the beauts who once paraded in his shows aren't so anxious to be identified as "Ziegfeld girls." It makes them too old, too "dated" by past tense glories rather than present. This was amusingly emphasized over the radio recently when an orchestra leader intending to be complimentary introduced a girl as a Ziegfeld girl. Girl, who was among collegiates at the moment, stiffened, made very wary answers and at last blurted out, "Well, I'm not so old now, you know. I was only 15 when Ziegfeld hired me." We particularly enjoyed the scene showing four of the principal characters floating down the wild river reclining peacefully on a tree . . . which proves conclusively only Goldwyn can make a tree! Broadstreet is rapidly developing with two more Chinese restaurants, opening in the next few weeks—but ark our words in four or five years American food is bound to make a comeback.

It has been explained that there is no time for play in Hollywood as you must arise at six, be on the set at seven, etc. Of course we have seen some people in pictures lately who would have been better off if someone had stolen their alarm clocks, but that's beside the bed. Introducing

By HARRY McGLADE, JR.

PROMINENT resident of our verdant campus is Ed Shovelin, a gentleman well-known and well-liked by everyone of importance, and equally well-known by sight at least even to the insignificant frosh.

Shovelin was born at a very early age in St. Clair, Pa., and immediately began preparing himself for the station which he later attained: that of senior class president at St. Patrick's School in Pottsville. Having made no definite plans for the conquest of greater glories after his graduation, Ed suffered a severe relapse and awoke to find himself in Villanova, where he promptly recovered and set about the serious business of making for himself a name in the greatest of all great schools. Chairman of Student Council, member Vigilance Committee, member Sophomore Cotillion, committeeman for Junior Prom, member Senior Dinner-Dance Committee; all these titles soon became synonymous with the glorious name of Shovelin. What a man!

Usually seen on campus flanked by bodyguards Corkil and O'Brien, Ed has become an integral part of the Augustinian College, a landmark to be sorely missed after our tearful last farewells in June. We'll miss him fussing around school, but we'll probably hear of his progress in the halls of the great, and it's a cinch we'll see him around at the games and reunions for years to come, for Villanova's affection for Ed is not wholly unreciprocated.

If you would be a doer of things, if you would be famous and popular and versatile in the arts that count, if you would leave the memory of your name with us, O lowly freshman, have someone point out to you Ed Shovelin (If you didn't see him officiating at the Temple rally). Get one of his discarded ties, wear it, and try to emulate his example in every way possible. He is the type appreciated in Villanova.

Any of the students who attended the dances graced with Ed's efficient directorship will lift their voices in praise. The Sophomore Cotillion, two years ago, and last year's Junior Prom were certainly the quintessence of school affairs.

Every senior is anxiously awaiting the Senior Dinner-Dance. Ed is a member of the committee and if he has his way the seniors will be treated to the best meal that money and Ed's diplomatic ability can obtain.

All the faculty will agree to Ed's sterling integrity and trustworthiness for wasn't he appointed the custodian of Villanova's lucky sweater? Ed was true to this trust for he turned up at the game with the sweater tucked under his arm. He did not, however, wear the sweater for it was considered better that it (the sweater) should have a place of honor on the team's bench.

When Ed says his last farewell to Villanova and returns to the coal regions he will leave many memories and many friends behind. Those who find it necessary to visit the infirmary will miss the willing ministerings of Ed as the efficent doctor. Those negotiating for orchestras will sorely miss the diplomacy of this super-diplomat. The student council will miss his able directorship. The faculty will miss his helpfulness.

STUDY CLUB FORMS PLAN TO BROADCAST ON LOCAL STATIONS

Discussion Group Will Soon Present Timely Topics Over Air-Waves

At the last meeting of the Study Club of Villanova College, one of the greatest single enterprises ever undertaken by a group in Villanova College was put into motion. It is a series of papers and discussions that shall be broadcasted over one or more of the several broadcasting stations of Philadelphia.

Topic Is Important

The subject, "Rural Housing," which is being of immediate importance in the papers of date. In the President's message to Congress he stressed this measure as being one of the most important to be considered in this session. Magazines and newspapers have given a wealth of material to further interest to the subject.

Studying it from a Catholic viewpoint will relieve it of the somber realism that is put forth by other sources. Members of the Study Club are endeavoring in their papers to obtain and consider the immediate causes. By probing still further they intend to show how each citizen is effected by this problem.

Several Papers Assigned

The several papers have been assigned to the members of the Study Club are the following: The first paper in the series will be by Paul Jergens, "Prevalence of the Slums," and then in order as they appear; Joseph Bongiovanni, "Morality in Slums"; Thomas Delate, "Architecture to Be Used in the Housing Project"; Norman Kline, "Statistics in Raising Money for the Proposed Project"; John H. McDonell, "Unemployment Statistics"; John Harrington, "Location of the Project"; Murray Zealor, "Happy Home Life."

All papers tend to illustrate a new phase or idea in respect to the plan. The work will involve a great amount of research and demand study of the problems conditions now affronting the nation. Everything that is vital to the American people will be represented in this enterprise.

The work is under the careful guidance of Rev. Joseph J. Vrana, O. S. A., who has charge of the Study Club. Radio facilities are being obtained by Professor Anthony Frayne at WIP.

Luzzie Elected By Connecticut Club At Recent Meeting

Senior Pre-Med Acts as President For Year 1937-38

Election of officers of the Connecticut Club, one of the outstanding campus organizations of the college, took place last week.

Harry Luzzie, junior in the School of Science, was elected to the presidency of this organization. Assuming the office of vice president is Frank Pimpinella sophomore student in the Commerce and Finance Department. Andrew Anateruzo, sophomore in the Pre-Medical School, was chosen secretary. The new treasurer is Anthony Aleo, sophomore in the Technology School.

Possibilities of a dance and athletic team to represent the club were discussed at this meeting. At the request of Rev. Bernard M. Albers, O.S.A., vice president of the college, the club is working with the Alumni group of Connecticut. The Connecticut Club has included in its membership many outstanding athletes and believe they can beat any organization on the campus in athletic endeavors.

The next meeting of the club will take place the first Wednesday after the Thanksgiving Holidays. This will be an important gathering and all members are urged to be present as important matters will be discussed.

The contest for president was very close and Luzzie barely defeated Theodore Goumy, senior in the Business School.

All of the aforementioned winners have been active in extra-curricular activities during their stay on the campus. It is the belief of the club that under these officers the club will enjoy a very successful season.

will have to do better in the future if they want to be classified as bona fide Villanovans. The freshmen seem to have lost sight of the fact that they are just as much a part of the team as the next fellow.

The day students didn't show anything at all. To a casual observer the day students would seem as though they didn't even belong to the same school as the residents. It would seem as though they were content to let the residents have all the glory. The Day students apparently forgot that the man who showed the alumni the way, was once a day student himself. It wasn't fair to him.

ALUMNI APPOINTS FOUR COMMITTEES

Groups Will Study Actions of Other Graduate Groups

The Board of Governors of the Alumni Association of Villanova College met on Sunday afternoon, November 21, in the reception room of Mendel Hall. At the meeting the members discussed plans to stimulate the senior class to take greater interest in the alumni.

Special Committees Appointed

For this purpose several committees were appointed; one to make a study of the alumni financing, organization, publications and week-ends in other colleges. Another committee was appointed to make a study of the other activities in other colleges.

The Board of Governors is making arrangements for having the members of the senior class present at their Week-End dinner to be held the Saturday after graduation. The Board expects to have the officers of the class attend the final meetings in order to arouse greater interest among the students. In connection with the Week-End, the Board has petitioned the Board of Athletics to schedule a varsity baseball game on the Saturday of that week-end.

Plaque Will Be Presented

A plaque has been authorized to be awarded to the local alumni association with the highest percentage of paying members. This award will be for one year. Among the other business, there were reports from committees on the football dinner, class reunions, etc.

The members present were: J. Stanley Smith, Esq., '93, president; Matthew A. Lynch, '23, vice president; P. F. Banmiller, '35, secretary and treasurer; Rev. B. M. Albers, O. S. A., '19; Felix E. Maguire, '21; Dr. Michael P. Fogarty, '18; Dr. Edward J. Burke, '23; Cyril E. Dunn, '33; Louis P. Marechal, '35; James P. Leaming, '12; John P. Keffer, '25; Dr. William Mountford, '33, and Joseph Giblin, '27.

Old Man Winter Failed To Stop Cats, As Students Pay Tax For Seats

Nor Sleet, Nor Rain, Nor Snow Could Stop Wildcats; Everything Fine Save A. A. Deception Costs Rooters Extra

Of the 37,000 fans in Temple stadium last Saturday, how many actually saw the 'Cats razzle-dazzle to a 33-0 victory over the Owls? . . . Even Ole Man Winter with his sub-zero blasts couldn't freeze the spirit(s) of the spectators . . . the end zone behind the west goal stripe was a distiller's graveyard . . . and then there was the pie-eyed rooter who insisted on giving the cheer leaders a hand . . . One couldn't help sympathizing with the men in blue and white . . . they were COLD.

Entirely unconscious of the tumult in the stands two teams played the game of football . . . well, one at least . . . The teams were just beginning . . . while the traditional Wildcat-Owl battle was in full sway in the stands . . . occasionally someone gazed toward the gridiron.

On to Jersey

On the field . . . the "Rabbitt" hopped. Again the opposition couldn't stop Stopper . . . nor did "Sockin'" John withdraw that punch . . . Mazzei's punt returns were a maze to the bewildered Owls . . . and what would Alex Bell have done to that touchdown pass with both eyes open? . . . Rogers gathered enough momentum on that 68-yard jaunt to carry him clear to Jersey.

In the press box and atop . . . newsreel cameras, photographers, freezing while the scribes enjoyed the warmth of the press box . . . in fact, they were packed in like sardines, very live sardines . . . what would that Pitt scout be doing as the 'Cats rampaged? . . . and HOW do you pronounce Harry Mazzei's name? . . . the press roof blew off as Big Bill Rogers broke all sprint records in the last quarter . . . well, the boys needed a laugh.

Temple Stands Dark

On the Temple side . . . things looked black on the North stands . . . a bit like a funeral, in fact . . . well, the Temple Lins were gentlemen . . . they didn't make any unnecessary noises . . . And Pop Warner . . . felt a bit sorry for you, Glenn . . . better concentrate on a bit of football next year, and leave the propaganda to the press, 'cause the underdog certainly went under . . . and what brand do you smoke Pop? . . . they'd have to be soothing to the nerves.

The Temple band looked good . . . which is more than can be said of the boys on the field . . . Our band did themselves right well also . . . too bad someone sold the section reserved for them. . . perhaps that's why they couldn't be heard during the game . . . At the half . . . Drum Major Eldracher, minus topper, did some very fine strutting for the Blue . . . and there was the time trumpeter McGlade had to remind a sports scribe to hurry with his interview with the Clipper . . . the journalist was so engrossed with the gridiron doin's that he had forgotten his duty . . . who was the lad who asked what happened after the third touchdown?

Temple Showed Spirit

Despite their ill-fortune, the Cherry and White lads showed a fine spirit . . . field play was sharp, and clean . . . as always. Villanova rooters should be a bit more considerate of Temple followers hereafter . . . the Broadstreeters gave the Wildcats a mid-city send-off yesterday and wished them luck in the Loyola venture . . . you've got something there, Temple . . . hold on to it.

Can the Athletic Department explain the added tax to students in the NH section? . . . some of the lads were slightly embarrassed . . . and so were the students (Villanova?) with them. We still can't discover what those two fans would have wanted with the Owls atop the stadium.

After the game . . . and there were a few splinters left.

College Debaters Meet Three Rivals

seph MacNamara took the affirmitive side of the question at home. There was no decision.

The next night Robert Wilderotter, John J. Harrington, and Joseph N. Bongiovanni went over to Rosemont and debated on the negative side of compulsory arbitration. The three smart girls who were awarded the decision by Rev. John Sparrow, O. S. A., in a critical judgment are the Misses Queeney, Halliwell, and Di Silvestra. In announcing the decision Fr. Sparrow said he was awarding it on the basis of Rosemont's clear-cut presentation. He praised the three sophomores from Villanova for their arguments and predicted great things for them.

The next afternoon, Wednesday, November 17, Thomas Delate and Pershing Calabro argued on the affirmitive side of the neutrality question against Swarthmore. The debate was sponsored by the Marcus Hook Junior Century Club.

In "Legends Aures," a fifteenth century manuscript written by Friar James de Voragine, as in most other works, the freehand writing is guided by faint lines, hardly noticeable at first glance. These lines are guided by regularly spaced prickings along the margin, although sometimes down the middle of the page. These prickings are very difficult to detect in most cases.

Vest-Pocket Edition

Among other works on display is a minature manuscript of the fourteenth century, purportedly containing many minor works of Saint Augustine, but of which several are not genuine. This book is a Medieval example of our modern 'vest-pocket" editions, measuring about five inches by three in its over-all size. Its binding is made of beautiful inlaid leather, decorated with gold, red and blue. This binding was probably made in the seventeenth century.

PROFESSOR GIVES CHEMICAL ADDRESS TO ENGINEER GROUP

William Haltenberger Describes Proposed Chemistry Laboratory in Mendel Hall

Prof. William Haltenberger, most recent addition to the faculty in the School of Engineering, yesterday delivered the second in a series of faculty presented papers at the regular bi-weekly meeting of the Chemical Society.

The subject of Prof. Haltenberger's address was the construction of a new chemical engineering laboratory to be located in the basement of Mendel Hall. The location of the laboratory, incidentally, leaves good possibilities of enlargement in the future.

For the most part of the talk, however, Mr. Haltenberger treated of modern tendencies in chemical technology in contrast to those of past years.

At the conclusion of this interesting discussion, Joseph Beittenmiller, society president, thanked Prof. Haltenberger and then announced that dues for entertainment purposes may now be paid to the society treasurer.

Dr. Edward L. Haenisch, moderator, brought the meeting to an end with the announcement that there will be a guest speaker in the near future—probably on Tuesday evening, December 8.

Blue Eleven Routs Temple

Villanova One-Fifties Crush Penn Squad, 20-0

Lightweights Flash Power In First League Triumph

Kerrigan, McGurk and Cousart Cross Visitors' Goal Line in First Half; Victors Present Well-Balanced Offensive and Defensive Play

WIN LIFTS VILLANOVANS FROM CELLAR

Displaying a varied attack combining passes and long gains along the ground, and a stone-wall lefensive play, Villanova's 150-pound team won its first game in three years and climbed out of the Intercollegiate League cellar by routing Penn's lightweights by a 20-0 count last Friday in the Main Line Stadium.

All Scores in First Half

The Bangert Brigade confined its scoring activities to the first half, tallying twice in the initial quarter and once in the second. Kerrigan, Cousart and McGurk accounted for the Blue tallies.

Captain Kerrigan, playing his last game for the lights, scored late in the first canto, dashing 38 yards behind perfect interference to give the Little 'Cats their first score of the afternoon. Not a hand was laid upon Captain Paul as he crashed off tackle and rushed the remaining distance to the goal line.

Passing featured the second score as the Blue rushed from deep in its own territory to the Penn 40. Don McGurk trotted up to the Quaker ten as Frankie Lombardo faded back and tossed a perfect strike to him. McGurk immediately took the ball over for the second counter of the game. Lombardo further added to his fine work of the afternoon by converting the extra point.

Cousart Tallies

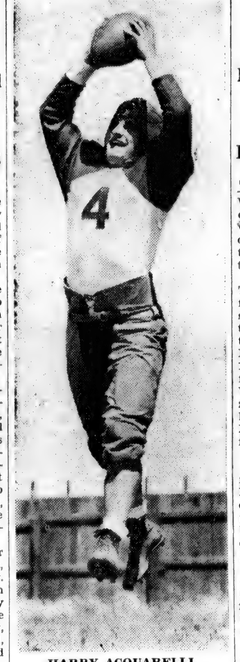
Shorty after the second tally, the period ended and within a few plays after the start of the second stanza "Lefty" Cousart crashed off tackle from the six to finish the day's scoring. Lombardo again converted.

After the third touchdown by the Wildcats, play resolved itself into a see-saw duel with the Main Liners keeping the ball in Quaker territory. Penn made one first down on a pass, but were unable to penetrate the impregnable forward wall of the Blues.

Three seniors finished their careers as members of the lightweight eleven. Joe Alessandroni, Bert Cousart and Captain Paul Kerrigan sang their swan songs against the Penn club, Alessandroni completed three years of consistent line play, alternating at center and guard. The other two veterans held down backfield posts, with Cousart supplying some fine lefthanded passing from the halfback positions.

Assisting these three in their final game were Brad McManus, Ed Hennessy and Harold Murphy. Henessy and McManus starred on several long runs, while Murphy filled Kerrigan's shoes in a capable manner. On the line, Joe Murphy, tackle, and Evan Quinn, guard, showed up well on the offense and defense.

Lion Threat



HARRY ACQUARELLI, sensational punt returner, whom the Wildcats will have to watch closely Sunday.

MELLUS RECEIVES PLAQUE OF MERIT

Awarded Trophy Emblematic of Most Valuable Player at Lions' Club

Reward for three years of outstanding play was received by John Mellus, stellar senior tackle, yesterday when he was presented with the plaque emblematic of Villanova's most valuable player by Dr. Robire McClenahan president of the Lions Club of Upper Darby. The presentation was made at Henri's, site of the annual grid luncheon.

Voted Most Valuable

Mellus, voted the most valuable by his teammates early yesterday, climaxed three years of sensational ball playing by giving his usual fine performance against Temple Saturday, for which game his teammates selected him captain. A candidate for All-America honors, he teamed with Johnny Wysocki to spill the opposition plays aimed at his side of the line. A quiet, unassuming lad, he has gained the respect and friendship of his fel-

Wildcats bolstered afid held for downs on the 28 yard line. That was the last display of offensive displayed by the Broad Streeters in the game. Although Chris Pappas tried valiantly to equalize the fray.

The Wildcats just about passed Temple crazy, with their four perfect touchdown heaves. The first score came late in the second canto when Art Raimo galloped from the Temple 43 to the 11 yard line. Here Andy Stopper faded to the 15 yard stripe, and heaved a perfect strike to All-America Johnny Wysocki, standing alone in the end zone. It was the most perfect exhibition of blocking ever witnessed. Not a soul was in position to interfere with the catch.

Stoviak Intercepts

Ray Stoviak's intercepted pass from Pappas intended for Jim Mooney, set the stage for the second touchdown. A few plays later, pass tosser Stopper flipped to Alex Bell in the end zone for the second tally. Mellus booted the extra point.

The other scores came in the second half with Stopper and Jack Earle taking perfect picture passes from "Lefty" Stoviak and Buzz Howlett respectively, in the third and fourth periods.

The crowning point of the fracas came late in the final quarter, when Bill Rogers, veteran 225 pound tackle intercepted a pass and thundered down the field for a 68 yard touchdown run.

As far as heroes in the fray, Villanova had plenty of those, for every man who played in the game accredited himself well. For the first time this season, Villanova played its best game.

Wysocki Clinches All-American

The safety play of Harry Mazzei, whose dare devil run back of punts placed the ball in scoring position on more than one occasion, and the savage end plays of sophomore Walt Nowak were most satisfying. As for Johnny Wysocki, well he just about clinched an All-American berth with his all around work.

Captain Johnny Mellus, Joe Missar, and Jordan Olivar, played the greatest games of their three year careers at Villanova. Temple could do nothing with this trio, who repulsed nearly every attack sent their way.

It was the most fitting way for the 13 seniors to wind up their collegiate career against the Temple Owl. Revenge was sweet.

As for the Templars, they were the scrappiest team to face the locals this season. The Owls never gave up. From the early moments of the second half, with two touchdowns against them, they came back with a barrage of passes, thrown from all sections of the playing area. Some thirty were thrown but only four registered.

Tom Lieb's Lions Out To Snap Cats Victory Streak In Olympic Stadium

Jack Lyons, Sophomore Triple-Threat Fullback, Again Ready After Early Season Injury; Center Trio of Scott, Harmell and Peterlin Strong

By JOSEPH PAGANO

Maybe Villanova College's football team will not be represented in the Rose Bowl classic this New Year's day, but West Coast football fans will have a chance to feast their eyes on one of the best teams in the country. "Clipper" Smith invades familiar territory with his roaring Wildcats to engage the Loyola Lions in an intersectional tilt this Saturday in Los Angeles' Olympic Stadium.

Although Loyola has won only three games of the nine played this season, a worthy account of themselves has been given in each contest. Dropping five games by a single touchdown to teams of such caliber as St. Mary's and Santa Clara the Lions have shown considerable power by out-statisticing both elevens.

Lost Tough One To Baylor

After losing to a strong Baylor team last Saturday the Lions will be out to avenge that defeat and enhance their average by knocking off the undefeated Wildcats. It is for this reason that the Blue will have to be at its best to maintain its prestige and all precautions must be exercised to win this all-important fray.

Injuries and bad breaks of the game can be attributed as the cause of their poor showing thus far this season. However, in spite of these numerous obstacles, Tom Lieb, Loyolan head-coach, has sent out a fighting ball club every week and in more than one fracas a break of the game has decided victory for their opponents.

A decided improvement in the Loyola offense has been noticed in their recent games in which Jack Lyons, triple threat sophomorefullback, has been able to work at his full capacity. Lyons, injured prior to the Centenary game, is considered one of the best passers on the coast and it has been his accurate tosses that has accounted for "Lion"

Thirteen Seniors End Grid Careers At Final Gun of Sunday's Contest

Guards, Tackles, Center and Backfield Men Sing Swan Song in California, Leaving Clipper With Tremendous Task

By TOM O'MAHONEY

When the California sun sets over Del Rey next Sunday night, 13 Villanova seniors will have ended their football careers. The team which will start against Loyola in the huge Olympic Stadium in Los Angeles will be a far cry from the one which will play the first game of the 1938 season. Then Clipper Smith must replace three tackles, three guards, one center, one end, two halfbacks, two fullbacks and one quarterback. Outside of that, the Wildcat mentor has nothing on his mind. Who said, "Nice work if you can get it?"

Lose Tackles

At the tackles, 'Cat rooters will miss that dynamic pair, Johnny Mellus and Jordan Olivar, who have been responsible for more idleness among opposing backs than any other single factor. Mellus, who has blocked more punts than enemy kickers like to think about, will be sorely missed, as will Olivar, who, in addition to playing a mean tackle, called signals in almost every game. Pat Marquette, burly reserve who never stopped trying though he never could quite make the starting eleven, is the third tackle to leave the Main Line campus. At end, Clipper loses Alex Bell, one of the steadiest players ever to don the Blue. An all-around ball player, he is one of the best punters on the squad. Alex scored the second touchdown against Temple Saturday, and will be a threat to the Lions this week.

Val Rizzo, the hard luck man of the season, had the misfortune of breaking his ankle in Fall practice, and has seen no action this year.

Mendel Commuters Continue Victory Streak

Overcome Alumni Quintet In Fast Overtime Battle

Mendel Residents Nearly Upset Fedigan in Two Extra Periods; Commerce and Finance Day-Hops Continue Losing Streak, Dropping Pair

KEATING REMAINS IN SCORING LEAD

By BILL TOY

With their characteristic good play on both offense and defense the Mendel Commuters continued on their victory-strewn path by vanquishing the basketeers from Alumni in a hard-fought overtime battle. After finishing the regulation periods in a stalemate the Day Hops emerged victorious when they caged a double-decker in the extra session. This is the only undefeated club in the league and is riding high to a championship. They have won seven consecutive tussles while they have yet to drop their initial argument. Pacing the victors in the scoring column were Beittenmiller and Thorne with 6 points apiece.

Skytoppers Threaten

In the other tilt of Tuesday eve, the hapless Mendel Residents nearly gained their initial victory when they forced the Gigolos from Fedigan into two extra periods before conceeding victory. The Residents were paced by Sceiba who amassed 12 points while the victors were led by Totin who rang up five double-deckers.

As of yore the Commerce and Finance commuters are being shellacked by the other clubs. After a slight surprise when they won two games, the business men have fallen back into their usual ways. On Tuesday afternoon they were pounced upon by the Austinites and walloped to the tune of 29 to 16. Putting every man available into the fracas, the C. & F. contingent was unable to stop the charging hordes from Austin. Leading in the scoring were Sandor and Connors who garnered nine markers each.

Gigolos Trounce C. & F.

Following their hard-earned win over the Mendel Residents, Fedigan trounced the C. & F. Day Hops by the score of 30 to 20. Starring in this tussle for the victors were Totin and Goumy who amassed a total of 23 of their teams 30 points between them. It is becoming customary to concede the opposition a victory when the business men play.

The league-leading Mendel Day Hops again showed their dominant spirit when they beat their brother Mendelites in a thrill-studded battle to the tune of a 34 to 21. A good offense featured the league leaders' game, while an unusually good defense was shown by the usually weak Resident squad. Mainly through the efforts of Keating who scored 14 points, the Day Hops emerged victorious.

In the final game of the week Austin and Alumni Halls staged a nip-and-tuck battle with the Austinites finishing on the long end of a 30-27 count. Good team play featured this game in which passing was an integral part. The Austin Hall representatives are in this tournament and are making themselves known. At present they are lodged in the third position.

No change was made in the standing of the teams by last week's games. The favored clubs all ran true to form, and, except for some close calls, all three of the leading teams won two frays apiece. Mendel's Day Students are nicely lodged in first place with seven wins and no defeats while the Gigolos from Fedigan have only one setback to blemish their record.

In the individual scoring race Keating further strengthened his year, Joe Missar and Bill Rogers, also sing their swan song Sunday. Bill essayed the hero's role in the Temple game under conditions somewhat like Rizzo's famed run, but Bill was credited with the six-pointer, result of a 68-yard run on an intercepted pass. Missar hasn't been scoring this year, but if you need proof of his ability at guard, take a run up to N. Broad St. and ask Mr. Chris Pappas. Missar, a Philadelphia boy, played a great game in his last appearance at home, as he wrecked the Warner attack neatly, rushing in and laying violent hands upon the fullback before he could start those complicated spinners and reverses so typical of the double wing offense.

John McKenna, who has shown himself to be one of the greatest centers in Villanova history, also departs this June. A capable pivot man, he is rarely fooled on the defense, and opens sweet holes on the offense. Together with Art Raimo, he backs up a line like a wild bull, smashing through interference and reaching the ball carrier with spine-shocking tackles.

Stopper and Stoviak Leave

In the backfield, Andy Stopper, triple threat left half and Ray Stoviak, equally versatile right half, make their departure. In this pair the Wildcats had an unusual backfield duo. Stopper passes right handed and kicks from the same side. Stoviak passes and kicks from the port side, with equal accuracy. This combination is especially effective in a Notre Dame offense, as plays are not restricted to one side of the line, as they might be with a man who can run best to one side, and whose passes can be more frequently predicted by the opponents. Whichever way the backfield shifts, the tailback is bound to be one who can run, pass and kick to perfection. And that, obviously, is an advantage that will be hard to lose.

At quarterback another hard luck player receives his sheepskin and departs to play a far more important game than football. Franny Nye, hurt since the P. M. C. game, is called by his teammates the brainiest quarterback in the country.

Two fullbacks leave the campus next Spring—and what fullbacks. Artie Raimo, 158 pounds of TNT, and Jack Earle, a fast, smashing line bucker, will close their college careers in Los Angeles Sunday. Raimo was unanimously declared the reason for the Owls stunning defeat last week, according to the Temple players and coaches. Every time he took the ball he left a wake of Cherry jerseyed players on the greensward behind him. And Earle is not far behind as an offensive player, although the "Jeep" is far his superior on defense. To Earle went the honor of scoring the fourth touchdown on a pass from "Buzz" Howlett in the last quarter of the Temple fray. A fast back, hard to catch in the open, he played great football for the 'Cats this year.

VICTORIES over Temple and Penn on the gridiron made the week-end sweet for the Villanova football fan. Clipper Smith's 1937 edition of the Wildcats displayed its best form of the year to trounce the rather outclassed Owl eleven. Blocking and tackling as produced by the Main Liners was a delight to watch. All the boys did well and the result was most pleasing to the Wildcat fan.

—V—

There was only one thing wrong with Don Bangert's one-fifties winning, and that is they took the wrong time to do it. Their stirring victory has been more or less completely overshadowed by the varsity triumph over the Owls. We weren't able to see the two home games in their entirety, but the half of the Penn game that we did see certainly opened our yes. The running and choice of plays was equal to a lot of the work that the varsity has been turning out. We are assured that with the exception of the Rutgers game, the style and brand of play has been equally as good as the first of the Penn contest. The reason for the losses of the other games was due in no small part to the breaks going the wrong way, and the fact that the boys tired in the final minutes. Congratulations for a good game and for good trying throughout the season.

Short Notes on sports: Andy Kerr missed up on a few things picking his All-Eastern eleven . . . Anyone who ignores Wysocki, Mellus, Olivar and Stopper Stoviak, not to mention a few others on the Wildcat squad, is definitely remiss in his selection . . . Johnny Wysocki took the first step towards national honors by making the first team of Ed Thorgersen's Fox-Movietone All-American eleven . . . The Philly Record has us in line for the Rose Bowl, but the boys will have to give Loyola a very severe drubbing even to be considered for the flower festival grid contest . . . In the Sportlight

THIS week we present that human dynamo, Villanova's "picture runner," the best pint-sized fullback in the East, the man who runs so fast he breaks out of his shoes, the smashing line backer, the backfield jack of all trades, Villanova's flying "Jeep," all together on the person of one Arthur Francis Raimo, the "Clipper's" man of destiny.

Lil' Arthur is rounding out his third year as Villanova's fullback, and his career has been as spectacular as any in the Wildcat's gridiron history. In the first two varsity games he played he scored four touchdowns, twice traveling over 70 yards to register. On an afternoon in early October, 1935, he ran wild against hapless Ursinus to count thrice.

Artie Breaks Out

But the "Jeep's" fireworks for that season were just beginning. It is Raimo's performance on November 22 of that year that lingers longest in the memory of the Villanova rooters. That was the day the Cats beat a highly favored Temple eleven. That was the day Artie scampered 66 yards through the eleven Templers to start them on their downfall. That touchdown dash will always be remembered as long as Villanova plays football as the Villanova's Picture Play, starring Arthur Raimo.

Climax runner Raimo was born on April 24, 1916, in East Boston, which classes him as a true Beaneater. At the age of 7, Art moved to Everett, Mass., a suburb of Boston, and has lived there since. Everett High School was our hero's first Alma Mater. And at this institution of learning he confined his athletic endeavors to the last two years.

Even in his high school days Art used the field of sport to apply that famous axiom, "Variety is the spice of life." He engaged in only two sports, but in those two he did everything humanly possible. As a junior he was a regular end on the football team and was a trackman. His versatility showed up on the track and field. He specialized in the high and low hurdles, and as a sideline ran the dashes, threw the shot, high jumped and broad jumped. Not so bad! !

Plays Everywhere

In his senior year at Everett Art was moved over to the fullback position. At least that was his normal position, but he was liable to be seen at almost any post. He waited until the Thanksgiving game of that year to pull off his prize work. In that game he started to Villanova, and when I got the chance from "Doc" Jacobs, I grabbed it." "Doc" came up to see Art in the Summer of 1394 and told him that he (Raimo) had his (Jacobs) O. K., but he'd have to wait for Stuhlie's comment. Harry also looked Art over, but gave him a non-committal answer. Art then was set to enter Boston College, when two weeks before B. C. was to open, he got the call from Mr. Stuhldreher and do n he came to the Main Line

Also A Boxer

As a frosh Art was an outstanding boxer. He fought in the 155 and 165 pound class and lost but one fight. His most decisive triumph was a T. K. O. of Don Keyser of Western Maryland. Keyser later in the year went to the semi-finals of the Intercollegiates.

During the next three years Art has held himself down to playing football, and he has done one swell job. He is a student in the School of Education and is looking forward to a coaching job.

Meanwhile he wants to wind up the season in a blaze of glory. And it would be a fitting climax to a spectacular career if Art were to have an "on" day and run wild against the Loyola club on Saturday.

hold on first place by adding 14 markers to his total. McGurk, however, has fallen from second position into fourth. Thorne and Beittenmiller are lodged in second and third place respectively. All three of the leading scorers are from the league-leading Mendel Day Hop squad. This shows how the train-and-trolley boys are dominating matters in the matter of leading things.

With the race rounding into the home stretch, it has developed into a two team sprint with the Mendel Day Hops and the Fedigan Gigolos battling it out. Mendel still has to play both Austin and Fedigan,

RIDER ENCOUNTERS 'CATS NEXT FRIDAY

Next Friday evening December 3, the Villanova basketball team opens its 1937-38 campaign in the Villanova Field House with the speedy Rider College quintet of Trenton furnishing the opposition. Then before Christmas vacation the Cat five swings up into New England on their annual trip to those parts. Springfield College is the major opponent on this tour.

Al Severance's charges are rounding into satisfactory shape after a rather listless start. When the practice drills were inaugurated a few weeks ago the frosh basketeers drubbed their big brothers with regularity. But that is definitely a thing of the past. The varsity men have been coming along, and they have gotten into the habit of shellacking the freshman upstarts.

"Duke" Duzminski and Bill Sinnott, a pair of sophs, have been outstanding in the recent drills. The "Duke" has attracted attention with his stellar offensive game and his expert ball handling. Sinnott, on the other hand, has shown himself to be a first class defense man and has been responsible for the thwarting of many a frosh sortie.

tallies in the Centenary and Baylor games.

Rounding out the backfield for the Lieb men are Harry Acquarelli, most consistent ball carrier and very adept in running back punts, three year veteran in the left half position. In Max La Martina, a sophomore right half, Tom Lieb has a very dependable blocking back and a boy who can tote the mail when called on. In recent games and scrimmages Max has proved to be elusive and shifty beyond the scrimmage line.

Jim Rinaldi, a very heady field general and a three year veteran, will probably start against the 'Cats. However, because of a knee injury Tom Lieb may have to rely upon Al De Gaetano, a sophomore, who has improved very rapidly in engineering the Lion offense since recently replacing the injured Rinaldi in the Loyola line-up.

Valuable reserve backs for the "Lions" are Tony "Scooter" DeLellis, sophomore flash, Hank Sartoris, fullback veteran for three years, and Armando Cisneros, a promising sophomore cavorting at left halfback. A back injury has put Frank Lukowsky, spark plug of the Loyola backfield, on the shelf for the rest of the season.

Stubborn Forward Wall

Loyola is claimed to have a stubborn forward line and may present itself as an impregnable obstacle to the running plays of the Blue team. The center of the line will be exceptionally strong inasmuch as veterans of three years experience will hold down the guard and center positions.

low players by his earnestness and reliability under fire both on and off the field of battle.

This award to the most valuable player was inaugurated last year by the Upper Darby organization. Artie "Rabbit" Raimo won the prize, a silver plaque mounted on a walnut base. This year's trophy is somewhat similar in nature, and its possessor can well be proud of it Dr. McClenahan commended Mellus on his fine play throughout his collegiate career and expressed the hope that he would be successful in future life as on the gridiron.

Among the speakers for the occasion were many notables including the Wildcat coach, "Clipper" Smith, who congratulated the team on its fine game against Temple last Saturday, and expressed the hope that it would continue the good work next Sunday.

Songs by the Lions glee club enhanced the quality of a highly entertaining and varied program.

HERE and THERE

By Tom Carbine

POP WARNER shouldn't feel too bad about last Saturday afternoon for after all he was right about one thing: His team was the underdog just as he insisted all along. As it was mentioned beforehand, all the publicity handed out by Temple prior to game praising Villanova to the skies, was meant to have a psychological reaction on the Wildcats. This, plus the fact that thereby Temple was then made the underdog was supposed to harvest a victory for the Owls. However, the psychology must have backfired or else the Owls themselves became too overconfident that they, as the underdog, would turn the trick. In any event the trimming that the Warnermen took was a conclusive indication of Villanova class and if there are still some die-hards that think Pennsylvania could do better, we're sure the game could be arranged.

It does seem a shame, though, that Villanova should be located near Philadelphia on its final arrival in top ranks of National football. The sport pages of Philadelphia papers have treated the Wildcats better lately than at any other time, but just when we need all the publicity that we can get, fate seems to be against us. Who of you think that Villanova will rate more than a scant column a day on its trip West while Penn plays Cornell, and Army plays Navy in "Billy" Penn's city. These local events are going to hold everyone's attention, anyway, and this, plus the fact that Villanova is usually hardly noticed by a University of Pennsylvania minded city, will be all the more reason why the Blue's one big chance to cash in will probably go for naught.

Appreciated most by Villanova rooters was the gentleman in the stands who sounded "Taps" on his bugle each time the Wildcats made a touchdown. There was the big Irishman too who pulled his derby down over his ears and in the proper dialect remarked. "Oi, Oi, Oi, Wat's the matter wit Tample? They let Villanova thrown the ball around like han heppie."

Even though the game turned into a display of "Clipper" Smith's fine foobail players during the second half, the students of Villanova didn't lose interest. Not only were they interested in seeing the score piled higher and higher, but also they were enjoying the experience of having the feeling that they were at a football game. After those colorless contests at Shibe Park with a baseball diamond staring us in the face and a green fence and a non too inspiring view of Philadelphia's sky line across the playing field, it was really a treat to feel that there were some rooters for the other team. No matter how much in the effort, it isn't possible to instill football color into a baseball park.

It was really a large week-end for Villanova College. Two overwhelming victories over two of Villanova's deadliest rivals. Upon the 33-0 victory over Temple, much has been written, but of the 20-0 victory of the lightweights over Penn not enough can be said.

Four long years is the lapsed time between the two consecutive wins by the 150-pound football team. Penn was the victim just that number of years ago when the "dollah an' a half" boys won their first game. Since that time they have occupied the cellar of the league. Thus, not only did they win their first game in four years, but also, the lightweights left the cellar position for the first time since they were admitted to the league. The happiest man on the squad was Captain Paul Kerrigan. Everyone knows what a grand sportsman Paul is and how sincere he was in his effort to make the 150's worthy of campus recognition. His hard playing and gentlemanliness have made him a top-notch representative of the Villanova spirit and he has host of admirers among the men of the other league teams. So for Paul, especially, we're happy that his team finally came through so convincingly.

Don Bangert also deserves a portion of the praise. Only a sophofore student, Bangert took a bunch of green boys wo were more willing than able and whipped them into a team that could win. With men dropping out week by week due to injuries and various reasons, Bangert did well in keeping alive the spirit of his men when they were the goats of the campus.

ORGANIC CHEMISTRY CALLED DIFFICULT

College Students Vote Science as Most Impossible of Topics

What is the most difficult college subject?

Organic chemistry.

This is revealed in a study made by the Bureau of Educational Surveys, New York City.

The Bureau found that the use of college outlines and other supplementary aids to study was in direct proportion to difficulty in the subject experienced by the student, and that the number of students in organic chemistry using college outlines far exceeded that of any other course.

According to the study, science courses as a group are a major source of difficulty, with history, particularly ancient, medieval and European not far behind. Study of Shakespeare's plays rates "hardest" of the English literature courses.

The subjects most baffling to students, in order of their difficulty, as revealed by the survey, are: Organic chemistry, statistics, physics, general psychology, inorganic chemistry, principles of economics, political science, general biology, history of the middle ages, history of Europe, American government and English literature.

Students questioned during the study stated that the college outlines simplified their work by giving them a picture of the course as a whole in advance of the field to be covered and were especially valuable for review purposes. Faculty members, while generally opposed to their use for cramming for exams, found them useful as manuals around which to build lectures and class discussions and in encouraging students to do supplementary reading.

Enough," will be handled by Bradley McManus, sophomore Commerce and Finance student.

This dramatic program is purely a student venture in every phase of production; the casting, directing, stage mechanics, advertising and promotion is left to the initiative of the directors and their associates on the committee.

Reports emanating from rehearsal observation indicate a bumper crop of newly-discovered talent that will keep the "old timers" alert. Tonight's program will form the trials from which the cast will be selected for the Belle Masque dramatic presentation this Spring.

Led By Directors

The committee headed by Barrett is comprised of the directors together with Vincent LaBrasca, business manager, William Bailey, publicity manager, James Lyons, Joseph Higgins, George Oesterle, James McAndrew, Jacob Jolly, Thomas Carbine, and Charles Cooke.

Students of Rosemont, Immaculata, and Mt. St. Joseph's Colleges received special invitations to attend the dramatic presentations in the college gymnasium. All Villanova students and their friends are invited to the production.

The bargain admission fee of 25 cents is a surprise in view of the extensive program planned by the dramatic society. Exceptional talent, prevalent at last year's production of the war drama, "Journey's End," is expected to be uncovered among the Belle Masque cast featured in tonight's entertainment.

The cast for the plays, previously announced in the November 9 issue of the VILLANOVAN, includes Edward Arnade, Benjamin Pawlowski, Italo deBartolomesis, and William Garrity, featured in "Four on a Heath." The cast of "The Other Side" is comprised of William Neel, Joseph Alessandroni, John Wachter, and Kenneth Gallagher. "A Message From Khufu" will be supported by Donald Bangert, Robert O'Brien, Charles Roche, and Robert Wilderotter. James Hanley, Paul Kerrigan, Donald McGurk and George Haggerty will be in the cast of the production of "Fair Enough."

ALUMNI TICKETS HERE

On Thursday evening, December 7, 1937, the Alumni will present their annual reunion and football dinner in honor of the team.

The sale of tickets have been so limited that the Registrar's office is the only place that they may be purchased. The price of the tickets are two dollars and fifty cents per plate.

This will be the 16th annual football dinner given by the Villanova Club of Philadelphia. The meeting will begin at seven o'clock in the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel.

BODY TEMPERATURE MAY BE WAR CAUSE

Cincinnati University Professor Blames Heat for Every Major Conflict

A professor of experimental medicine at the University of Cincinnati has a new theory for the cause of war. He is Dr. Clarence A. Mills, who has made an intensive study of the effect of weather on military forces and movements.

Dr. Mills contends that the ease or difficulty by which body heat may be thrown off dominates "the entire existence level of man." He points out that in areas of moderate temperature, the body can more easily dissipate the heat it generates, thus stimulating bodily functions and increasing energy.

In hotter climates, where the warm moisture in the air is high, the body finds difficulty in throwing off its heat, resulting in a lowered vitality.

If 1917 had not been an unusually cool year in America, the United States might never have entered the World War. And if the period from July, 1917, to the middle of 1918 had not been unusually warm in Austria and Germany, the Kaiser's side might have won the war.

Dr. Mills argues that the disregard or ignorance of these facts in the movement of troops has played an important part in determining the world's history.

CATHOLIC MAGAZINE ANNOUNCES PLANS FOR POVERTY DANCE

'Christian Front' to Stage Affair January 15 at Rosemont College

O'LOUGHLIN APPOINTED TO CHAIRMANSHIP BY EDITOR

Presented to Aid in Defraying Expenses of Social Justice Periodical

It was learned today that "The Christian Front," national magazine of social justice, owned and operated largely by students at Villanova, plans to stage a Poverty Dance at Rosemont College. Joseph O'Loughlin, Senior Artaman in charge of the arrangements for the dance, said that the dance will take place on Saturday evening, January 14.

Co-operation Expected

"We have received marvelous co-operation at Rosemont College, Mt. St. Joseph's College and our own Villanova College. Fr. Stanford has expressed his interest and approval. Yesterday Mother Mary Ignatius told me that The Christian Front would be more than welcome at Rosemont College," revealed Joseph O'Loughlin, chairman of the affair.

"The dance is being held for the benefit of The Christian Front," said O'Loughlin. "Because of our extremely low subscription rate, every year, we run a large deficit which we must make up through contributions. We must therefore, devise as many ways as possible not only to popularize the movement we represent, but also to be

Gigantic Amateur Program Prepared For Dec. 15; Local Talent Offered

"Villanova Varieties of 1937" to Uncover New Personalities; Intra-Mural Groups Seek Organization Under Leaders

By RENE CAILLIET

If Major Bowes happens by the campus a few days before the Christmas vacation begins he will see an amateur performance that will turn his heart green with envy, for on Wednesday night, December 15, the Villanova students will drop their sophisticated attitudes and become amateur entertainers.

Every year at approximately this time, the gymnasium becomes the scene of performing local talent. This year the intra-mural group, which sponsors this affair, promises a show worthy of Minsky, Ziegfeld, and DeMille rolled in one. As the time set for the performance comes a few days before the student body heads for home, turkey dinners, and new Christmas ties, the whole campus should be in a mood for receiving as well as giving a real night of fun.

"Dobby" In Again

At present the cast is practically completed but there is still room for the remaining talent that has as yet not been volunteered. Representatives from each hall have been busy getting prima donnas all primed for the curtain call. Although the acts will not be announced until the opening night with such men as "Dobbie" Dobrowolski, of Fedigan, Clem Lavin, of Austin, and "Tim" Brosman, Alumni, handling the acts, the audience can be prepared for anything. No representatives from the Mendel Day-Hops have been selected as yet.

Everything from tap-dancing to swing music will be seen, even Pie Shop humor will find its place on the program. The order of events will not be announced until the presentation and that will be decided by drawing for position. Each act will be limited to a certain length of time.

Last year the first amateur night was presented and many of the audience afterward expressed the fact that they also had some hidden talent but had been shy to air it in front of such a "critical" audience. This year, birds-eye view and candid shots of some of these acts have been witnessed in the rooms as well as in front of their favorite gatherings so this shyness is now a thing of the past. In fact some are

Hal Kemp, Kay Kayser, and Sammy Kaye Under Consideration

Due to the many existing contracts binding orchestras to the different hotels for the Winter, there is a great uncertainty attending orchestral engagements at this time of the year. For this reason, the Senior class has not completed its arrangements for the coming Belle Air Ball, which is to be held on February 25.

Consideration is being given to Hal Kemp, Kay Kayser, and Sammy Kaye. However, these orchestras will not be available for some time due to their having these hotel contracts, and they will have to be engaged on the night between their two season engagements. The announcement of the band will be made in the near future.

Presentation Announced By Rev. Edward Stanford

Gift Donated to College by Abbot of St. Thomas' Monastery, Brno, Czechoslavakia; Used by Scientist During Epoch-Making Experiments

NO CLASSES

There will be no classes tomorrow, December 8, Feast of the Immaculate Conception and Holy Day of Obligation. Mass for the resident students will be held at 8:30 A. M. in the chapel.

Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O.S.A., president of Villanova College, has recently announced the gift of the chair of the Augustinian scientist, Gregor Johann Mendel. This chair was used by the famous biologist during the period of his epoch-making experiments.

Presented by Abbot

Mendel's chair was presented to Villanova by the Rt. Rev. Franciscus Joannes Barino, O.S.A., present Abbot of St. Thomas Monastery at Brno, Czechoslavakia. The position of Abbot was also held by Gregor Mendel at this same monastery.

The presentation was effected through the efforts of the Very Rev. Joseph A. Hickey, O.S.A., assistant general, Rome, Italy. Fr. Hickey was formerly president of Villanova College.

It is planned to dedicate the chair in the ceremonies connected with the conferring of the Mendel Award this year. This chair will be to Villanova a lasting tribute to the memory and vast achievements of the widely acclaimed "Father of the Science of Heredity."

Award for Scientist

In 1928, the Augustinian Fathers at Villanova instigated the practice of conferring the Mendel Medal Award to the outstanding Catholic scientist. Since that time the award has been presented annually.

Mendel's experiments in plant hybridization laid the foundation for most of the modern work in heredity. His promulgation of basic principles of genetics established the study on a scientific standard, and his teachings have now become the central theme for biological re-

L. K. D. FRATERNITY HEARS PROMINENT DENTIST - LECTURER

Dr. Gregory Salisbury Addresses Gathering on 'Analgesia and Anaesthesia'

The Lambda Kappa Delta fraternity at its monthly meeting held last Thursday had the privilege of hearing Doctor Gregory Salisbury speak on the subject of "Pain: Its cause, effect, diagnosis, and cure."

Lectured To Association

Doctor Salisbury, prominent Philadelphia dentist, has recently completed a series of lectures on Anaesthesia and Drugs before the American Dental Association. In the near future the doctor is to lecture before the faculty and students of Columbia and New York Universities on the same subject. In the past, one of his papers entitled "The Effects of Anaesthesia" was published in the Journal of the American Dental Association.

Although the topic of his discourse was "pain," he devoted most of the time to anaesthesia and analgesia, a subtopic of pain. He stressed the fact that pain was very prominent in therapy and although it was something merely to be endured by the patient it was of utmost diagnostic importance to the physician and dentist. Doctor Salisbury seemed to be very proud of the fact that most of the pioneer and advanced work on anaesthesia was performed by dentists. Anaesthesia is a relatively new but far from unknown field.

Demonstrates On Student

In his treatment of anaesthesia and analgesia, the speaker first considered nitrous oxide as one of the outstanding and efficient agents. To exemplify the effectiveness of nitrous oxide and prove the lack of ill-after effects, he gave a demonstration using Martin Kassell, junior member of the fraternity, as his accomplice. While Kassell was under the effects of this treatment, Dr. Salisbury explained its effectiveness was due largely to the fact that it could be used irregardless of heart, lung, or any organic disorder. Various members of the fraternity were invited to test the completeness of Kassell's insensibility affected by the gas. He came through the demonstration without physical pain yet was aware mentally of all that was going on.

The speaker's lecture was made even more entertaining by his insertion of humor and by relating many experiences incurred during his college terms which although digressions, were pertinent to

VILLANOVA'S VICTORY

THIS year has witnessed the unparalleled victory of an unparalleled Villanova Eleven. Never before in the history of Villanova College have we had such a successful football year.

An undefeated team.

An All-America End.

And the highest national rating in the history of the school.

Have we not just cause for rejoicing at this marvelous achievement? Are we not prompted to applaud with out all the team which has made this possible?

Let our joy be without anything to spoil the victorious spirit that permeates every man at Villanova to-day.

There are a few men on the campus who lament the fact that Villanova has not received an invitation to some bowl for a post-season game.

Why such unsportsmanlike grumblings?

Did we not receive far greater glory than we had suspected was to be ours? Have we not a team that is recognized the country over as one of the finest?

Of course.

Well, let us be happy with what we have. The victory is ours. Let us not spoil our victory with unsportsmanlike "sour grapes" mutterings and insinuations.

The football team has proved that it is composed of real men. Now let the students show that they are sportsmen!

OLD FASHIONED FUN

THOSE forms of amusement which require our active participation are the forms of amusement which we enjoy most highly. We know from psychology that self-activity and group-activity are one of the chief joys of life.

Last year, just before the boys went home, we all got together down in the gym and staged an amateur night.

Each hall, and groups within each hall, "put on" shows, skits, acts, and what have you.

We had a swell time. In fact, after it was all over, we had quite a job trying to recall when we had had a better time.

We have only one week to go to December 15th, the evening when the Second Annual Amateur Night hits the deck.

Get together today. Talk it up. Start making plans.

When things like this come along, you'll always find within the crowd the perennial cynic. He says: "What is the use? Why make a sap of yourself?"

Don't listen to such tripe.

Get busy now. Here is an opportunity for each and every one of you to have a grand time.

Freshmen: you didn't do as well as you might have at the Temple game. Sophomores: you fell down on the Field Day.

Freshmen and Sophomores: Save your honor. Get going now.
